Vietnam Hero Seized

Hijacked Jet Flown Half Around World

What Plane? Says Suspect

ROME (Reuters) — Raphael Minichiello, suspected of hijacking a Boeing 707 jetliner from Los Angeles to Rome, said today he has no idea why Italian police arrested him.

Facing reporters at police headquarters, Minichiello parried most queries with replies such as "I don't know" and "I don't remember."

He answered fully only when asked about his service in Vietnam and the theft of money from Canadian Pendleton in California which got him into trouble.

Asked if he admitted hijacking the plane, he replied: "What plane? I don't know what you're talking about. The only time I've been on a plane was to go to Vietnam and when I came back from Vietnam."

"Then how did you get to Italy?" he was asked. He replied: "I don't know."

He said he was in the woods when police arrested him. "I don't know what they want," he added.

In reply to other questions, he said he "never felt better," and added: "I'm not scared. I've never been scared."

"Do you think the war in Vietnam is a good war?" he was asked.

"I don't believe no war is a good war," he replied.

He said, however, that he had volunteered to fight in Vietnam.

Describing the alleged crime for which he was to stand court martial, Minichiello commented: "You want to know about the court martial? OK, I'll tell you."

He said he had saved $800 when he was in Vietnam in the marine saving funds, but when he wanted to withdraw them, he was given only $600.

Quebec Nurses Vote to Strike

MONTREAL (CP) — Non-medical workers and nurses at 160 Quebec hospitals voted Friday night in favor of strike action to back demands for a 22-per-cent wage increase after 17 months without a contract.

CN Revives Plan For Run-through

OTTAWA (CP) — The issue that started a major rail shutdown five years ago is alive again and threatening another union management battle.

The CNR is proposing a run-through at Nakina, Ont., it was revealed Friday.

Along with Wainright, Alta., it was the communities that directly touched off mass walkouts in late 1964 over the run-through issue.

The CNR notified the operating unions about a month ago of the proposed Nakina run-through. Talks have been under way since then.

About 100 employees and their families would be affected by the change. Crews now board at and are returned to Nakina. Under the proposal, trains would no longer change crews at the point.

U.S. Marine Caught in Rome

From Reuters AP

ROME (CP) — The bizarre odyssey of a young Vietnam war hero who pirated a giant jetliner in California Friday and hopscotched halfway around the world, ended early today when Italian police captured him south of Rome near a religious shrine, the Sanctuary of Divine Love.

He was clad only in his underpants, one report said. Another report said he wore a white shirt and blue trousers.

The hijacker, U.S. Marine L.Cpl. Raphael Minichiello—20 years old today—shouted "Fellow countrymen, why are you arresting me?" at Italian police who closed in on him, but he put up no resistance.

An Italian police official said today the alleged hijacker will be tried in Italy.

The official said the hijacker would most probably be charged with crimes ranging from kidnapping to threatening with fire arms.

His capture came after police spent four hours searching a vine-covered hillside in roling country south of Rome on the way to Naples, where Minichiello was believed bound to see his father.

Two helicopters, hundreds of police and numerous police dogs were used in the search.

Minichiello was captured five hours after landing at Rome airport. He left the city in a car with the director of the airport frontier police, Pietro Guli, as a hostage.

The hijacker had flown 6,900 miles in a five-stage journey across the United States, the Atlantic Ocean and Western Europe.

The U.S. defence department said Minichiello is an Italian-born U.S. marine who was decorated for gallantry in the Vietnam war. His mother lives in Seattle, Wash., and his father lives in Naples.

Minichiello was listed as away without leave from the Marine Corps Thursday when he did not appear to face charges at a general court-martial in Camp Pendleton, Calif., the FBI reported. He had been accused of breaking and entering a post exchange at Camp Pendleton.

Crew members aboard the Trans World Airlines Flight 85 described the hijacker as a gentlemanly madman.

When the giant Trans World Airlines Boeing 707 touched down at Rome airport, it was the fifth stop for the young marine since he commandeered the plane on a flight from Baltimore to San Francisco Friday.

It made previous stops in Denver, New York, Bangor, Me., and Shannon, Ireland.

It was the longest hijacking in history and covered 7,000 miles.

The flight originated in Baltimore and Minichiello boarded it in St. Louis, Mo. When it reached California, he drew a 7.65-millimetre carbine from a suitcase and told a stewardess: "I want to see the pilot."

Told that the plane would have insufficient fuel to fly to New York, he agreed to land in

The New Look?

Even Hallowe'en customs are changing — as this little band of Bellevillians showed last night on a trick-or-treat trek. Among the traditional costume inspirations above note the youngster influenced by more contemporary trends — a striker demanding a 10-cent pay hike.

Halloween Treats Doctored

Lighted Cross Made To Spell Obscenity

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Someone climbed the lighted cross on Montreal's Mount Royal Friday night and tampered with the bulbs in the modern, daring prank of a Hallowe'en night marred by reports of doctored treats and vandalism in several Canadian cities.

Montreal police switched off the lights of the city's best known landmark after a prankster unscrewed most of the bulbs to spell out an obscenity.

Police in cities from Vancouver to Halifax received reports of children being given doctored Hallowe'en treats, including razor blades and pins embedded in apples, slivers of glass embedded in candy and chocolate covered mothballs.

At least one charge of criminal negligence was laid in connection with doctored treats — in Edmonton — but no injuries were reported and parents generally were making careful checks of treats received by their children.

Many church, community and parent groups arranged indoor parties rather than subject children to the potential danger from doctored treats.

There were no immediate reports of injuries from fireworks. Many cities have banned fireworks, except when used for supervised fireworks displays.

Separatists Infiltrate Crowd

Quebec's Students Fail in Bid to Keep Protests Peaceful

QUEBEC (CP)—"On ne veut pas de violence"—"We don't want violence."

Those shouted words turned sour Friday night in the mouths of young students who had demonstrated peacefully for almost a week against a Quebec government language bill that led to their massive Friday protest.

Their gathering at Quebec, where 15,000 to 20,000 assembled, was intended to be the climax of local demonstrations, all of them orderly and well-controlled, in various parts of the province.

They came to Quebec City according to plans laid by the Front du Quebec Francais, a group of organizations opposed to Bill 63's provision that choice of the language of instruction in the province would remain the option of parents.

By arrangement, one young marshal, identified by armband, would attend to the good behavior of about 20 other students.

These marshals did their job effectively until about 8 p.m. evening, when elements within the flood-lit gathering on the legislature grounds started to throw Molotov cocktails toward a line of police behind a temporary metal barricade.

Then a blue motor van with the slogan "Quebec Libre"—Free Quebec—marked in white across its front tried to push its way toward police.

The marshals refused to let it pass, and part of the crowd surrounded it and shouted their statement: "On ne veut pas de violence."

The youngsters started to rock the vehicle, which moved back into the crowd. It had a load of demonstrators of its own and its driver wore the black sweater of Les Chevaliers de l'Independence—the Knights of Independence—a hard-line separatist organization based in Montreal whose leader is Reggie Chartrand, a former boxer the demonstrators went on a window-smashing spree in Youville Square, a commercial place on the edge of the older part of the city.

By then the demonstration marshals, who had handled their jobs conscientiously with their student followers, finished their duty in Front de legislature. About 1,000 demonstrators were left there in windy, below-freezing weather.

Bottles, sticks and rocks were flung into the police cordon around the legislature and the Quebec provincial force resorted to tear-gas to disperse the last demonstrators there.

Tear-gas was also used in Youville Square and at the same time Quebec City police set out on patrol through the streets where demonstrators roamed and made arrests. Short ly after midnight, close to 40 persons had been detained.

One youngster, held up by marshals earlier when he tried to get into police lines at the legislature, dropped a pistol. Police seized him quickly.

An older man carrying a white cane, swung it at a policeman who told him the legislature grounds had become a dangerous area. The policeman knocked him to earth and he was taken into custody.

The major rally of PQF thus wound up with the kind of ugly finish Montreal has become familiar with in recent years.

The violent finish to the youngsters' big day was expected to strengthen the hand of Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand who is thought to have staked his future and that of his party on the government bill, whose study in the legislature is not complete.

The premier said in the national assembly Thursday that the students, through their demonstrations, had unwittingly allied themselves with fomenters of disorders who have wrought trouble elsewhere in Quebec.

Pretty Quiet Night

Police Probe Booby-trapped Treats

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Hallowe'en styles may be changing — last night the bowl was muted almost to a murmur in the Quinte district.

The traditional festival of ghouls and goblins may not exactly match the style of the Sixties.

But, there is a new brand of ghoulish humor abroad.

Today, while district police count Hallowe'en 1969 as one of the quietest on record for hi-jinks, they also are probing incidents where masqueraading youngsters were treated to different — and dangerous — tricks.

Needles, pins and razor blades once again were found in tempting Hallowe'en treats shelled out to moppets.

In Belleville, police report about six such complaints, all of which are actively under investigation.

There were two similar incidents at Trenton, one at Brighton and one reported by security police at Canadian Forces Base Trenton.

Fortunately, say police, there were no reports of injuries.

The sharp instruments were imbedded in apples or apples dished out to youngsters on traditional trick-or treat treks through their neighborhoods.

Insp. Blatchford said the complaints were being actively pursued by detectives.

Other aspects of Hallowe'en were quieter again were found in the incidents.

In fact, the 1969 celebration of the festival also drew a commendation from Insp. Blatchford to younger citizens.

"The young people of the community are to be really congratulated for their behavior during the evening," he said.

Once a festival of high jinks, at times amounting to communal chaos in Quinte's rural areas, Hallowe'en this year was publicly observed compared with its past record.

Not that the celebration was without many of its traditional trappings. Store windows, parked automobiles, were still soaped. Some rural mail boxes were overturned; at Brighton an outhouse was reported set alight.

But the prankishness did not reach the pitch of former years.

"It's not like it used to be," said one Trenton police officer.

At Belleville district OPP headquarters, today is usually the time when calls storm flooding in with a fervent complaint — smashing of mail boxes.

"We usually have at least a dozen mail-box calls by this time," noted a constable this morning. "So far, we haven't had one — and that's really strange."

Most active spot in the area last night was the Belleville Armories where 1,300 turned up to dance at a Hallowe'en Howl, sponsored by the city's Jaycees.

Police later reported the arrest of a teenager — believed to be a juvenile — on a charge of marijuana possession. There were no other incidents.

Window soaping in public places seemed slightly out of style. There was neither the volume — nor the content.

While downtown store windows in Belleville received a fair share of attention, the sometimes - colorful motives of yesteryear were replaced by signs of social commitment.

This morning many Front Street display windows were emblazoned with the universal peace emblem of anti - war groups.

Unchanged, however, was the enthusiasm of small fry for the festivities.

Thousands of them also observed a newer Hallowe'en tradition ;— collecting for UNICEF and the young of underprivileged countries. The success of their efforts will be known next week when the donations are turned in at local public schools.

Great Pumpkin

Hallowe'en styles may change but tradition still holds good for the small fry. For youngsters — like two-year-old Jenny Burkitt — it's still the time of the Great Pumpkin and the trick-or-treat.

Rocking Bands, Rolling Fans Howled It Up

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

Another Hallowe'en night of trick-or-treat has passed, and with it another Hallowe'en Howl — the rock dance held in the armories that has now become a Belleville tradition.

And last night the Belleville Jaycees, who sponsor the annual dance, sold approximately 1,300 tickets at $1 per person, making the event another Belleville rock music success.

However, this year, the dance was more of a success in a way, than in the past. For the first time since its inception about five or six years ago, the Hallowe'en Howl featured two local rock groups, yet drew a big crowd.

In past music had been supplied by one local group and by one of two in-a-band, usually from Toronto.

And the fact that local groups are able to draw large numbers of rock fans, in spite of the threat of "over exposure" testifies to the increase in calibre of Belleville's own bands.

Fans were even responsive to the music of their own groups, a situation that was once a rarity in this city, and applause rippled through the Belleville Armories.

The reasons for the change in tone of rock events in cities like Belleville could be divided generally into two categories — the local bands and the local fans.

Local groups have shown they can enjoy a measure of success on the Ontario music scene, regardless of the size or stature of the city in which they are born.

The Sands of Time, with a series of tours in both western and eastern Canada, and lately Bill the Lizard, who have been receiving critical acclaim from Toronto groups like Milkwood, and McKenna Mendelson Mainline, have shown their music is nothing to be ashamed of.

Of course, in the case of the Hallowe'en Howl, less significant fringe benefits could have produced favorable feelings from Belleville's rock listeners.

Admission was only $1 and didn't need police to handle a situation that's often not the case as prices range from $1.50 to $1.75.

And it's becoming slightly difficult to become responsive anymore. The Armories was too well lighted for a number of fans interviewed by the Intelligencer.

There was only one "stupid" incident last night — a Belleville youth was arrested and charged with possession of narcotics.

Fred Jones, Jaycee Howl chairman, was all smiles about the dance's success.

"This is a lot better than last year," he said.

And the music was good and loud and vibrant (and (a credit to the Jaycees) it contrasted between the two groups.

Bill the Lizard, after a "subdued" first set, came back for its second set with a heaviness that testified to critical comments that it is the best gut - blues," "hard rock" group in the area.

Highlights of their act included their own songs and the Johnny Winter number, "I'm Yours, I'm Hers". Specifically their own composition, "Get" drew the fans' favors.

The Westbury Union from Trenton contrasted, offering commercial pop, but with style and substance, something that often lacks in this type of music.

In particular, a medley of Hit by the Turtles, and their ability to play contrasting tunes by the Bee Gees, then Steppenwolf, illustrated their competence in arrangements.

After the event, the Intelligencer talked with the groups. Bill the Lizard and then, the Westbury Union.

Ron Cassidy, the viper-tongued lead singer of "Bill," commented on questions about their lack of vocal set.

"We don't have any act. There's nothing wrong with having a good act," he said. "We're no good at a show."

"The drum solo and the bass solo were spontaneous things," he said, testifying that the group's preference is to versatility of format.

"You've got to get right into the music," explained Mark Piwowarski. "We can't get into it and have a good act at the same time."

And Rob Huffman, drummer of Bill the Lizard, added, "An act takes too much time to change and keep with the times. It's better to worry about the quality of the music."

"We're aiming for a million people to say, 'hey, that's alright'," Ron said about their music and their original compositions.

The Westbury Union is staffed by Dan Thompson, the lead singer; Dave Empey, the drummer; Randy Whaley, bass guitarist; Paul Lockyer, organist; and Roger Hall, lead guitarist.

Roger Hall and Dan Thompson commented on their music — and mentioned that the group has been playing for almost two years — "two years in March."

"Whatever pleases the crowd, is what we do," explained Roger. "The arrangements are made to suit ourselves and the crowds get to know what we do."

There has been an evolution in the style of the Westbury Union and "the members themselves cause the evolution."

Asked if they had reached their musical goal, Roger replied, "We're satisfied. We can always improve, but we are not going to knock ourselves."

"We're taking it for what it's worth. Each guy is looking for something of his own," he added.

The Westbury Union will probably be breaking up next fall when some of its members go to university and the members look at the fact with practicality.

There's no emotional musical ego involved in that decision. Roger will continue professionally and his cohorts will probably have their own groups at university.

Elementary Students' Patriotism, Pride Echoed in Their Songs, Poems, Plays

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

The voices of doom can still their cries — young Canadians are in no danger of growing up without a sense of national identity.

Patriotism and pride are being written into the elementary school course of study and by the pupils themselves.

Canada Day at Queen Victoria School Friday was a case in point. As part of their English, social studies and art studies, Grade 5 and 6 pupils wrote a play, poems, songs and prepared demonstrations, all in celebration of Canada. The results were presented to visiting classes from Sir Winston Churchill and Queen Elizabeth schools.

Mrs. Helen Jones co-ordinated the efforts of six teachers and their classes in preparing the production. Each child chose a facet of the production most interesting to him — writing, singing dancing, acting or researching aspects of Canadian life for demonstrations of the nation at war, its industries, natural resources, sports and the like.

"Central to productions of this type", says Mrs. Jones, "is the educational concept that it's not how much you know, but how you use your knowledge that counts in life".

The play, based on the attempt of a group of Canadians to clear up a Texan's misconceptions about Canada, was climaxed with a first fight over national aims and concluded with the fostering of international harmony through a comparison of common goals.

Canada Day was in preparation from mid-September and will be repeated for parents groups next week.

Faster, Feet... Faster!

By HARRY MULHALL

The rural landscape around Belleville takes a pounding tomorrow from pairs and pairs of rugged feet.

And if successful, the event will be something of a feat of ruggedness in itself.

Sunday a small swarm of Loyalist College students will challenge the countryside in a 24-mile marathon run.

The pack of volunteer runners is scheduled to move off from the college's Wallbridge Road campus at 9 a.m. and finish at city hall - - - sometime.

Between both points the students have set themselves a hardy task. the roughly circular route has been deliberately mapped to provide the maximum challenges — with obstacles posed by unbroken land, swamp, quarries and creeks.

The marathon will swing around Wallbridge and across to Foxboro, down to Corbyville for the home stretch into the city.

At Lazier's dam on Cannifton Road the runners will leave the pavement and take to the Moira River for the final lap downtown to city hall.

Challenge is the key to the event.

"One objective is to finish first," said one of the student organizers of the marathon. "But the primary goal is to complete the run."

Spectacular Crash Injures 8; Baby Critical

TWEED (Special) — A five months old baby is in critical condition, and seven other people — three children and four adults — were treated in Belleville Hospital this morning following a one car accident on Highway 7 east of Marmora.

All eight persons were riding in a car said to have crashed through a barricade at a road construction site and slammed into a culvert. All were from Toronto.

Admitted to hospital following the accident were Eugene Lloyd, 30, with multiple facial cuts; James Lloyd 8, forehead cuts; Allan Lloyd, 7, forehead abrasion and possible nose fracture, and Theresa Lloyd, 9, facial cuts.

Treated and discharged were Ernest Lloyd, and his wife, Ethel, parents of the three older Lloyd children, and Allan Walford, 41.

Mrs. Lloyd, grandmother of the critically injured five months old baby, was discharged from Belleville hospital to ride in the ambulance with her granddaughter on the trip to Sick Children's Hospital in Toronto.

Details of the accident were not immediately available from Madoc Provincial Police, who investigated the mishap.

It was learned, however, that the car went through a detour sign at a highway construction site and slammed into a cement culvert.

Nixon Woos Latin America

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — President Nixon Friday night outlined his policy toward Latin America, replacing provisional large scale aid handouts with a program of private investment incentives and long term trade.

Stressing a new policy of partnership rather than leadership from Washington, Nixon also promised a set of specific proposals later this month.

In a speech to the Inter-American Press Association, he proposed an Action-for-Progress program for the 1970s to succeed the Alliance for Progress, the development effort launched in 1961.

—Nixon's speech contained only two specific unilateral actions by the United States:

—The untying of United States aid to allow loan dollars to be spent in Latin America as well as the U.S.;

—The drafting of a request to Congress for creation of an under-secretary of state to co-ordinate U.S. policy in the Americas.

Obviously referring to the rising number of military governments in Latin America, he stressed the U.S. must deal realistically in granting diplomatic recognition to governments as they are.

Ever Seen Dragons Fly?

Dragonflies, still occasionally known as devil's darning needles, are one of the most primitive insects known to man and have changed little over the past two-and-a-half million years.

In fact, they can well be termed "living" fossils.

In any event, dragon flies were the topic of discussion at this week's second fall meeting of the Quinte Field Naturalists. Guest speaker was Dr. P. S. Corbet, director of the Belleville Research Institute.

A recognized authority on dragonflies with two books to his credit, Dr. Corbet outlined their structure and life cycle, noting that many aspects of their behavior were unique in the insect world.

Flying insects are unique. They have only four natural enemies and with the exception of the falcon and kingbird, few birds can fly fast enough to catch them.

Modern dragonflies range from the equator to the northern tree line. Their main change over the past several million years has been size — some of their ancestors had a wing spread of nearly two feet.

Dr. Corbet illustrated his talk with colored slides and displayed a number of exhibits, including early books on dragonflies, one an original copy of a volume by Dutch naturalist Swammerdam (1637-80).

Before coming to Canada, Dr. Corbet served in Uganda as entomologist and zoologist and following his appointment to the Science Service, Ottawa, continued his research on aquatic insects on Ellesmere Island in the Canadian Arctic.

Prior to Expo '67 in Montreal, he studied the emergence of various insects from the St. Lawrence River, the findings of which led to control measures that prevent a plague of shadflies during the world's fair.

Hundreds Attend Banquet Honoring Warden and Mrs. Donald Rodgers

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Approximately 400 persons, members of Hastings County Council, county administrative officials, area civic officials, and members of families and their wives turned out last night to honor county Warden Donald W. Rodgers and Mrs. Rodgers.

A Banquet chairman, Carl E. Bateman, county clerk-treasurer and administrator, told the guest that wardens' banquets were as traditional as the four seasons.

But, he said, few wardens would be more deserving of the honor than the Stirling reeve, who, he said, had given much of his life to municipal affairs.

In his address of welcome, Warden Rodgers said Hastings County should be proud of its progressive attitude.

"We have been accused of acting too fast, of going too slow and of doing nothing," he said.

At the same time, much had been accomplished in the provision of services on an area basis.

He referred to the county health unit taking in Belleville and Trenton, the county welfare administration and joint ownership of the Belleville hospital.

"Local government has been good government," he said, "but at the same time I would not be surprised if some day it became obsolete."

He said it was impossible to administer at a horse and buggy pace in the express-day age.

Looking ahead to government reform, Warden Rodgers visualized some serious consideration of regional government within five years, and a reduction of the number of municipalities in the county from the present 27 to possibly eight or 10.

Some of the smaller municipalities are finding it increasingly difficult to operate without increased government grants, he said.

One of the things which must be done on an area basis was planning, he said.

Out of the present move toward government reform, the warden felt certain there would result an autonomous and viable administrative structure.

But if warden's banquets are traditional, last night's social function broke with tradition in that there was no guest speaker.

True, there was the customary recognition of past wardens, and many toasts, but instead of a guest speaker, Warden Rodgers said he felt that banquet guests should be entertained.

On hand to "entertain" were comedy magician Jack Bateman of Toronto, and trick violinist Ben Silverton with pianist Cyril Messenger.

Fifteen ex-wardens attended the banquet, the oldest being William C. West, who was Stirling warden back in 1936.

Head table guests were "piped" into the banquet room by kilted Frank Rodgers of Belleville, brother of the warden.

Among the head table guests were area owners of parliament Lee Grills and Clarke T. Rollins, both former county wardens, Quinte MPP Dr. R. T. Potter, Hastings and Prince Edward MP George Hees, and Belleville Mayor Dr. J. Russell Scott.

Other guests included neighboring wardens Harold Creighton of Lennox and Addington and George Foster of Prince Edward.

Contrasts

The lock gates are stilled and the water placid in the late fall afternoon. The cruisers are in dry dock in sheds around the province. If they are not plying warmer waters of the American south.

On the Rideau the canal scene is quiet. Instead of the bright garb of vacationers the colors are now relatively muted dying embers of the woodland all around. It is late October, the sounds of summer are gone, only an occasional car passes and sudden snow squalls are a reminder of oncoming winter.

At Chaffey's Locks the road west to the improbably-named Perth Road is muddy after the snow and innocent-looking as it disappears into the bush. Then a sudden turn to the left and a steep rise are hints of more difficult going. Steep descents, narrowing of the track to the point where red markers on trees are necessary for the guidance of night drivers, and sudden glimpses of large tracts of lake follow.

Here in this interior land is the age-old Canada, the timeless yesterday, today and tomorrow where only the elements, the wind and the snow and the scattering of leaves in autumn's last days are companion to the few who venture into such realms.

A rail track (the students who took the freight line to Bancroft Monday had a taste of similar terrain), a single still-occupied cottage and an occasional house proclaim approaching civilization at Perth Road.

It is a far cry from the exotic climes to which the brothers Chaffey were lured some 80 years ago. Born in Brockville in 1848, George Chaffey became a shipbuilder on the Great Lakes.

Later he went to California where, in partnership with his brother, he built a model irrigation project and founded the city of Ontario. Then, at the request of Alfred Deakin, who was to become Prime Minister of Australia, Chaffey went to that country in 1886. He began irrigated fruit production in the Murray Valley and by providing the method possible was largely responsible for the successful development of the fruit industry in Australia.

A man in his time can go far. George Chaffey, whose name is commemorated in the Rideau region (he died in 1932) was such a man. His was a life of contrasts. Few can have spent such interesting years on two continents.

Color TV

Warnings of radiation hazard from watching color television is not deterring buyers. Presumably manufacturers are making sure their sets conform to accepted standards laid down by the government.

More and more, color TV is making its appearance in homes across Canada and retailers display them prominently in their stores, usually switched on to display the quality of the product. This seems to vary so that the prudent buyer shops around before making his choice.

Meanwhile in Europe competition among manufacturers is as keen as it is here. German Features, the Hamburg news syndicate, notes for example that the Mediterranean countries are debating whether to adopt the German Pal system or France's Secam TV.

Whatever the choice it is expected to dictate the system to be used in North Africa and possibly South America too. The French system currently is being used in France, Monaco and Communist East Europe. When Russia also plumbed for it in 1965 it was thought others would follow suit; however according to German Features most West European countries have adopted the West German system which is regarded as having advantages over Secam. For example it is easier to work with in TV studios and it also seems to bridge mountains and longer distances more readily than its rival.

It is a far cry from the experiments of Scotsman John Logie Baird which led to the introduction of a public television service by the British Broadcasting Corporation back in 1929. Ironically his system was also adopted by the German post office the same year. Three years earlier Baird first demonstrated television long distance. And today with today's space satellites, in 1928, he transmitted a signal from Coulson, Kent, that was seen on a receiver in Hartsdale, N.Y. More than a decade later, in 1939, he was demonstrating color TV.

It is another indication that in this world there is really nothing new under the sun. More than 40 years ago Baird had his first working TV apparatus. For all that, today's world also needs its men of vision and technical skill; that is why a good education is increasingly necessary. It is no world for dropouts.

Civilization's Gradual and Painful Evolution

By RICHARD JACKSON

In these dicey days of timid official obfuscation and weak compromise with the cranks, HRH comes through clear, clean and strong.

"If you do not want us, then for goodness sake let us end it on amicable terms without having a row about it," he has told us all.

And what a refreshing change of pace, that, after all the shabby, shilly-shally by republican-minded Canadians about the Queen and the British tradition.

But that was no one-shot performance, brilliant as it was, in the vanishing art of telling the truth as a hard-headed man sees it.

Listen to the Prince as he talked, the other night, at the Trafalgar Dinner of the Canadian Naval Officers Association, as he counselled all in Canada who believed in the ages-tested virtues of loyalty, truth and honor to be aware of revolutionaries dedicated to the destruction of these old values in the counter-felt cause of a more loose and permisive society.

"For some years now," said HRH, "it has been fashionable to be angry about human civilization, institutions and conventions.

"'Away with all this out-of-date clobber,' cry the radicals, 'let's wipe the dirty old slate clean and start again.'

"The trouble is," noted the Duke, "that without all this 'clobber' we would be back on Square One and relying on brute force and instinct.

"And you do not have to look very far for evidence to support this."

The Duke could have been looking squarely at some of the university campuses and the student radicals rampaging across them, for he went on:

"It is sheer intellectual arrogance to claim that everyone who lived in history was a fraud and a scoundrel, and that their particular group or their particular generation has a monopoly of all the virtues and all the wisdom."

The history of human civilization, recounted HRH, is the story of gradual and painful improvement.

To be sure there were frauds and scoundrels, but there were more people devoted to the improvement of the quality of life.

"Indeed," went on the Duke, "but for the constant and unremitting opposition of the apathetic, the exploiters and the destroyers, the world would have been a far better place than it is."

In other words, the Duke was indicting the radicals and the revolutionaries of doing far more harm than ever they have done good.

In today's uncertain world, said the Duke, fortunately people still have a choice.

"They can build on the experience of previous generations and by using the ideals and principles which have been handed down, continue to struggle to improve . . . .

"Or they can choose to regard history as bunk and to tear down the whole structure of civilization in the hope that by starting all over again, something better will emerge."

The arrogance of the young self-proclaimed intellectual elite is easily translated into simple words:

Experiment is infallible success.

To drop out is in — to stay in is out.

"I can tell you where I stand," proclaimed the warrior prince, as if anyone could doubt, "on the same side I was with when many of us here at this Trafalgar Night dinner were comrades in arms in the war at sea."

Then, he added, almost making it sound like it could be another kind of war — which perhaps it may be — "And I know which side I have chosen to be on now."

Hurrah for the Duke of Edinburgh.

English, French, and Bill 63

Montreal La Presse: Absurdity does not kill. If it killed, we would be attending the funeral . . . of Mr. François-Albert Angers, president of the Montreal St. Jean Baptiste Society, who, in calling an emergency "national" meeting of all groups—some having fewer than five members—opposed to Bill 63, compared the situation to the battle of the Plains of Abraham and Premier Bertrand to Gen. Wolfe! He asked . . . whether we are again going to capitulate and recognize the English language officially by giving it a status of equality. Is it not strange, to say the least, that Mr. Angers, who no doubt takes himself for Montcalm, did not utter a shout of triumph a few months ago when the Canadian Parliament "capitulated" by recognizing French and giving it equal status to English in all its institutions?

When a law imposes on all English-speaking young people the obligation to acquire a working knowledge of French if they want to obtain a diploma of any kind in Quebec, the "ultras" call this "defending the rights of the English" and talk of treason. Why? Because, once said for all, they have decided to say that white is black and black is white. In fair terms, this is called mental aberration.

As Mr. Bertrand explained, the option he chose after a year of collective research is a political option. The 103 members of the national assembly cannot all be wrong at the same time. They know their milieu and they know that this option—balanced, measured, realistic—is that of the great majority of Quebecers, who are people of good sense. If people want French to become the working language everywhere, they must begin by teaching it to the English-speaking people who have never been able to learn it effectively. Teachers of French should tackle this task with enthusiasm if . . . they really want to work to expand the use of our language. . . .

Nixon's Hatchet Man

Foot-in-Mouth, Spiro Agnew Chops All and Sundry

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — In 1968, when presidential candidate Richard Nixon announced his choice for vice-presidential running mate in the United States election, the joke among Democrats was:

"What's a Spiro Agnew?"

The first-term Republican governor of Maryland conceded his name was not exactly a household word nationally, but promised that the election campaign would fix that.

It certainly did. After the first few of dozens of off-the-cuff blunders, his name became a dirty word among many loyal Republicans who wished he had been left in the virtual political obscurity from which Nixon had elevated him.

Ever since his relationship with the party hierarchy and his role in the subsequent Nixon administration has been a subject of interest and debate.

Recently, as Agnew again surged into the headlines with a free-wheeling attack on war critics and others, all the unanswered questions are again being asked.

At the heart of the matter is whether Agnew is simply politically naive, and the White House cannot or will not bring him to heel, or whether he is in fact doing the president's bidding.

The suggestion that he is putting into words ideas and criticisms the president does not want to be associated with personally—the administration's champion of the conservative constituency—is rejected by the White House. The vice-president's speeches are not cleared in advance, spokesmen say.

When Nixon selected Agnew, the theory was that he was the only one of several prospects acceptable to the congressional establishment of the South, whose support was seen as vital to a Nixon victory.

Agnew got off on the wrong foot from the start with such gaffs as referring to a reporter as a "fat Jap," calling Democratic presidential candidate Hubert Humphrey "soft on communism" and showing disregard, many thought, for the plight of the poor with the remark that "when you've seen one slum you've seen them all."

Other blunders followed, but prior to last week's storm Agnew had been getting thoughtful praise in the press and from colleagues for quiet devotion to his duties. He seemed to be a reformed character.

What spoiled it all was the national Moratorium Day of protest against the war. This brought Agnew storming out of his corner, bare-knuckling intellectuals, the left, protesters and Democrats in general.

Campus unrest was the work of a "minority of pushy youngsters and middle-aged malcontents." The South had too long been the "punching bag of those who characterize themselves as liberal intellectuals."

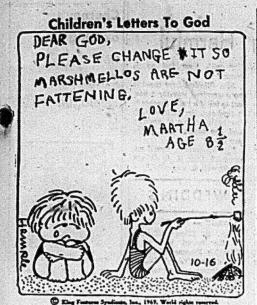
As for the moratorium, "a spirit of national masochism prevails, encouraged by an effete corps of impudent snobs who characterize themselves as intellectuals."

Many serious opponents of the war in both parties were enraged. Senator William Fulbright, a leading and articulate war foe, wouldn't reply, saying only: "I just considered the source."

What puzzles many Republicans is that the vice-president is permitted to charge ahead while other party leaders are far more subtle in handling the opposition. Despite White House disclaimers, it cannot help but be noted that Agnew's outburst has been cast in a role of hatchet man similar to that once filled by Joseph McCarthy. Nixon in the days when Dwight Eisenhower was president.

At that time, surgeon columnist Richard Wilson in the Washington Star, reflecting a widely-held view, Nixon was "acting as a political foil and lead man in thrusts that would have been considered undignified and imprudent in a leader supposed to be president of all the people."

Children's Letters To God



Los Angeles Nuns Challenge Vatican

NEW YORK (AP) — The parish pastor insisted that the nuns wear religious habits while teaching. They refused, insisting they were free to wear regular contemporary clothing. The upshot: no classes for the time being.

The clash of point of view, which occurred recently at St. Mary's Church in South Dartmouth, Mass., reflects in miniature an aura of tension developing in the United States between Roman Catholic authorities and some sisterhoods.

At issue was the extent of freedom to be allowed the communities of women in initiating new styles and methods of carrying out their work. The leeway seemed to vary from place to place, depending on the local bishop's attitude.

It may be that nuns will "have to work differently in one diocese from the way they will work in another diocese," says Rev. Edward L. Heston, an American priest who now holds a Vatican post dealing with religious orders.

In the South Dartmouth case, the pastor, Rt. Rev. Msgr. Arthur G. Considine, had the backing of Bishop James L. Connolly, of the Fall River, Mass., diocese, in insisting the nuns wear habits, a chancery office spokesman said.

The three nuns involved are members of the Sisters of Mercy, one of the largest orders of teachers and nurses in the American Church, with about 13,000 of them in two branches.

It and many of the more than 500 other Catholic communities of women recently have been modifying regulations to permit wider options in dress and modes of life.

The process has brought scattered incidents of conflict.

A showdown now appears in the offing over one of the most prolonged and dramatic collisions, involving the Immaculate Heart of Mary Sisters. They've been ordered by the Vatican to cease experiments and adopt uniform rules.

However, they have sent a letter replying that their innovations still are in a testing stage, that they probably cannot be properly evaluated until 1975, and "in the meantime, we will continue with no change of direction."

The order's new provisions allow its members wide flexibility in devotional life, work and apparel.

Last May, following a dispute between the sisters and James Cardinal McIntyre of Los Angeles, the Vatican issued a directive, telling the order, among other things:

—To adopt a standard uniform habit, rather than to allow each sister to choose her garb according to the nature of her work.

—To return to specifically educational work, rather than the variety of activities the sisters have been undertaking.

—To establish a fixed schedule of community spiritual devotions, and to co-operate with the bishop of the diocese in which they operate.

The instructions resembled those insisted on earlier by Cardinal McIntyre, in whose diocese most of the Immaculate Heart Sisters serve and where 250 of them were removed from teaching posts in the archdiocesan schools for refusing to yield to his policies.

In challenging the Vatican's parallel demands, the order termed them discriminatory, saying many other orders were carrying out similar reforms.

A Catholic sociologist and columnist, Rev. Andrew M. Greeley, of Chicago, predicts that if the sisters are forced to choose between "being thrown out of the religious life or surrender to the cardinal," they will accept expulsion.

U.C.W. Meetings

ST. MARK'S UCW

The general UCW meeting was held in the Sunday school room of St. Mark's United Church, Canifton. Since the speaker for the evening was dealing with Newfoundland the opening hymn was the Newfoundland National Anthem. A worship service with the Carmel-Canifton Unit in charge was led by Mrs. Edie Gowthorpe.

During the business portion of the meeting the members discussed the fall rally to be held in Foxboro Emmanuel United Church, Monday, Oct. 27. Plans for the annual meeting in January and a possible bus trip in November were also discussed.

Mrs. Helen Hinze and the Bethany Unit presented an amusing skit dealing with the variety of excuses often given by UCW members when asked to take an office within the organization.

Miss Marion Brenton then introduced the guest speaker, Miss Doreen Reynolds, who has spent two summers in northern Newfoundland as a volunteer worker for the church at the Grenfell Mission. The history of the mission began over 70 years ago when Dr. Wilfred Grenfell began to organize facilities for a hospital, church, orphanage and school to service the isolated villagers in such places as St. Anthony, St. Anthony Bight and Harrington Harbor.

Amusing anecdotes and disturbing facts were related concerning present day social, economic, educational and medical conditions in the remote coastal villages of Newfoundland and Labrador. A variety of services are rendered each summer by small groups of volunteers, such as operating church - vacation schools, day camps, sports for children, giving speech therapy, helping in the hospital and on the travelling hospital boat.

Miss Reynold's informative talk ended with a viewing of the many slides and movies which she had taken while in Newfoundland.

Lunch was then served by the Bethany Unit.

PERSONALS

Mrs. Thomas Laycock of Sine, spent a few days last week in Rochester and attended the wedding of Ceil L. Heath and Rose Marie Imburgia.

* * *

Previous to her recent marriage Mrs. R. F. Minden-hall (nee Barbara Cleveland) was honored at a miscellaneous shower held at the River Valley Women's Institute hall with Mrs. Jim Teerstra as hostess.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT FRANK MINDENHALL

Mindenhall – Cleveland

The recent wedding ceremony was solemnized in St. Paul's United Church, Stirling when Barbara Helen Cleveland, daughter of Mrs. Annett Cleveland of Stirling Rd. became the bride of Robert Frank Mindenhall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mindenhall of Rossmore.

Rev. J. Bruce Small officiated at the ceremony and traditional wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Harry Brown at the organ.

Given in marriage by her cousin James Stapley, the bride wore a white gown of peau de soie with the bodice featuring a scoop neckline and lily-point sleeves. The yoke of the dress and the outer sleeve was accented with a band of inset lace with same detail of lace carried down the A-line skirt. The back of the dress was highlighted with a detachable train extending from the waist into a long chapel train. Her headdress was of floral organza petals with seed pearl stamens and caught to a four-tier veil. She carried a bouquet of red sweetheart roses.

Maid of honor Miss Delores Demorest wore a floor length gown in emerald green velvet with white lace sleeves accented with green velvet bows from shoulder to wrist. She carried a bouquet of yellow and white 'mums. The Misses Bonnie and Linda Cleveland were dressed identically to the maid of honor.

A reception was held at the Odd Fellow's hall in Stirling where the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a turquoise lace dress and crepe corsette coat ensemble with turquoise and beige accessories and a corsage of pink 'mums. Assisting the bridegroom's mother wore a yellow crepe dress and lace coat ensemble with green and black accessories and a corsage of bronze 'mums.

On return the couple will reside at 10 Patterson Street, Belleville.

The Experts Say

Poor Ballet Teaching Harmful

TORONTO (CP) — A trained eye looks for the potential ballet dancer in a child in much the way a show judge looks for points of breeding and manners in an animal.

"What you do first, as you probably do with a race horse, is look for good points," says Betty Oliphant. "Ballet is unique. If you get the right type of body and train it in the right way, you don't get injury. If you have a poor body or poor training, you can do harm."

Miss Oliphant is founder and principal of the National Ballet School. About 200 children are auditioned for the school every year. The choice then narrows to about 50, of whom about 10 are accepted.

She says you begin judging a child's potential with the foot. It needs a good arch and instep and preferably a square shape to give a solid base.

"Then you look at the proportion of the legs to the body. Proportions don't change much no matter how tall you grow."

Miss Oliphant says there are two main types of dancers. The ideal for a classical dancer is a short torso and long legs. The other, with a stronger build, who may be better at character dancing, may jump well.

"Then if you're not flexible, you're no good, but it takes longer to make a flexible child strong because they have to get themselves together. Looseness in ballet is ringless. It's no good getting your foot in the air if you can't keep it there. The average child must be loosened."

A ballet dancer must also have a long Achilles tendon, the one that connects heel and calf. She says you can lengthen hamstrings, but not the Achilles tendon.

The child must also be able to manage a "turnout", with heels together and toes turned straight out to the sides.

"In ballet everything is done with the leg rotated inside the pelvis. In bad training you learn to turn only your foot, then you get a great bulge in the inside of your ankle. When you do a turnout, your knee must be in line with your foot as it turns."

Miss Oliphant says there is no guaranteed way for a parent to tell if a ballet teacher is a good one. Her patience with the early stages of training and her results with pupils are clues.

"I think parents should understand that if it is not taught well, it is harmful."

WEDDING

AKEY — FERGUSON

Rev. R. Solmes officiated at the recent wedding of Elizabeth Florence Ferguson daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Ferguson of Ameliasburgh and James Rodwick Akey.

Given in marriage by her father the bride was attended by the bridegroom's cousin, Miss Susanne Akey of Point Anne.

The bridegroom was attended by Burton Miller of Belleville. Gustane Thomas and Ross Akey served as ushers.

The couple will reside in Kingston.

Women's Institutes

CARMEL W.I.

The Oct. meeting of the Carmel branch of the East Hastings Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Elmer Urch, Corbyville, with 15 members and four visitors present.

Mrs. George Graham, first vice - president, opened the meeting and conducted the business.

Mr. Tucker from Hastings County Social Services was the guest speaker accompanied by Mr. J. Jessop. Mr. Tucker explained the four areas of assistance which are available to the residents living within the 3,500 square miles of Hastings County. General assistance consists of medical and living expenses.

Special services involve such items as eye glasses, dental services and vocational training.

The Social Services call on the Red Cross Homemakers for assistance where the mother has to be in the hospital. Feymond is on a sliding scale. Two homemakers are on permanent staff.

Translesta are given help if they are in need.

Social Services through telephone answering service are on call 24 hours a day seven days a week.

Mrs. Alan Gowthorpe moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Tucker and Mr. Jessop and presented them with gifts in appreciation.

Churn Relegated to Serving Immediate Family Needs

The word "churn" appeared in the English language in its present form about 1440. It was confused at first with the word "charm," because of the supposed magic powers of farm wives who would charm or churn the milk into butter.

The first churns seem to have been goatskins and the first butter seems to have been made involuntarily by carrying the goatskins full of milk on horseback. Churns of the up and down "dash" type have been known since the word appeared in the English language.

The making of butter has always been connected with farmst. In this country, after the initial pioneer period, when churns sold for 4 shillings and sixpence, the production of butter exceeded immediate family needs. Surplus butter was exchanged at the local store for goods. By 1850 the volume of butter available was sufficient to attract buyers in bulk. By the time of Confederation, Canadian butter was being shipped out at the rate of 10,000,000 lbs. a year. It provided a sizeable source of income for the woman of the family and represented an enormous amount of churning for the farmers' wives of 1867.

In 1873 the first commercial creamery started in Athelstan, Quebec, and shortly thereafter the churn was relegated to serving immediate family needs again.

Most dash churns hold five to ten gallons. The model shown with a wide top was supplanted by the model with a wide bottom which made for greater stability.

Not all churns were made of wood. Many were a special type of crock with ears to hold it while pouring off the buttermilk. Some had crockery lids with a hole to insert the dasher. There were even small table models although the five to ten gallon size seems to have been the most popular.

There were many ingenious methods of applying power to the churn. The "Daisy" churn was a barrel, handmade from oak, rocked in a frame by a special foot and bow drive. It was made by Beatty Bros. in Fergus, Ontario and sold for $21.20 in the 9-gallon size. It was still being advertised in the 1920's.

"Dazey" churns, another brand name, came in glass or copper and tin. The dasher was geared and turned by a hand crank. They were made in St. Louis, Missouri, and sold for $25.40 a dozen in Canada in glass, and $7.50 each in tin. The glass "Dazey" churn was available as an option on early electric mixers.

Wooden dash churns, with tngue and groove stoves, from steel hoops, machine-turned inside, made of hardwood, sold for $4 each. They were used across Canada as late as 1932; almost the end of the line for hand churns.

Churns sell now as antiques, regardless of age. Many are "guaranteed" as pine, a wood unsuitable for churns. They sell for about $20 each. Pottery churns, if decorated and in good shape sell for more.

Family Holds Surprise 'At Home'

A surprise "At Home" was held in honor of Mr. and Mrs. G. Cleveland on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary, recently. The party was held at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. J. St. Louis, R. R. 3, Belleville.

During the afternoon many friends and relatives called to extend their best wishes in a delicious hinch was served by the Misses Suzanne Coulure, youngest daughter of the couple Bayne, niece of the couple. Tea was poured by Mrs. F. Watson, mother of Mrs. Coulure.

The main table was centred with a beautiful anniversary cake and tall silver candles, completed by a silver tea service at each end. The table was decorated with colorful autumn flowers in silver containers.

Out of town guests were present from Toronto, Otawa, Trenton and Capreol.

FLORAL ARRANGEMENTS

"In Victorian times 'doing the flowers' was the prerogative of the eldest daughter." — Bea Howe.

* * *

With our local world bereft of summer gardens now, it is the florists' windows with their ravishing flowers, that lift high the heart.

Such arrangements:

The cut flowers appear more attractive than ever in vases be they modern or antique.

"Yes, it seems floral fashion these days is arrangement," says Mrs. Robert Barber — whose husband owns and operates Barber's Greenhouse and Barber Flowers Limited on McAnnary Street, whom we consulted about the matter. "A bouquet of loose cut-flowers is a thing of the past, for today all flowers are put in, arranged, in pottery, glass or papier-mache containers."

"Flowers so arranged look especially attractive in sick and hospital rooms," we note.

"Yes, this is generally felt as being most acceptable, for there illness is somewhat eased, as flower arrangement dispenses with hunting for "something to put them in" and conserves precious time and energy. It is found sometimes just a extra look with one rose in it will bring that needed melisage of love, cheer and concern, yet fit in without taking up needed nursing space."

Cut flowers, we learn have something of a history. It was not until the late 1840s that they were considered proper in every room of an English home except the conservatory, where they were grown, and the daughters attempted to fit the flowers into an ill-assorted collection of jars and vases.

Nor did flowers appear on English dining room tables until the 1850s, since all dishes containing food were placed on the table. There simply was no room. But when fashionable people began placing the food dishes on the side-board (as done in Russia) which were then handed around the table by servants, elaborate epergnes of gold, or silver, filled with flowers graced the centre of the table. Later on, small vases with a single flower were placed before each charmed guest.

It was now that leading china and glass houses created more and more vases. Vases of every color: "fondaul pink, amber yellow, Bristol blue, deep rose" shaped like Chauds, cornucopias, lily shoes, boots, watering-pots, hats and baskets" to hold loved, scented "violets, auriculas, pinks, colored primroses, and mignonette." By 1851, magnificent hand - painted vases were exhibited at the Great Exhibition.

From then on, articles began appearing in magazines on flower arrangements. By 1908, Rose Kingsley daughter of Charles Kingsley who wrote "Water Babies" and "Westward Ho!") wrote: "Almost as much of the decorative value of cut flowers depends on what we put them in, as on how they are arranged. Beautiful glass is now so cheap that it is within the reach of everyone." Her favorite glass, in white, teal and bottle - green was made at Whitefriars.

So today the wheel of fashion in floral decorations has almost come full circle, with both old and modern vases standing side by side. As for arranging flowers Mrs. Barber says:

"Never has the standard been so high. From the time when daughters of the family spent years of trying to "do the flowers" this achievement is largely brought about by ceaseless work and effort of gifted women who, in floral decoration, were and are, artists."

USC Teaches, Clothes and Rehabilitates

By DORIS CLARK

Last year the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada provided 23 scholarships for nurses and midwives in the Middle East. In Korea, the USC gives 100 scholarships for technical, agricultural and fisheries high schools every year.

In Madras, India, the Agency's Tasty Bakery for Girls has become a model for the entire country and there is a waiting list for its graduates. Many of the girls find work in families of Indian diplomats abroad.

Youngsters who only a few short years ago were grubby little urchins lost in city jungles, now travel in such far-away places as England, Germany and Japan. Little Rani came back from London with a frigidaire in tow — her dowry! — from Unitarian Service Committee Newsletter — And this only begins to outline what the USC is doing to provide emergency relief and rehabilitation in areas of great human need across the world.

Collection depots for used clothing in excellent condition are to be found in many larger centres in Canada. For address of your nearest USC Collection Depot, write USC Headquarters, 56 Sparks Street Ottawa 4, Ontario.

* * *

Dear Doris: I notice many of your letters come from young persons in conflict with their parents.

From reading the autobiography of Pearl S. Buck, and from the opportunity I have had of knowing a few Chinese families, it seems to me they manage very well with their children. — Mrs. C.

They instill a respect for elders at a very early age; and also, to dishonor the family is a fate which they consider very bad. Yet they are fond of their children and consider them very precious.

A friend of mine toured Chinatown (in a large city) during her vacation and the guide told her the police never had to go in to arrest any young people; they gave no trouble. Yet they were surrounded by slum areas where there was always trouble. Even the former prime minister, Mr. Diefenbaker, said the Chinese were the best citizens that Canada had.

I often wonder if they have a special wisdom that our race lacks; and I think Canadian parents could well listen and learn from them. — Just Freda

Dear Freda: It's a thought. Chinese respect for age and Chinese discipline are something to behold and admire.

Our North American mistake is often in being too permissive; but most of all our mistake is in thinking we alone have all the answers. There is much to learn from other cultures.

Dear Doris: I shall be getting married very soon and would like to know how a marriage could be successful in all respects.

I would be very happy if you would please send me the name of the book on Sex, Marriage and Birth Control which you think would be worthwhile reading. I am enclosing 10 cents and a self-addressed envelope. — Hopeful Science Student.

Dear Hopeful: Now that's what I call tackling things scientifically. More and more the wise ones are signing on the dotted line for marriage counselling courses and anything else that will help them to understand what it means to throw in their lot with another human being.

I'm sending you my recommended list, and marking a couple of books which others have found particularly helpful.

Ann Landers

Constant Drinking Will Prove Harmful

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am dating a very attractive young man. Ed is 21 and has already had three years of college. One thing about him worries me. He can drink everybody in the party under, the table and not show it. Last night for example, he had five highballs then switched to beer. Before the evening was over Ed had finished seven bottles. The other two fellows were gassed out of their minds, but Ed was in complete control.

Ed is proud of the way he holds his liquor. I don't think this is anything to be proud of. But since he shows no ill effects, what can I say? He drinks like that almost every night. I am worried about Ed. Aside from the daily skin dinner and says he gets all the nourishment he needs from the grain in the alcohol and the malt in the beer. Please check with your medical consultants and tell me what they say. — ED'S GIRL.

DEAR GIRL: Ed may be able to tell you his drinking is not harmful, but after a few years he'll have to come up with a better story for his liver.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My grandfather is 73 and very spry. He has always been in good health until last year when he developed a rupture. The doctor said he should have surgery. Grandma is 71 and has always worked everybody with an iron hand. She says the Bible states clearly that a full life is three score and ten and that Grandpa has already had nine years more than he is entitled to. Grandma insists that Grandpa would be going against God's will by having an operation at his age because he would then be trying to get more years than God intended. What can we do about it? — K AND J.

* * *

DEAR K AND J: This decision should be made by the doctor. And since the doc has suggested surgery, Grandpa should have it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please print this for the whole family to see. It might set a few people straight.

A close relative of mine and her husband take a trip every year, either to Europe or the Orient. For the past five years they have gathered their three children and their spouses together on the eve of their departure. The purpose — to read their wills aloud.

They go down the list of stocks, bonds, real estate, jewelry — "Five hundred shares of Johnson and Johnson to William. Three hundred shares of Transamerica to Kenneth — my diamond ring goes to Selma, my pearls go to Julia. — etc.

My husband and I travel also, and we have our wills made out, but we see no reason for the ritual. Can it be that Mom and Pop are seducing the kids? What do you think? — WASHINGTON.

* * *

DEAR WASH: I think there is no harm in reading wills. What bothers me is why it bothers you. You are in no way involved in the "ritual."

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I caught my husband taking some little orange pills on the sly. He said he had a slight kidney infection and hadn't wanted to worry me. I suspect he might have something else — like a social disease. I have had no symptoms but he looks so guilty. I wonder if I might have something. Needless to say this has not helped our love life much. What should I do? — MRS. CUCUMBER.

DEAR CUKE: Go to a doctor for an examination. If you need treatment, you must get it at once. If you don't, you'll have set your mind at ease.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Hamburger Dish Aid to Budget

By MARY MOORE

LETTER: I noticed the recipe you gave for baked spuds and weiners — an economical recipe when meat is so dear. A friend gave me this and we found the hamburgers very nice: ¾ lb. hamburger, ½ cup chopped onions and a good cup of grated potatoes, an egg, salt and pepper. You'll know how to make up a recipe and it's a stretcher, too. — Love Daisy G.

ANSWER: Yes, I knew how to make up the recipe — I handed it over to Betty my new secretary and she doubled it and fed it to her family of six. This morning she brought me one cold meat cake to sample and it was so good I ate it cold on the spot.

HAMBURGER STRETCHER
(Serves 6)

1½ lbs. hamburg meat
1 cup chopped onion (see notes below)
2 cups shredded raw potato (¼" width — packed)
2 eggs
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
¼ tsp. MSG
1 tbsp. margarine

Into large mixing bowl measure all ingredients and mix well by hand or use strong wooden spoon if you are squeamish about getting your hands into mixes. Shape into 14 patties about 3" in diameter by ¼" thick. Saute in melted margarine over high heat most of the time, turning patties over when bottom is browned and cooking other side. Do not overcook these — they are at their best slightly pink at centre. The potato turns out to have a delicious waxy texture.

NOTES: Betty's 16-year-old David comments "This would be good as a meat loaf." Her husband and Betty both thought they contained a little too much onion. I thought they were just right.

Thank you Daisy.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "The baby is no trouble at all. I can bathe her in a few minutes now, and I always prop her bottle so she can take it while I do my housework."

Mother: "Little Becky enjoys her bath and seems to listen to me while I talk to her. I always cuddle and rock her while she has her bottle."

Even tiny babies need more than bathing and feeding to make them happy. They thrive on mother's gentle conversation and loving actions.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Where illness is concerned, many people like to have a peg to hang their hat on. If they cough, they may say, "It's those darn cigarettes." If a pain in the stomach, "It must be the green apples." If a headache, "My eyes must need a checkup and new glasses." And so go the pegs which we use hopefully to explain our symptoms, especially if we have put off visiting our doctor.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Some time ago I was told I had the influenza. I treated myself with aspirin and rest in bed. But since then I've had difficulty in breathing.

Some days I feel just wonderful. On others, I can't even bend over to make the bed without having trouble breathing.

If I'm called to the telephone at a time like this, my breathing is so heavy people always ask, "Where did you run from?"

When I stretch my arms over my head to hang curtains, I get a terrific pain in my chest and have to stop for a few minutes. Sometimes it's so severe I'm afraid to move. Do you think it's all due to the flu?

I haven't told my husband as he worries about me enough. I'm not the type of person to sit around when there is work to be done, so this is getting to be a problem.

I am 60. I suppose you'll tell me it's about time to see a doctor. — Mrs. R.

Comment: Good guess. Yes, it's about time. Don't you agree?

It's possible the influenza had a part in it, but only a small part. You might consider it the tinder that set off the blaze.

As a part of your physical, I believe you'll need chest X-rays and electrocardiograms — and whatever other necessary examinations your doctor thinks necessary. He'll want to rule out chronic bronchitis, emphysema, coronary artery disease and angina pectoris. As you must know, I'm only guessing. Your doctor will give you the facts.

For Miss J; I can't understand why you would need to take 25 vitamin tablets every day. I believe you are too vitamin-conscious. Besides, vitamins are no guarantee of a good complexion. Why not check with your doctor? It will be less expensive in the long run.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My beautiful grandchild has no tears when he cries. They seem to go inside rather than outside. The baby doctor says his tear ducts are clogged. He has advised we take him to an eye specialist who will open them up. We are sick about this situation. Are we worrying too much? — Mrs. H.

Comment: I'm not uncommon to find this condition in some babies. I think you can relax. The eye specialist will put a probe into the ducts a few times to open them. After a few treatments your grandchild will be able like other children to cry "outside."

For Miss K.: The term "cerebral vascular accident" does not mean a fall on the back of the head. It's not really an accident but a sudden interference with the circulation in the brain. For example; cerebral hemorrhage, cerebral thrombosis, etc. The common name is "stroke."

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I read about a man who went for a heart operation and woke up to find his sex was changed. I think this is horrible and am wondering if this could be true. I need to have hernia surgery. Have I anything to be afraid of? — Mr. R.

Comment: Not true. Consider it another medical fable.

Drastic Cuts Made In Atlantic Fares

LAUSANNE (Reuters) — Drastic cuts in North Atlantic air excursion fares came into effect today because more than 40 airlines meeting in this Swiss city were unable to agree on a new winter package.

A spokesman for the International Air Transport Association announced Friday night an open air-fares situation will exist from today.

In practice normal flights will cost the same but—following the lead of the Italian airline Alitalia—sweeping reductions for group roundtrips have been already announced.

Air France, one of the latest to join the fare-slashing, Friday night cut $62 from the cost of the roundtrip between Paris and New York subject to French and U.S. government approval. The new fare will be $279.

The airline described the fare as the lowest individual jet fare ever from the U.S. to Europe and said it plans cut-rate trips between other American and Irish cities and London.

More than 40 airlines have been meeting in Lausanne during the last two weeks. They will meet again Nov. 18 at a venue still to be decided.

Arab Guerrillas Raid Lebanon Border Point

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Arab guerrillas attacked the main Lebanese border crossing point to Syria today, and fighting was still raging after five hours, witnesses reported. There were no immediate casualty reports.

Lebanese troops answered small-weapons fire with artillery and tanks, a customs official at the post said. He said the tanks concentrated their fire on hillsides ringing the post at Masnaa, located on the Beirut-Damascus highway. He said the guerrillas were believed massed in the hills.

The customs officer said the guerrillas later "threw at us everything they had except planes."

The post came under guerrilla mortar and rocket attack on Oct. 23 in one of the first major incidents of the conflict between Lebanese forces and Arab guerrillas.

Tension was high in a Palestinian refugee camp in Beirut as refugees threatened to revolt if the Lebanese army did not hand over the bodies of two guerrillas killed in earlier clashes with the army. Troops surrounded the compound.

Friday night, Arab guerrillas said they captured three Lebanese villages with the help of civilian sympathizers.

Symons and Duncan's Eastern Rushing Title on Line Sunday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Final standings in the Eastern Football Conference are already settled, but this weekend's two concluding games of the 1969 schedule are packed with sufficient individual dramas to keep fans in Hamilton and Toronto interested.

Ottawa Rough Riders, first-place finishers for the second year in a row, meet the third-place Hamilton Tiger-Cats in Hamilton this afternoon and runner-up Toronto Argonauts tangle with last-place Montreal Alouettes in Toronto Sunday afternoon.

The prime attraction in Toronto Sunday is the battle for the EFC rushing title between Argos halfback Bill Symons and fullback Dennis Duncan of the Alouettes.

Symons has 905 yards, 27 more than Duncan. But Argos head coach Leo Cahill must elect to rest Symons since his painful toe injury has resisted treatment.

Symons, who last year became the first Argonaut player to pass 1,000 yards rushing in a single season and was subsequently selected Canada's outstanding player, has his father and younger brother from Nucla, Colo., in town to see him play professionally for the first time.

Argo flanker Bobby Taylor is also chasing a personal record. He has caught 54 passes this season for 1,050 yards and needs seven more yards to exceed his best effort in the CFL. Taylor, when he was with Calgary Stampeders in 1963, caught 74 passes for 1,057 yards.

An Argonaut win Sunday would raise their record to 10 wins and four losses, tying a team record set in 1960.

Cahill, who plans to run a shuttle service with quarterbacks Tom Wilkinson and Frank Cosentino, has made one lineup change for the Montreal contest. Lineman Dave Koechlel, who suffered a broken leg in training camp last August, has been restored to active duty and will work at offensive tackle behind regulars Mike Wadsworth and Walt Balaskak. To make room for Koechlel, Ed Hulse was placed on waivers.

Tommy Joe Coffey, Hamilton's all-star place kicker and offensive end, will be the subject of close attention by Ottawa defenders this afternoon. Coffey leads the EFC scoring race with 135 points and is 11 points short of an all-Canadian single season points record. The record of 145 points was set by Jack Hill of Saskatchewan Roughriders in 1958.

Former Tiger-Cat Don Sutherin of Ottawa is 20 points back of Coffey. An outstanding defensive halfback, Sutherin has 10 pass interceptions this season and two more would shatter his own single season CFL record set in 1961 when he was with Hamilton.

Ottawa head coach Frank Clair, this week named CFL Coach of the Year, is still concerned about his offensive fullback situation. A gaping hole in the Rough Rider attack was made when Vic Washington, the speedy hero of Ottawa's 1968 Grey Cup triumph over Calgary, was finished for the season with torn knee ligaments, suffered against Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Andy Walton, who played eight games with Montreal in 1968, filled Washington's spot last week against Toronto. But Clair, looking for more speed, will start Bob Morgan at full back this afternoon against the Tiger-Cats.

The Ottawa-Hamilton game will be televised on the CBC eastern network and Sunday's Montreal-Toronto contest will appear on the CTV network. Both games start at 2 p.m. EST.

Raiders Out For Record

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The unbeaten Oakland Raiders will have one eye on the record books and the other on quarterback Greg Cook when they meet Cincinnati Bengals Sunday.

The Raiders beat San Diego Chargers 34-12 last Sunday and equalled the American Football League regular-season record of 15 consecutive games without a loss. Oakland now has a chance to move past 15 in a final assault on the record, set almost a decade ago by the Los Angeles-San Diego Chargers. Oakland is 6-0-1, the latter figure representing a 20-20 tie with Miami Dolphins and leads Kansas City Chiefs by half a game in the Western Division.

Bengals' coach Paul Brown says Cook, the sensational rookie quarterback, will definitely play against Oakland after seeing only limited action in one of the Bengals' last four games because of a muscle injury in his throwing arm.

The Bengals led off the season with victories over Miami and San Diego and then upset Kansas City. Cook was injured in the first half of the Kansas City game. Since then, the Bengals have lost four straight.

In other AFL games, Miami faces New York Jets at New York, Houston Oilers are at Boston Patriots, Kansas City at Buffalo Bills and San Diego at Denver Broncos.

The Jets, out in front in the Eastern Division, pit Jim Turner's kicking and Don Maynard's pass receiving against a Miami defence which limited Buffalo's rushing attack to 56 yards last Sunday. The Bills scored their six points on field goals and O. J. Simpson was held to only a dozen yards in 10 carries.

Houston's Roy Hopkins enjoyed the best day of his career in last week's winning effort against Denver with 14 carries for 107 yards and two touchdowns but the Oilers, just one game behind the Jets in the East, regard Boston as nothing to sniff at. The Patriots are the only club in the league without a victory but the way they handled the Jets, shutting off the New Yorkers' passing attack and actually leading 17-10 at halftime, is an indication that a victory is just a matter of time.

Swing the Thing

Chi Chi Rodriguez gives a vivid demonstration of how to get out of a trap with a rake and then proceeds to duplicate the swing for real and blast within a foot of the cup on the 16th hole. He sank the putt for a birdie and finished the day 8 under par at 136.

Cowboys Meet Browns

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The redoubtable Dallas Cowboys, hoping to build a mountain-out of a hill, climb the torturous terrain of Cleveland Brown country in the top National Football League game Sunday.

Calvin Hill leads the NFL in rushing this year and the Cowboys are counting on that man from Yale to lead them all the way in their bid for a first league championship.

Dallas, 6-0, tops the Capitol Division and Cleveland, 4-1-1, the Century, in the NFL's Eastern Conference. Sunday's game shapes up as a preview of the eastern title game.

Two other key games highlight Sunday's card—Chicago Bears at Minnesota Vikings and Los Angeles Rams at Atlanta Falcons. Both Los Angeles, leader of the Coastal Division, and Minnesota, leader in the Central, could put a stranglehold on their divisions by following suit.

Elsewhere, Philadelphia Eagles visit New York Giants, Washington Redskins are at Baltimore Colts, Pittsburgh Steelers are host to Green Bay Packers, Detroit Lions visit San Francisco 49ers and St. Louis Cardinals are at home to New Orleans Saints.

Eskies Hope To Make It

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Western Football Conference finishes reopen Thursday as they play Sunday with a game that determines whether Edmonton Eskimos make playoffs for the fourth consecutive year.

To finish third, where Edmonton has been for each of the last three years, they have to at least gain a tie against Saskatchewan Roughriders, a club they have beaten only once in that period.

If Edmonton fails, British Columbia Lions enter the playoffs and tangle with the Stampeders in Calgary Nov. 8 in a sudden-death semi-final.

The Lions and Eskimos are tied with 10 points each, but if Edmonton loses, British Columbia makes the playoffs by virtue of their two wins over Edmonton in three regular-season games.

British Columbia could have wrapped up the playoff spot Thursday, but lost 18-7 to Saskatchewan.

Edmonton has the best defensive record in the league, allowing only 219 points in 14 games.

The Roughrider defence is also tough, having allowed opposition teams only 236 points.

But while Saskatchewan has piled up 305 points so far this season, Edmonton's offence is the league's weakest, scoring only 183 points.

In two previous contests this year between the teams, Saskatchewan squeaked past 21-20 in the first game then reconfirmed the decision 11 days later with a 24-9 win.

Their final match will be televised from Edmonton at 2 p.m. MST on the CTV western network.

The only other conference game matches the Stampeders against Winnipeg Blue Bombers Saturday night in a game that will not affect the standings.

This game will be televised on the CBC from Calgary beginning at 8 p.m. MST.

Underdog Comes Through

NEW YORK (CP) — Bill Drover of Wabush, Labrador, became an instant success Friday night when he knocked out 4-to-1 favorite Forest Ward of Brooklyn, N.Y., in 2:30 of the sixth round of their scheduled eight-rounder in Madison Square Garden.

In another feature bout on the all-heavyweight international card, Toronto's Bob (Pretty Boy) Felstein dropped a controversial eight-round split decision to Puerto Rican heavyweight champion Pedro Agosto in what he called a "sickening" outcome.

Drover was so unknown that Garden publicity director John Condon phoned The Canadian Press last week asking if anybody ever heard of him and what Wabush, Labrador, was.

Condon was not alone, though. Now every fight buff in New York City will tell you that Wabush, Labrador, is where Bill Drover is from in Canada.

The 26-year-old former security guard at a Wabush iron mine came to fight and let Ward know from the first round on who was boss.

In almost every round Drover got through Ward's guard with lightning right hand shots and kept the former Pan American Games champion off balance with sizzling left jabs.

Sport Brief

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Leo Cleary of Hanover, Mass., won the pole position for the National Championship modified auto race Friday. Cleary, 40, who has been driving 20 years, posted a fast lap of 87.552 miles an hour at the 526 mile track. The first 11 qualifiers for Sunday's $28,325 race broke the Cardinal qualifying record.

* * *

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference Friday returned Don Luzzi to the active roster and dropped defensive halfback Rick Shaw to make room for the offensive tackle. Luzzi had been on the club's injury reserve list for the last two months with a knee injury.

* * *

REGINA (CP) — Defensive halfback Craig Murray of British Columbia Lions, who suffered facial injury in a Western Football Conference game Aug. 3 when he crashed into an end zone fence at Taylor Field here, has filed a suit for damages. The suit seeks general damages of $5,000 and specific damages of an undetermined amount. Named as defendants in the civil suit are the City of Regina and Saskatchewan Roughriders Football Club.

Nicklaus In Lead

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — Ron Cerrudo had just cut out a solid 69 and moved into a tie for sixth place in the $140,000 Kaiser International Open Golf Tournament, but he had no illusions.

"When big Jack is on his game, everyone else is playing for second place," the 24-year-old Californian said.

The Golden Bear, in a slump most of the summer, birdied seven of his last 10 holes Friday, shot a 70 to break out of a three-way tie for the top and moved into a two-stroke lead with 133 at the midway point of the richest of the fall tournaments.

Nicklaus, who won the Sahara in his last start, was tied going into the second round with Lou Graham and Chick Courtney. Graham held on with a 69 for 133 and second place. But Courtney faded back with a 71 for 139.

Wilf Homeniuk of Winnipeg matched the north course record on the Silverado Country Club course with a 65 for 136 and was tied at that figure with Chi Chi Rodriguez, 69, and Cerrudo.

Dick Crawford set the south course record with an eight-under-par 64 and moved into contention at 137. He was tied with Billy Casper, Dan Sikes, Bob Goalby, Steve Reid, Kermit Zarley, and Ed Sneed.

Arnold Palmer had a 69 for 140, Masters champion George Archer took a 69 for 139 and Lee Trevino, Ray Floyd just made the cut with a 72 for 144.

Also making the cut was Vancouver's Wayne Vollmer who shot a 70 Friday after an opening-round 73.

Hat Trick Pair For Baltimore

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jim Bartlett and rookie Ron Snell did their best to help each other Friday night and in the process helped Baltimore Clippers to a 10-1 American Hockey League victory over Rochester Americans.

Bartlett assisted on all of Snell's three goals and Snell reciprocated with assists on two of Bartlett's three.

In other games, Larry Mickey assisted on three Montreal goals and the second time-around in the Voyageur downed Buffalo Bisons 4-3, Hershey Bears beat Cleveland Barons 6-4 and Springfield Kings whipped Providence Reds 8-3.

Bob Rivard, George Swarbrick, Cleie Mortson and Rod Zaine each scored once as Baltimore picked up its second consecutive victory.

Guy Charron, Jean Gauthier and Phil Roberto scored for the Voyageurs who stayed in first place in the Eastern Division, one point ahead of Springfield.

Michel Harvey scored the winner for Hershey and Roger DeJordy connected with a 90-foot shot into an open net to wrap it up.

Ralph Keller, Mike Nykoluk and Mike Hamilton scored in the third period to put the Bears ahead 4-3. Cecil Hoekstra tied the game for Cleveland midway through the final period, but Harvey made it a Hershey victory with just 35 seconds remaining.

The Kings scored eight goals in the third period at Springfield, just one short of an AHL record.

Butch Goring, Marc Dufour and Mike Corrigan poured in two goals each with Gord Labossiere, Gary Croteau and Doug Robinson rounding out the scoring.

Canadian Trotter Tops in Eyes of Losing Jockey

You have the word on that from Louis Sauve, a French harness racing driver.

The comment from Sauve came after Fresh Yankee, a six-year-old Canadian mare, won the $50,000 Gotham Trot at Yonkers Raceway Friday night by turning back the challenge of Sauve, driving Upsalin, and the later stretch threats of Dart Hanover and Earl Laird.

Upsalin, a five-year-old French bred, raced virtually neck and neck on the outside of Fresh Yankee until the French horse went into a tired spell in the stretch and finished seventh.

It was the eighth straight victory for the Canadian mare sired by Hickory Pride and owned by Duncan MacDonald of Sydney, N.S. Among his victims during this streak were Nevele Pride of the United States and Ute de Mai of France, considered among the world's leading trotters.

"Fresh Yankee is the best in the world today," Sauve said.

The French driver added that "the inside is no good for Upsalin" and that was the reason he raced on the outside of Fresh Yankee, driven by Joe O'Brien of Alberton, P.E.I.

O'Brien said he was worried about Earl Laird in the stretch, actually Fresh Yankee, the 6-to-5 favorite, dominated the 1¼-mile international harness racing classic from start to finish.

She surged to the front on the outside in a swift first quarter and hugged the rail in front the rest of the way. Fresh Yankee went the mile in 2:04 and completed the distance with an over-all time of 2:34 1-5. She paid $4.60, $3.20 and $2.40.

The five American entries, Dart Hanover, Earl Laild, Snow Speed, Ulysse Mah and Rocket Speed, finished in that order behind Fresh Yankee. Upsalin and Tony M., the two French invaders, brought up the rear.

It was the 12th victory of the year in 23 starts for Fresh Yankee and the $25,000 first prize raised her 1969 earnings to $178,186. Her career earnings now total $420,676.

Mo-Hawks Watch Lead Wither in Away Game

Veteran netminder Gerry McNamara, once a National Hockey League prospect in Toronto Maple Leafs' farm system, Friday kicked out 14 shots for his first shutout of the season as Orillia Terriers dumped Owen Sound Crescents 4-0.

The win widened the Terriers' lead in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior series to three points over idle Galt Hornets.

In other Friday games, Woodstock Athletics bounced Belleville Mo-Hawks 4-2 for their first win of the year and Kingston Aces tripped Barrie Flyers by the same score in Barrie.

Woodstock, which had lost three games in a row, bounced back after trailing 2-0 at home to Belleville as Mac Westgate scored twice in the second period goal on a pass from Bruce MacGregor.

Alex Delvecchio and MacGregor broke in alone on Hodge in the third period and MacGregor scored on the rebound.

Brian Perry scored for Oakland in the third period to spoil Roger Crozier's bid for a shutout. The veteran Detroit goalie appeared in his first game of the season after recovering from a recurring stomach ailment.

Other action tonight sees Chicago at Los Angeles Kings, Philadelphia Flyers at St. Louis and Minnesota North Stars at Pittsburgh Penguins.

St. Louis is at New York, Pittsburgh at Detroit and Minnesota at Philadelphia in other Sunday night matches.

Woodstock, which had lost three games in a row, bounced back after trailing 2-0 at home to Belleville as Mac Westgate scored twice in the second period and Mike Draper scored for the winners.

Saints, Trojans Bay of Quinte Champs

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

The question for Quinte senior Saints and Moira junior Trojans is no longer IF they will advance into COSSA football playoffs. The only questions remaining are WHERE and WHEN.

The Saints won Bay of Quinte senior honors Friday with a 38-0 romp over Moira Trojans to complete their seven game season undefeated.

Moira's juniors were salvaging some glory for the maroon platoon, handing Quinte juniors their first loss of the season by a whopping 43-6 margin. The win was Moira's seventh against no defeats and earned them the junior Bay of Quinte title.

Meanwhile, Centennial seniors surprised BCI 25-21, and the junior Chargers made it a clean sweep by outpointing the Collegians 14-6.

"It's almost impossible to single anyone out," said Locke. "The Whalen brothers (Steve and Fred) on the line, and linebackers Dave Quay were key men out there today."

"Graham was our best player along the ground game," assessed offensive unit coach Jack Sisson, who said the Saints will play the COSSA semi-final either Thursday or Friday in Oshawa against the winner of a Donovan Eastdale game.

"If we win that game, we'll play the Hamilton District winner (either Peterborough's Thomas A. Stewart or Cobourg) on our own field Nov. 11."

Stock Slump May Be Repeated When Nixon Speaks on Vietnam

By NICK FERRIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian stock markets drifted lower this week and interrupted a two-week rally as investor apprehension of events upcoming in the next seven days mounted.

Markets opened lower Monday, then came back Tuesday before dropping again Wednesday and Thursday. They recovered slightly Friday.

Investors' concern appears to be centred on President Nixon's speech Monday on United States involvement in Vietnam and Finance Minister Benson's white paper Friday.

The consensus is that Nixon's last major speech on Vietnam in May played a part in the slump. It plagued American and Canadian markets in June and July.

Instead of buckling under to a money squeeze by federal governments in the U.S. and Canada, markets in May climbed to record-high levels in Canada and to near-record highs in the U.S., the propulsion supplied by money hopes.

Nixon's speech at the time brought investors back to earth face-to-face with the tight-money situation and markets spiralled downward for two months.

The events of May to June seem to be repeating themselves.

Markets in the last three months have been steadily advancing although light money still exists in Canada and the U.S.

In the previous two weeks, markets posted some of their best advances so far in the second half, and trading volume almost doubled as even some institutions seemed to think the crunch was over.

The catalyst again appeared to be renewed hopes for peace in Vietnam.

But if Nixon's speech Monday is not interpreted as favorable toward peace, another slump could be in the making. However, chances are that it would not be as severe as in June and July.

Closer to home, Finance Minister Benson's white paper Friday could add weight to the possible downswing.

The white paper is almost certain to call for a tax on capital gains.

And reduction or removal of tax exemptions now being enjoyed by the mining and the oil industries could depress markets even further.

Statistically, on the Toronto Stock Exchange, industrials were down 1.27 to 182.11, golds 7.14 to 161.08 and western oils 7.50 to 191.78. Base metals were up 1.93 to 114.79. Volume was 13,021,000 shares compared with 17,296,000 last week. Losses outnumbered gains 477 to 313.

On the Montreal and Canadian exchanges, the composite index was up .50 to 175.71. Composite volume was 5,833,000 shares compared with 4,195,000 last week. Losses outnumbered gains 202 to 134.

Anti-Inflationary Moves Analyzed

The following commentary on Canada's anti-inflation fight was written by an American newspaper reader-by Jules Cunniff, Associated Press specialist who writes a daily column analyzing business and economic trends in the United States and abroad.

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Some soul-searching about current wage-price credit, controls in Canada have raised many significance for citizens of the United States, where the same underlying problems of inflation exist.

Nevertheless, the remarks earlier this week by Prime Minister Trudeau were largely ignored in the United States.

After explaining in the House of Commons that the government had done all it could to hold down its own expenses and expressing the fear that voluntary restraints might not work, the prime minister told reporters:

"If the private sector does not act responsibly, then we have to draw conclusions for the Canadian economy that the legislator is not able to manage its sector of the economy as well the government can."

Belief in the efficiency of voluntary restraints seems to be waning, and the call for less democratic methods of inflation control seem to be gaining ground.

The Canadian Labor Congress and the Confederation of National Trade Unions have already urged the government to adopt price controls. And a increase by Steel Co of Canada has added further to the discussion.

Harvard economist John Kenneth Galbraith, a native of Iona Station, Ont., helped stir these latest feelings when he told the Commons finance committee bluntly this week that voluntary restraints would not work and that direct controls were necessary.

What, then, are the implications for the United States.

Half facetiously you might call them the same problem the same appeals by the nation's leader, the same challenge to voluntary restraints, the same curiosity about rigid controls by business and labor, and the same persistence of inflation.

The choice, which some people perhaps fail to see, involves more than a mere political matter than free economy, a servant government versus a dominant government.

And why, after so many years, has this choice become so critical? For this reason primarily:

Today, modern governments are committed to full employment. Full employment is free economy in abandonment by the threat of inflation. If inflation does develop, the Phillips curve involves layoffs off workers.

Less Than 5,000 to Lose Jobs As Civil Service Cut 236,000

OTTAWA (CP) — The problem of reducing the 236,000-member federal public service by 10 per cent is being solved mostly by "death, retirement, resignation or dismissal," Industry Minister C. M. Drury says.

He told the Commons Friday during the throne speech debate that "hold-the-line budget guidelines" will necessitate fewer than 5,000 layoffs.

"Our main concern is with the individual," he said. Everyone would get three months' notice and "turn up employee" would get first crack at new jobs.

The fourth non-confidence motion in the eight-day debate which ends Tuesday was defeated 91 to 46. The motion by Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) said the government has not coped with the high costs that are ravaging pensioners.

Only half the 72 Conservatives were present for the vote, supported by five New Democrats and five Creditistes.

After the throne speech debate ends the Commons will begin debate on legislation, possibly led off by a bill to establish a Canadian international development research centre.

Youth Takes Hard Line

NDP Parley Evades Issue Of Leftists' Education Views

WINNIPEG (CP) — A controversial education resolution died on the floor Friday as the end came to a New Democratic Party convention that produced a radically-left wing of surprising power.

The education resolution, debated on the final day of the four-day gathering, assails salaries for needy university students, abolition of university tuition fees and steps to prevent foreign professors from dominating any university.

But it was too weak for the often youthful hard-line socialists who had turned the party's fifth biennial convention into a test of strength between themselves and the majority moderates on United States economic domination and other issues.

The radicals attempted to beef up the moderate education resolution presented by the convention resolutions committee along the lines of the one that had been defeated through an earlier convention panel.

But the last convention shot of the noisy left misfired. Rather than fight it out, the convention voted 235 to 178—over leftist protests—to send the issue to the party's federal council to produce a program.

The council, governing the party body between conventions, is a generally moderate group unlikely to adopt radical demands for an end to military research in universities, complete freedom for students and professors to engage in leftist political activity and a rule that the majority of university faculty must be Canadian.

A huge influx of U.S. professors into Canadian universities has become a source of anguish to the party radicals coalescing around the figure of Prof. Melville Watkins, who emerged as the hero of the Canadianism-first faction at the convention.

The radicals around the University of Toronto faculty economist saw the professor influx as another threat to Canadian independence.

Their main effort, focussed on recovering control of the Canadian economy from the U.S., brought partial success. In the last hours, the convention gave quick and easy approval to a resolution calling for "an expansion of public ownership" as one of the methods "to halt and reverse the trend to foreign domination, particularly in new industry and development."

Prof. Watkins believes his group has halted at least for the time being a drift away from an emphasis on public ownership by a party more interested than ever in moderation without sacrificing basic principles.

The scene of power in pending provincial elections and the 1972 federal election has produced a cautious party tone that the Watkins people find hard to swallow.

Their hard-core support centred on about 200 of the 1,100 delegates, but voting patterns attracted a larger percentage. They could probably count on a third of the delegates in the Winnipeg auditorium at any one time.

It was just enough to put Prof. Watkins in the more moderate company of the party executives as one of seven vice-presidents. Also, with the support of the Watkins group, eight of 28 seats on the national 135-member federal council went to the radical left.

The convention left the party developed a more radical tings at the convention, regarded as a kind of long-range, policy stage-setter for the 1972 general election.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For November 2

Your birthday today: Adjustment is the keyword for the year ahead. You can settle intellectual conflicts and business arrangements all year long. Particularly in the first six months, however, emotional matters continue stressful and intense. Relationships do not drift into comfortable habits, but must be constantly cultivated. Today's natives usually have the wanderlust, the urge to find new friends and to move on.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): With an occasional lunch for a solitary treat, this Sunday can be a most enjoyable social adventure. There should also be time for your favorite hobbies and pastimes.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Pursue sentimental and romantic interests today. Make apologies where there seems any flaw in relationships, cultivate better co-operation.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Get out early and keep moving today, concentrating on your people, friends, neighbors people who gather for the same hobbies. Emotional ties tend to deepen now.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Begin this Sunday with your share of the community and formal customs, then put in an active day. Just a little extra spending may bring pleasure and experiences for long after remembering.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): If you will simply prefer forward you may be surprised how much you can do. Select your goals early, step right out on the most direct path.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Go along with reality today; enjoy things and events as they come to you. Sentimental and romantic ventures tend to expand quietly toward greater satisfaction.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Social affairs, light entertainments prevail through the day. Romantic interest remains but lacks any intensity. Let well enough alone.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Social contacts, introductions lead to unusual future progress. Therefore, get out early and make the rounds. Extend your attention to neglected or new people, different planes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Proceed with serenity through a Sunday of social activity. Save the evening hours for reflection about the future and what you can do about it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Get an early start and see what the world provides for diversion. There are people around you've been neglecting, forget business and just have fun.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Some of your speculative ideas prove out this Sunday, but wait a day or two before you make any comment. Communicate with distant people to compare notes and experiences. In general seek relaxation, quiet pleasures.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): The pursuit of health and happiness is rich and rewarding today. If you will let go and make the most of the moment, spiritually and emotionally, your energy will hold through tomorrow and the whole week for improving material prospects.

For November 3

Your birthday today: Prepare for a dramatic year of many sudden ups and downs. Your main opportunity is the chance to distinguish between real and illusory promises. The adventures of the year balance out, leaving you about where you are now except in wisdom and experience gained. Today's natives have a latent showmanship.

ARIES (Mar. 21 —Apr. 19): You will find later that the pressures of the day do not hold up under testing. Purchasing should be kept to a minimum. Tonight pick up the pieces and plan a more effective tomorrow.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Whoever takes the initiative today takes the disadvantage with it. Your patience with the fidgets of others is beyond price.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Make no promises, as the situation will change to prevent you from fulfilling them in the present context. The probability of musings is more than likely. Relax enough to watch the conniecreeps, and you may even have fun.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): The time is right to do something you had not planned. Information comes suddenly for creative application later. Travel, even commuting, can be interesting. Keep your eyes open for the unexpected.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Shifting the responsibility is seldom desirable, but for this once it might be, in the long run. The temptation is to take all sorts of decisions into your own hands. Tonight reflect on the incidents of the day.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Check your information, concentrate on routine, complete matters already well in hand. Excitement crops up all around, but little relates directly to you. Be a spectator, enjoy the vacation feeling.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Seek better information on any new proposal. Don't conclude any transaction. You must choose between stirring other people to action or making passive role mediating their frictions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Whatever is most secret is most likely to come into general public view today. Expansive ideas may get out of hand. The evening is time enough to begin a new arrangement.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Bear in mind that there is more than meets the eye in today's stories. Nothing is any more difficult than you make it—the more urgency and pressure you exert, the less settled matters become.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Belated news from distant places puts plans and projects out of joint. Concentrate on preliminary stages of your work rather than on making decisions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Schedules are not likely to come off as expected. Errors are more easily made today, and past errors come to light. Take it all in stride.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): It seems to take all day to get down to business. You are ahead if nothing but talk occurs, since the discussion will let you know where everybody is and what to expect.

"We started earning an extra $80 per week by sending in a coupon like this one."

"Three years ago, we were caught in the squeeze of rising prices—both of us working and still not really able to save—or have the things we wanted.

"Then we made an investment.

"We found we could start a chinchilla ranch in a spare room—or even our basement! The animals are clean and quiet —and there's no odor. They require very little attention, so we can ranch in our spare time.

"But the dividends are full time.

"For us, it was the answer.

"Yes, an investment in chinchilla ranching through the Chinchilla Guild of Canada might be the answer... for extra income ... for full time income. And you can start for as little as $700 down.

"If you're seriously interested, fill out this coupon and mail it to me today. I'll see you get the full story. No obligation of course.

"I defy you to find a better investment today. Think about it... it might be the answer!"

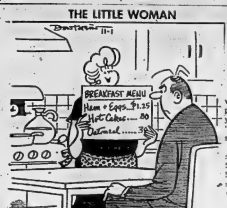
THE LITTLE WOMAN



"With the cost of living the way it is, I've decided to put this house on a pay-as-you-go basis."

Police, Press, Radio, TV Annoy Users of Drugs

VANCOUVER (CP) — A man whose son died in a 21-storey plunge after taking LSD told young drug users Friday night: "I'm sure LSD kills, just as sure as I'm standing here."

Louis (Dan) Giroday was standing in a packed, smoke-filled coffee house in the city's hippie area as the federal commission inquiring into non-medical drug use wound up two days of hearing here.

His brief appearance came amid a string of calls for legalization of marijuana and other drugs, a few against and continuous complaints that Canada is becoming a police state.

There were hundreds of words of bitter criticism of the law and police. One speaker said the police state could go beyond drugs: another that use of undercover agents creates younger drug users.

Commission Chairman Gerald LeDain, dean of Osgoode Hall law school, Toronto, expressed concern at the idea of police feeling they have to justify the laws.

"I'm not happy with what I've heard," he said.

Earlier, several organizations complained about coverage of the drug scene by press, radio and television. There were calls for more responsibility and curtailment of drug advertising.

The commission later sat for an hour before an overflow crowd of 600 at University of B.C. and heard demands for legalization of drugs and stories of drug use in adult middle-class circles.

At the night session, speakers from a crowd of 250 in the dimly-lit coffee house told of being harassed by police while, they said, users in business and professional classes are left alone.

One said that since RCMP undercover men are generally 18 or older, drug pushers think it's safer to sell to people obviously under 18. This, he said, contributed to drug use in high schools.

Liberal Wants Auctions Of Cottage Land Halted

TORONTO (CP) — A Liberal member of the Ontario legislature Friday demanded that the sale of cottage properties by auction be stopped.

Pat Reid (Lib.-Rainy River) told the legislature that auctions now are dominated by real estate agents, land promoters and Americans who drive the prices beyond the reach of average citizens.

He said he had witnessed a sale of lots on two lakes recently at Wilberforce and found it "a prime example of this government's selling out of the heritage of the people."

The effect of the combined costs of land, hydro, roads and sewage service was to "exclude the working man and small-salary earner from owning a piece of Ontario," Mr. Reid said.

A large number of the bidders were speculators and realtors' agents who had absolutely no intention of . . . seeing much of the site in which they were investing."

Crown land lots now are sold by private auction arranged by the department of lands and forests.

Mr. Reid suggested instead fixed prices be set for each lot and Canadians invited to send in requests together with certified cheques and proof of citizenship.

Stephen Lewis (NDP-Scarborough West) told the legislature members have to be suspicious when two bills contain different interpretations of when an inquiry is required into control of one company by another through stock holdings.

A bill amending the Ontario Energy Board Act requires an inquiry and government approval when 20 per cent of a company's shares are involved.

But an amendment to the Real Estate and Business Brokers' Act does not require an inquiry unless 49 per cent of outstanding shares are involved.

Mr. Lewis said the energy board amendment was good social legislation, but he asked why the government had at the last moment made it retroactive to apply to a proposed amalgamation of Consumers' and Union gas companies.

"It was done because the cabinet, for reasons of its own, has already decided to turn down the amalgamation," Mr. Lewis said.

Among the reasons, he said, was the government position towards "a certain competition between Ontario Hydro and Consumers' Gas in the sale of utilities."

George Kerr, minister of energy and resources, said the bill was passed quickly so that if the Consumers'-Union a n d Gamation is approved, it will not be unnecessarily delayed.

Secret Pact Halts Lebanese Fighting

Guerrillas May Win Freedom for Raids

BEIRUT, Lebanon (Reuters) — Fighting halted between Lebanese security forces and Palestinian commandos today following a ceasefire in the two week conflict which brought this tiny, troubled country to the brink of civil war.

The only incident reported in the first few hours after the truce came into effect at midnight Sunday night was the blowing up of an oil pipeline belonging to the Trans-Arabian (Tapline) Co. which carries Saudi Arabian oil to the sea at the Lebanese port of Sidon. The blast occurred three miles from the line's terminal point. Tapline sources said here, and pumping was suspended afterward.

Meanwhile, both the Lebanese and the Palestinian commandos sat in their respective positions and waited for an agreement on freedom of commando action against Israel from Lebanese territory, the cause of the fighting in Lebanon.

The ceasefire accord was worked out at a 90-minute meeting in Cairo Sunday night between Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat and Lebanese army chief Gen. Emile Bustani. They were scheduled to meet again today to work out details of a final settlement.

These details were likely to be kept secret. But Informed sources in Cairo said the guerrillas will be allowed greater freedom of movement in Lebanon's mountainous border region in return for commando assurances that their activities will not endanger Lebanese sovereignty and security.

The agreement, the result of extensive Arab mediation led by Egypt, was welcomed immediately in Lebanon, Jordan, Iraq and Cairo.

But there was no immediate reaction from Syria, which closed its border with Lebanon Oct. 19 shortly after the Lebanese army crackdown on guerrillas in the south brought the simmering crisis to a head.

Labor Chief Fears Slump

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — While Louis Rasminsky, head of the Bank of Canada, was calling recently for wage restraint, he was also voting himself a 100 per cent salary increase, to $100,000 from $50,000, David Archer, president of the Ontario Federation of Labor, said today.

Addressing delegates to the OFL's annual convention here, Mr. Archer said those who call for wage restraint are usually themselves well off, interested in increasing their own take, and silent on the topic of price or profit restraint.

The OFL president warned that the federal Prices and Incomes Commission call for voluntary restraints on prices and wages will not work in face of present public attitudes and may even do great harm to the economy.

He suggested that the voluntary restraints already being practiced by the Bank of Canada in its monetary policies and by the federal government in cutting back on personnel and spending could lead to a "mini-recession" this winter.

Britain Likely To Oppose Cut In Air Fares

LONDON (CP) — The British government is expected to turn down radical proposals by Canada for reductions in group air fares between Britain, Canada and several continental countries, Informants said today.

Air Canada has filed applications with Britain and the other countries for the slashes to go into effect Dec. 1. Meanwhile, it put into effect with other airlines Saturday increases in some different categories which are not contested.

Nation Awaits Talk

Nixon to Tell Vietnam Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon takes his Vietnam case to the country tonight amid fresh speculation over the possibility of a sizeable step-up in U.S. troop withdrawals.

In advance of Nixon's much heralded 8:30 p.m. EST radio-TV address, the Republican leader in the House of Representatives, Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, said: "It is perfectly possible that all American combat forces can be withdrawn from Vietnam by July 1, 1970."

In Saigon, Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky was quoted as saying that "next year the South Vietnamese armed forces will be able to replace about 190,000 U.S. soldiers."

Ky predicted "nothing new" out of Nixon's speech while Ford, addressing a Phoenix, Ariz., group, declined to speculate further on it.

Nixon so far has announced withdrawals totaling about 60,000 by Dec. 15, a 10,000 a month withdrawal which would reduce the U.S. strength figure in Vietnam to 484,000.

Originally due to return to the White House Sunday, Nixon put off his helicopter flight back to Washington until today.

Cancer Fighters Make 'Big Breakthrough'

GLASGOW (AP) — A team of British scientists says its has found that a virus which causes leukemia in cows will grow in human cell tissue.

But William Jarrett, a professor of veterinary pathology and head of the Glasgow University research team that announced the discovery, cautioned: "Don't get too excited about the possibility of a cure being found quickly...But the outlook looks promising."

This is the first natural cancer virus to be discovered," Jarrett said. "It is the first virus ever shown to cross the species barrier. It will infect any human cell."

Jarrett's theory strengthens the theory that leukemia, cancer of the blood, may be caused in man by a virus.

Regarding the possibility that human mouth cells leukemia from pets, Dr. Oswald Jarrett, the professor's brother and a member of the team, said present evidence indicates that it is remote but further research is under way on the question.

Prof. Jarrett said: "No one envisages at the moment that leukemia is an infectious disease in the same way as measles. There is nothing to suggest that you would be infected if someone sneezed a virus at you."

Smallwood Still Rules Newfoundland Liberals

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Premier Joseph Smallwood turned back bids by two prime candidates to retain leadership of the Newfoundland Liberal party at a convention here Saturday.

The premier won 1,070 votes, well ahead of his nearest rival, former health minister John C. Crosbie, 38, who had 440. The other major candidate, T. Alec Hickman, 44-year-old former justice minister, had 187 votes.

Three other contenders who had not been given serious consideration for the leadership took few of the votes, Randy Joyce, a 21-year-old university student, had 12; Peter C. oh, 32-year-old local businessman and son of Senator Eric Cook, got three votes, and there was one for Vincent Spencer, 38, a Windsor businessman. One ballot was spoiled.

Observers here felt it was a defeat of sorts for the 68-year-old premier who has led the province and the party since Newfoundland joined Confederation in 1949. They pointed out that the premier had received only 62 per cent of the votes cast and there appeared to be a deep split in the party.

Campaigning was bitter between the Crosbie and Smallwood camps before the two-day convention opened Friday. Both sides accused the other of employing underhanded methods.

After the election results were announced, Crosbie supporters booed and chanted as the premier moved through the crush of delegates to the red-painted speakers' platform to make his acceptance speech.

There were tears in his eyes as he looked out over the delegates, many waving "Joey" placards.

Two of his grandchildren were sitting on the podium as he began his speech.

Mr. Hickman and Mr. Crosbie congratulated the premier on his victory, but Mr. Crosbie added: "We will continue to fight for what we want changed in the party."

Mr. Smallwood, protected by a circle of policemen and followed by his supporters, then moved out of the St. John's Memorial Stadium and into a waiting car which took him to his home, 40 miles away.

Quebec Language Bill Foes Turn to Lobbying Legislators

QUEBEC (CP) — The Front du Quebec Francais, extending its opposition to the provincial government's language bill, asked its supporters Sunday to talk to their local representatives in the Quebec national assembly in another attempt to scuttle the legislation.

The FQF, which organized Friday's demonstration here that degenerated into skirmishes with police, said supporters should start meeting the elected politicians today.

In addition, it urged six assembly members—including separatist leader Rene Levesque of the Parti Quebecois—to restate clearly their opposition to the bill.

The bill, expected to get second reading Tuesday, would give parents the right to have their children educated in either French or English.

Meanwhile, Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand went through another hectic day Sunday when he was jeered by a group of anti-bill demonstrators in East Angus, an Eastern Townships community 100 miles east o' Montreal.

He was not injured and there were no arrests, provincial police said.

The incident occurred when Mr. Bertrand and Claude Gosselin, lands and forest minister, were leaving a home for the aged, where they had called on Mr. Gosselin's father.

A handful of persons in what provincial police said was a crowd of about 200 waved placards and shouted objections to the bill. One person spat in Mr. Bertrand's direction and yelled: "Traitor."

Mr. Bertrand and Mr. Gosselin were protected by about 30 policemen, who easily dispersed the demonstrators.

The Union Nationale premier was in East Angus to attend a party in honor of Mr. Gosselin, a native and resident of the town.

In the FQF's latest declaration, it named the six politicians as Mr. Levesque, Yves Michaud, Antonio Flamand, Denis Bousquet, Jerome Proulx and Fernand Grenier, all of whom have expressed their opposition to the bill.

Mr. Michaud resigned from the Liberal caucus last Thursday because his party, the official opposition, supports the bill, Mr. Flammand, Mr. Proulx, Mr. Grenier and Mr. Bousquet, all Union Nationale backbenchers, have voiced opposition to the legislation.

Loyalist 25-mile Run

Agony Their Ecstacy... Pant, Pant

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

Despite an all-day rain abd the mess it caused, 19 Loyalist students including one girl completed a 25-mile marathon run yesterday.

According to Mike Barresi, who handled the project, only 23 of the original 35 actually ran the course. Some bowed out because of the heavy rainfall.

The run started a half hour late at 9.30 a.m. from Loyalist College and finished at 5.45 p.m.

Belleville city hall after some pretty rough going. Along the course were a pair of aiecp clients and a requirement to run-of the middle of the Moira River along Cannifton Road.

Vicki Bateman, the only girl in the event, earned herself a medal by completing the 25 miles. Medals will go to all the finishers.

The main body of runners finished between 4 p.m. and

"Everything was against them," he said, "but you don't call off an outward bound event because of the weather."

The specific course took runners through a rock quarry, across brush and swampland north of Wallbridge, eastward along Palliser Creek to the Moira River at Foxboro and southward along the river and Highway 37 into Belleville.

There were 18 check points on the course and completely exhausted runners had to be persuaded to give up the race by Loyalist staff volunteers at the check points.

Completing the marathon in any specified time was not the main purpose of the event. It was a test of determination and physical endurance with the weatherman adding to the difficulties.

"Once again, it shows that when we provide the opportunity for young people to do something on their own they show they have a fantastic potential and endurance," Mr. Barresi said.

Strike Threat Eases, Wilson Concrete Talks Resume Tuesday

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A restless labor issue involving a major Belleville industry suddenly received some soothing action today.

Wilson Concrete Products and the United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers are talking again.

Both sides confirmed today they will renew negotiations tomorrow morning after several weeks' deadlock.

In an interview earlier in the morning, Mr. Burshaw had said initiative rested with the company to resume talks on demands including a $1.50 across-the-board hourly wage hike. Workers could strike Nov. 9 and were organized for such action if necessary — although the action wasn't welcome, the labor spokesman indicated.

After the company made contact, Mr. Burshaw reacted more optimistically.

"It's an effort on both sides to be reasonable," he responded. "As long as you have dialogue you have a good healthy relationship as far as I'm concerned."

"It's the nitty-gritty now," he said. "Both sides are going to have to get down to business."

A breakdown in negotiations in 1967 disrupted operations at Wilson's and gave Belleville the city's first major, at times violent, strike in years.

City Man, 66, Beats Off Armed, Masked Bandit

A holdup man in the Belleville area has probably gone into retirement after a weekend holdup attempt taught him the fringe benefits of robbery fall far short of the risks.

City police said today that a Belleville man was accosted by a masked armed bandit Saturday. The bandit demanded his money. The third was thereupon slugged by the 66-year-old "victim."

Walter Mondeville of 40 St. Paul Street said he set out about 5.30 p.m. Saturday to take a letter to a mailbox near his residence and to visit friends on John Street.

As he was returning from posting the letter near the old trolley station in his neighborhood, a masked bandit jumped from the shadows, pointing a 22-calibre pistol at Mr. Mondeville.

"He said, 'I want your purse'", Mr. Mondeville explained this morning. "So I hit him right on the edge of the chin."

The robber promptly fell to the ground, but retained possession of his gun. He turned and fled in the direction of the bay bridge and "didn't look back."

Mr. Mondeville described the man as over six feet tall, slightly larger than Mr. Mondeville's five-foot-10-inches.

"He was between the ages of 40 and 50, I would think, but I wouldn't know the man if I saw him again."

Police are still investigating the incident.

Men about to marry

How a young man can build a flexible program of life insurance to suit his changing needs – with London Life

3. Premiums are lower, and you can accumulate more savings, if you start your London Life program at a young age.

5. Finally, your London Life program can help you retire comfortably— down south perhaps? At age 65, or earlier, you may choose a guaranteed retirement income, a lump sum in cash, or continuing protection.

If you plan to get married this fall, or next spring, you should be thinking right now about the insurance you'll need.

In fact, there are some practical and economic reasons for starting your program as soon as possible.

Start when you're young

The cost of life insurance is based mainly on age. So the younger you are, the smaller the cost. And, importantly, the larger your savings will grow.

For example, at age 25, you can buy a $15,000 Jubilee policy* for about $22 a month to which you can add a number of flexible features:

a. You can include an option that gives you an income should you have a long illness or a serious accident.

b. You can arrange for London Life to pay your premiums for as long as you are disabled.

c. Another option lets you add a further $15,000 of Jubilee insurance at age 28. And up to age 40 you can add another $15,000 every 3 years—regardless of your health or occupation.

2. You can add extra protection after children are born. You could also start a savings plan to make certain there'll be money for their education.

Protection for your children

Three years after you marry you become a father and need to provide more protection.

No problem at all. You can take advantage of option "c" mentioned above. Or you could consider another feature that is very inexpensive. This makes sure that if you die your family will have a regular income until the children are 18—or any age you choose. (This income is on top of your total amount of insurance.)

These are some more examples of how your original London Life policy can be tailored to provide just the right amount of insurance, for the right length of time, at a reasonable cost.

Mortgage insurance

Now you're 30 years old and you buy a house. Your insurance can help you borrow money.

And you can add insurance to cover the unpaid portion of the mortgage if you should die. This ensures there'll be money so your wife can decide, in her own time, where she wants to live.

Reduce your income tax

Although retirement seems a long way off when you're in your 20's, it will cross your mind more frequently in your 30's.

You'll probably be earning a higher salary by then, and you could add a further $15,000 of Jubilee insurance and consider registering it with the government as a Retirement Savings Plan.

This could give you a handsome deduction on your income tax!

4. Your program becomes valuable collateral should you need to borrow money to take advantage of a business opportunity, renovate a house, buy a cottage, or farm, or take care of a financial emergency.

3. If you buy a house, you may wish to consider adding a low-cost feature which, if you should die, will pay off your mortgage.

Valuable collateral for loans

You now have a very good program of protection, guaranteed savings, and a retirement fund.

In fact, you can borrow a considerable sum of money without any problem.

This could be useful if you decide to take advantage of a business opportunity. Or, you can use your insurance as collateral to help borrow money to meet a financial emergency, buy a cottage, or renovate the house.

Your program can be adjusted

As your circumstances change, the amount of insurance you own may be varied to fit these circumstances. If your needs for insurance are reduced, the amount of insurance can be adjusted.

Or you may find you need more insurance —to protect a business investment or new home. If you have chosen a special dividend option, your dividends can provide additional "paid-up" insurance without increasing your premium.

Valuable fund for retirement

You can use your insurance to help you retire early. Or, at age 65, you can choose between these options.

a. You can continue the full amount of protection with no further premiums to pay.

b. You can take out a lump sum in cash. And, if you'd left your dividends to accumulate, they would add substantially to your retirement fund.

c. You can choose a guaranteed income to supplement the Government Pension Plan or other retirement funds you may have.

The flexible one

As you can see, there are a good many ways a London Life program can be tailored to provide the protection and savings you need at any time in your life.

The important thing is to start your program when you are young and in good health.

It doesn't have to cost very much. And you get a solid financial foundation for the whole of your life. Talk to older men and you'll appreciate the need for such a program.

We suggest you look into "the flexible one" from London Life—where you get more than you expect from life insurance.

FREE: A booklet called "Plain talk about life insurance," describes the many ways a London Life program can be tailored to your individual needs. Write to Dept. 300C, London Life Insurance Company, 255 Dufferin Avenue, London 12, Ontario.

Student Endeavors

Centennial secondary school's awards day, planned and carried out by the students themselves, is the kind of "student power" we like to see.

When students become a part of the school system in this manner, and get involved responsibly in endeavors outside the academic sphere, they develop creative and administrative skills that will stand them in good stead.

And what with the school's cheerleaders making the announcements and boosting the egos of male prizewinners, there was little of the conventionally -staid atmosphere that marks such occasions.

Indeed, it had much of the atmosphere envisaged recently by Moira Secondary School valedictorian Jane Macpherson who in urging students to "head for the sound of battle," said if the school system is to survive students must be admitted as full partners in the educational process.

In the nature of things these days it would be reactionary to argue with such a view. Students do have a right to more say in the educational process, but let us keep it on an orderly basis. When student power descends into mob action, disorder and lack of respect for authority, the co-operative process involving the administration and students inevitably breaks down.

Belleville schools set no such example of disturbance, however. And it is for that reason that we can have valedictorian addresses like Miss Macpherson's and student endeavors like Centennial's award day.

Apart From Other Objections...

Desegregation Order Seen as Impracticable in South

By RAY DICK

WASHINGTON (CP) — After 15 years of an "all deliberate speed" policy of school desegregation, the United States Supreme Court has taken an "integration now" stand that surprised President Nixon and shocked the southern states.

In a unanimous and terse decision the court declared Wednesday that "the obligation of every school district is to terminate dual school systems at once and to operate now and hereafter only unitary schools."

The ruling, the court's first major opinion since Warren E. Burger was named chief justice by Nixon, was a setback for the administration, which had argued for a delay in recent court issues on desegregation.

It came as a shock to most of the Deep South, where eight of nine school districts have managed to stave off desegregation since the court in 1954 ordered that it be implemented "with all deliberate speed."

President Nixon took the action most observers expected, saying his administration will do all it can to carry out the court's new ruling and urging the rest of the country to do the same "in full respect for the law."

His previous stand shone through, however, when he added that "there are, of course, practical and human problems involved."

The reaction was also as expected in the South. There were cries of dismay and claims that the immediate effect of the order will be to bring chaos and destruction to the public school system.

In Mississippi there was shock and delay at the swift and decisive Supreme Court action. The decision had grown out of a desegregation delay that the U.S. Court of Appeals had given 33 Mississippi school districts at the Nixon administration's request.

Dr. Garvin H. Johnson, state education superintendent, said the decision would create turmoil and that he "couldn't see how a school administrator can be expected to implement immediate programs in the midst of a school year."

Politicians in the state seemed in agreement that accommodations will intensify to end public education in many counties and that more private "whites only" schools will be established.

Senator Strom Thurmond (Rep. S.C.) attacked "this pernicious ruling," saying "the Nixon administration stood with the South in this case, but the court has chosen to over-ride both the state of Mississippi and the justice department."

George Wallace, former Alabama governor, called it a "scurrilous decision by the law violators of the Supreme Court" and predicted the little people would rise against the "limousine hypocrites of the liberal establishment and the news media."

Louisiana Gov. John McKeithen, however, who are tired of being treated as guinea pigs in this state," refused to comply with the Supreme Court ruling. He said any further desegregation would have to be enforced by federal marshals.

Clark Reed, Republican state chairman in Mississippi, said the failure to allow a delay in desegregation was unfortunate because "we were at the stage where it was about to be worked out." Perhaps, but as the Washington Post says in an editorial:

"One wonders where Mississippi education might be now if the effort had been put into providing it that was put into finding ways and means of avoiding integration for the past 15 years."

What action will be taken to enforce the ruling is still not clear.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Independence of Panama was proclaimed 65 years ago today—in 1903—and two weeks later the first successful Canal treaty was signed with the United States. American demand for the canal was immense and the first attempt to sign a treaty had been repudiated by the senate of Colombia, then ruler of the isthmus. U.S. aid to any native Panamanian revolt was promised and U.S. marines prevented Colombian troops from moving into the rebel zone. The canal took 10 years to build and was opened Aug. 15, 1914.

1957—Russia launched Sputnik II into orbit—the first satellite to carry a live dog into space.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1944—Belgium was liberated: Canadians took 12,000 prisoners clearing Scheldt pocket; RAF bombed Duesseldorf by night; British took Tholen and North Beveland Islands off Scheldt estuaries. Flushing and Westkapelle on Walcheren Island and all land south of the Scheldt. Chinese recaptured Lungling in Yunnan province.

They Are Needed—Yet

UNESCO Features

At a time when scientists and engineers are unanimously deemed indispensable for the development of the economically-retarded Asia countries, unemployment of engineers is on the rise in a key Asian nation, India. The situation is paralleled in other countries of the region. At the same time, the status and pay of qualified scientists remains very low in these countries.

These are two of the paradoxes of underdevelopment, as reported in the current issue of the UNESCO Courier, monthly, Impact of Science on Society.

In the keynote article ("Moving Asia Forward") Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, highlights the problem and points out the hopeful prospects for Asian technological development.

Among the problems are conditions imposed in foreign aid agreements. She states: "Many governments are thus forced or compelled to buy machinery abroad even when we can make it here, and to send trainees to technicians when they do exist in India. The time factor and the cost also avoid risks foreign package deals upon us."

Yet, she calls attention to the hopeful paradox that the very backwardness of developing countries in science and technology can enable them to overlate stages of evolution and thus telescope centuries into a few years — and perhaps even alter the sequence of change.

"People know about penicillin in our remote villages," she observes, "and aeroplanes have penetrated some parts of India which did not know motor vehicles, bullock carts or even wheelbarrows."

It is this same uneven pace, however, that creates imbalances and unemployment of highly trained manpower in supposedly short supply.

Lunar Photos

German Features

NUREMBERG — The director of a west German astronomical observatory has given visitors the chance to take their own photos of the moon in an unusual offer to let them know the heavens are not exclusively reserved for scientists.

Josef Waldkirsch, head of the German observatory in Fraenkisch Crumbach near here permitted visitors to take photos for a week long at the reflector telescope's disposal. The results were far better than most had probably bargained for — in some cases, outstanding photos were taken.

On clear days and nights with optimal atmospheric conditions, amateurs were able to catch shots of craters on the moon as small as two and a half miles in diameter.

The amateurs were so enthused about Waldhauser's offer that the director has now decided to continue with such offers sporadically. Among the projects now on schedule is one enabling visitors to take photos of Saturn and a later one permitting them to seek to bring a new star in the constellation Delphin into focus thereby rediscovering the nova, which was first spied only two years ago.

Males in Back Seat

Well you would never guess, but there was Prince Philip smiling broadly and sitting among a group of Toronto high school students — and watching a fashion show of all things.

Showing off a white blouse and print dress was a lass with straight blonde hair (almost old-fashioned compared with today's shoulder-length tresses) and a shy smile.

Even though he had just come from swinging London where Mary Quant's micro-minis are still very much in evidence, it is unlikely the royal visitor had seen the likes of this in school at home. After all the students still wear uniform in Britain.

It is a far cry from the school scene in this country, and particularly the United States where as Life Magazine noted recently, "the latest rule in high school fashion is that there isn't any."

Said Life: "Custom, which once upon a time demanded sweaters and saddle shoes, now insists, wear your own thing. . . The freaky new freedom, displayed from Beverly Hills to Bird City, Kansas, makes the very idea of school-imposed dress codes seem hopelessly old-fashioned.

Accompanying the feature were photographs of the bright young things in southern California where this "crazy protest in school fashion," as Life put it, is most apparent. And down there in the sun incidentally, there was not a maxi to be seen — presumably they are no good in that climate. Even among Canadian youngsters, less colorfully plumed than their California sisters at this time of year, maxis are still scarce enough as to be freakish. In fact, a survey by The Star Weekly has drawn mixed reaction to this fad. Many seem to think it will not last, and a woman spokesman for one Montreal manufacturer said the firm was not making them.

"It's not practical for Canadian weather — slosh-sloshing along slushy, muddy streets dragging frozen hemlines isn't my idea of fashion."

In any event, girls, not really too concerned about their status as women, continue to do their own thing, even to the point of getting along without the attentions or support of the male of the species. Remember for instance those 90 girls who set off by bicycle from Montreal on their Hungry Hungry and Expo 70 in Japan. Well the girls made it to the west coast, whereupon they held a meeting and decided to dismiss manager Claude Dube. They said they wanted to run the whole thing by themselves.

Like Prince Philip at the fashion show, and those school principals out in California, Mr. Dube might as well just sit back and relax.

Malton Gas Explosion

Ottawa Journal

Ontario Resources Minister Kerr says his department will join the investigation into the explosion that destroyed a large section of the Toronto suburb of Malton.

The mayor of Mississauga, Malton's neighbor, expressed the anxiety of many on Tuesday when he said:

"Some questions I want answered are why it took so long, four hours, to cut off the valve and stop the flow of gas; and why did they leave an old gas main buried there anyway when it was no longer in use?"

The gas company's superintendent says the standby pipe contained natural gas because it "could have been used anytime we needed it." He says that the cause of the pipeline break is so far unknown and the fire could have been touched off by "almost anything."

Kerr is right to demand an investigation into the whole affair. It could have been a major disaster. The Malton investigation should find out not only why this particular explosion occurred, but also determine whether there is sufficient protection and regular control to see that all areas are examined against such disasters, thoroughly and frequently.

Indians Need Local Industry

Cochrane MPs Flying Trip Around Remote Constituency

By JOHN BEST

OTTAWA (CP) — How does an MP communicate with his constituents in a riding that is largely a wilderness and the size of France?

The way chosen by Ralph Stewart (L—Cochrane) this summer was a 1,500 mile journey across northeastern Ontario in a pontoon-equipped, chartered aircraft.

He saw far more wild life than voters.

The 39-year-old freshman MP says his one-week trip in the middle of August marked the first time that the Cree Indians in the northern reaches of his sprawling constituency have ever been visited by their representative in Parliament.

"I told them I came from the big chief in Ottawa."

He made six stops at remote settlements spotted on rivers, lakes and bays. The largest was Moosonee with a population of about 2,000.

He saw in all perhaps 3,000 people, roughly half of them eligible to vote—or a voter per mile flown. The cost was $350, less than half the normal charter rate of 50 cents a mile thanks to a "special deal" from a friend.

Cochrane riding on the map looks like a misshapen boot, thick at the toe, with a shallow instep corresponding to the curving western shore of James Bay.

It stretches 700 miles from Hudson Bay in the north to Lake Superior in the south, on its western side, and 400 miles eastward from Lake Superior to the Quebec border.

During his journey Mr. Stewart saw a variety of wild life, ranging from millions of geese and herds of caribou to bear bears and white whales. Ice floes were visible in Hudson Bay en route to Winisk, a settlement on the south shore of the bay.

Except in Moosonee, where most of the people could speak English, he conversed with the Indians through an interpreter.

The only way to reach most of the settlements he visited were a missionary and a Hudson's Bay Co. representative.

The impressions Mr. Stewart brought back from the exciting journey were unfavorable to the Indian affairs administration. He got some of his grievances off his chest in a detailed letter to Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien after his return.

His major complaint is that the Indian agent for the territory doesn't have sufficient contact with the Indians.

"I believe the agents should be a field officer," says Mr. Stewart, "not a guy sitting in Moose Factory doing paper work."

He found a good intelligence on the part of most Indians to work, and feels that Ottawa is not doing enough to help them. In particular he feels that not enough is being done to open up markets for Indian handicrafts.

He believes the government should build sawmills in the area, so that the Indians can erect their own houses with local lumber rather than be dependent on the highly unpredictable supply from "outside."

As for the kind of reception he received from the Indians, Mr. Stewart says they were happy that somebody was bothering about their problems."

Pennies for UNICEF

Penny Parade

Student Drive Aids UNICEF

The 13 pupils in this class raised $30 for underprivileged children. Each student made his or her personal contribution, then canvassed local merchants to increase the donations. Total amount of money raised by the penny parade was $923, two thirds of it in pennies.

Organizer of the event was Jane Webster, a Grade 12 student at PECI. With the permission of principal E. Brown, all 30 classes in the school Friday filled empty tin cans, placed outdoors, with pennies. As the cans were filled chalk lines were drawn on the pavement, indicating by their length the tins containing the most pennies.

Lost Fisherman Found Unharmed

PICTON (Staff) — Two Oshawa fishermen, stranded on an Island in the Bay of Quinte last Saturday night, arrived safely home yesterday afternoon.

George Charewicz and Archie Charewicz, who were staying at a cottage off County Road 14 near Mountain View went fishing late S aturday afternoon. A rain storm caused boat motor trouble and the men were forced to take refuge on an unidentified island. At dawn on Sunday they started for Big Island, reached it and from there returned home.

The Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police, meanwhile, had received a call from a concerned relative. Just as their search got underway it was learned that the men had returned to their cottage.

PICTON (Staff) — A Prince Edward County woman has accepted $90,771 in a settlement following an Ontario Supreme Court damage action against Picton doctor, Gordon Caughey.

The settlement was disclosed at the close of the Ontario Supreme Court fall sittings conducted in Frontenac County Courthouse in Kingston. Presiding was Mr. Justice Samuel Hughes of Toronto.

The action for damages technically was dismissed on the consent of both parties at the fall sittings following announcement of the out-of-court settlement.

Mrs. Melville was represented by Kingston lawyer L. H. Tepper and an Ottawa firm appeared for Dr. Caughey.

Family of Four Buried

PICTON (Staff) —Funeral services were held Saturday for the Prince Edward County family of four asphyxiated last week in their Green Point home.

Chandler Ross Sears, 45, his wife, Darla, 36, and their children, Robbie, four, and Debbie, two, were found dead by a neighbor Mrs. Malcolm Fearn, owner of the Sears home.

The Picton detachment of the OPP reported this morning that there is no decision as yet regarding an inquest. The investigation concerning circumstances surrounding the deaths of the Sears family continues.

While earlier statements have indicated that death probably resulted from a faulty heating system, a Picton OPP constable said this morning he has no official confirmation of this.

Fabric Labelling A Necessity

EDMONTON (CP) — "More women should press for fabric labelling and fabric information to be permanently attached to garments," says a senior home economist with Alberta's department of agriculture in Edmonton.

Fabric information should be seen in dress garments, Marjorie Juvenvill said in an interview. It should be permanently attached so that when a garment becomes soiled, a woman knows how to care for it.

Full fabric information should be included, too, for the benefit of dry-cleaners and launderers as they know how to treat the fabrics safely.

"Bonded and laminated fabrics are examples," she said. "Some now are guaranteed to stand up to dry-cleaning, but others will still separate in the cleaning process. It is not always the dry-cleaner's fault. He often can't tell without a label whether it will hold up or not."

Mrs. Juvenvill says that some legislation calling for fabric information may be introduced to Alberta next year.

"But women don't demand the information—and often don't use it when it is included," she says.

This gives manufacturers an excuse for not including the information.

The department of consumer affairs has suggested that care symbols could be included on labels in garments.

"For example, there might be a little washtub on the label of a washable dress. Or a washtub with an X through it if it isn't washable."

Mrs. Juvenvill also explained some of the differences in bonded and laminated fabrics.

Bonding is the process by which two fabrics are fused together with glue or other adhesives. The outer fabric can be almost any material, such as wool, rayon, acrylic. The liner is usually an acetate or nylon tricot.

The resulting fabric provides stability for loosely-woven fabrics so they are longer-wearing, is self-lined and has increased wrinkle-resistance.

Laminated fabrics have a foam backing that is adhered to the fabric either by heat or chemicals. This process also makes fabrics structurally stable, and adds warmth without weight.

Laminates are resistant to wrinkles and are often inexpensive compared with other materials needed to provide warmth, such as quilted or knitted liners.

Summer or Winter Everyone Needs Fresh Air

By DORIS CLARK

I'm for getting youngsters (and oldsters too) outdoors, summer or winter, rain or shine. Two-year-old Lynny's cheeks are as rosy red as her playsuit, and the only time she makes a fuss is when she is brought inside.

This little girl has never had a cold. She eats and sleeps well and has a happy disposition. Fresh air plays a big part in her robust health. Let's not use cold weather as an excuse to keep children huddled indoors.

All of us need outdoor exercise. If you jump when the phone rings and have trouble sleeping, try Lynny's nerve remedy — God's fresh air. Walking is a tonic; so skating or skiing.

* * *

Dear Doris: You wrote about the man who had been so dependent on visitors and visits for 30 years. He sounded so funny. I was wondering what on earth an extreme extrovert was.

I asked the teachers here, but they could not explain it. You called him a child husband. — Wondering

Dear Wondering: To go back to the Latin root, an extrovert is a person who is "turned outward". This is OK within limits. In fact, desirable, but when a person is so completely turned outward that he depends for every single satisfaction on other people, and on the impression he is making on other people, it's just too much of a muchness!

You see, a person who has really grown up emotionally has found some balance between relationships with others and relationship with himself. We call it poise. People cannot disturb him or make him terribly depressed or too hysterically glad, because he has peace within himself.

He is not an extrovert nor an introvert; but an ambivert.

It would be just too bad if we couldn't enjoy our own company some of the time, very one of us needs a philosophy to live by.

Dear Doris: My boy friend and I went steady for three years and finally one night we went all the way. I got pregnant, and when I told him, he said we'd get married just as soon as he could get the money.

We set our wedding date; I even had two lovely showers. Then he said he could'nt go through with it as he wasn't ready to settle down, and he took off.

After nine months and with my little son four months old, he came back and wants me to marry him. He said he could see his mistake after thinking it over, and he broke down and cried. He is 22 and I am 20.

But my parents forbid me to have anything more to do with him. Please answer back in the paper. I love him dearly and always have. — So Upset

Dear Upset: You are 20 years old and a mother. Since you love your son's father dearly, you should take him back and marry him, with no resentment, no reproaches.

Your parents think they are right in forbidding you to see him, but this is your decision. Make it, and stick to it.

Leaflets mentioned by Doris are available to readers for 10 cents and a large, six-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope. If you have not received a leaflet requested, it may be that you have neglected to include the necessary six-cent stamp.

Church Groups

ST. COLUMBA CHURCH

To a background of music stating "they will know we are Christians by our love," the Presbyterian Women of St. Columba Church met recently in the Church Hall with the President, Mrs. B. Hackett in charge.

Mrs. D. Gorman, Mrs. R. Getty, Mrs. J. Smit, and Mrs. S. Gould led the group in worship and study. The question was asked 'how committed and concerned are we?'

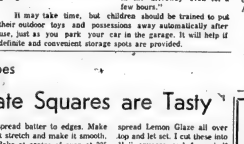
Answering an appeal of the Presbyterian Church in Canada re the terrible suffering and starvation in Biafra, a petition was signed by all present and sent to the Government asking them to take positive action in supporting the relief activity and in taking the initiative in the United Nations to convene a meeting for a peaceful settlement.

Two montage were made presenting messages of plenty and poverty.

The group doing without refreshments purchased apples to munch on and sent the money to the Biafra Relief Fund, Toronto.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON



Father: "Why are all the bikes, trikes and skates left in the middle of the garage or on the front walk every evening? I always have to get out of the car and put things away before I can drive into the garage."

It may take time, but children should be trained to put their outdoor toys and possessions away automatically after use, just as you park your car in the garage. It will help if definite and convenient storage spots are provided.

Father: "I've cleared out this end of the garage for your outdoor toys. Park your bikes here out of the way every time you use them. Here's a hat for your skates. Please don't leave your things in the driveway even for a few hours."

Ann Landers

Comment on Toenail Biting Draws Ire

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Every now and then you irritate me with your oracular pronouncements. You make a statement and expect people to accept it just because you said it. I decided the next time you presented as fact something which was less than factual, I would nail you. Now is the time.

ANN LANDERS

Recently, you informed "Mystified Mom" that it was most unlikely that her child was biting his toenails. You went on to say, "If he is actually doing this, you ought to discuss his behavior with a specialist."

My girl friend is 16. She has been biting her toenails since she was a small child. Her health is perfectly normal in every respect. When she read that column it made her furious. Your suggestion that this little idiosyncrasy was evidence of a psychological disorder triggered a toenail biting episode of unusual duration. (Boy bites his toenails when she is depressed, frustrated or angry.)

You wouldn't dare print this letter, but I feel better for having written it. — SAM.

* * *

DEAR SAM: I'm glad you feel better. Please give my warm regards to your normal girl friend — the one who bites her toenails.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Every so often you print a letter from a hurt mother who complains that her married children don't come to see her often enough. She invariably describes the children as, "selfish, inconsiderate, thoughtless." On two occasions when such letters appeared, I received copies in the mail — anonymous, but unquestionably from you know who. Please print this letter. It will not be necessary for me to send it to my mother because she reads every word you write.

Dear Mother: I do not visit you very often, because you leave me depressed, wrung out, angry and shaken. You make me feel inadequate and stupid. You dwell on the morbid, tragic and sick aspects of life. You love to be first with the bad news. You adore gossip and thrive on the misery of your neighbors and relatives. And no visit is complete until you give me some advice. Your own life is a mess, yet you feel qualified to counsel others. I stay away because I can only stand so much. — Your Daughter.

* * *

I hope I have conveyed my feelings, Ann. — MY NAME IS LEGION.

* * *

DEAR LEGION: You have. And I don't know who I feel sorrier for — you or your mother.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last year I gave a boy some advice when he was having trouble with his steady. He came to me because I am a girl and he figured I'd understand. My advice worked and he told everybody. Now, about eight guys want advice on parent problems, money problems and school problems as well as boy girl problems.

At first it was fun. I enjoyed being called Ann Landers, Jr. But it's not fun anymore. It's scary. I don't want to know so much about everybody's personal life. Also, I am only 14 years old and I don't know all the answers. What should I do? — ANN LANDERS, JR.

DEAR JR.: I'm 51 and I don't know all the answers. Listening is one thing, but offering advice is something else.

Counseling acquaintances can cost you some friendships. Sometimes after friends unload, they feel uncomfortable in your presence and avoid you. Tactfully suggest to these boys they go to someone who can be more objective. The coach, of a favorite teacher can be extremely helpful.

Glazed Date Squares are Tasty

By MARY MOORE

"Cookie Gamma Cookie" is Gregory's longest sentence. He is 18 months old.

Here I am baby sitting for Margaret's and Peter's four children while Margaret is in hospital recovering from the arrival of Justin Michael — at time of writing six days old.

This visit was handing out packaged cookies to her little charges when I realised I had about one hour to make homemade cookies. I am glad I did for when the oldest children — Jennifer now seven and Douglas six — arrived home at noon from school it was all I could do to save them for their dessert.

These are squares that are glazed after baking and different from any I can recall giving you.

GLAZED DATE SQUARES

1 lb. pitted dates, chopped
¼ cup margarine
1 cup granulated sugar
2 eggs
1 tbsp. lemon juice
1¼ cups sifted but unsifted all purpose flour
2 tsps. baking powder
½ tsp. salt

Chop the dates.

Into beater bowl measure the margarine and sugar and beat until light. Then beat in eggs and lemon juice. Mix together and add flour, baking powder and salt. When batter is smooth add chopped dates and mix in on "low" speed for half minute, making sure pieces of dates are broken apart.

Grease a 15 x 10½" (jelly roll) pan or two 8 x 8" square pans with margarine and spread batter to edges. Make it stretch and make it smooth. Bake at centre of oven at 325 deg. Fahr. about 30-35 min. Do not overbake or edges may be too hard. Cool.

In a small pan heat together 2 tbsps. margarine and 3 tbsps. milk to just below boiling point. Remove from heat and add 1¼ cups unsifted icing sugar, 1 tsp. freshly grated lemon rind, 3 tbsps. lemon juice and stir until perfectly smooth.

When squares are cool spread Lemon Glaze all over top and let set. Cut these into 1½" squares and freeze half of them in a cookie tin and they froze successfully.

Walts Weight Winners

The three brother-members of Belleville's Apollo Weightlifting Club each won his classification title in the meet that attracted 45 entries.

Bob Wall, 20, took 165-pound class honors with a 200 press, 235 snatch, 295 clean-and-jerk for a 730 total.

"Baby" Brother Art, 17, won the 181-pound class title with a 205-235-310-750 performance. Art's 310 clean-and-jerk broke the provincial mark by two pounds.

Gary, 21, made it a perfect day for the Walt family by winning the 198-pound class with a 225-250-320-725 total.

"We've had two of the boys win titles in the same competition, but never all three," was Apollo coach Ken Carr-Brainf's enthusiastic response. "This has to be a first."

Apollo members Chris Goyer, 17, Ron Hayes, 14, and Joe Carr-Brain, 13, finished second, third and fourth respectively, in the 114-pound class. Goyer hoisted 725 pounds in his three lifts while Hayes managed 300 and Carr-Brainf 275.

A 440 total brought 17-year-old Jim Travers a fourth-place finish in the 142-pound class, while Brian Rosebush, also 17, lifted 460 to place fourth in the 148-pound competition.

Pending ratification, some of the Apollo members' performances may qualify for Canadian records, coach Carr-Brainf noted.

Minors Sweep Kingston

The coming season looks promising for Belleville Minor Hockey all-star teams as novice, peewee, bantams and midget all were victorious Sunday in exhibition competition with Kingston Lakeshore Kinsmen teams.

Belleville Food City Novices trounced Kingston 15-1, paced by Randy Hutchison's five goals, Bobby Crawford's three and a pair by Andy Lopenette.

Sunday evening Belleville peewees defeated Lakeshore 6-2.

Drop Fourth Straight

Ellis Juniors' Picture Not All Dim

PETERBOROUGH — Some lights became brighter and some got dimmer Sunday for the Belleville Ellis Junior hockey club as they dropped their fourth game in a row. Individual performances by Belleville's John Mulvihill, Terry Meagher and Teddy Waite helped soothe some pain as the Juniors dropped an 8-5 decision to Peterborough Don Byes at Peterborough Memorial Centre yesterday.

Belleville who trailed 5-3 going into the final period managed two goals to tie the score in the early part of the period. But Peterborough struck for three goals in the last two and a half minutes of play with the last goal slammed in as open net.

"We were lucky to win it," said Don Byes coach, Pat Baker, "Belleville played good hockey."

"I am quite happy with the way the boys played, today," said Ellis coach Floyd Crawford. "We should have won it. They showed what they can do when they play organized hockey and pass the puck around."

Belleville goal scorers were defenceman John Mulvihill with two while Teddy Waite, Dennis McCormack and Terry Meagher all had one goal each. Mulvihill's last goal tied the score 5-5 in the third.

There were a total of 26 minutes in penalties throughout the course of the game with Belleville being allotted a mere six minutes.

After Belleville had tied the score early in the final period Peterborough drew two penalties within twenty seconds giving Belleville a two-man advantage. The Ellis Juniors did everything but put the puck in the net.

"I had to pull Hopkins, said Floyd Crawford, we needed two goals bad and one more couldn't have done that much damage to us".

The Belleville Ellis Juniors next game is Sunday, Nov. 9 at the Memorial Arena with the Oshawa Crushmen supplying the opposition. Game time is 7.30 p.m.

Only 750 'Fans' See Seniors Shine

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

A Friday night loss to last-place Woodstock made many of Belleville Mo-Hawks fickle followers stay home Sunday afternoon, content to watch Americans throw pigskins around the television screen.

All they did was miss Belleville's best Senior A hockey game of the season, as the Mo-Hawks trimmed Barrie Flyers 6-2.

Excluding season's ticket holders, only 750 paid to watch the Mo-Hawks nearly run the mighty Flyers out of the rink and snap a four-game losing streak.

"That's what you can do if you work," coach Davey Jones was shouting at his jubilant charges across the dressing room. "If we play like that, nobody in this league can come in this rink and beat us."

It was a key game for the locals. Last year a 10-0 early-season loss to the Flyers before 2,200 home spectators accounted for a lot of empty seats in later Mo-Hawk games.

But any resemblance between the team that lost to the Woodstock doormats 4-2 Friday and the team that whipped Barrie yesterday is purely coincidental.

Al Ferguson's four goals made him the Mo-Hawk of the hour as the bulky Trenton product replaced his accused hat trick-or-better performance in the eight games the locals have played to date.

Lorne O'Donnell and vet ewan John Baker accounted for the other Belleville scoring. Third-period goals by John McMillan and Fern St. Onge were the only successful shots in the 25 the Flyers managed at Steve Rexe.

O'Donnell was easily the best man on the ice, demonstrating what the experts refer to as "tireless" back and forechecking. His reward came midway through the second period when Bill Armour sent him in alone in beat Barrie's Ken Payne with a nifty backhand shot along the ice.

It was a turning point in the game. To that juncture, Mo-Hawks held a 2-0 edge, meaningless against Barrie's veteran offence.

Ferguson gave the locals a 2-0 lead within four minutes of the first period, both goals coming with a Barrie player in the penalty box.

"Fergy" completed his hat trick near the end of the second frame, and added his fourth midway through the third period.

LORNE O'DONNELL
Tireless Checker

Baker's goal was the strangest of the game. It started off as a clearing slap from along the boards, but went up in lights when Payne was tripped up by his own defenceman and watched the skipping puck nestle into a corner of the net.

Stout checking by the forwards gave defencemen Greg Marchen, "Wiener" Brown, Lou Kazowski, and Lionel Boldy elbow room in furman Rexe with all the protection he needed.

Marchen drew a clipping penalty for a third-period blueline jolt that sent Barrie's diminutive Fern St. Onge somersaulting threw the air. Kazowski moved the puck well to start three Mo-Hawk goals.

Next weekend promises to be the hardest fought of the young season for the Mo-Hawks who are at home to Kingston Aces Friday night at 9 p.m., and repay the visit Sunday night back in the Limestone City.

Black Hawks Run String to 5

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines Black Hawks beat Kitchener Rangers and the fog Sunday night by scoring three fast goals and riding the rest of the way on cloud nine.

The Black Hawks defeated the Rangers 3-1 in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A action for their fifth consecutive victory before 3,500 fans in the Garden Seat St. Catharines Arena as the fog rolled over the ice and made play difficult.

In other action, Montreal Junior Canadiens downed Hamilton Red Wings 7-4, Niagara Falls Flyers dumped Oshawa Generals 7-4, Toronto Marlboros defeated Peterborough Petes 5-3 and Ottawa 67s and London Knights battled to a 3-3 tie.

All the scoring at St. Catharines came during the first 38 minutes before the fog became really bad. Al McDonough, Marcel Dionne and Dennis Giannini gave the Hawks a 3-0 lead and Ted Scharf replied for Kitchener.

Ticats Over Riders: 28-7

Coffey Sets Scoring Mark on Foot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was billed as the silly season of the Eastern Football Conference, with nothing at stake, but Tommy Joe Coffey decided to play it straight and wound up with a Canadian scoring record.

The order of finish had already been decided and third-place Hamilton Tiger-Cats had already wrapped up a victory in their final game of the season Saturday against first-place Ottawa Rough Riders.

The 22,012 drenched, chilled-to-the-bone fans were beginning to slog out of Hamilton's Civic Stadium with less than two minutes remaining.

There was only one point standing between Coffey and the all-time Canadian Football League record and Hamilton coach Joe Restic told him to punt it into the end zone for the single as soon as the Ticats got close enough.

"But I'm not a punter," Coffey said after the 28-7 Hamilton victory. "And I've never had anything given to me before and I don't want to start now. If I score, I'll score the way I've scored all year."

So, with the Ticats on the Ottawa 10-yard line, Restic called a pass play to Coffey. An interception would mean Coffey would probably have to settle for a tie of the 145 points established by Jack Hill of Saskatchewan in a best-of-three final starting Nov. 13.

Saskatchewan finished the season with 11 wins and three defeats for their best record in the WFC, and the best in the conference since 1961. Calgary had 18 points, eight behind Saskatchewan, and eight ahead of Edmonton and B.C. Winnipeg was last with seven points.

"We didn't back in," said B.C. coach Jackie Parker. "We beat the teams we had to in order to get to the playoffs."

Parker took over as head coach Sept. 23 and led the Lions to four victories in their last six games, two over Edmonton and one over Winnipeg.

In Edmonton, Terry Swarn made a leaping catch on a 38-yard pass from quarterback Corey Colehour for a touchdown at 13:29 of the fourth quarter giving Edmonton a 23-24 lead.

However, a 31-yard kickoff return by Bobby Thompson and five plays from the Saskatchewan 33 to the Edmonton 13 put the Roughriders in position for a field goal. Abendschan was good from 20 yards out with 15 seconds remaining for his 21st field goal in 41 attempts.

First guy who throws a punch after the game is off the club."

Coffey scored a total of 13 points Saturday with a touchdown, field goal, three converts and a single on a wide 48-yard field goal attempt.

During the season he scored 12 touchdowns, 13 field goals, 36 converts and seven singles.

The other Hamilton touchdowns both were scored by halfback Dave Fleming and quarterback Joe Zuger booted a single. The other two Hamilton points came on a second-quarter safety touch.

Barry Adem scored the Ottawa touchdown on an 88-yard pass interception and Don Sutherin kicked a single on a 13-yard field goal attempt that went wide. Sutherin's convert on the Adem touchdown was good but called back when Ottawa took a penalty on the play.

Although, Montreal was eliminated from playoff contention several weeks ago, they fought back with a vengeance and offensive tackle Pierre Desjardin was thrown out of the game for fighting.

Toronto halfback Bill Symons, who needed just 85 yards to total 1,000 yards for the season, sat out with a toe injury.

Montreal quarterback Sonny Wade tied several lower marks when hit by Toronto's Vernon Vanoy late in the third quarter and the teams resolved to fighting on the next series of plays.

Wade returned to the game late in the fourth quarter and was injured again.

Halfback Rick Smith and quarterback Ed Rutkowski, who replaced Wade, scored the Montreal touchdowns. Wade kicked two singles and Gino Beretta got a field goal and a convert.

The Argos, alternating quarterbacks Tom Wilkinson and Frank Cosentino, got touchdowns from Mel Profit, Mike Eben and Bobby Taylor. Tom Johansen converted all three and Punter Dick Thornton got the single.

Hamilton now meets the Argos in the ICFU sudden-death semi-final at Toronto next Sunday. The winner will advance to the two-game total-point final against Ottawa.

Loss to Saskatchewan Ends Edmonton Aspirations

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Saskatchewan Roughriders became instant villains and one-time losers Sunday with a dazzling 27-25 victory which sidelined Edmonton Eskimos in the final game of the Western Football Conference regular-season schedule.

Jack Abendschan ended Edmonton's playoff hopes but brightened the football future for British Columbia Lions with a last-minute 20-yard field goal before 20,500 Edmonton fans.

The Edmonton setback boosted the Lions into the third and last playoff position although both B.C. and Edmonton finished with 10 points in the 16-game schedule. The Lions earned the playoff berth, their first since 1964, by defeating Eskimos in two of three league games.

Calgary Stampeders, who whipped Winnipeg Blue Bombers 32-9 in the other game during the weekend, play host to B.C. in the WFC sudden death semi-final Saturday afternoon. The winner goes against Saskatchewan Rough Riders in the Nov. 23 Western Final.

Eskimos, who had already clinched second place in the WFC, finished the season with a 5-11 record, identical to that of B.C. Lions.

Saskatchewan finished the season with 13 wins and three defeats for their best record in the WFC and the best in the conference since 1961. Calgary had 18 points, eight behind Saskatchewan, and eight ahead of Edmonton and B.C. Winnipeg was last with seven points.

Winnipeg Wins One Grey Cup

MONTREAL (CP) — Winnipeg Hawkeyes won their second consecutive Little Grey Cup, emblematic of supremacy in Canadian juvenile Football, by dumping Montreal's East End Larks 41-0 Sunday before an estimated crowd of 2,500 on a muddy field at the University of Montreal stadium.

Gord Patterson led the Hawkeyes' attack with two touchdowns with quarterback Bud Harden, Wayne Wagner, Hugh Burton and James Ballance adding single majors. Ballance also kicked two converts. Gordon Kjarsner took a Harden pass for a convert and the Larks conceded a safety touch to complete the Hawkeyes' scoring.

The Hawkeyes jumped to a 27-0 lead after the first quarter on Patterson's two majors and touchdowns by Harden and Wagner.

Patterson's first major came after Burton recovered a Larks' fumble on Montreal's eight-yard line. The convert was missed.

Two minutes after Patterson's touchdown, Harden stepped over from one yard out. The major was set up by a pass interception by Bob Firman.

Wagner scored from three yards out with 18 minutes gone and then Patterson scored the most exciting touchdown of the night as he scampered 58 yards down the right side of the field. The quarter ended with Earl Graham conceding a safety touch.

Detroit Now Has 'Big Guy' To Complement 'Big Fella'

By CHUCK SVOBODA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Gary Bergman pointed out to defensive mate Carl Brewer at the beginning of the season that there is but one Big Fella on the Detroit Red Wings squad.

The Big Fella—Gordie Howe—illustrated the point Sunday night and the Red Wings Big Guy—Frank Mahovlich—added a pair of assists as Detroit downed Pittsburgh Penguins 4-3 in National Hockey League action.

In other Sunday games, New York Rangers downed St. Louis Blues 6-4, Philadelphia Flyers whipped Minnesota North Stars 6-2 and Toronto Maple Leafs gained a 4-4 tie with Boston Bruins.

Saturday, the Bruins suffered a 9-2 beating at the hands of Montreal Canadiens, New York edged Toronto 3-2, Chicago Black Hawks downed Los Angeles Kings 4-1, St. Louis shut out Philadelphia 8-0 and Pittsburgh beat Minnesota 6-3.

The Big Fella dispute occurred at Detroit just after the Red Wings beat Toronto 3-2 in the first season game. Mahovlich scored a goal in the second period and Brewer congratulated him after the game by shooting across the dressing room: "That's the way to shoot, big fella."

Bergman nudged the Red Wings newcomer and said:

"Listen Carl, around here there's only one Big Fella."

The two defencemen later agreed that from now on the Red Wings have a Big Fella and a Big Guy and Sunday night the two big wingers combined to give an otherwise uninspired team a come-from-behind victory.

Howe scored three goals for the 19th time in his 24 NHL seasons and Mahovlich assisted on two of them to give himself 700 career points in regular season play.

Howe then scored twice in the second period and once in the third with captain Alex Delvecchio getting assists on all of Howe's goals.

Howe, who has never had a four-goal game, had a chance for one when Pittsburgh goalie Al Smith was pulled from the net with seconds to play. But Howe gave the puck to Mahovlich whose shot was deflected just wide of the goal by Penguins left winger Dean Prentice.

Vic Hadfield also enjoyed a three-goal night and centre Walt Tkaczuk scored twice for New York's sixth victory in 11 games. Ron Stewart got the other Rangers goal before 17,250 fans.

Former Ranger Phil Goyette had two goals for the Blues and Ron Anderson and Bill McCreary each beat goalie Ed Giacomin once.

The contest before 11,142 at Philadelphia was marred by 70 minutes in penalties, including five majors.

Lew Morrison and Gary Dornhoefer got two goals each and Reggie Fleming and Jean-Guy Gendron one apiece for the Flyers second victory in nine games and a share of second place in the West Division with Oakland Seals.

The Leafs twice came from behind two-goal deficits. Centre Phil Esposito scored two goals to give Boston an early lead, but Dave Keon and Mike Walton scored within 2½ minutes of each other to even the match.

Boston defenceman Bobby Orr delighted the 14,831 fans with his take-charge play and assisted on three of the Bruins goals to give him 18 points in the scoring race.

Boston's thrashing at Montreal Saturday was the worst game for the Bruins since March 15, 1968, when they were beaten 11-2, also at Montreal.

The 18,130 fans saw Mickey Redmond and John Ferguson beat goalie Ed Johnston for a 2-0 first-period lead. The Canadiens poured in six goals in the second period with Redmond getting his second and Henri Richard, Bobby Rousseau, Claude Provost, Ted Harris and Ralph Backstrom netting one each.

Jacques Lemaire got the ninth Montreal goal in the third period with Johnny McKenzie and Cashman replying for the Bruins.

Hadfield and Dave Balon scored within 85 seconds of each other mid-way through the third period at Toronto for the Rangers' victory. Tkaczuk got the other New York goal in the first period.

Expansion Terms Scary?

VANCOUVER (CP) — The National Hockey League's expansion terms have scared off at least five groups interested in purchasing Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League, Canucks president Cyrus McLean said Sunday.

He said no further talks with Medivor Investment Corp. of Minneapolis have been held since early last week on getting Canucks into the NHL.

"All they did was check our stadia," said McLean. "We never had anything settled. We don't expect to hear from them too soon, because they're busy doing other things."

Medicor vice-president Lyman Walker met with Canucks' directors to discuss ways of raising the $6,000,000 price tag for a berth in the NHL.

Canucks have first right of refusal on one of two league openings, but must make a down payment on the franchise price by Dec. 1 or withdraw their application.

Hornets Swarm Twice on Weekend

Galt Hornets dominated weekend OHA Senior A play downing Oakville Oaks 3-2 Saturday and Owen Sound 4-0 Sunday to take possession of first place. Kingston Aces downed Orillia Terriers 4-1 and Oakville shut out Woodstock 3-0 in other Sunday games.

Pete Betzel and Dick Smith, with two goals each, and Charlie Cipolla provided the Oakville scoring Sunday night, while goaltender Bost Hurley recorded his first shutout in two years.

Hurley missed the action Saturday as his stand-in, Ron Boomer, handled 40 shots from the Hornets. Joe Hogan, Bob Maxwell, Bill Hoay, Howie Dietrich and Ron Smith beat Boomer.

Terry Oliver, Jim O'Brien and Pat Bester scored for the Oaks.

Sinden Berates Buffey

BOSTON (CP) — Coach Harry Sinden of Boston Bruins says National Hockey League referee Vern Buffey is "out of shape" and "blindering the play" as well as watching the players' bench when "he should be watching the play."

Cowboys Get Strong-arm Treatment from Browns' Nelsen

By MIKE BRYSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

"I'd like to play a big game every week," said Bill Nelsen. "There's more inceptive."

As far as Dallas Cowboys are concerned, the Cleveland Browns quarterback and his aroused team-mates had more than enough of that Sunday.

Nelsen's strong right arm delivered five touchdown passes and Cleveland's defence forced the Cowboys into several errors as the Browns pulled off a 42-10 stunner over the previously unbeaten terrors of the National Football League.

In other games, New Orleans Saints went on their biggest scoring binge ever in beating St. Louis Cardinals 51-42, Minnesota Vikings shackled winless Chicago Bears 31-14 to remain atop the Central Division, Baltimore Colts stopped Washington Redskins 41-17, Green Bay Packers stormed from behind to beat Pittsburgh Steelers 38-35, Detroit Lions whipped San Francisco 49ers 26-14 and Philadelphia Eagles checked New York Giants 23-20.

Dallas won the opening toss—but that was about the only thing the NFL leader in 11 offensive departments and 11 defensive categories accomplished against the fired-up Browns.

The first time the Browns had the ball, Nelson fired a short pass to Paul Warfield on the 30, and the speedy split end circled around to the left and into the end zone.

From then on, it was all downhill for the Cowboys, who had been rated a touchdown favorite but lost for the seventh straight time in eight games at Cleveland.

Capitalizing on three fumble recoveries and a pass interception for four of their touchdowns, the Browns ramp up a 35-3 lead before Calvin Hill finally scored Dallas's only marker on a one-yard run in the final period.

Nelson completed 18 of 25 passes for 255 yards, hitting Warfield and Gary Collins for two touchdowns each.

It gave Cleveland a 5-1-1 record and a comfortable 2½-game bulge over second place New York in the Century Division. Washington's setback left the Cowboys with a two-game edge in the Capitol Division.

The unbeaten Rams rode three touchdown passes by Roman Gabriel—22 yards to Wendell Tucker, 21 yards to Jack Snow and 33 yards to Larry Smith—past Atlanta. The coach of the Coastal Division leaders, George Allen, confidently said later: "This is our best all-around team since I've been with the Rams."

Gabriel, who hit 18 of 25 passes for 236 yards, also rushed a pair of 80-yard touchdown drives in the second half before yielding to Karl Sweetan with 12:06 remaining.

The Los Angeles defence held the Falcons to only six yards net rushing, and Atlanta could muster only a pair of field goals by Bob Etter.

Bill Kilmer fired a record six touchdowns—he had the old mark of two—in leading New Orleans to its first victory after six losses.

Charlie Johnson also fired six touchdown strikes for the Cardinals, including four to Dave Williams. The game's 12 TD passes broke the old NFL mark of 11 set by New York (7) and Washington (4) in 1962.

Kilmer missed only 10 of 32 attempts for 345 yards, while Johnson hit on 20 of 37 for 374 yards.

A pair of TD tosses by Joe Kapp, plus a stingy defence, helped Minnesota to its sixth straight victory after an opening loss—and the seventh straight loss for the Bears, off to their most miserable start ever.

Baltimore's defending champions kept their slim title hopes alive by intercepting three Sonny Jurgensen passes, which Tom Mattie turned into touchdowns, in beating Washington for the 10th straight time.

Pittsburgh leaped to an early 10-0 lead before Williams produced two of his three touchdowns on an 85-yard punt return and a 96-yard kickoff return. He then set up the decisive score with a 31-yard jaunt.

Brown Basking in Glory As Bengals Bounce Unbeaten Raiders

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cincinnati coach Paul Brown, wise to the ways of football, has never been accused of being a dreamer. But he might become one after what Greg Cook and Chip Myers did to Oakland Raiders.

"I couldn't even dream of something like this," Brown said Sunday while basking in the reality of the Bengals' 31-17 upset that suggested the Raiders' regular-season unbeaten streak and dropped them out of first place in the American Football League's Western Division.

While Cincinnati, with Cook throwing two touchdown passes to Myers, was upsetting Oakland, Kansas City Chiefs were beating Buffalo 29-7 to take over first place with a 7-1 record compared with Oakland's 6-1-1 mark.

In other AFL action, New York Jets 6-2, increased their Eastern Division lead over Houston Oilers by edging Miami Dolphins, 34-31 while the Oilers were being upset by Boston Patriots 24-0, and Denver Broncos shocked San Diego Chargers 13-0.

Cincinnati, with Paul Robinson running two yards for a touchdown and Cook hitting Myers for two more, built up a 24-0 halftime lead en route to snapping a four-game losing streak and evening its record at 4-4. Daryle Lamonica threw two touchdown passes in the second half, but it was too late for the Raiders who lost the ball on four interceptions and a fumble.

"All I thought about today was beating Oakland," said Brown, who sat out three of the four losses because of a sore arm. He completed 11 of 19 passes for 189 yards including his scoring strikes of eight and 35 yards to Myers, whose two receptions were double the number he made in the first seven games.

Jim Dawson, who missed five games with a knee injury, came off the bench to ignite Kansas City's sputtering offence, and the Chiefs made up a 7-3 halftime deficit. Jan Stenerud added four more field goals and Mike Garrett scored on runs of 34 and four yards. Dan Darragh passed for Buffalo's touchdown.

Don Maynard became the first man in pro football history to gain more than 10,000 yards in catching passes and set an AFL record for touchdown receptions in helping the Jets beat Miami. Maynard's 42-yard catch in the first period gave him a record 82 touchdowns and his 25-yard reception in the fourth quarter, which tied the game at 31-31, gave him a total of 10,061 yards.

New York's winning points came on Jim Turner's 30-yard field goal which was set up when John Elliott blocked a punt. Bob Griese threw four touchdown passes for Miami, which led 21-10 at halftime, and Joe Namath added a third for the Jets.

Mike Taliaferro hit Ron Sellers with a pair of touchdown passes in Boston's stunning shutout of Houston as the Patriots snapped a nine-game losing streak dated back to last season.

Steve Tensi threw a two-yard touchdown pass at Al Denson and Floyd Little scored on a two-yard run, both in the third quarter, in Denver's upset of San Diego. It was the first shutout ever for Denver.

Nicklaus Upset By Playoff

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — "I'm just hacked off at myself for letting it get into a playoff," Jack Nicklaus said Sunday after the darkness-delayed sudden-death playoff for the top prize in the $140,000 International open golf tournament.

Nicklaus, who blew a two-stroke lead in the final round, Masters champion George Archer and Billy Casper were tied after one extra hole of the precedent-setting playoff which continues today.

The situation, a second day of a sudden-death playoff, has not existed before.

It was forced when darkness descended on the Silverado Country Club after those three plus Texas veteran Don January had completed only one playoff hole, the par five 18th.

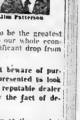
January, who had tied the others with a 72-hole total of 273, was short of the green in three, chipped on and made the putt. The other three ran in long birdie putts.

The playoff, minus January, resumes on the 324-yard, par four 17th, then goes to the 18th, a 530-yard par five. They'll play those three holes until a winner is decided.

Nicklaus had a two-stroke lead starting the warm, sunny day Sunday and stretched it to three strokes with a beautiful 35-foot birdie putt on the 10th. He had a final-round 71.

THE CAR BUYER'S PROBLEMS:

THE BEST TIME TO BUY A USED CAR



Jim Patterson

Many economists have declared used cars to be the greatest bargain in terms of real value for the money in our whole economy. This is because, of course, of the very significant drop from the new price in the first few years.

The hitch, of course, is that the buyer must beware of purchasing a used car model that has been misrepresented to look like a quality used car. But since dealing with a reputable dealer usually solves this problem, there remains only the fact of depreciation to contend with.

Annual depreciation chops away continuously at the market price in a series of stages. A significant price decline occurs in July after the Spring rush is over. Labor day is next when buyers looking to Winter have made their purchases. The new car announcement follows in October announcing a new style year. As the car now officially becomes one year older, values go down again. Winter weather in November slackens demand for the fourth time in the all-time lag of the year. Prices then level off until the first warm days of March when the cycle resumes.

This then, is a wise time to buy a used car. The market price has reached its low cycle and your resale value stands to decline little, if any, in the next six months.

'Escalating Risk of Assassination' Seen for Political Figures in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — "An escalating risk of assassination" exists in the United States today for other public figures and lower elected leaders as well as the president, the national commission on violence says.

"In comparison to the other nations of the world, the level of assassination in the United States is high," the commission said in one of two weekend reports, and public figures in and out of office should be afforded greater government protection.

The commission, in the second report, warned that a "mosaic of discontent" pervades the country's system of criminal justice, making control of violent crime a campaign with "no real hope for success" unless radically changed and adequately funded.

Dr. Milton Eisenhower heads the commission, which was named by former president Lyndon B. Johnson after the June, 1968, assassination of Senator Robert F. Kennedy.

Without drawing a parallel, the commission pointed in both reports to increasing discontent with, and agitation against what a significant proportion of the population feels are unresponsive institutions in society and government.

Among the causes of discontent are "police lawlessness, degrading prison conditions and other deficiencies" in criminal justice as well as the seeming inability of the poor to fight back against exploitation, the commission said.

Making a distinction between what it termed non-conspiratorial assassinations—such as the murders of President John F. Kennedy and his brother Robert by lone malcontents—and "political" assassinations in which an organized group uses murder to accomplish political ends, the commission said:

"Political violence in the United States today is probably more intense than it has been since the turn of the century. If civil strife continues to become more violent, political assassinations may well occur."

In its report on law and order, the commission said governments—local and state and federal—must recognize needs of their citizens and act upon them if they are to effectively enforce their laws.

"Disenchantment with governmental institutions and disrespect for law are most prevalent among those who feel they have gained the least from the social order and from the actions of government," the commission said.

Noting that the U.S. spends more for agricultural subsidies than on elements of its system of criminal justice—police, courts and the prisons—the commission recommended increasing spending by $5-000,000,000 a year.

Efforts by one government element in the fight against crime often undermine those of another, it said, recommending establishment of a national criminal justice centre to co-ordinate efforts.

The commission also called for increased legal aid for the poor such as that provided by the office of economic opportunity, contending alienation and lawlessness are caused in part by landlords who charge exorbitant rents, unscrupulous merchants—and a system that lets them get away with it.

"Some extremists prey upon this frustration and alienation by proposing simplistic solutions and pointing at scapegoats —usually Negroes," it said.

Brandt Supports Britain

LONDON (Reuters) — Chancellor Willy Brandt of West Germany says in an interview in the Times he will try to convince Common Market members to start serious talks early next year on British entry.

In the interview, his first with a foreign newspaper since becoming chancellor, the new West German leader strongly links British entry into the Common Market with the future of East-West relations.

He says that having a divided western Europe does not make sense when there are attempts being made to improve relations with the East.

Brandt says he wants to see the Common Market enlarged not only to include Britain and the other countries that want to join, but to have special arrangements with countries like Austria and Switzerland.

Catholics Want Talks On Schools

HAMILTON (CP) — Representatives of Ontario Roman Catholics have called for an immediate meeting with Premier John Roberts to discuss the government's position on a brief demanding the extension of the separate school system.

More than 200 delegates representing Catholic organizations from across the province endorsed a call at a Sunday rally by the Ontario Separate School Trustees' Association for a meeting with Mr. Robarts.

Dr. B. J. Nolan of Windsor, first-vice-president of the trustees, said the New Democratic Party has come out with a paper stating its position on the brief. The Liberals are expected to do so shortly, but nothing has been heard from the Conservative government.

Separate schools must be able to provide a continuous kindergarten-to-Grade 13 system, Mr. Nolan said.

"If we do not get this, the whole Catholic education system in Ontario is in jeopardy."

Break Inflation Main Task - - - PM

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Sunday night that "the main thrust of the government" in the coming months will be to break the back of inflation.

Speaking during a free-time political broadcast over CBC-TV, the prime minister said his government is doing its part to fight inflation with its fiscal policies and a surplus in its budget.

"Scalp tension, a sign of the times, is one cause of your hair loss," says Harrison trichologist to lighting man. Harrison directs the famous Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists, whose main office is in Vancouver. They are sending a specialist here to advise men and women how to correct hair troubles by home treatment.

How to save and improve your hair demonstrated by expert here tomorrow

New home treatment methods for preventing baldness — and growing thicker hair — will be demonstrated in Belleville this Tuesday, November 4.

In the announcement, Harrison named staff trichologist J. Pringle to conduct the Belleville clinic. Pringle will personally examine hair-worried men and women from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Hotel Quinte.

Examine You Free

"I want to make it clear that you incur no obligation by seeing Mr. Pringle," director Harrison said.

"Your only obligation is to yourself — to free your mind of worries about hair loss, dandruff, itching, or other scalp disorders, by learning how to take care of your hair. If your trouble is beyond the scope of Harrison Home treatment, we will frankly tell you so.

"We always make a personal examination before suggesting any treatment," he pointed out. "There is no one cure-all that will correct every one of the 18 scalp disorders that cause baldness."

Who Can Be Helped?

Will this new treatment cure baldness? "No," said Harrison sincerely. "We cannot help men who are slick-bald after years of gradual hair loss. But where your scalp still grows hair, we can at least save and improve what you have. Usually, we can grow more hair even where you have only 'fuzz' now."

The important thing is: Don't wait until it's too late!

Best evidence of the success of Harrison treatment is the phenomenal growth behind it. Harrison trichologists hold clinics in all major cities across Canada.

"Our biggest problem is not in doing what we claim to do," declared Harrison. But to overcome the average man's initial in skepticism is sometimes difficult. He's usually quite desperate - and baldish by the time he nerves himself to see a Harrison trichologist. He's 'tried everything.' So he starts consoling himself with one of the old superstitious about hair:

That baldness is hereditary; that men naturally lose hair as they get along in years; that nothing can be done to stop hair loss — and a lot of other notions that we know are not true today."

Free Scalp Examination

See Mr. Pringle in person. Learn how baldness can be corrected, and new hair grown. The new Harrison method permits you to actually correct your baldness and improve your hair in the privacy of your own home.

For a free examination and discussion of your hair problems ask the desk clerk at the Hotel Quinte tomorrow between 1 p.m. and 8 p.m. for Mr. Pringle's suite number

You don't need an appointment. Examinations are given in private.

Ontario Student Liberals Champion Weak and Minorities

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The plight of minority groups and the politically powerless were the focus of discussion during the last two days of the Ontario Student Liberal convention.

After a panel discussion Saturday, delegates passed a resolution asking the federal government to re-assess its Indian policy. The re-assessment, the students suggested, should be based on these principles:

—That the government recognize existing native organizations are the most representative bodies for their people and should be recognized as representing the native peoples;

—That the government accept the principle that native people and organizations should initiate, implement and administer programs for their own people.

Sunday, the student delegates took an even more outspoken stand on Liberal policy when they voted 35-22 to accept a Manifesto of Social Change that charged Liberals with failing "to involve and respond to the needs of the politically disenfranchised."

Several delegates objected to the strong wording of the document that read in part:

"Without a radical transformation of the makeup of our party, without a new definition of the role of Liberalism, without a new definition and commitment to the building of a humanistic society, we believe we can no longer support the Liberal Party."

The document promised that student Liberals will act as a "countervailing force" in the party to revolutionize it through criticisms and direct action. The direct action, the statement said, included alignment of student Liberals with protest movements of minority groups.

The wording of the manifesto drew fire from Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon, in Windsor to address the convention.

He added, however:

"You've served notice you want to be part of the party on the street and on the (Indian) reserve and is that spirit I welcome it."

But, he said, more direct personal action and less criticism is called for.

"It requires something more than sitting in a hotel room sipping punch and being critical of those with direct responsibilities," he said.

Gord Cale, vice-president of the OSL from Waterloo, defended the manifesto as "not tinkering . . . but a commitment to social change."

"If we do not do something after this we are hypocrites," he said.

Repeat Offenders Laughing at Courts - - - Judge

KINGSTON (CP) — A county court judge who says he has no hesitation in ordering the strap or lash in serious cases of rape or indecent assault says dangerous offenders should be imprisoned for life.

York County Judge W. M. Martin of Toronto also told a two-day judges' conference here Saturday that repeat offenders are "laughing at the courts" who let them off with light sentences.

Judge Martin said a first-offence conviction of armed robbery should bring a sentence of between 10 and 12 years and a repeat offender should get life.

He said if maximum prison terms were used on repeat offenders the crime rate would start to shrink.

At one point in his address, Judge Martin said:

"I have no hesitation of ordering the strap or lash in bad cases of indecent assault or rape."

Judge Martin also said sentences imposed on persons convicted of trafficking in marijuana or possession of it are "just ridiculous."

The medical profession is divided on the effects of marijuana but as long as it is an offence under the Narcotics Control Act the courts should enforce it."

Draft Used to Punish Protesters - - - Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Edward M. Kennedy, said Sunday the Selective Service system in the United States has been used to punish young men who protest against the Vietnam war and against the draft itself.

He suggested that some of those so punished may be guilty of no illegal acts.

"Respect for military service can hardly be enhanced if those who protest the system are the first people chosen to fight for our country," Kennedy said in a statement prepared for the opening today of a second week of hearings into the operation of the draft system.

"The fundamental issue which now confronts us is whether the Selective Service system has the right to supplant the courts, and substitute an administrative form of punishment," the Massachusetts Democrat said.

Former Attorney-General Ramsey Clark and Kingman Brewster, president of Yale University, are among witnesses to be called by Kennedy's judiciary subcommittee investigating the draft system.

Kennedy replied to testimony last week by Lt.-Gen. Lewis B. Hershey that service in the armed forces can never be considered a punishment.

Six American Plane Hijackers Risk Death Penalties, Return Home

PLATTSBURGH, N.Y. (AP) — Seven men detained by the Cuban government was cited today as a probable reason why six Americans, who sailed to Montreal, elected to come home and risk the death penalty on charges of separate hijackings of airplanes to Cuba.

"I'm sure he'll tell us there was no utopia at the other end," said George Bohle of Michigan City, Ind., father of Ronald T. Bohle, one of the men who gave themselves up at the Canadian border Sunday.

"I think he was incarcerated quite frequently," said James Boynton of Kalamazoo, Mich., who told reporters of his detainment with Cuba had been expressed in letters from his son, Thomas, one of the returnees.

The younger Boynton had stuck it out longer than any of the others—slightly more than 20 months.

The state department said all are returned of their own volition and not as the result of any negotiations with the Castro regime.

All were jailed in lieu of bail ranging from $100,000 to $250,000 under the federal air piracy law, which provides a maximum penalty of death. Each faces trial in the area where he seized a plane.

"Mommy! Mommy!" the youngster cried as she ran to meet her mother. The two later returned to the mother's home in Philadelphia.

Boynton said his son, who has a master's degree in sociology, "had to do kinds of work he wasn't used to—common laboring."

There have been about 90 airplane hijackings from the United States to Cuba since 1961. Many of the hijackers were Cubans, but one state department estimate puts the number of Americans still in that country after forcing flights to Havana at nearly 40.

The six who came back Sunday sailed from Cuba Oct. 24 in the Cuban freighter Luis Arces Bergnes. They arrived in Montreal Saturday night and Canadian authorities took them to the border, where they were turned over to U.S. officials.

Washington, a Negro, was charged with commandeering an Eastern Airlines Philadelphia-Miami flight near Jacksonville, Fla., on Dec. 19, 1968, after flashing a pistol.

He told reporters in Cuba later he "wanted to save my daughter from some of the injustice and viciousness that is perpetrated in the United States."

Washington's bail was fixed at $100,000.

The others were identified as: Raymond Anthony, 56, of Baltimore, an unemployed auto salesman. He was charged with hijacking an Eastern Airlines plane with 104 aboard en route from Baltimore to Miami last June 28. The plane was diverted near Daytona Beach, Fla., by a sloppily-dressed man sipping whisky and waving a knife. Bail was set at $150,000.

Ronald Thomas Bohle, 22, of Michigan City, Ind., who left Purdue University. He was charged with hijacking a 72 passenger Eastern jet flying from Miami to Nassau on Jan. 9. The man, who said he just completed a Communist mission, held the crew at knifepoint. Bail was set at $200,000.

Robert Lee Sandlin, also known as Bobby Sandlin and A. Vollis of Vernon, Tex., about 25. He was charged with hijacking a Delta Airlines flight bound to Augusta from Atlanta on March 17.

The man handed a shoe box to the stewardess and said it was a bomb. Bail was set at $100,000.

Thomas J. Boynton Jr., 32, an assistant professor at Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo, Mich. The FBI said he was a former Job Corps employee who forged the pilot of a Twin Pipe Apache in fly from Marianna, Fla., to Cuba on Feb. 17, 1968. Bail was set at $100,000.

Joseph C. Crawford, 28, a native of St. Simons Island, Ga. He was charged with taking a Continental Airlines plane traveling from El Paso to Midland, Tex., on July 26. Bail was set at $100,000.

Foe of Police Unions 'Delighted' by Expulsion

TORONTO (CP) —Constable Sydney Brown of Metropolitan Toronto police said Sunday he is delighted he was refused attendance at a meeting Saturday in Omaha, Neb., at which police delegates from 10 United States cities drafted plans for a national union of policemen.

Constable Brown, president of the International Conference of Police Associations and of the Metropolitan Toronto, Ontario and Canadian police associations, said he was asked to leave the meeting because of his opposition to police unions.

"I think they made a mistake though, in throwing out the press, radio and TV at the same time. We all got together in the lobby and had a chat."

As a result, Constable Brown expects his anti union views will get wide publicity in the U.S.

Constable Brown was elected president of the international police conference in Washington last July on a platform of building police bargaining power but keeping the unions out. He wants to strengthen local police associations.

Drivers' Licences Delayed

TORONTO (CP) — Renewal of several hundred Ontario drivers' licences has been delayed by a combination of late filing on the part of drivers and the switch to a computerized record system, it was announced Sunday.

William McIntyre, director of the drivers branch of the department of transport, said he had a staff of 60 working all weekend in an effort to catch up.

"We're hoping the police will use some discretion" in dealing with out-of-date licences, he said.

He also said drivers can go to their nearest examination centre to have overdue licences stamped to indicate they are still valid.

Nixon Backs 'Pollution Probe'

WINDSOR, Ont., (CP) — Robert Nixon, leader of the Ontario Liberal party, Sunday urged students to form branches of Pollution Probe in every university in the province.

"Students at Windsor, Hamilton and Sudbury should be the first to organize since these are the three worst centres outside Toronto," he told Ontario Student Liberals.

Mr. Nixon said Pollution Probe, an organization based in Toronto, is in the forefront of pollution fighters.

The Liberal leader also said newspapers should launch campaigns against pollution both in news stories and in advertising.

Windsor students should join forces with young people in Detroit to help stop "waves of pollutants" blowing across the river from industrial sites, the Liberal leader said.

All U. S. Combat Men May Be Home by July

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Republican Gerald R. Ford, minority leader in the United States House of Representatives, said Sunday night that all American combat forces may be withdrawn from Vietnam by next July.

The Michigan Republican declined to speculate on what President Nixon would say in a nationwide address tonight, but told reporters indications are he would be "very reassuring."

In response to a question, Ford said, "it is perfectly possible that all American combat forces can be withdrawn from Vietnam by July 1, 1970."

Ford said Nixon is the first president in eight years "to be taking troops out instead of putting more troops in" Vietnam, and American fatalities have dropped to the lowest point in three years.

Lebanese Government Gets Backing

OTTAWA (CP) — The Lebanese ambassador played host to his third demonstration in four days Sunday—this one in support of the Lebanese government in its current hassle with Palestinian guerrillas.

An estimated 500 demonstrators—most of them from outside the Ottawa area—visited Ambassador Alif Gebrai's home during the afternoon.

Last Thursday 25 demonstrators from Arab countries visited the Lebanese embassy to protest the country's treatment of Palestinian commandos in the north of Lebanon.

It Figures

Frank's Television Special Produced by A Woman

But it's also true that the producer is a talented lady—secretarily so to get so far in what is primarily a man's world.

Her name is Carolyn Raskin, and she is an attractive, friendly woman who knows how to get the job done. And when Frank Sinatra does a special, or anything else, the job is done with dispatch.

"We taped the show in four hours," Miss Raskin reported.

"Of course Frank worked a couple of days with the orchestra before that. But the actual studio time was four hours. I don't think the Dean Martin show takes less than that. The average special takes about 35 hours. Even on Lassie he use 24 hours in the studio.

"The secret? It's Frank Sinatra. He is the most amazing star I ever worked with. All you have to do is tell him where to be and when to be there, and he doesn't forget. He never rehearses, and he never misses anything.

"One number the director, Tim Kiley, told him to lean one way, then lean another way, then go centre. Frank did it perfectly.

"He is also a superb scanner of the cue cards. All he needs is a key word or two and he can deliver the whole line. The only other star I've worked with who has this incredible faculty is Dinah Shore. Why, Frank can even interrupt a song for a joke then continue with the song, not losing the pace or tempo."

Miss Raskin's admiration for Frank Sinatra is nothing recent. She used to dream over his records while she was a co-ed at the University of Iowa. She came to Hollywood and started at CBS as a typist, one of the few jobs open to female beginners in television.

Miss Raskin advanced in production assistant to associate producer and finally to co-producer of Laugh-In. Her association with Sinatra began when she was associate producer on his first three specials.

The CBS special tonight is pretty much a one-man show, with Sinatra singing to the orchestra of Don Costa. Included are movie clips from some of Sinatra's "hits," such as The Kissing Bandit, Johnny Concho and The Pride and the Passion.

WHITE CAT VICINITY WRIGHT Avenue, Avondale Road, 962-7937 after 5.

Officials Afraid

NEW YORK (CP) — Dick Young, sports columnist of The Daily News, says Toronto's Bob (Pretty Boy) Felstein had a heavyweight fight at Madison Square Garden Friday night because of "lack of guts" on the part of the Garden's fight officials.

Felstein, 'Young says, gave opponent Pedro Agosto "a boxing lesson" during their eight-round bout but lost the decision because Garden officials were forced a decision against his Puerto Rican opponent might inflame the audience.

Young says Felstein's loss was another controversial win for previous fight, in which Mike Quarry won an unpopular decision over Jimmy Figueroa, also a Puerto Rican.

The decision was hastily booed by the fans, many of them Puerto Rican, and Young writes:

"I saw Mike Quarry cost Bob Felstein a fight and they weren't even boxing each other. It was a pure case of related terror. . . .

Mother Learns Hard Way Aches Not 'Growing Pains'

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Your recent column "Don't downgrade sore throat" hit home. But I don't want to let it rest there. I'd like to tell my experience. Some of your readers who are mothers may find that it will save their children from undue pain or possible death.

I was brought up believing every little pain was "growing pains." When I had my own children I practised this philosophy.

When my oldest son was 15 he came home telling me he had pains in his leg and right hip. To me, this was growing pains and I told him so. Days later my conscience raced to the hospital with him.

They didn't even have time to fully prepare him for operation. Doctors saved him after a nip and tuck battle. Note that the only pains he had complained of were pains in the right hip and leg.

Our youngest boy had a sore throat one Friday at the age of 7. I had some purple, gave him aspirin, and made him rest. On Monday he was rushed to the hospital with a streptococcus infection.

You might think I had learned my lesson with the oldest boy. But no. When the young est was 8 he also had pains in his legs for a week and a half. I treated him at home for "growing pains." A week and a half later he was in the hospital with a bad kidney infection. After two weeks and an operation, he came out of it.

I am now a mother who does not attribute everything to growing pains. When anything comes up I call the doctor and let him decide. I would like to say thanks to God and doctors I still have two sons. They are were saved in spite of my stupidity. — Mrs. F.

Comment: I hope your hardwon wisdom rubs off on many others. As I keep saying do not go "maximizing" every ache and pain — but do not go "minimizing" either.

• • •

For Mrs. D.: Yes, allergy to clothes is quite common. Many cases of contact dermatitis are due to sensitization to material in wearing apparel. Sometimes it can become complex-drama.

I recall one patient who for years complained of dermatitis of mink coat. For some reason, she became allergic to it after the dream came true. Wearing it for a few months she developed a severe dermatitis on her neck and chest. The current tub dream turning into a permanent nightmare she got rid of the coat. It broke her heart, but within a few weeks her skin "was as good as new."

• • •

For Mrs. O.: It is not true that taking olive oil or large amounts of fruit juice will dissolve gallstones. Usually there is only solution la surgery. Although still considered a major operation, cholecystectomy to remove stones and the gall bladder is not usually a serious operation when performed under elective conditions.

• • •

For Mr. P.: Boils are not directly related to diet. Nevertheless it is more likely for the diabetic to have boils if the patient is careless with his food intake and builds up an excessive blood sugar that persists.

• • •

For Mrs. N.: A so-called "wino" can be an alcoholic even though he rarely takes hard liquor. Beer is hard liquor when pots away quite a few quarts every day, and triples his intake when he wines.

Belleville Bowlers In Provincial Championships

Belleville's Thursday afternoon ladies' five - pin bowling team, "The Dodgers", will represent Belleville in the Provincial finals of the Colonel Sanders' Championships.

The Dodgers finished the zone finals Sunday in third place behind Kingston and Campbellford.

Kingston had a three-game total of 3522 pins with handicap. Campbellford had a 3397 total while Belleville was close behind with 3264.

The provincial finals will be rolled off Nov. 16 in Peterborough.

Lois Calcutt displays style that she hopes will bring championship to Belleville.

Shuffleboard Championship Saturday

A five-member Branch 99 team won the District 9 trophy here Saturday in competition with "rinks" from Peterborough, Port Hope, Oshawa, Ajax, Trenton, and two others from the local branch.

The winners — Dave Roberts (captain), Don Carr-Brainl, Don Fargey, Erve Schwichtenberg and Jim Calnan — will now defend the provincial title Branch 99 won last year in Woodstock this coming weekend in a 9 a.m. - 9 p.m. competition at Belleville's Bleecker Auditorium in the Fairgrounds.

Legion entries from as far away as Sudbury and Elliot Lake have already been received for this year's championships.

Trenton were runners-up in Saturday's District F competition for the Labatt Trophy, which was presented to the winning team by area representative Ed Nicholson.

Women Proud of Game

Belleville - Mel Barrigan's women's hockey team defeated 5-4 by Norwood over the weekend, but aren't embarrassed over the loss.

Belleville goal scorers were Marjorie Reid with two and Nancy McCallum and Susan Morton drawing a tripping minor.

"It was the first time in three seasons any team has scored more than two goals in a single game against Norwood," said Jerri Rushlow, representative for girls' hockey. "Our girls are quite proud of themselves for coming close to beating them. Norwood scored the winning goal in the last minute of play."

Nolet Gets Four Goals for Aces

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Simon Nolet is one of those particularly adept minor-professional hockey players who just doesn't have all the prerequisites to make it in the big time.

Nolet, 27, scored 18 goals in 70 regular-season games with Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League in 1967-68, but could only beat the National Hockey League goaltending for four goals in 35 games last season with Philadelphia Flyers.

Sunday night he proved he still has enough class for the AHL and scored four goals in the Aces 8-5 victory over Hershey Bears.

Montreal Voyageurs defeated Cleveland Barons 5-2 and Hershey Bears walloped Springfield Kings 7-1 Saturday.

Junior Maroons Still Unbeaten

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The 110 minutes in penalties all came in the first two periods as league-leading Chatham outshot Brantford 61-29.

In St. Thomas, Brian Randall's goal at 3:35 of sudden-death overtime gave the Barons their win.

Guelph forced the overtime period when Ron Krulicki scored on a power play with less than two minutes to play in the third period.

Other St. Thomas scorers were Pete Fraser, Dennis Desrosiers and Harold Kewley.

Goals for Guelph were Ken Kay and Bill Wilson.

St. Thomas outshot Guelph 47-36.

Veteran Has Career High

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Veteran forward Tom Van Arsdale scored a career high of 41 points Sunday night to lead Cincinnati Royals to a 124-116 National Basketball Association victory over Los Angeles Lakers in Los Angeles.

Van Arsdale, a four-year pro, scored 18 of his points in the fourth quarter as the Royals rallied to overtake the Lakers who built up a 91-83 advantage early in the fourth.

Oscar Robertson scored 22 points for Cincinnati. Connie Dierking added 14 and veteran Johnny Green had 12. Jerry West paced the Lakers with 27, backed up by Wilt Chamberlain's 25.

In Atlanta, guard Walt Hazzard scored 23 points to lead the Hawks to their win.

Hazzard also had nine assists. Joe Caldwell was next with 22 points and centre Jim Davis had 21 points and 11 rebounds.

Despite a paltry of 24 turnovers, was led by centre Bob Rule with 22 points. John Trevasani added 20 points and Lucius Allen contributed 20 and player-coach Lennie Wilkens had 19 points and 11 assists.

Saturday night games saw Atlanta defeat Baltimore Bullets 140-137, Detroit Pistons defeat San Diego Rockets 130-113; New York Knicks turn back Milwaukee Bucks 112-108; Boston Celtics beat Philadelphia 76ers 131-125; and San Francisco Warriors walloy Cincinnati 120-97.

St. Vital To Football Championship

WINNIPEG (CP) — St. Vital Bulldogs advanced to the Canadian senior football championship final for the third consecutive year Sunday when they defeated Regina Rams Thanksgiving Day Monday Mustangs 37-6 before 1,000 fans.

The game was the second half of a two-game, total-point series for the Western Canada championship. St. Vital won the opener 21-20, for an aggregate score of 58-20.

It was the Bulldogs' 11th consecutive victory. They meet North Bay Tiger Cats next Sunday in North Bay in the Canadian final.

St. Vital, the defending Canadian champion, held quarterback leads of 10-0, 24-0 and 37-6. They were stopped on the one-yard line when the final gun sounded.

Veteran halfback Don Kuryk paced St. Vital with two touchdowns, one field goal and four converts. Fullback Art Marche scored two touchdowns and a tight end Mickey MacDonald got one.

Kuryk opened the scoring with a 10-yard field goal, Marche followed with a touchdown from the end.

In the second quarter, Marche ran for his second touchdown, covering five yards, and Kuryk plunged from the one for his first.

MacDonald scored his first touchdown of the game as St. Vital's second play from scrimmage in the second half. He caught a pass from quarterback Barry Hobday and ran half the length of the field for a 72-yard touchdown.

Kuryk closed the scoring with a 12-yard run and followed with his fourth convert.

Quarterback Billy Shields was Thunder Bay's leading ground-gainer, picking up 43 yards on two carries. He completed only three passes out of 15 attempts.

St. Vital's total offence amounted to 504 yards compared with Thunder Bay's 140.

Hijacked Pilot Charges FBI Ignored His Instructions

ROME (AP) — Italian authorities questioned hijacker Raphael Minichiello again today in his isolation cell in the U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation came under attack from the crew of the commandeered Trans World Airlines jet.

The pilot, Capt. Donald J. Cook Jr. of New York, charged that FBI men in New York ignored his instructions to keep away from the plane when it made a refueling stop at Kennedy International Airport. He said this upset the 29-year-old hijacker and he fired a shot into the roof of the cockpit.

Cook said he had radioed Kennedy that the plane must be taken to an "isolated area to be refueled as rapidly as possible." Instead, he said, a crowd met the plane and "the hijacker became agitated and began running up and down the aisle."

"I shouted for them (the FBI) to get away, but they didn't move," Cook said. "They told me: 'We'll move the plane when we get good and ready.' . . . The whole thing was blown by FBI."

The FBI in New York declined comment on Cook's accusation. But an assistant district attorney who worked with the FBI, Albert T. Taub, said Cook's criticism was irresponsible and that the pilot was portraying himself as "the sole hero of the escapade."

Cook and the other three crew members—first officer Wensell Williams of Shallowater, Tex.; engineer Lloyd Halloran of St. Charles, Mo.; and hostess Tracy Coleman of Cincinnati, Ohio —returned to the United States Sunday.

He allowed the 39 passengers and three other hostesses to get off at Denver, Colo., and the plane went on to Kennedy. Refuelling stops were also made in Bangor, Me., and in Shannon, Ireland before the 17-hour, 6,900-mile flight ended in the hijacker's native Italy.

Minichiello eluded police for a short time after leaving Rome Airport, but was captured near a chapel on the outskirts of the city.

Italian authorities charged Minichiello with bringing military weapons into the country, kidnapping airport Police Chief Petro Gull, extorting police credentials from Gull, illegal possession of firearms, and personal violence against the plane crew. They add up to a maximum of 18 years.

U.S. authorities charged him with air piracy, which can be punishable by death, kidnapping and interfering with the operation of a commercial plane. They have not filed an extradition request, however.

Israeli Planes Attack Jordan

AMMAN, Jordan (Reuters) — Israeli fighter planes, firing rockets and machine-guns and dropping napalm bombs, today made two raids on areas in the northern and southern Jordan Valley, a Jordanian military spokesman said.

He said there were no casualties among civilians or troops in the first raid. He did not mention losses in the second.

Laborite Wins Election But Choice Questioned

LONDON (CP) — Allegations of irregularities in the nomination of a Labor candidate who later won a byelection in the London riding of Islington North have prompted a party inquiry as well as some embarrassment for Prime Minister Wilson.

The charges also give new impetus to the argument that selection of candidates in both the Labor and Conservative parties should be a function thrown open to a wider cross-section of supporters in the constituencies.

The candidate in Islington North, Michael O'Halloran, expressed shock Sunday at the allegations made in his case, which include the charge that some persons registered as participants in the nomination meeting had no right to be there or were in fact absent.

Asked whether he would resign from the parliamentary seat he won last Thursday if the charges are proven correct, O'Halloran said he did not think so but that he is leaving the question of his future action in the Labor party executive.

Earlier he had affirmed his right to stay in Parliament on the grounds conceded even by critics of his nomination—that the byelection itself was regular.

The critics also exonerate O'Halloran from any prior knowledge of the alleged irregularities at the Sept. 7 nomination meeting held by Labor's general management committee in Islington North.

Although it showed a nine-per-cent swing to the Conservatives compared with the 1955 general election, the riding traditionally has been considered a safe Labor seat.

What worries Britons anxious to protect the health of their political system is that nomination by the dominant party in such safe seats is just about tantamount to election, with irregularities in candidate selection thus constituting a direct attack on Parliament and the democratic process.

The Islington North situation is bringing renewed insistence from some quarters that the selection procedure currently is performed by too restricted a circle of party stalwarts.

O'Halloran won the Sept. 7 nomination by one vote, a second-ballot development that gave him the support of an over-all majority of the 54 participants in the selection conference.

Soon protests were coming in from participants who had supported others among the essential byelection candidates.

Labor won Islington North with 7,288 votes. The Conservative candidate had 5,754, the Liberal 1,514 and an Independent Socialist 245.

In the 1955 general election, Labor won with 16,184 votes, the Conservatives had 8,357 and the Liberals 2,682.

It Is Time Well Spent Locating Good Mechanic

By RAY STAPLEY

A reader writes:

I was raised in a small town where my mechanic was a lifetime friend. He was a dedicated craftsman who skillfully diagnosed problems and came up with estimates that, give or take a few dollars, were the cure. I realize now that I never had it so good.

A few months ago I moved to Toronto, and while I have tried several garages, none of them seem to inspire confidence. They are either understaffed, too busy, can't pinpoint the problem, or when the job is finished, the original estimate has ballooned considerably.

Mr. C. J., Toronto

The endless flow of letters from readers asking the same question attests to the passage of reliable mechanics, and each year the situation becomes more critical. However, the difficulty is not insurmountable.

Motorists who are not acquainted with a mechanic that they know and trust should not rush blindly into the first handy repair shop. Ask your friends and business associates to recommend a man they have dealt with long enough to prove his skill and integrity. Locating a reliable mechanic as you would a doctor or dentist. In a hurry we usually spend a lot more money on a car "doctor" than with either a dentist or physician. Remember that your life is as much in the hands of the mechanic as it is in the hands of the surgeon.

Don't be misled by rock bottom estimates. When such unit as the transmission, or engine, fail or start making expensive noises, it is next to impossible for a mechanic to know exactly what's wrong until it is dismantled.

He can diagnose the fault, but there can be many reasons for the failure and sometimes several components are needed to do a thorough job.

A motorist's insistence on a firm quote before a defective assembly has been stripped and thoroughly examined can lead to grief. When an honest shop quotes "anywhere from $100 to $150" for certain repairs, the motorist will sometimes shop around until he gets a final low price of $100 and often falls into the hands of the gimmick operators.

The odd garage will agree to cure all the ills in such units as the automatic transmission or the brake system for a ridiculously low figure. Then, after the unit is dismantled, the motorist is told that regretably there is unforeseen damage to other parts and the price is now twice that of the original estimate.

If the customer insists on sticking to the original quote, they may do, so begrudgingly, throwing in some questionable parts. The job is unsatisfactory, or fails completely a month or so later.

Strictly Personal

Risk Must Be Taken

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of the first things I learned when I began playing bridge seriously, with expert partners, was that if I never went down in doubled contracts I wasn't bidding enough. For the benefit of non-bridgers, this means that in order to get the most out of my hands I had to take the risk of substantial loss.

This is a lesson whose importance extends far beyond the cardtable, and has still not been learned by most people in decision-making roles. Especially in business, where to be "safe" is often to be sorry.

It pleased me to read in a recent issue of "News Front" an extract from a talk given by Fletcher L. Byrom, president of Koppers Co. in Pittsburgh, to the International Marketing Congress.

The theme of his talk was "Hang Loose," and he offered nine commandments "for the man who will be my successor." The ninth, and last, commandment was: "Make sure you generate a reasonable number of mistakes."

Too many executives are so afraid of error that they rigidly shape organization with checks and counterchecks, discourage innovation, and in the end, so structure themselves that they will miss the kind of offbeat opportunity that can avoid a company skyrocketing.

"If you can come to the end of a year and say that you haven't made any mistakes, then I say, brother, that you just haven't tried everything you should have tried."

Earlier in his remarks, Byrom warned that "Probably the worst thing you can do is to create a so-called 'efficient' organization, because that kind of perfection leads to rigidity."

The formalized organization charts, he observed shrewdly, can't do that what you can and do than what you can do.

For too many decades, the cult of efficiency for its own sake has reshaped organizational and institutional structures — even when such "efficiency" was narrow, shortsighted, and self-defeating in the long run. This kind of myopia, this resistance to risk, or goals and more flexible techniques, is one of the principal reasons young people today are turning away in large numbers from organizational jobs.

"Hang loose" is much more than a happy hippy phrase. It is a basic maxim that could do a lot to shrink the generational gap.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For November 4

Your birthday today: The coming year's expensive trends will carry you through sweeping changes into a more complex pattern of living habits. You may, if young enough, switch from one vocation to something very different and much more challenging. Since there will be very little time for reflection or review of your situation, many times you either think on your feet or rely on direct intuition for decisions. Today's natives usually have acute memories and seldom follow advice.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): The one thing you shouldn't do today is obligate yourself to put future sums of money in installments. The affairs of your career or partner promise enjoyment. Share in it.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Health care, medical advice, illness programs are favored Cross talk and quarrels to get in the way. Your patience will be well rewarded.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): So much is going on around you today that it is hard to concentrate on what you most want to do or even to know what is best to try doing. Keep your choices simple, spur of the moment, if you can.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Romance tends to progress by leaps and bounds — some of you will never forget today's experiences. Travel and improvements in financial and vocational matters are good, as well.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Parents, older people resist today's expansive trend. Home improvements are encouraged by current circumstances. Sentimental interests come on strong- but turn — the experience can be bright and unusual.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Romance and business both thrive, although they should never be mixed or confused. Relatives and their problems become difficult to cope with; there is a limit to how much you can sidetrack your own welfare to worry over others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Group and family affairs receive considerable push — probably favorable in the long run — from older people. Your financial position improves; personal interests advance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): Nothing runs smoothly today, but the results are satisfactory. New interests, fresh subjects for study come to your attention. Prepare for a week of abrupt but minor changes at work.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Planning is favored, while routine activities are hindered by petty discrepancies. People pick up your mood, which provokes further restlessness. If you can, follow some physical exercise or hobby briefly.

Smallwood Makes Plans

Joey Will Work Hard 'for at Least Two Years'

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — All thoughts of retirement are gone as Premier Joseph Smallwood settles down to leading the Liberal party and the provincial government for at least two more years.

He announced his retirement last spring, after 20 years as premier and party leader only to enter the leadership race in July when it became apparent the party's top post might go to John C. Crosbie, a 39-year-old St. John's lawyer and former cabinet minister whose economic ideas are opposed to the premier's own.

Delegates from the party's 61 districts and ex-officio members voted slightly more than 62 per cent Saturday to keep Mr. Smallwood at the helm.

Defeat would have been a bitter turn of events for the 69-year-old premier, who has won every provincial election since Newfoundland joined the Canadian union in 1949.

The next election is due in September, 1971, and the premier says he has no intention of calling an earlier contest.

Some who favored Mr. Crosbie and former justice minister T. Alex Hickman, in the leadership race say the premier is less than jubilant about the outcome of the two-day convention.

They say he is disappointed that no more than 1,070 of the 1,315 ballots cast were for him. He had predicted more than 1,200.

If there is disappointment, Mr. Smallwood hides it well.

He showed some tiredness after the strain of the convention, but talked about completing "a number of large industrial projects" before giving any consideration to retirement.

"I'm not thinking about retirement. I'm thinking about hard work for at least two years."

He did not expect his weariness to last, anticipating a fast-paced week starting Sunday with a trip to Toronto for taping of a CBC TV program. He was to be back at his desk Monday morning.

His energy has been a source of wonder to friends and enemies since the battle for Confederation began at Newfoundland's national convention in 1946.

"I never saw a human creature with Joe's capacity for work," says Irving Fogwill, who worked with Mr. Smallwood in the Confederation campaign.

"He doesn't know fear of any kind and loves a political fight.

"There have been many occasions when nothing but sheer courage kept him going."

His treatment of opponents is usually rough.

He said Mr. Crosbie, who quit the health portfolio in 1969 would not be asked to rejoin the cabinet. The future of finance minister H. R. V. Earle who supported Mr. Hickman in the leadership race, is also in doubt.

Mr. Smallwood said he would "think about it."

Mr. Smallwood got his first introduction to politics as a boy in St. John's where the family moved soon after his birth at Gambo on Bonavista Bay, Dec. 24, 1900.

He spent much of his spare time in the galleries of the colony's house of assembly, listening to the chief speakers of the day.

In 1928 he was campaign manager for Sir Richard Squires' Liberal government and in 1932 met personal defeat at the polls. It was his only election defeat.

He had worked for newspapers in St. John's, Halifax, Boston and New York and by the time the national convention started was well-known to thousands of Newfoundlanders for his local radio program Barrelman.

Since Confederation his name has become almost synonymous with that of Newfoundland.

He will frequently describe a report he disagrees with as having "not one word, not one letter, not one syllable, not one iota of truth."

Ontario Federation of Labor Will Seek Guaranteed Income

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Ontario labor must fight in the coming year for a guaranteed annual income for poor citizens and implementation of the Freedman report on bargaining and municipal change, says a policy statement prepared for the Ontario Federation of Labor's annual convention here.

The policy statement, which has been adopted by the executive council of the 400,000-member OFL, will go to the 1,000 convention delegates for their consideration at the three-day meeting which begins today.

To help workers dislocated by technological change, the council also calls for implementation of the 1965 report of Mr. Justice Samuel Freedman, which said companies ought to negotiate any technological changes which would affect employees' jobs.

In a separate statement, the executive council notes that labor generally welcomed Ontario's entry into the federal medical care scheme on Oct. 1, but calls for major changes in the provincial plan such as:

—Establishment of a system of collective bargaining between the provincial government and Ontario doctors before any new changes in the medical fee schedule. Once a proper fee schedule has been agreed on, the Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan is to start paying 100 per cent of fees instead of the 90 per cent now covered by the plan.

—Phasing out of the private carriers which have been allowed to act as agents for OHSIP so that OHSIP itself will take over complete administration of the plan.

—Extension of the present health services coverage to include drugs, appliances, dental care, nursing physiotherapy, eye glasses and hearing aids.

In a speech to 300 trade unionists attending a political meeting preceding the OFL convention, Manitoba Health Minister Sidney Green suggested that medical care could be the issue to defeat Ontario's Conservative government in the 1971 provincial elections.

He said the issue of medical care "lopped the scales" in the Manitoba election last June which put the New Democratic Party in power, and that this issue could work in favor of the Ontario NDP.

Striking University Workers Doubt Students' Radicalism

GUELPH (CP) — Gary Powell, leader of 700 striking workers at the University of Guelph, says he doesn't have much faith in recent talk about alliance between workers and radical students.

"We've had students in university trucks almost running down pickets—and women pickets at that," said Mr. Powell, president of Branch 10, Civil Service Association of Ontario.

The CSAO began its strike against the university Oct. 24 for higher wages and a compulsory dues checkoff. The strikers include secretaries, library clerks, groundsmen, cleaners, laboratory technicians and skilled tradesmen.

Secretaries receive a starting weekly wage of $54.50; general laborers receive $70.60. The university is offering a minimum raise of 14½ per cent over two years. The union wants substantially more but has not yet made a firm demand.

Mr. Powell said in an interview he and other CSAO leaders are angry that students are volunteering to do clearing and other jobs usually done by the strikers.

He said the CSAO has refused offers of help from sympathetic students because it feared student participation could provoke incidents on the picket lines.

"There only has to be one person who's opposed to beards and long hair and you'll get somebody swinging."

He said the union is also suspicious of sympathetic students with leftist tendencies.

"In a few years, I suspect, many of them will get into the establishment and do a 180-degree turn as far as their attitude to labor is concerned," said Mr. Powell.

"It's not their rebellion I question but the reasoning behind it . . . they're spouting a line that's not really ingrained in them."

An administration spokesman, Douglas Waterson, public relations man, said the university is financially hard pressed and cannot afford to pay civil service raises.

General Public Understands Education Really A Process

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Former director of education Frederick W. Minkler said Sunday he has observed "a subtle change" in the public's attitude towards education.

"No longer do we believe a person is automatically educated when he has graduated from college," Dr. Minkler said in a speech to about 800 students who received degrees at the Waterloo Lutheran University fall convocation.

The general public now understands education is a process, not a package, and realizes that the purpose of education is not the acquisition of a certain body of knowledge but the achievement of a maturity of mind and spirit."

Dr. Minkler, who was director of education for North York, a borough of Metropolitan Toronto, received an honorary degree, along with Mrs. Roland Michener, wife of the governor-general, and Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger, former archbishop of Montreal.

Dr. Minkler said the future of democracy depends on development of the individual, not on the perfection of institutions.

The fundamental purpose in education is to develop in students the insight, capacity and desire to use modern technology for the betterment of mankind, he said.

Gov.-Gen. Michener attended the convocation but had to take a back seat to his wife as she opened the university's new teaching building and received her doctor of laws degree.

In her address, she urged students to become fluent in more than one language as a means of enriching their own lives.

Cardinal Leger told the graduates to take a hard look at what the new generation can do to narrow the gap between western society and countries of the "third world."

"The gulf has always been great but since the flight of Apollo 11 it has stretched almost to infinity."

Mrs. Gandhi Censured By Old Guard of Party

NEW DELHI (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi received a stinging rebuff Sunday from the old-guard leadership of her governing Congress party, which censured her government for participating in the Rabat Islamic conference in September.

The censure resolution, the first ever passed by the Congress leadership against a prime minister since independence from Britain 22 years ago, aggravated an already serious crisis within the party.

The resolution was passed by 11 of the 21 members on the Congress working committee, the party's top policy-making body. Mrs. Gandhi and nine of her supporters boycotted the meeting for the second consecutive day to protest the dismissal of two members sympathetic to her.

The resolution said India, as a secular state, "obviously had no place" at the Rabat summit conference, which was called to discuss the burning of the Al Aksah mosque in Jerusalem. India attended one session and then was excluded at Pakistan's insistence.

Moosa Masani, leader of the rightist Swatantra party, capitalizing on the Congress party split, announced his followers would move a motion of no confidence in Mrs. Gandhi's government when Parliament reassembles Nov. 17.

The resolution could have serious implications for Mrs. Gandhi in Parliament, where her enemies within the Congress party could use it as an excuse to vote against her on a no-confidence motion.

With Mrs. Gandhi enjoying only a 23-seat majority in Parliament, only a handful of defections could bring down her government.

Israel Will Punish Raids From Lebanon

Price of Peace Could Be War

From AP Reuters

Israeli officials warned Lebanon today to expect speedy retaliation for any Arab guerrilla attacks launched from Lebanese soil as a result of the new agreement between the Lebanese government and guerrilla chief Yasser Arafat.

Officials said Israel will not tolerate increased terrorism along its northern border as a result of the agreement announced in Cairo Monday night. Arafat and Gen. Emile Bustani, the Lebanese army commander, said in a communique that they had agreed on all issues. Reliable sources said the commandos would be allowed to operate freely in some parts of Lebanon.

Sources in Jerusalem said following top-level meetings Monday night, the Israeli government conveyed its views to various other governments for them to transmit to the Lebanese.

It was made clear that Israel will not stand for "anarchy on its borders or hostile acts endangering the lives of its citizens," one source said.

For the first time since the Lebanese army and the Arab commandos began fighting two weeks ago, an attack from Lebanon against Israel was reported. The Israeli military command said one rocket was fired across the border early today and that it damaged one wall of a building in a border settlement in Upper Galilee and broke several windows. There were no casualties.

Despite the peace agreement announced from Cairo and a ceasefire that went into effect 24 hours earlier, gunfire and explosions were heard early today in the south Lebanese oil port of Sidon. Three explosions that sounded like grenades went off, and there was a 15-minute burst of rifle and machine-gun fire outside Ein el Hilweh, a big Palestinian refugee camp that had been surrounded by army troops.

Sources in Beirut believed the shooting erupted when members of Saika, the guerrilla organization sponsored by Syria, ran into army troops while making their way from Rachiya, the scene of bitter fighting Sunday.

The Cairo communique said Arafat and Bustani agreed that "relations between Lebanon and the Palestinian revolution should be characterized with confidence, frankness and positive co-operation that would guarantee Lebanon's sovereignty, Palestinian interests and the goals of the entire Arab nation."

Informed sources reported Arafat told Lebanon had agreed to permit the guerrillas freedom of movement in "certain" areas. He did not define the areas, but told reporters: "You are going to feel we have freedom of movement in Lebanon when you hear of the military operations against Israel."

GOVERNOR-GENERAL MICHENER meets Loyalist College president John K. Bradford during Rideau Hall reception for Conference of Defence Association delegates. Today, tentative acceptance was announced of invitation to Governor-General to officiate at Loyalist cornerstone ceremonies next spring.

Michener Will Lay Loyalist Cornerstone

By HARRY MULHALL,
Staff Reporter

For the first time in years Belleville is up for national vice-regal honors.

Governor-General Michener is expected to officially visit the city next spring.

Confirmation of the Governor-General's visit came simultaneously from two separate sources yesterday — Mayor Russell Scott and Loyalist College.

Loyalist president John K. Bradford announced the Governor-General will lay the cornerstone for the college's first permanent campus building in late March or early April.

Coinciding with this event, the city is to invite Governor-General Michener to make his visit here official, Mayor Scott told city council last night.

The Loyalist invitation already has been tentatively accepted, said Mr. Bradford. The college has been requested for an outline of the cornerstone-ceremony program and Loyalist board secretary Donald Swain will meet with a vice-regal secretary in Ottawa to discuss details.

While visits of provincial lieutenant-governors to Belleville and surrounding communities have been fairly frequent, the city has not seen a national representative of the Queen for many years.

Medicare Protest Threatened

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Fighting delegates to the Ontario Federation of Labor's convention took on two governments Monday—condemning federal calls for wage restraints and threatening a mass protest at Queen's Park to show their unhappiness with the provincial medical care insurance scheme.

The convention resolved that Ontario's version of the federal medical care scheme, introduced in the province on Oct. 1, is "totally inadequate" and instructed the OFL executive to organize a mass demonstration unless major changes are made in the plan. Particularly they wanted a sharp reduction in provincial health insurance premiums.

Mr. Archer told the convention that he already has held talks with Ontario's two farmers' federations and other organizations to gain their support for the protest, and only the time and date remain to be set.

U Thant Loses Cool

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The usually calm U Thant lost his cool Monday and angrily defended his actions in withdrawing the United Nations Emergency Force from the Middle East in 1967.

The secretary-general exploded angrily at a correspondent who took the unusual step of interviewing him during a small party celebrating the eighth anniversary of Thant's appointment as top official of the UN.

He said he was correct in ordering the withdrawal of the force on the insistence of Egyptian President Nasser and that anybody who thought otherwise was a "nincompoop or a malicious distortionist."

One Information Service Advocated

OTTAWA (CP) — A new all-embracing government information organization was advocated today by a three-man group that studied federal information services.

The proposed body, to be known as Information Canada, would co-ordinate and expand existing information services and would be headed by someone ranking as high as a deputy minister. He would become, in effect, an information czar for the government.

In addition, the three-man study force," appointed in August, 1968, made a series of sweeping recommendations designed to improve the flow of information to the public.

Carbon Monoxide in Cigarette Smoke May Contribute to Artery Disease

CHICAGO (AP) — Three Danish scientists reported today evidence that carbon monoxide from cigarette smoke may contribute to development of diseased arteries in smokers.

They connected it specifically to atherosclerosis, a disease characterized by the accumulation of fats in the walls of the larger arteries.

This condition is related to the better-known arteriosclerosis and is held responsible for most heart attacks and strokes and some other disabilities related to the circulatory systems.

Carbon monoxide is a toxic gas formed by incomplete combustion of a carbon-based fuel. It is found,for example, in automobile exhaust.

The scientists, Drs. Poul Astrup, Knud Kjeldsen and John Wanstrup of the University of Copenhagen, presented their findings at the second International Symposium on Atherosclerosis.

The Danes' joint paper reported experiments with rabbits which were fed high cholesterol —saturated fat—and normal diets in atmospheres containing carbon monoxide and various oxygen concentrations.

They found that cholesterol deposits in heart and aorta tissue of the rabbits exposed to carbon monoxide was 2.5 times greater than that in rabbits fed cholesterol but living in a normal atmosphere.

The rabbits exposed to carbon monoxide also showed marked increases in carboxyhemoglobin concentrations in their blood. Carboxyhemoglobin is a molecule made up of carbon monoxide bound to hemoglobin, a component of red blood cells.

Ordinarily, hemoglobin transports oxygen from the lungs to body tissues in the blood, but in combination with carbon monoxide it delivers no oxygen and thus acts to asphyxiate the tissue.

The scientists said the concentrations of this molecule in the rabbits is similar is that found in heavy smokers.

Nixon Has Timetable

All U.S. Ground Troops Are to Leave Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon says he has worked out with South Vietnam "an orderly scheduled timetable" for withdrawal of all U.S. ground combat troops from Vietnam but may have to revise it if llaned "significantly" escalates the war.

"I have chosen a plan for peace," Nixon told a television audience Monday night. "I believe it will succeed.

"If it does succeed, what the critics say now will not matter. If it does not succeed, anything I say then will not matter."

He disclosed he had undertaken several secret contacts with North Vietnam to try to break the stalemate in the Paris peace talks.

Against this background Nixon, after reviewing the history of the war, focused his speech on turning the conflict over to the South Vietnamese, and gradually disengaging American ground combat forces until all can be brought home.

For this plan he asked support, particularly the support of "the great silent majority of my fellow Americans."

Talk Called War Speech

From Reuters—AP

WASHINGTON (CP) — Anti-war organizers rejected President Nixon's Vietnam address as a speech of war and "an insult to the intelligence of the American people" and pressed ahead today with plans for a new round of protests later this month.

A statement from the New Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam—a coalition of 60 peace, labor and religious groups—said it is "a pity the president remains so rigid in his refusal to listen to the American people."

The speech, the statement said, "was a speech of war—not a speech of peace."

Dogs Bled

Humane Society Loses Contract

TORONTO (CP) — An argument between a Scarborough alderman and the Ontario Humane Society over the bleeding of animals by the society for research came into the open Monday as the borough cancelled an animal control contract with the society.

Alderman Carol Ruddell said the OHS destroys animals by bleeding them to the point where their hearts stop and then injecting a lethal dose of sedative.

T. I. Hughes, general manager of the humane society, said Mrs. Ruddell's charges are "absolute baloney" and that council's decision will cost Scarborough taxpayers "tens of thousands of dollars" for animal control.

Mrs. Ruddell said the blood is used for medical research at the Hospital for Sick Children, yet the OHS is opposed to having the animals used for scientific or medical research.

Mr. Hughes said the dogs are completely knocked out with anesthetic before they are bled. Supplying the blood meant the hospital did not have the added expense of buying dogs to get the blood.

"It is the most humane method of killing an animal," he said.

Shaddy Deal

TORONTO (CP) — A fisheries expert suggested Monday that the lowly alewife be renamed the Great Lakes sardine and marketed as an hors d'oeuvre.

Dr. W. E. Johnson, director of the Freshwater Institute of the Fisheries Research Board of Canada in Winnipeg, brought some samples to the conference for users of the Great Lakes.

He said the institute began experimenting with alewives as an edible fish because they are so numerous.

Trunk Sewer Line Eligible for Grant

The proposed trunk sanitary sewer up the bed of the Moira River to serve Hillcrest and the city's northeast industrial area will cost an estimated $500,000 but a loan from Central Mortgage and Housing could save the city $77,000.

Plans call for construction of a 6 36-inch sewer from the existing Front Street pumping station to College Street, a distance of 7,800 lineal feet. Construction of the sewer is expected to commence next year with completion by Dec. 1, to meet a commitment to industries in the city's northeast area.

Council yesterday received a report on the proposed sewer from City Engineer Wilbur Purcell which estimated the cost at $500,000.

However, he said that Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation with the approval of the Governor in Council may make a loan under the National Housing Act of up to two thirds of the cost with a forgiveness clause of 25 per cent of the principal amount of the loan and 25 per cent of the interest accrued at the completion of the project.

City Manager J. R. Reynolds said today that Central Mortgage and Housing had already notified the city that the trunk sewer up the river would be an eligible project for the loan.

Provision for loans to municipalities for trunk sewer projects is made under a section of the National Housing Act.

Some years ago the city took advantage of such a loan to build the first sewer from the sewage plant to the city's western limits was constructed.

Wilson Negotiators at Table

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The serenity of a city motel this morning was the unruffled meeting for what may be some of the hardest labor - bargaining in Belleville in recent years.

But behind the closed doors of Room 104 negotiations entered a crucial stage between Wilson Concrete Products and the United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers.

Spokesmen for both began sounding each other's positions — reasoning talks closed several weeks ago by failure to agree.

The issue may have borrowed more urgency in the interim. The union — originally demanding a $1.50 across-the-board hike for nearly 100 members of its Local 424 — now has the right to strike.

A union spokesman said yesterday Wilson workers could now legally walk off the Job Nov. 9 if strike action was deemed necessary.

But there was no hint of such extreme action as spokesmen for both sides gathered to talk this morning — discussions initiated yesterday by the company.

The atmosphere was mutually subdued, both business and labor delegates declining any formal public statement or comment.

The Wilson team was headed by company vice - president James Clarke and included Ian Hosies, operations manager and Cliff Neill, personnel manager. A Toronto consultant accompanied the group.

Heading the union delegation was district representative Donald Burshaw, accompanied by Local 424 officials— president Arthur Stapley, chief steward David Hadley, recording secretary Hubert Smith and committeeman Jack Ethier.

The negotiations also draw significance from recent history. The current labor issue at Wilson's still lies in the shadow of the last contract talks — failure of which led to 69 days walkout in late 1967, an event pocked with violent reactions on picket lines and company construction sites.

Downtown Exit Again Considered

City hall will take still another look into the feasibility of providing an outlet to Bridge Street from the municipal parking lot at the rear of Front Street stores.

In a report to council, City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said the proposed exit could be accomplished with the removal of one tree and placement of gravel and asphalt at a cost of just over $800.

It was noted, however, that delivery trucks occasionally park on the exiting right of way while making deliveries and continuance of the practice would interfere with the operation of the proposed outlet.

An outlet onto Bridge street from the riverside parking lot at the rear of Front Street stores had been talked of in council for years. Thirty years ago the idea cropped up as part of a proposal for a riverside drive.

But the idea was dropped when the Ontario Department of Highways at that time refused permission for a street outlet onto the Highway 2 route and almost directly onto the Lower Bridge approach.

City Can't Aid Y's Tax Problem

Representatives of the Belleville YMCA appeared before city council yesterday seeking forgiveness for school taxes and local improvement charges amounting to $6,190.

Harry J. Fast, president of the Y said the Association had no money to pay the school tax bill and requested that a grant be made to assist the Y this year.

Ald. Fred Russell however, pointed out that council had no authority to forgive school taxes, but on a recommendation of Ald. Robin Jeffrey voted to write the county school board, requesting co - operation.

Neither, was it claimed, did council have authority to forgive local improvement charges, although Ald. Jeffrey pointed out there was nothing to stop the city making a grant to cover the charges.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said council had already this year exempted the Y from paying approximately $12,000 in general taxes.

In making the request for forgiveness of the school taxes, Mr. Fast said the Y had been working hard at adapting programs to make more and better Y services available to people of all circumstances.

Recent developments included close co-operation with the city parks and recreation departments in the development of skating and baseball facilities on the Y playing field; joint operation with the Canadian Mental Health Association of a centre for alienated youth; work with the Family and Children's Services in co-operation with programming for disturbed or troubled children; use of the Y pool by Moira Secondary School students, and participation in Y programs of an increased number of financially and socially underprivileged children and adults.

City OKs CN Request To Close Sidney Street

City council yesterday concurred in a request from the Canadian National Railways for temporary closing of the present Station Street level crossing to allow the railway to get ahead with its new yard development plans.

Plans call for closing of the railway crossing to allow construction of two additional tracks and ultimately construction by the city of overpass further to the east to line up with a proposed King Road extension.

Railway officials this morning said that CN would like to see the Station Street level crossing closed by the end of November.

In the meantime yard operations would be switched to north of the mainline tracks where new yard development has been going on for more than a year.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said it was to the city's advantage to co-operate with the railway in the temporary closing of the Station Street level crossing.

"The railway has been most thin ther," he said, noting that the city would be receiving $146,000 more toward the cost of the proposed overpass if it did not agree to the temporary closing of the tracks.

He said it would be up to next year's council whether the Haig Street overpass over the CN west ahead in 1970.

Only residents of the immediate area will be materially affected by the temporary closing of the Station Street crossing.

Motorists coming into the city from the east along the second concession of Thurlow will use either Byron Street through Hillcrest, or turn south along Elmwood Drive and into the city by way of No. 2 highway.

Council Splits, Endorses Bid to Tax Cable TV

Belleville city council yesterday concurred in a long list of resolutions from outside municipalities with subjects ranging from a request that cities and towns be advised of suburban road cost assessment to a request for 100 per cent government under the OHSP medical plan.

Another resolution concurred in was from the town of Mississauga asking that the Ontario Legislature be requested to pass legislation enabling local municipalities to license community antenna television companies (cable TV).

The resolution also asked for the right to establish licence fees for cable TV.

Ald. Robin Jeffrey said there was a strong feeling on the part of Ontario municipalities that cable TV firms should be licensed and pay a fee.

Ald. Douglas Boyle moved concurrence in the resolution, but Ald. Arthur Keegan suggested that a licence fee may not be low popular if it resulted in increased rates for cable TV subscribers.

Council split even on the vote to concur, but Ald. Donald Williams, acting as chairman of the committee of the whole, cast his vote in favor of the resolution.

Ald. Douglas Boyle introduced by Ald. Jeffrey, saw council vote to ask Premier Robarts Legislature to ban the use of phosphates in the manufacture of detergents.

Mrs. Jeffrey said a young Toronto university student had apparently developed a cloth dilute for phosphate which broke down readily and would eliminate the present growth of algae and pollution. She asked that if the new formula was valid the product should be purchased by the government and made available to all detergent manufacturers.

Foster 'Mayor' to Run Again

Alderman Arthur Keegan, 29-year veteran of municipal life and unofficial "mayor" of Foster Ward, has announced that he will try for a further three years on council.

The dean of city council made the announcement at council last night, stating that he had decided to offer himself for election in the forthcoming municipal election.

"I have been urged to control the mayoralty, but I find that the present mayor's policies are those of my own", he said.

"I would not change a single thing if we must give help where it is needed and at the same time stay within our budget and not raise taxes."

ARTHUR KEEGAN

The veteran alderman said this was a time of change and that people must adapt themselves to this change. More homes were needed and also more jobs with good wages.

He said the city had progressed under the present administration, a suggestion that, when Belleville was moving ahead it would be disastrous to "change horses in the middle of the stream."

So far the city's mayoralty race is shaping up as a two-way contest between incumbent J. Russell Scott and Ald. Richard Ellis.

Four of the present alderman have now announced their intention to seek re-election while at least three others are expected to enter the race. Three newcomers have stated they will seek seats on the 10-ma council.

Must Resign Seat

Duncan McDonald Almost Sure To Contest Trenton Mayoralty

TRENTON — Councillor Duncan McDonald learned this morning that if he wants to run for mayor in the upcoming civic election he cannot sit on council any longer this year.

According to the Municipal Act a council member intending to resign and seek another office must file his council resignation not later than 10 days before nominations.

Nomination day in Trenton is Nov. 17.

This means Councillor McDonald must resign this Friday if he wishes to run for mayor, local government officials confirmed here after examining the Municipal Act.

"I'd say indications are that I'll be running for mayor," said the councillor today.

He will announce his decision by Friday, Councillor McDonald added.

Meanwhile, Mayor James MacDonald — who has headed council for 10 consecutive years — has yet to signify his re-election intentions.

Last Thursday, Councillor McDonald touched off a furor when he resigned as public works chairman, claiming the mayor distorted facts during a council discussion on a Carrying Place Road sewer project.

The mayor later denied the charges.

Hard at Planning

Exchange Operating

Christmas Could Be Unhappy, Too

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

Even though it is only the beginning of November, that mammoth machine reserved for the Christmas season has started to shift into high gear.

People tend to get caught up and overwrought with the whole Christmas scene — the buying, baking and wrapping — that they quite often forget what the season is really about.

The meaning of Christmas is simply giving, and giving to make someone happy. But first, you have to know what is needed to bring happiness.

That is what the Christmas Exchange is all about. Trying to understand what is needed, and making sure it can be provided.

The exchange, which got rolling early last month, has been busy matching the needs of particular families to those of prospective donors.

Acting as a clearing house of needs, the exchange assures there will be no duplication of services. Last year the organization made Christmas brighter for 450 families in Belleville and surrounding area.

Exchange director, Mrs. Mark Haslett says that donors willing to help families have started to come in.

"They are particularly enthusiastic about helping a family. Some go in a great deal of trouble to stress the personal aspect of giving," she added.

Mrs. Haslett stressed that anyone wishing to assist families should get their names in early enough so that complete information as to the needs of that particular family can be made available.

"My advice would be to avoid the last minute rush. We would like to have the donor's name by mid-November so there will be plenty of time to match the needs," she emphasized.

As in years past, the firemen will be accepting toys in good condition.

"We are stressing good condition this year. So often toys are brought to the firehall unrepairable — which is of no use to anyone."

"The Kiwanis, who are cooperating with the firemen, will be placing some 250 coin cans in every possible location throughout the city in the near future. Contributions made by th epublic via these cans will be given directly to the exchange, for the purchase of new toys for the children in these families," said Mrs. Haslett.

The primary reason for the change in the toy-repair situation was simply the fact that the majority of toys now are made of plastic, and once broken, cannot be repaired.

"With direct contributions going for new toys, we at the exchange feel we can get the community more directly involved in helping these many needy families in the area," remarked Mrs. Haslett.

"Several organizations are endeavoring to assist the exchange. The Quinte Twirlers will be holding a square dance, with each member to bring a toy which will be given to the exchange", Money will also be given to us from the Salvation Army during the Christmas season," said Mrs. Haslett.

Mothers To March On Feb. 2

The mothers' march in Belleville will be Feb. 2 next year.

That's the date for the annual blitz of the Rehabilitation Foundation — once known as the March of Dimes.

The one-night mass canvass is headed by local mothers. Last year they collected $8,400 on Belleville doorsteps.

Mrs. Vera Morphy has been named general chairman of the 1970 campaign. Foundation directors are Fred Deacon, Mrs. Phyllis Hume, Mrs. Joan Bennett, Roland Belanger, Ross Burtt and Dave Sovereign.

Volunteers wishing to participate in the funds blitz should contact Foundation executive members.

Traffic Halt On Nov. 11 Is Approved

PICTON — Traffic will be directed away from Picton's Cenotaph on Nov. 11 during the annual memorial service held there. Addressing council last night Mrs. Ronald Scott, Spring Street, asked if it would be possible to control traffic noise during the brief service commemorating Armistice Day. She recalled that there was a great deal of noise last year during the two minute silence honoring the war dead. "If traffic can be stopped for Santa Claus parades and similar democratic functions I can't see why it can't be done on Remembrance Day too!" she asked. Mayor H. J. McFarland assured Mrs. Scott that he felt it was indeed possible to divert traffic during the special service to be held next Tuesday.

'Belleville Week' Will Show Profit

Aside from its success in drawing national attention to the city and in bringing a keener local awareness of the city's many attributes, Belleville Week will end in the black.

This was indicated to city council yesterday in an interim report from Belleville Week Committee chairman Donald M. Soutter.

Mr. Soutter said the committee was tremendously enthused with the wide and varied participation in the week's many activities.

Revenue for the week was said to be in the area of $3,000, made up of over $3,000 in direct donations from industry, $2,000 from the sale of booster buttons and $4,000 in receipts from admission charges to some activities.

Disbursements indicate a current surplus of approximately $1,000, with some bills yet to be received.

Noting that the report was an interim one, Alderman Robin Jeffrey said she was disappointed that a final financial report was not available.

She said council had been assured that Belleville Week would result in no cost to the city but she would like a true estimate of all expenses including parks board and recreation committee costs, as well as the costs of time for city hall administration officials.

Ald. Gerald Joyce said the reason a final report was not available for the meeting was that all bills had not yet been received.

Ald. Russell pointed out that city donations, such as free use of Bleecker Hall and man hours of work, had been substantial.

Is It Wise to Take Out A Large Mortgage ?

ED McKINNEY
Real Estate
Realty Ltd.

The question was asked recently of a group of corporation executives. Though most could pay cash, their answer showed a preference for mortgaging their properties while they employed their money elsewhere.

Generally speaking, mortgages run for long terms at fixed rates of interest and require bookkeeping. Other investments in businesses, offer greater flexibility with less red tape.

The shortage of mortgage money is linked to the inability of home mortgages to attract private funds in competition with other types of investments. Mortgage rates have risen to their present high levely largely in answer to the demands of our present money market.

If you are thinking of purchasing a home but holding off because of high mortgage costs, you must bear in mind that land and houses will continue to increase in costs while you wait.

Mortgage interest rates are not about to go lower. But if they should eventually, protection for the home buyer is still afforded by most mortgages that allow refinancing after a certain length of time.

In addition, Realtors often have properties in their files that were financed back in the good old days at low mortgage rates, which makes for the best expensive financing available.

Serving Outer Areas

As Quinte MPP Dr. Richard Potter has noted, the provincial government's plan to extend financial assistance to doctors and dentists who locate in areas without adequate health services is a step in the right direction.

The village of Wellington is one of 44 Ontario communities listed by Queen's Park as requiring physicians' services, while Madoc and Marmora are among 24 designated as requiring dentists.

Lack of these services places the communities concerned at a distinct disadvantage. Even where hospital facilities are relatively close at hand this is not good enough; it means elderly people and those in uncertain health, not to mention accident victims, expectant mothers and small children in the first vital months of life are without the immediate professional assistance that is so often required.

As for hospital services, in Ontario and Canada at large, they are far from meeting the needs of the whole population; they even show some imbalance, being more than adequate in some centres while others have none. In this area Belleville has its hospital, while Picton, Bancroft and Napanee have theirs. But Brockville, with half the population of Belleville, has two, as does Kingston with its specialist facilities. Gananoque on the other hand, has no hospital, although of course it is within easy reach of both Brockville and Kingston.

However, if more doctors and dentists can be induced to locate in the areas mentioned it will effect a significant improvement in health services. Where dentists are concerned we are certain they will have plenty to do. The person with perfect teeth is rare, and the candy and suchlike that children consume make them early candidates for the dentist's chair, or rather couch and soft music that are among the features of modern dentistry.

Casual observation alone suggests there are many children of school age who neglect their teeth. No two or three times a day and after meals cleaning schedule for them. So we need not only the professional men, but also more education of youngsters in care of their teeth — not to mention their health generally.

The Private Schools

Bellevillians are familiar with the impressive public architecture of the century-old Albert College. They are/familiar too with its well-mannered students, at church on on Sundays and on excursions into town. The students — many of them from overseas — are an integral part of the community.

There is something about the private schools in Canada, Albert among them, which as in Britain (paradoxically they are called "public schools" there) leaves a distinctive mark on a young person. Rarely does a student of such an establishment not turn out well.

The discipline which, unhappily, is less a feature of family life and education in general today is still present in the private school system. There is too a fine balance of learning and sporting activities.

The student of a school like Albert College then has many advantages and we have been reminded of them lately.

John Deacon, the new chairman of the Board of Governors, sees a bright future for private schools in Canada. He points to ever-flow registers and notes that at Albert the quality of tuition is equal to any high school in the province.

Canada would be poorer without its private schools. While they may be "private" in name, to the extent that they are supported by public taxes, they have much to do with turning out young Canadians who are not only well-educated in every sense of the term, but whose contribution to community life and the stability of society have long been recognized.

Fire Hazard

It is tragic to note yet another fire in Prince Edward County. Last week a family of nine were rendered homeless when a blaze destroyed their residence near Wellington.

Older frame homes are particularly vulnerable and the people who live in such dwellings should take every precaution to try and prevent outbreaks. Heating systems and wiring should be checked and no chances taken with matches or burning cigarettes.

As ever, prevention is better than cure.

It's the Public Who Pay

PM and Company Know the Score on Taxes

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — The House of Commons these days is a living contradiction of the traditionally accepted meaning — until now — of political party labels.

There are Prime Minister Trudeau's Liberals swearing in the name of a sound national economy that the budget must be balanced.

And in balancing it, many federal government services must be curtailed, spending curbed or at least, and at last, controlled, and even — it has not happened in nearly 40 years—the fat trimmed from the administration's staff.

The prime minister said it would be done, sounded like he might even mean every word of it, and actually has been practising some of his preachments for economy.

It had to be done he said, laying it hard on the line, because already bent low under the tax load, nothing more could be piled on the taxpayer's straining back.

If the load is increased, it could break the taxpayer's will-to-work, warned Solicitor General George McIlraith, dean of the House, basing his judgment on 30 uninterrupted years in the Commons.

Well, there stand the Liberals — for a balanced budget, an end to inflation, a halt to the spiralling cost of living, and a sound dollar — and you have to take them at their word, unless and until performance proves otherwise.

Now where stand Opposition-Leader Stanfield's Conservatives.

But splintered, with some Conservatives searching with Stanfield for another and more acceptable name for the Guaranteed Annual Wage, and other Tories insisting they will have no part of it.

The Stanfield men have a temporary "make-do" name for it — the "Incentive Society" — which means, to hear them tell it, the development of a broader, better welfare system.

They apparently conveniently have forgotten that while there is room for improvement in welfare programs for the very considerable number of poor and needy Canadians, by far the overwhelming majority of people are unpoor.

Not only unpoor, but unradical, unterrorist, unrevolutionary.

They are all too busy working — and paying taxes — to support welfare for the poor and the cost of controlling, and in some cases even catering with special favors and privileges for the student radicals, the rampaging Panther-fired blacks, the drug communities of hippiedom, the Vietniks and the assorted barn-burners of dissent and violent protest.

The kind of "Incentive Society" really needed, says Liberal cabinet minister and Conservative McIlraith, is the kind to induce the working taxpayers to spur themselves to greater efforts in hopeful prospect of keeping a little more of their increased earnings while adding to the tax pool.

Part of the Conservative "incentive" is the favorable anticipation of a capital gains tax to support more government extending.

They view the new tax as "inevitable" — and it may be — so they argue that they might as well go along in favor of it and gain some political credit.

Somehow the political uniform seems to have been switched and the signals mixed.

Surest bet of the new session of Parliament is that as Hansard rolls on the millions of words for the political record, the Conservatives will be competing with the NDP to demonstrate that the "government" spend more for — well, you name it and they will prove you are right.

Only Pierre Trudeau and George McIlraith so far have kept pointing out again and again that it is not the "government" — some wonderful wizard who waves a magic dollar wand — but the taxpayer, everyone working to make a buck, who pays the bill.

But the new Conservatives seem to have forgotten and the old New Dems never did know.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

November 4, 1949.

A total of 47 building permits with a construction value of $127,805, were issued by the local building inspector, J. W. Holley, during the month of October. Fifteen of the permits were for the construction of new residences.

Customs and excise returns at the Belleville office for the month of October totalled $683,458.72, announced Col. E. A. Geen, customs collector. Returns for the same period last year were $607,662.89. Increase for the month was $75,778.50.

The first annual banquet of the Bay of Quinte Soccer League is being held at the Quennaug Hotel, Trenton. Alex MacGregor, well-known Toronto football expert, will be the guest speaker.

November 4, 1939

The war in Europe likely will stretch into a long conflict, W. Rupert Davies, publisher of the Kingston Whig-Standard and president of The Canadian Press declared yesterday. Recently returned from a pre-war survey that carried him through nine European countries, Mr. Davies described public opinion and other factors bearing on the war. In Germany, he had concluded after personal interviews with many individuals, that 90 per cent of the people appeared to be behind Adolph Hitler.

It is not surprising to learn that at least one transatlantic airline is now advocating a "flop now, rest later" plan as part of its service. Irish International Airlines offers a relaxing low cost, one-to three day stopover in Ireland for businessmen suffering from time zone fatigue. Other transatlantic airlines can be expected to follow suit. As some observers have so wisely pointed out, when the next supersonic jet-liners start flying, people will be able to take even longer getting to their destinations. Isn't progress wonderful!

Steady Growth in Province

Ontario Government

Ontario's largest population growth has been greater than that of any other province during the 12-month period from April 1st, 1968.

During that period, Ontario registered a population increase of 142,000 for a total of 7.4 million. British Columbia had the second largest gain with 54,000, Quebec 53,000 and Alberta 34,000. Smaller gains were recorded for Manitoba and Newfoundland with 8,000 each. Nova Scotia 4,000, New Brunswick 2,000 and Saskatchewan 1,000.

Only 7 percent of Ontario's population lives on farms. At the same time, agriculture is Ontario's biggest and most important industry.

Thirty five percent of the total working force in Ontario is employed in industries dependent on farming, either supplying goods and services to farmers or moving products from the farm.

Ontario's labour force rose 3.5 per cent from 2,834,000 to 2,861,000 in 1968, while employment rose from 2,743,000 to 2,830,000. The unemployment rate increased from 3.1 percent in 1967 to 3.5 per cent. The young and generally untrained 14-19 year age group bore the brunt of increased unemployment.

Powers of the Ontario Municipal Board

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

"Observer's" letter to the editor on the power of the OMB posed some interesting questions. The answer to most of them can be found in The Ontario Municipal Board Act, under the Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1960.

The Act provides that the OMB shall be composed of as many members as the Lieutenant Governor in Council may determine. Board members' salaries shall be as fixed by the Lieutenant Governor, and their term of office is stated as "during pleasure".

Usually, two members of the Board form a quorum and have all powers and jurisdiction of the Board. On questions of law, the chairman, when present, shall preside at all sittings of the Board, and his opinion upon any question of law shall prevail.

Provision is also made in the Act prohibiting any Board member from holding municipal securities, railway stock, etc., a concern or interest in any contract or work with any municipality, or, in general, any interest in the business of any municipality, railway or public utility company.

Where a sitting of the Board or any member thereof is to be held in a municipality in which a court house is situated, the Board or members "have in all respects the same authority and rights as a judge of the Supreme Court with respect to the use of the court house and any part thereof, and of other buildings and apartments set aside for the administration of justice". If no court house is available, the Board may request the use of any corporation hall.

Section 37 assigns the powers of the Supreme Court, with regard to the attendance and examination of witnesses, production and inspection of documents, entry on and inspection of property, enforcement of its orders "and all other matters necessary or proper thereof or". These powers certainly seem extreme and rather in line with your correspondent's suggestion that the Board's activities may be more equated with Soviet tradition than Canadian.

As far as is not inconsistent with the Act, the Board may direct any person, company corporation or municipality to do, or not to do, anything the provisions of the Act allow and they are many and varied.

They have the power to require the attendance of witnesses, to examine and require answers or returns to such questions as it or he thinks fit to make". They have the power to summon witnesses "and enforce their attendance, and compel them to give evidence and to produce books, papers or things that they are required to produce, as is vested in any court in civil cases." These, for such a body as the Board, are truly extraordinary powers.

"Observer's" point regarding the particular zoning change is very pertinent, I can see no reason at all why the OMB should have any concern for the nature of an area's growth other than that its structures should not injure the aesthetic impression of the general development.

All along it has been apparent to Bellevillians, that in the matter of the north end shopping plaza and the there recent Four Seasons issue, changes in the Municipal Act are long overdue, especially in the zoning and development segments. Such illogical set-ups as the contrary activities of the Ontario Development Corporation when considered in relation to the peculiar decisions being handed down by the OMB, are the very epitome of government gone mad.

Of course there is a need for such a body as the OMB, but its powers should be directed toward conciliation in municipal differences, an overseeing of municipal spending, but certainly not as the omnipotent arbiter now in the day-to-day life and development of a community.

Nov. 4, 1969 . . .

The Gunpowder Plot to blow up the British Houses of Parliament and kill King James I failed 364 years ago today—in 1605. A number of Roman Catholics planned to destroy Parliament, in protest over repressive measures against their faith, at its opening on Nov. 5. But the day before, Guy Fawkes was found in the cellars with 36 barrels of gunpowder which he planned to touch off. The incident is commemorated annually with bonfires and fireworks on Guy Fawkes Day.

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1944—it was reported that Greece was completely cleared of Germans; RAF bombed Berlin by night; Canadians liberated Steenbergen, six miles north of Bergen Op Zoom; United States 8th Air Force attacked German oil targets from Hamburg to Saarbruecken; Polish infantry took Terheyden, north of Breda.

Crop Insurance Paying Off

Ontario Government

Ontario's Crop Insurance Commission's new Procedure for "loss" claims on 671 tomato contracts issued for this crop year due to losses resulting from frost and excessive rainfalls.

Replanting benefits alone accounted for some $342 involving 1,000 insured acres. Payment of replanting benefits was later flooded out or seriously impaired.

Crop damage surveys showed that considerable portion of which would be virtually destroyed before harvest, will be left unharvested in the hope of salvaging whatever yield is obtainable. In an effort to co-operate with growers and processors such acreage will be regarded, wherever possible, as harvestable acreage and the grower will receive maximum compensation.

Total liability at risk under the Commission's new Processing Tomato Plan is $1,500,00.

President's Dilemma

London Observer

The greater the pressure on President Nixon to end the war quickly, the greater the likelihood that he will be tempted to hand over power to a South Vietnamese military junta. If he's to work towards the best possible compromise solution — which is not likely to be more free and democratic than the American people. But will the social pressures in the United States give him time? This seems unlikely. The tragic irony in the situation is that these Americans who most urgently want an end to the killing and would be most willing to accept a Yugoslav-type solution may be the very people producing the social pressures which make worse outcomes more likely.

Switch Proposed

Cloyne School May Get Barrie Students

TWEED — A recommendation to detach Barrie Township from Frontenac County's education system and make it part of the Lennox and Addington County Board of Education's jurisdiction was accepted this past week by Frontenac County Board of Education trustees.

However, if the proposal is to be realized, under present law it could not do so until January 1, 1971. The recommendation now will be forwarded to the Lennox and Addington board and Barrie Township municipal officials. If the Lennox and Addington board is agreeable to the change, the Frontenac board indicated its willingness to pay tuition costs and transportation fees for Barrie Township students to attend L-A schools from September 1 to December 31, 1970. The question of putting Barrie Township students (in Frontenac County) under the jurisdiction of the neighboring board arose late last year when the new County boards of education came into existence.

It was noted the township is relatively isolated from the rest of Frontenac County and its transportation and communication links lie primarily with Lennox and Addington. The former school area of Barrie covered two townships — Barrie township in Frontenac and Anglesea Township in Lennox and Addington.

When the Cloyne school was built by the Barrie school board it was built in Anglesea Township and since January 1, 1969, has been operated by the Lennox and Addington board. The recommendations presented to the Frontenac Board were based on a report from a special committee set up last summer to study the situation.

It was also noted in the report that Barrie Township schools have had trouble obtaining services from Frontenac County. For example the public health nurse was not allowed to go to Harlowe and since the two-county health unit was set up the health nurse from Napanee services Harlowe school.

Speaking on behalf of the committee, trustee Mrs. Mary Jack noted that before anything can be done the board must also take into consideration the preference of the people of Barrie Township.

A public meeting was held in Cloyne last summer, but no definite conclusions were reached at that time.

Trustee Jack also noted the part in the report dealing with the cost of education to Barrie Township taxpayers if they are to choose Lennox and Addington.

According to a report drawn up by the Frontenac board business administrator, R. M. Sinclair, if the residents were to join the Lennox and Addington system their taxes for educational purposes would nearly double.

In Frontenac County the residents have only .78 per cent of the total county assessment. However, in Lennox and Addington they would have three per cent of the assessment.

Fund Started for Burned Out Family

A small family lost everything except the clothes they were wearing when fire completely destroyed their home and its contents Saturday evening. There was no insurance.

Louis (Luke) Peeling, his wife and their two daughters, aged two and a half years and two weeks respectively, were visiting for the evening when Leo Powell of Roblin Hill saw that the home across the road was on fire. His wife called the Napanee Fire Department and he shoved the Peeling car from in front of the burning house into safety in his own yard. The family was notified but no one was able to save anything.

The building destroyed was formerly the small barn or a home destroyed by fire several years ago. Kim Crouse, a neighbor, stated Sunday that neighbors are planning to pitch in to try to get the old foundation cleared away and the basement constructed before winter sets in.

Household articles of any sort whatever will be welcome. Mr. Crouse stated that they have a storage place for them. Clothing also is needed, although it is believed that the Salvation Army can help here.

Mr. Peeling is about five feet eight inches tall and of medium build. Mrs. Peeling is also 18 or 20, the neighbors believe. The two little girls need everything.

Mr. Crouse has volunteered to pick up anything that people wish to donate, and will see that furniture is properly stored. His telephone number is 354-4318.

Murray Taxation Dollar Goes 72 Cents to Schools

TRENTON — Murray Township taxpayers learned Monday night just how big a chunk of their tax dollar was required by education in 1969.

Education expenditures for 1969 totalled a record $267,-504.32 — approximately 72.8 per cent of the township's net taxation total of $362,000.

The gross taxation total was $427,000, but this was reduced by $65,079.85 in provincial government subsidies. These subsidies came from the township to the taxpayers in lieu of taxes. Each land owner or tenant who occupies living quarters meeting certain provincial government standards was given an annual grant which in 1969 amounted to $20.50.

Monday night's regular meeting of Murray Township Council tidied up the bits and pieces and discussed minor issues, many of which will be up over for the new council's consideration early in 1970.

One thing the council did was to set the time and place for nominations concerning the Dec. 1 election.

Nominations will be held Nov. 21 at Murray Township Municipal Offices during the hours of three and four p.m. But the question of who will be nominated is unanswered as yet.

Reeve Gerald Ross, who has served on Murray Township Council for 16 of the last 24 years said: "You will know Nov. 22 at nine p.m. whether I am going to run." That is the hour by which all nominees must have filed their qualification papers.

Councillor Cyril MacDonald hasn't made up his mind yet, but says he would like to see a great number of candidates and a "whacking good election".

Deputy Reeve Harry Lafferty, who has been on council for five successive years is also undecided about the upcoming election as is councillor Stanley Downs.

Equal-pay for Women Legislation Invoked Only on Complaint

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

Someone must think women should get the same pay as men for equal work—there are laws that say they should. It is an open secret, though, that they don't, and that few women are doing anything about it.

Employers generally can find reasons why women should earn less, but a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press finds that some women actually say they agree. Equal-pay legislation is rarely used.

Every province has some form of legislation on human rights or employment that should guarantee equal pay for equal work to anyone. At the same time; three provinces—Newfoundland, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island—have minimum wage rates that are higher for men than for women.

The main reason such legislation is rarely used is that in every province but Ontario the onus is on the employee to complain that she believes she is being paid less than a male counterpart.

Mary Rocap of the women's bureau of the Saskatchewan department of labor says her department, typically, can act only when there is a complaint.

"And much of the reluctance of women to do anything about this is fear of losing their job."

This was the case of some women egg candlers in Saskatchewan. Investigators found that men were paid more because they were supposed to lift the cases of eggs so to tables. Thus they were ruled to have greater responsibility than the women and continued to get higher pay.

That kind of difference is often the basis of separate wage scales in negotiated union contracts, although some union men disapprove of unequal contracts for practical reasons. J. Paul Brideau of the Saint John district labor council, for instance, says equal pay for women would help eliminate wage-cutting competition for jobs.

One widely-publicized complaint was that of Lois Beckett, a Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., policewoman. Miss Beckett has been a constable on the Sault force since 1949, but in 1961 she took a leave of absence to join a neighboring township force. In 1965 the township became part of Sault Ste. Marie and Miss Beckett was reclassified as a clerk-typist and told she was not entitled to wear a police uniform, belong to the all-male police association or be paid at the male rate.

For two years she has been trying to change all that. An arbitration board gave her back her uniform and said she should get pay between that of a second- and third-class constables in two years.

In the course of her efforts, the police commissioner said she had been reclassified because she is female. An Ontario Supreme Court justice said it was only "common sense" that she should be paid less than a man. An Ontario Court of Appeal justice, Walter Schroeder, said: "At the heart of this matter is Miss Beckett's burning desire to go back to traffic duty."

The Court of Appeal dismissed her most recent attempt, a motion to have the Sault police chief and commission charged with contempt of court.

Not every woman would be willing to go through such a long court battle, and only in Ontario, and only since January has a government taken responsibility for inspecting payrolls and enforcing wage legislation.

There, if a woman does complain, her employer is not given her name. Whether there is a complaint or not, the manpower services branch of the provincial labor department may visit any firm on a spot check for assorted abuses of employment-practices legislation. They can collect a maximum of $1,000 in unpaid wages for employees. The branch's executive director, R. Michael Warren, says they expect to collect about $1,200,000 in 1969.

He has also been quoted as saying Ontario expects to have eliminated pay differences between men and women on the same jobs in a year.

One of his field inspectors, Harry France of Hamilton, says he encounters the strongest resistance to the change among women themselves.

"Females have a placid acceptance of the status quo. I've been in many stores and factories where the women are paid less than the men and do the identical work, but don't mind.

"They say, 'Well, the man's got a family and I don't, so he is entitled to get more.' Some women just come out and say they don't think they deserve as much as men."

The Alberta bureau of statistics has figures that indicate how uneven the situation can be, though statistician Robert Armit points out they do not indicate such factors as experience, seniority or education.

The average wage there of a male cook is $378 a month; of a female, $280. For lab assistants the average is $433 for men, $290 for women. The gap is not as wide for social workers with a bachelor's degree—an average of $589 for men, $581 for women. But the top salary for men is $660, for women $625.

Winnipeg economist June Menzies says she knows of a case of a female accountant who applied for a department store job that offered men $550 a month plus a car allowance. The woman, with the same qualifications, was offered $350 a month and no allowance.

Mrs. Menzies was research chairman of the now-disbanded Manitoba status of women commission on the status of women. She says she considers the sex discrimination problem serious.

The reasons given for paying women less than men are usually that they lack ambition and are likely to get married to have babies and thus leave their jobs.

Fish Cooked In Dishwater

TORONTO (CP) — Got a bigger fish than your oven will hold? Two enterprising Toronto women faced with the problem cooked theirs in the dishwasher.

Mrs. R. William Pinlayson says: "It was a seven-pound salmon! fresh from the Gaspe. I put chopped celery and onions and herbs on the top, then wrapped it in two layers of extra heavy foil and folded it tight at the ends. I laid it flat in the dishwasher and let it go through two full cycles. You've never tasted better salmon."

Mrs. Telfer B. Hanson had to cope with an Arctic char.

"The dishwasher is the answer unless you have one of those huge copper steamers our grandmothers had. I've thought of buying one, but you'd have to store it, and with more grandmothers had wood stoves and could just put the steamer on top. We'd have to hang it over two burners and the heat would not be even.

"I did the char with celery and bayleaf, in the foil, and laid it corner to corner over the cutlery rack. We had some French guests and they raved about the gourmet fish. After dinner she asked me about it and you should have seen her face when I told her how I'd done it. It didn't strike me until later, but I hope she doesn't tell them in Paris that Canadians cook everything in the dishwasher."

LOST EQUAL PAY SUIT — Policewoman Lois Beckett of Sault St. Marie, Ont., went to the Ontario Supreme Court in 1967 to press her demand for equal pay with male members of the force. Mr. Justice R. I. Ferguson turned down her demand declaring it was "common sense" that a policewoman should be paid less than a man. A Cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press shows equal pay legislation for women rarely used. (CP Photo)

Many Cannot Distinguish Fabrics in Today's Fashions

TORONTO (CP) — Someone admirers your dress and asks what the fabric is. Nine times out of 10 the answer is: "I don't know."

And it's getting more difficult every year even to guess at the material. For example, the new Qiana (pronounced key-ana) can look and feel like brocade or silk or even tricot.

There is confusion, too, in fibre names, trade names and finishes. What do the words arnel or astron or spandex mean to you?

Let's begin at the beginning. Fibres are fine hair-like strands from which all fabrics are made. Until about 60 years ago, there were only natural fibres — and of those only four. Wool is made from animal hair, silk from the long, thin fibre spun by the silkworm, and cotton and linen are both from plants.

Then came the first breakthrough with man-made fibres. First was rayon and then, 30 years ago, nylon. Since then other fibres have been created, some include such well-known names as acetate, polyester, acrylic, modacrylic and spandex. There are also saran—a plastic fibre—glass and metallic.

These are the generic or family names of fibres with definite characteristics. For example, nylon is a generic name and a number of companies manufacture nylon fibres. But each company wants you to buy garments made from its fibres. The companies want to advertise their nylon so that you identify with them and them alone, not with another company. So they slap a trade name on their fibres.

In other words, the manufacturer wants to spend a lot of money just advertising a generalized generic name nylon. His advertisement helps all the other producers of nylon, too, not just his.

So in the nylon family there are such trade names as Antron, Cantreee, Courtauld's, Qiana, Union Carbide. All the fibres have about the same nylon qualities. They are lightweight and have superior strength and abrasion resistance.

Fibres or yarns can be heat - set when processed so that they have stretch or texture and are then made up into fabrics. Nylon fabrics are also quick-drying.

In the polyester family, there are a number of well-known trade names such as Teryiene, Trevira, Dacron, Kodel and Portrel. All are high strength, lightweight and abrasion resistance qualities, much like nylon. But added is good crease resistance. And so it goes.

Trade names for the acrylic fibre family include Orlon, Acrilon, Courtelle, Crestan and Zefran. Acrylics are quick-drying, are easily cared for and take brilliant fast dyes. Spandex fibres, best known under the trade name of Lycra, Spandex was a great boon to the fashion and hosiery industries and to knitwear.

Next, fabric companies began to experiment with blends, combining two or three fibres, natural or man-made. Since each fibre has its own special properties, blending can add a new quality. Now blends produce fabrics with more durability, greater variety of texture, more range of color. This is where the future lies. Actually there is experimentation at present to produce washable crepes by adding nylon to acetate crepe.

But here it is important to be sure you are buying garments made from fabrics that are reliable. If label in a garment says it is, say, 65 per cent Decron and 35 per cent cotton, you want to be certain the fabric manufacturer did use the fibres of Decron (polyester trade name) in the proportions stated with the cotton.

Most textile mills are absolutely reliable, but there are a few that may be less than honest in their labels. Consequently it's important that you buy your clothes from garment manufacturers or stores whose reputation you can trust. For they won't buy fabrics from any but the most reputable of fabric firms.

Woman Wearing Pant Suit Refused Service at Hotel

LONDON (CP) — Canadian-born Joan Lestor, newly-appointed undersecretary of state for education, has run into trouble at a London hotel for wearing a trouser suit.

A native of Vancouver and a resident of Winnipeg until she was five, Miss Lestor told Monday night of how she was refused service at the Connaught Hotel in Mayfair when she went there for dinner with an American friend.

"I was wearing a very smart, orange-colored trouser suit," said the member of Parliament.

Miss Lestor said she was told when she arrived at the hotel restaurant that no ladies were admitted wearing trousers.

Miss Lestor said that during her Sunday night argument with the Connaught manager she was told that any waiving of the trouser ban in her case would result in guests arriving for dinner dressed in jeans.

"I asked what he (the manager) would do if Princess Anne arrived wearing trousers, which she often does wear," the member of Eton and Slough went on.

That situation has never arisen, replied the manager, but if it did he would consider it when it arose.

WOMEN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY

MARMORA — The meeting of Beaver Creek and Marmora W.M.S. of the Free Methodist Church on Monday at the home of Mrs. Stewart Hardy was opened with singing of "From Greenland's Icy Mountains". Prayer was offered by Mrs. Carl Bird.

President Mrs. Ritchie Wells asked that each member answer the roll call by mentioning something for which she was thankful. Scripture reading was by Stewart Hardy.

Members decided to again draw names for secret prayer partners with remembrances on birthdays secretly given to partners as well. A work meeting will be held in November with pot luck supper at Russell Wells' home.

A poem "A Song of Thanks" was read by Mrs. Carl Bird. In charge of a TV program, channel WMS, was Mrs. Everett Barrows who asked her viewers with her panel of experts to guess the identification of each of the five missionaries from South Africa represented by WMS members.

Mrs. Ron Brown gave a completed Scripture study on "Jesus Christ" and Mrs. Barrows chose two from mission study book "Run While the Sun is Hot," dealing with several of the small countries on Africa's west coast.

Meeting was closed with prayer by Mrs. W. A. McMillan, and refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Hardy.

WEDDINGS

NIGHTINGALE — RIOPEL

In a small Quebec village in the foothills of the Laurentian Mountains, an ecumenical marriage was solemnized recently. Father Dupuy of St. Sophie Catholic Church and Rev. Horace G. Baugh, of the Anglican parishes of Mer-a Heights and St. Sauveur, officiated jointly at the ceremony performed in both French and English.

The bride, Katharine Margaret Riopel, is daughter of Mrs. Marie Riopel of Montreal and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Mason (formerly of Campbellford, Belleville) and is given in marriage by her uncle, Tommy Mason, Buckhorn, Ont. The bridegroom, Paul Eric Nightingale, is the son of Mrs. Harold Nightingale and the late Mr. H. Nightingale.

The bride's gown was of white silk otioman with a high neckline, long sleeves and full skirt fashioned with a lattice lace and rimmed on the sides with a tiny organza frill. Her long veil of tulle illusion was held by a matching lace bonnet and she carried a cascade bouquet of yellow pompon dahlias and orange roses.

Her sister, Miss Carol Riopel (now living in Belleville) was bridesmaid. She wore a full-length green velvet gown trimmed at the waist and wrists with lace. She also carried a bouquet of bronze single poms with matching flowers in her hair.

The flower girl, Miss Susie Nightingale, wore a long silk velvet rose-colored dress and carried a colonial bouquet of pink and white daisies.

Mr. H. Riopel, mother of the bride, wore an ensemble of beige wool and a corsage of orange delight roses. Mrs. Nightingale wore a green wool ensemble and a corsage of yellow and orange roses.

THE WAY OUT LOOK — These creations are typical of the type that raise the ire of many Canadian women between 25 and 60. They complain that many of the fashions available today are too extreme or designed for the swinger. Many women resort to sewing to get the clothes they want. At left is a white dress for the summer dance. The skirt is a mass tiered frilly flounces with more of the same at the collar and cuffs. The waist is cinched with wide, pale blue satin sash. At right is a black crepe jumpsuit with wide legs and halter neckline. Trailing behind are yards and yards of black chiffon. (CP Photo)

Canadian Women Claim Many Of Today's Fashions Too Extreme

TORONTO (CP) — A young matron with time and money to spend on clothes was sitting next to a friend at a fashion show sponsored by their club. When a model glided past doing her svelte best for a metallic silver bell-bottomed pant-suit, one matron said to the other, "You going to wear that to our place New Year's Eve?" Both giggled merrily.

Among women who are not fashion's pace-setters, a lot of the talk about this year's clothes is complaint. A random survey of women from 25 to 60, from size 10 to size 16, at work and at home, turned up a surprisingly similar set of pet gripes about the latest thing.

Length was not the foremost complaint. Women have resolved that quandary. Each wears the skirt length she feels most comfortable in, though that may be appreciably shorter than it was a year or two ago.

Lack of choice was the main theme. If you are a swinger or want to look like one, you are all right. If you have an unlimited amount of money to spend, you are all right. If you want to dress well on an ordinary budget, you have problems.

A size-10 working girl in her late 20s says: "Only very expensive stores have the plain styles I like. When I first started working I could go into almost any store and find something.

"For working clothes, I buy skirts and sweaters or blouses because I don't like the dresses. I made more dresses last year than I bought."

A size-12 housewife in her mid-30s says: "I don't think I buy as much now as I used to. I like quite a lot of the things, but they're not suitable for the life I lead. Most of them seem to be for the jet set, flitting around in their gaudy suits.

"There is also a large teenage market with way-out clothes, that aren't for the endless, faceless things. To get something really smart, to find an eye-catching thing at the right price you have to look and look."

She says that if she had the money to spend, "I would have to look a lot less."

"I really don't know the answer is to learn to sew and to sew well. Because fabrics are so nice.

"I have a few kooky dresses because I think I'm young enough to get away with it. I will wear skirts six inches above my knees."

A size-12 working woman in her 30s says: "I'm slowly tolerating shorter hems, but not happily. I'll wear them about two inches above the knee.

"For the most part, styles are too extreme or expensive —and she has been giving up. She has been accustomed to buying a few good things each year and expanding these to last several years, and says that is not easy to do now.

A well-established working woman says she may have to start buying half-sizes one of these days, and is aghast at the idea.

"The thing that makes me mad is they have such dowdy materials. The half-sizes are ghastly. I think this is why a lot of older women are either sewing or having clothes made. I'm buying clothes less often, but I pay a bit more.

"If a woman is out and around, she has more or less established her style by the time she's 40, or she should have.

"A hemline two inches above the knee is my limit. I have a couple shorter, but I don't feel happy in them. I feel conspicuous, and if I do say so myself, I don't have bad legs for a woman my age.

A size 16 in her 50s who works part time says: "You don't have any choice. The teen-agers have the style range."

"I didn't buy anything last year, because I couldn't find what I like. I'm buying less, yes, and buying more-expensive things to find a style I can wear."

'Kids' at School Give Santa Away

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: We have two kids, one five and the other six years old. Our boy started school this fall. They still believed in Santa Claus, but now that he started school it's a different story.

Yesterday he said, "There is no Santa Claus." I guess the kids at school told him. He only half believes them. I know maybe I should have told him before he went to school. Now, I have to tell him it's a make-believe fantasy like the "tooth fairy". But how do I tell him, so that he understands? And should I tell our five-year-old too, or keep it from her another year?

I'm sure there are other mothers with the same delicate situation. — A Troublesome Mother

Dear Mother: Experts differ about this. Some consider a child should be told nothing but the truth, ever. Others are reloath to part with dear old Santa, remembering the magic of this delightful fantasy in their own childhood.

Could we not refer to Santa as the Spirit of Christmas? A spirit can do anything, like ride in the sky, slip down a chimney, do a world round trip in a night — heaps of lovely antics! A little fellow will accept this, and a little later the transition is easy.

As for Little Sister, I'd prepare her, a bit for enlightenment, in case Big Brother spills the beans. Not a blunt, "There is no Santa!" but some suggestion of his not-quite-material nature.

* * *

Dear Doris: The paragraphs in your column, "Wishes Are Horses," make so much sense. It's true that there is quite a difference between true and faithful love and just the temptation of sex.

It took me quite a while to find out, but I know now, and I suppose I'll die with just the knowing of it, because there is nothing else I can do. But in my heart I hope and pray that some day, some where, I might be riding the horse too. — Disappointed and Sad

Dear Disappointed: My dear, you have your own two hands to reverse the verdict. One mistake, even a big one, is not a defeated life unless you make it so.

Part of the secret is to keep believing in your "deep soul wish", in yourself, and in the essential rightness of things.

Ann Landers

Eight Children Raised By Lesbian Couple

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I didn't care for your reply to the lesbian who wanted to know if it was legally possible for two women to marry. She also asked where to look for a home to buy in the Chicago area. You told her you knew of no place where members of the same sex could be married and you added in your customary precious manner, "Look for a home anywhere you please, but one thing is certain, it doesn't need to be near a school."

ANN LANDERS

You could be wrong. Twenty years ago I began an unconventional relationship with a charming and fine woman with whom I worked. (Yes, I am a woman, also.) During these years we have raised eight wonderful children — her own nephews, her cousin's illegitimate child, my two nieces and the three orphaned children of a neighbor. We bought near a school. No signature will accompany this letter. Society isn't ready yet. — IN HIDING

* * *

DEAR I.H.: Sorry if you felt I was flip. Furthermore, I was not properly informed of the latest "happening."

I have a clipping from a London newspaper which reports that two males were married by a Roman Catholic priest in Rotterdam, Holland. The ceremony was held in private with members of both families present. Dutch Roman Catholics have long been among the most far-out members of their faith, but the Bishop heading the diocese said, "This was going too far." The priest who performed the ceremony will probably be censured.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband was promoted recently. The promotion means we will be moving to another city.

My husband asked me not to say anything until his company made the formal announcement.

As a true woman, I told my best friend. She promised to keep the secret. The next thing I knew the phone began ringing every hour. Three real estate people wanted to list our home. Two strangers have already offered to buy it. A flock of moving companies have asked for appointments to discuss our business.

I telephoned my friend (whose husband is an insurance agent) and told her I was mighty disappointed in her. She replied, "Sorry, but this is common procedure. My husband gives these people leads. He, in turn, gets leads from them regarding insurance prospects."

When I told her she had violated my confidence and that I was deeply hurt, she shrugged it off and made me look like a whiner. What is your opinion of this?—A FRIEND B. TRAVED.

DEAR B.: The most serious betrayal was yours, not hers. First, you violated your husband's confidence and now you try to defend yourself by describing your lack of character and poor judgment as qualities of a "true woman."

I don't know what your definition of a true woman is, but my definition of a true wife is a partner who can be trusted to keep her mouth shut when her husband tells her something in confidence.

Curry Children Enjoy

By MARY MOORE

Letters from prospective anchors ask me for help in stocking their freezers, so their husbands can cope with meals as effortlessly as possible.

Recently I was in a different situation but with the same objective. Margaret ordered a 15 lb. turkey for Thanksgiving figuring she would be in hospital for Justin's arrival and that the turkey would be handy for me to slice from for subsequent dinners and lunches. It was a godsend to me.

I made a mild turkey curry wondering all the time if our young brood would like curry. They laid into it like trenchermen — even 18-month-old Gregory in his high chair.

So here is a mild curry that children enjoy. For the adults you can add some extra curry powder after the children's plates are served.

MILD TURKEY CURRY

2 tbsps. turkey fat skimmed from chilled pan dripping
1 green pepper chopped
1 cup chopped onion
2 apples pared and chopped
1 tsp. curry powder
½ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. MSG
About 3 cups chopped cooked turkey meat
½ to ¾ cup sultana raisins
1 cup rich turkey broth or gravy (see below)
2 cups hot water
2 tbsps. flour
¼ cup cold water

In large frypan in turkey fat gently saute the green pepper, onions, apple and curry powder until limp but not brown. Add turkey and raisins, salt, MSG and broth and hot water. (Note: If you do not have broth or gravy, dissolve one chicken bouillon cube in one cup boiling water and substitute it.) Simmer for 1 hr., covered. If you have used leftover gravy, the curry may be thick enough. If not follow the next step.) Stir the flour into the cold water until it is a smooth paste and stir into curry until thickened slightly. Serve on generous mound of fluffy boiled rice made by cooking in heavy pot 1 cup long grain rice with 2 cups water, ½ cup boiling water covered for ½ hr.

Murderer of William Lennon Haunted Family for 7 Years

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Two of the singing Lennon Sisters told today of seven years of scary letters and mysterious visits from a tall man with strange eyes who finally shot their father dead and killed himself.

They talked of terror after heir father's slaying, when 22 family members lived in one house under guard while police vanted the killer, and of pity for he gunman when he was found lead by suicide.

The father, William Lennon, was shot and killed by a rifleman Aug. 12 at a golf course. Witnesses identified him as Marvin Major, who called himself Chet Young. Last Oct. 10 Major's body was found near Amors, Calif. Police said he had killed himself after writing a note admitting the Lennon slying.

In their apartment at ABC tudios, where they tape a weekly variety show with Jimmy Dutante, Janet and Diane Lennon recounted in an interview the long, tragic history that led up to their father's death. The oldest and youngest of the four singing sisters, they generally speak for the family.

Janet: "He (Major) started writing to Peggy back in 1962, when he was in an institution in Colorado. Right from the start he seemed to believe that he was Peggy's husband, and he would ask questions like, 'How's our baby?' At first we weren't alarmed. They were cuckoo letters, but we got others of that kind, too."

Diane: "Then, in 1964 or 1965 he started appearing here at ABC when we were doing the Welk show. He never bothered us; he just stayed in the back ground. But you couldn't miss him—he was a very tall man, with strange eyes. We'd see him at the back of the stage or hanging around the parking lot."

Janet: "We still didn't connect him with the letters. That didn't happen until the FBI came to our house about that time. It seems he had been writing some threatening letters to the president—it was President Johnson at that time. He somehow blamed the president for standing in the way of him and Peggy. The FBI told Mom to look at pictures of Chet Young and watch out for him because he might be dangerous."

Diane: "We didn't have to look at the pictures. We knew he had to be the man who had been hanging around the studio."

Janet: "Then one day he came up to the door of Mom and Dad's house. He knocked on the door, but no one answered it. We called the police, but he was gone by the time they arrived."

Diane: "In Lent of 1965, one of our brothers came home from mass and said, 'I think I saw that man in church; he was sitting close to me.' So we called the police and this time they picked him up. He was taken to Atascadero (state mental hospital)."

Janet: "He was picked up once more, but we weren't given any details. We still didn't consider him harmful. As far as we could tell, he wasn't violent. Just sick."

Diane: "About a year ago, we started getting copies of fan magazine stories. These were stories they do about us, saying that Daddy was forced us to work and that made us unhappy, that our husbands were leeches, all that sort of thing. Apparently his car was stacked with those magazines."

Janet: "He sent copies of the stories to us, to our friends, our aunts and uncles, members of the Welk organization. How he managed to acquire the addresses of all of them, nobody knows."

Diane: "One day last April he followed me home. I was panicky, and I ran in the house and called Daddy. I told him that I had been followed by a white car. Daddy knew. He had seen the white car, too. Yet still, I wasn't afraid. I thought he was simply mentally sick. I, though, was just a big, dumb mark who would never really be victimized."

Janet: "The letters started coming every two weeks. After a while we didn't open them. They just collected movie magazine stuff, and it depressed us to read them."

Ultimate success of the project can only be achieved and final tabulations made once the walkers and sponsors have secured and honored their pledges. To this end it is hoped that the walkers will be able to obtain their pledged amounts before November 8.

Walkathon Sponsored By Hockey Association

TWEED — The walkathon sponsored by the Tweed Minor Hockey Association, held on Sunday afternoon, October 26 was called a great community effort, although it will require a few days, maybe ten days, before the final records are completed according to officials.

Proceeds are expected to exceed those of 1968. There were approximately 251 walkers.

Brian Jones, was again the first to complete the course, in approximately one and three quarter hours; (incidently this is all that he walks around Stoco Lake) second was Grant Elliott, under two hours. Bob Marshall at age 66, and walking with a cane was the oldest walker, the youngest walkers were Krista English, age six, walking four miles, and Scott Sedore, also six years of age, finishing the course.

Hungerford Council made a good showing and maintained a steady pace, giving the roads a thorough inspection at the same time. Council members walking were Wm. Liam McCrea, Fred Preston and Maurice Goulah. Edwin Champagne was the one walker for the Tweed Village Council, accompanied by John Thompson.

Barry Rivers had the highest pledged, totalling $118.50 followed by Mrs. Jack McMurray at $74.60.

It is noteworthy that the numerous people who volunteered their time from checking the walkers out at the Community Centre to manning the checkpoint stations and patrol cars along the route, performed their duties well. St. John Ambulance was on hand to give service.

Kevin Lessard and Linda Boldrick were the winners of the draws which were open to all who completed the ten mile route. They receive a season's pass to all O.M.H.A. home games or $20. gift certificate from the Tweed store of their choice.

Ultimate success of the project can only be achieved and final tabulations made once the walkers and sponsors have secured and honored their pledges. To this end it is hoped that the walkers will be able to obtain their pledged amounts before November 8.

Can't Isolate Teenagers

Student Panel Tells of Drug Use, Sports; Advises Parents to Provide Trust and Love

By HARRY McCULLAGH
Staff Reporter

Only about two or three hundred Belleville students at the most are drug users, according to David Nelles of Moira Secondary School.

During a youth seminar sponsored yesterday by the Rotary Club, the 16-year-old president of the school student council, denied a weekly newspaper's claim that 1,200 are on drugs.

Claiming the newspaper story contained other misconceptions, Mr. Nelles said "nowhere near 25 per cent of city teenagers have tried drugs."

He also denied the figure of 30 to 40 pushers. "Actually there are about five — and none of them are dropouts as the newspaper infers. I think the 30 to 40 figure corresponds with the number of avid users."

Marijuana, he said, is seldom sold as a cigarette, nor do they cost $1 a cigarette.

DAVID NELLES

The marijuana may have been on or be soaked in opium.

LSD, the Moira student continued, is harmful and carries with it a potential for serious and possibly lasting damage to the individual.

"This drug heightens one's problems as a person with a deep emotional problem often goes on bad trips. Often it has tiny amounts of strychnine and is mixed with 'speed.' The kids know this but no real concern is shown."

Mr. Nelles said if the Rotary Club would like to help the community they organize should be one of education not in the high schools as there it is too late — but in the public schools.

"In any city the problem is that the teenagers are the community has forgotten them . . . and don't get trapped into giving them something, for as soon in the past few always have ruined things for others," he shown by such ventures as the Tiki Club and now the lasting Drop-In Centre.

Noting that the word 'culture' was a fitting one with regard to the teens' drug world, because they all seem to stick together, Mr. Nelles said: "Among themselves everyone is friendly as often best friends are involved. They stay together too; they are in a different world of their own, very seldom molested by those who are making a concerted effort to track down pushers and users."

Predicting that marijuana eventually would be legalized — he believed it was here to stay — the Moira student said by legalizing it emphasis could be laid on the truly harmful drugs and their use would probably diminish anyway.

"Although this seems to be a very optimistic approach I see no other way to alleviate the drug problem, except by a complete isolation of the whole teenage problem until they turn back to drinking and smoking which most have forgotten about and are even more harmful than marijuana."

Lack of recreational outlets after school hours, poor family relations where both parents are working and consequent resort to drugs and 'vandalism' were points raised by James Gilmour, 18, of Nicholson Catholic College. He cited the example of London, Ont., as one Belleville might follow, noting it had many youth and drop - in centres and schools open the year round. Locally a program was needed in which both young people and parents could participate.

Regarding the ailing Teen-20 drop-in centre, Paul Haggis of Belleville Collegiate, who chaired the discussion, said members of the Kinsmen club which sponsors it, in future will give more administrative help, with the teenagers acting in an advisory capacity. He said that after a good start interest had begun to flag. There was a need, he said, for additional and more varied programs.

To a question on sports programs for the students, Mr. Haggis said there were ahead good athletes, football and soccer but in general interest was not high. There was a lack of school spirit for sport, not to mention equipment.

"For equipment we can just squeeze into 30 uniforms and when they are laundered you wonder will they fall apart. We have three different types of pads."

When Mr. Haggis said more than 50 per cent of the students were not interested in sports a Rotarian said, "don't you think they would be a lot smarter if they were. . ."

Mr. Haggis — "You cannot force it down their throats."

Other question period exchanges had to do with classes where students pursue their own studies in their own time and the fact this did not always work out satisfactorily; with giving students more responsibility, with the need to listen more to student needs and their frustrations lead to violence on the university campus pattern, and with the need for the students themselves to recognize, as one questioner put it: "Why do you want to take over the schools when you have done nothing to put the schools there?"

First speaker was Dianne Harder, Prime Minister of the students' parliament at Centennial. A 17-year-old in Grade 12, Miss Harder said both parents and teachers demanded a lot of students with regard to homework and exams and yet expected them to take an interest in what she termed "surrounding activities." But this year she knew more students who were taking sleeping pills, nerve medication and thinking seriously of dropping school.

FRED ARCHER

Fred Archer, a 18-year-old Grade 11 student who holds a similar position at Quinte secondary, said students should have more say in school matters, including the hiring of teachers whom he suggested should be not only competent academically but also persons who take a close interest in the students.

DIANNE HARDER

Gary Thompson, 17-year-old Prime Minister of Belleville Collegiate's student parliament, suggested student protests are the only way the younger people can get their messages across. Just because some of the leaders have long hair and sideburns was not to suggest they were hippies, Communists or nitwits. Rather they were intelligent students who were motivated by a desire for change. They were the ones who were making their voices heard because 95 per cent of students, he suggested, were apathetic or afraid to voice their opinions.

GARY THOMPSON

"Parents," he said, "need to give students confidence not distrust, honor not embarrassment, and love not drugs."

That Time Again

Ed Hyatt, Trenton public utilities commission lineman puts up Christmas decorations on King Street in preparation of the Santa Claus Parade Nov. 22. Instead of making a donation to the parade fund, the PUC, as in other years, is taking over responsibility for street decoration.

Santa Claus Planning Visits

When and if he will come to Belleville will be settled tonight at a meeting at Emergency Measures Headquarters on Dundas St. East.

Earlier fears that Santa would have to cancel his Belleville appearance were put to rest when a group of citizens offered to take over responsibility for the annual parade from the firefighters, who have been in charge in former years.

Tonight's meeting will make the take-over official, and set a date for the parade.

Marchers will strike up the band at Prince Edward County Fairgrounds where the parade will form.

For the Santa set there will be treats at the Armory Mall, free skating at the county centre and a free movie at the Regent Theatre.

Ronald Scott was named chairman for this year's parade committee. Appeals for floats and cash donations now will be made to local merchants, urging them to support the event.

Saturday, Nov. 22 is the date set for Santa's appearance in Trenton.

United Appeal Still Pursuing Target

Although the United Appeal Campaign was officially over some weeks ago, the returns keep coming in.

The campaign, which ran from Sept. 15 to Oct. 4 embraced the city in one of the most aggressive and eventfilled two weeks the appeal has ever sponsored.

The monetary success of the campaign is true testimony to the heroics of the venture. Campaign spokesmen cheerfully report that at the present time, more than 71 per cent of the $130,000 goal has been reached.

This means that the people of Belleville have given more than $90,000 to boost the appeal — with the final counting not yet completed.

Chairman of the public relations committee, Kenneth Fleming said indications are that more than 50 per cent of the campaign divisions have gone over their goal objective.

"The campaign divisions were that of industry, which included the firms in the city, as well as commerce, residential, education, financial, public service, professional, and armed forces.

"In each industry, or school, for example, a division chairman was named in charge of gathering and turning is all contributions to the appeal. In this way, the United Appeal tried to make sure no one was missed", emphasized Mr. Fleming.

The problem at the moment are the people who were not part of the divisions canvassed by the appeal those who have not yet been contacted.

"Right now we need the donations of these people who have not been called on to give us that extra little push to meet our objective", added Mr. Fleming.

Mr. Fleming also extended an invitation to an interested public to be present at the appeal's victory dinner, planned for Nov. 12 at Club Canada.

The purpose of the dinner, he explained, is so that a public report of the appeal can be made.

"There will be no long-winded speeches, simply an evening to which an interested citizen can come and meet the individuals who made the campaign such as success".

Counterfeit $20 Bills Show Up

Passers of counterfeit bills were again active in the city during the weekend.

Three $20 bills turned up in bank deposits from city businesses yesterday and have been forwarded by city police to the RCMP unit in charge of counterfeiting.

Chief Douglas Crombie said this morning the bills appear to have been made the same hand. They were in the, 1954 series, of inferior paper, and one was somewhat smeared on the back.

One of the $20 bills turned up in the weekend receipts of Roblin's Dairy, another was passed at Zeller's Store on Front St. and the third at the Quinte Book Shop.

Deer Hunters Die on Trails

Two deer hunters died suddenly in the bush — probably from heart attacks — in the Bancroft area yesterday. The fatal coincidence literally marked the opening of deer-hunting season in the Quinte district as scores of sharpshooters made tracks for fit northern bushland.

In Cardiff township, about 10 miles east of Bancroft, 36-year-old Edward McCormick of Mitchell, Ont., was found dead.

Later about 20 miles southwest of Bancroft, an American hunter, Smith Hastings, 58, of Warren, Ohio, died while watching for deer.

In each incident both men were found later by hunting companions.

Provincial police at Apsley said post mortems were being held at Peterborough to officially establish the causes of death.

At Shadow Lake area of the district, a hunter was reported accidentally shot in the heel. Provincial police said they were still investigating the incident today but did not believe the man was seriously hurt.

The 1969 hunting season had a sour start, in the district. Heavy rains discouraged many sportsmen yesterday and snap surveys by game wardens showed poor results.

In two townships surrounding Tweed a check of 75 hunters revealed only nine deer shot.

Weather permitting, activity in the bush will build to a peak by the weekend with hundreds of more hunters making tracks for the Quinte outdoors, believe dept. of lands and forests officials.

Game wardens Saturday will set up two checkpoints at strategic highway locations in the area — Northbrook and Eldorado.

Verbal Overture

Barber of Seville Opera Choice for Return Visit to City

By HARRY MULHALL
(Staff Reporter)

Within two weeks opera will be back in Belleville, striking just the right note for pure enjoyment.

Onstage will be the universal opera favorite, Rossini's Barber of Seville.

The masterpiece of comic opera has been chosen by the Canadian Opera Company for its Belleville presentation when its recent tour touches at Centennial Secondary School Nov. 15.

Quinte music lovers are scheduled to see a production starring leading operatic singers including Jan Rubes, Sheila Piercy and Donald Rutherford.

But Bellevillians will receive a verbal overture to the big event if the Quinte music season Nov. 10. That's the day Dr. Herman Geiger-Torel, the company's celebrated general director, visits Belleville to speak to the city's Rotary Club. The club is one of the main movers in bringing the company to the city. Belleville Rotarians are sponsoring the production at Centennial School.

It's been two years since the company stopped over in Belleville. Their presentation here of Don Pasquale was a highlight of Centennial Year Quinte cultural events.

The masterpiece was first aired more than 150 years ago — in 1816 — and, despite a poor start, has been a legend ever since.

In fact, legend permeates the opera's history.

Its opening night is now a comedy in itself. The audience already was hostile before the curtain went up. One of the leading singers tripped on a trap door, bending his nose and injuring his face. Thinking it part of the action some of the audience broke up the opera by whistling for an encore. A final touch of chaos was doled out by a cat straying on stage and going berserk among the singers.

SHEILA PIERCY

However, the opera quickly recovered from its first night setback and has never since been off the stage.

Coincidentally, The Barber of Seville was the first work taken on tour by the Canadian Opera Company — in 1958 when it traveled the Maritimes on a Canada Council request. That initial four-week effort was the modest beginning to the current national tour, now a permanent fact of Canadian cultural life.

Because of distance, the company alternates each year between eastern and western provinces.

DR. GEIGEL-TOREL

Since 1961, 25 states in the U.S. have been added to the itinerary, supported by government grants and private sponsorship.

A recent report from the company was optimistic about the future — noting steady expansion since those early tours — despite the financing fact that opera is the most expensive of all performing arts.

"Opera cannot exist without subsidy," confirms the report. "Yet the steady increase in the number of communities visited in Canada and the United States attests to the great popularity of opera, even in rural areas."

PUTTING FOR DOUGH — Jack Nicklaus, Columbus, Ohio, gives with a gesture as he sinks a putt on the second extra hole of sudden death playoff for the Kaiser International Open. Golden Bear Gets More Honey

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus had just finished professional golf's longest day, with his third victory of the season in the bag and his eyes firmly fixed on a near impossible goal.

The longest day was 17 hours and five minutes of a twice delayed four man playoff that, for the first time in the Professional Golfers' Association history, stretched two days.

Nicklaus defeated Billy Casper, George Archer and Don January in the precedent setting playoff for the Kaiser International open golf title Monday and increased his season earnings to $122,567.

The $28,000 first prize for his second victory in as many starts put him fourth on the money list, only $1,320 behind South Africa's Gary Player who is finished for the year.

But Nicklaus, the 29-year-old golden bear who ranks as golf's most feared competitor, is never satisfied with anything but first.

"You always want to be first in as many categories as you can," said Nicklaus, who hasn't finished lower than third on the money list since turning pro.

Frank Beard leads with about $177,000. Nicklaus, who has made $48,000 in his last two starts, is favored in this week's $125,000 Hawaiian Open and also plans to play in the Heritage Classic later this year.

"I don't yet know whether I'll play in the Danny Thomas, the final tournament of the year, or not," he said. "It depends on my position on the money list. If I'm in the position to pass someone I'll probably do it."

There is a total $70,000 in the first place money still up for grabs in the three remaining tournaments and Nicklaus would have to win at least two to take over the No. 1 spot, probably the most coveted position in the pro game.

He almost let Kaiser get away from him. He held a two stroke lead going into the final round on the 6,849 yard par 72 Silverado Country Club course, but had his troubles coming home and was tied at 283 by Archer, Casper and January.

Seniors Join Nats

WINNIPEG (CP) — Four more players, including Brian Conacher, formerly with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, have joined Canada's national team.

The others to arrive in Winnipeg Monday were Grant Moore, Corby Adams and Robert Lapage.

Conacher and Moore were recruited from Orillia Terriers of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior series, a move that drew strong protests from that team's general manager, Bill McGill.

McGill last week accused the Nationals of "tampering and poor ethics."

Voyageurs Edged Out

WINNIPEG (CP) — A goal by defenceman Bob Murdock at 12:34 of the third period gave Canada's national team a 2-1 victory over Montreal Voyageurs in an exhibition hockey game Monday night before 1,500 fans.

It was the first of a two-game exhibition series involving the Nationals and the Eastern Division leaders of the American Hockey League. The second game is scheduled tonight.

The free-wheeling game was scoreless until 2:36 of the second period when a former member of the Nationals, Jean Gaubier, scored for Montreal.

The Nationals tied the score less than three minutes later on a goal by Billy MacMillan.

NHL Prospects Wary

Down Payment Time Acid Test

NEW YORK (AP) — The $6,000,000 price tags which the National Hockey League has attached to its next two expansion franchises get their first real test Dec. 1 when groups planning to bid for the new clubs must make formal applications and down payments.

There are indications that the numbers may be a bit too steep for many of the groups originally interested.

In Vancouver, Cyrus McLean, president of the Western Hockey League Canucks, said Monday the NHL's price had scared off five groups interested in buying his team and entering the franchise bidding derby.

Since the $6,000,000 price was announced, McLean said, the only group in show any interest in entering the bidding has been the Medicor Investment Corp. of Minneapolis and no talks have been held with Medicor since early last week.

"All they did was check our status," said McLean. "We never had anything settled. We don't expect to hear from them too soon, because they're busy doing other things."

Groups in Baltimore and Cleveland have announced that they were stepping out of the bidding because of the steep price.

Zamryl Krieger, chairman of the board of the American Hockey League Baltimore Clippers, said the franchise price "would invite financial disaster," and removed the Clippers from bidding competition last week.

Nick Mileti, owner of the AHL Cleveland Barons, also bowed out last week, saying the quality of payers available would not justify the price.

Buffalo's Knox Brothers Seymour and Northrup, are expected to make a bid for that city despite the price.

The NHL added six new teams three years ago with the franchise price set at $2,000,000 each.

League president Clarence Campbell said in a telephone interview Monday night in Montreal that he thought the $6,000,000 for the 1971 expansions was not too high and the $2,000,000 paid in 1966 "was much too low" considering the success of at least four of the six West Division clubs.

Nowhere has major league hockey caught on as well as in St. Louis where the Sidney Salomen family has built a flourishing franchise.

"We've got 12,000 season subscribers," said Gus Kyle, a former NHL defenceman who serves as the Blues' director of sales. "And there's a waiting list of about 1,100 for season tickets."

The Blues have averaged more than 16,000 fans a game in their first five home games this season and had 10 sellouts last year when they won the NHL's West Division title and reached the Stanley Cup finals for the second straight season.

"Selling tickets," said Kyle, "is a breeze."

The success of the Blues on the ice, of course, has helped the club's box office. Hockey games in St. Louis have become social events much as they have been for years in Montreal and Toronto.

"There is a personal involvement by our owners," Kyle said. "The Salomons want things done right. Off the ice and on it."

The enormous success of the Blues is the bait prospective franchise holders are nibbling on that expensive NHL hook. The question is whether that hook is simply too expensive.

Too Rich For Us: Cleveland

MONTREAL (CP) — Nick Mileti has withdrawn Cleveland's application for a National Hockey League franchise for the 1970-71 season, it was announced Monday.

Mileti, owner of Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League, had been one of four candidates expected to bid to join the NHL for a $6,000,000 entrance fee.

However, league president Clarence Campbell said Mileti had written him that the $6,000,000 figure was too high and he'd withdrawn his tentative bid.

Earlier, owners of Baltimore Clippers, also of the AHL, withdrew, claiming the actual cost of entry would reach the $6,000,000 mark by the time all adjustments had been made.

The withdrawal leaves Vancouver and Buffalo as the two main expected bidders. Vancouver currently is seeking outside financing, with the Western Hockey League Canucks management having the first right to refusal for that city.

Bruins' Orr Still Leader By Virtue of Helping Hands

MONTREAL (CP) — Defenceman Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins continues to lead the National Hockey League's individual scoring race today, not by virtue of the goals he has scored but rather by the scoring plays he has set up for his team-mates.

Orr picked up four assists last week despite the fact the Bruins had their unbeaten string snapped and failed to win any of their three scheduled games.

He has two goals and 16 assists for 18 points and has picked up a point on each of the Boston's nine power-play goals this season.

Ab McDonald of St. Louis Blues is runner-up to Orr in assists and the over-all points race. McDonald now had six goals and nine assists for 15 points, one more point than team-mate Phil Goyette.

Fourth is Dave Balon of New York Rangers with 13 points. Balon is the left winger on the hottest line in the league at the moment. He has scored three goals and added six assists in New York's last six games, while linemates Walt Tkaczuk with five goals and four assists, and Bill Fairbairn, who had two goals and four assists in those six games, have combined with Balon to score 10 of Rangers last 22 goals.

There is a four-way tie for fifth place among Phil Esposito of Boston, Red Berenson and Frank St. Marseille of St. Louis and Henri Richard of Montreal Canadiens, each with 11 points.

Then come another four players bunched together with 11 points each. Vic Hadfield of New York, the leading goal-scorer with eight, Mickey Redmond of Montreal, Tkaczuk and Jean Ratelle of New York are included in this group.

Hadfield, incidentally, turned in the first three-goal game of his nine-season NHL career Sunday; while another veteran, Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings, was getting the 19th such performance in his 24-season span. Berenson also has a three-goal game on the week-end.

The Wings' defensive performance last week was strong enough when combined with the 17 goals scored by forwards to move Detroit into the lead defensively.

Roy Edwards, who played right of the Wings nine games so far, has 2.27 goals against average. Roger Crozier returned to action last week and allowed one goal in his game, giving the two Detroit netminders a combined average of 2.22 goals against.

Morrison to Investigate Criticism of Officials

VANCOUVER (CP) — Scotty Morrison, chief referee of the National Hockey League, said today he will take the necessary steps to determine whether there is any basis to recent criticism of officiating at NHL games.

"I will have to check it out and see if there is something that actually bears looking into or whether it is just based on a few remarks made by a coach popping off after a disappointing game," Morrison said in an interview.

After a 4-4 tie Sunday night against Toronto Maple Leafs, Boston Bruins coach Harry Sinden said referee Vern Buffey was lacking in many ways as a major league official.

"Buffey is out of shape and can't keep up with the play," Sinden said.

Coach Sinden had support from Boston general manager Milt Schmidt, who said: "It was the worst officiated game I've ever seen in 34 years in the league."

SCOTTY MORRISON

* * *

Morrison, on a tour to view western hockey teams, pointed out that in a Western League game the previous Sunday in San Diego, Buffey had been unable to finish the game because of a slight groin injury.

"This might have been to blame, if in fact he did have trouble keeping up to the play in Sunday's game."

Morrison said he will call Schmidt and Sinden to see exactly what the nature of the complaint is and then follow up with a call to Buffey to get his side of the story.

Hull Eludes Hawks

CHICAGO (CP) — Bobby Hull is expected in Chicago any time now to discuss his possible return to the Black Hawks of the National Hockey League—or his fee?

The high scoring left winger did not attend an expected conference during the weekend and his wife said his new estimated time of arrival was Monday night or this morning.

Hawks' general manager Tommy Ivan said: "I haven't heard from him."

Asked whether a report that he would possibly be back in the lineup by the weekend had any basis, Ivan said "not that we know about."

Hull has missed nine games, claiming the Hawks have failed to live up to a subsidiary contract.

Generous Gordie

Not All Nice Guys Finish Last

DETROIT (AP) — He wanted to help a team-mate. That's why Gordie Howe, Mr. Hockey of the National League, gave up a chance for more personal glory.

Howe, in 21 seasons as a Detroit Red Wings-player, has a multitude of awards. One of the few accomplishments that has eluded him—a four-goal game—could have been his Sunday night in the Wings' 4-3 victory over Pittsburgh Penguins.

Howe, 41, had collected the 19th three-goal game of his career and the opportunity for a fourth goal arose in the final seconds of the contest. The Penguin net was unattended and Howe had the puck with a clear shot ahead.

But that's when his concern for team-mate Alex Delvecchio entered the picture. Delvecchio, who has shared the ice with Howe for 19 seasons as a Red Wings player, has not scored a goal this year and has only seven assists.

"When I got the puck inside the blue line, I took a look out of the corner of my eye for Alex," Howe said. "He's looking for his first goal this season and it always gives a guy a lift to score. . . ."

Howe said he tried to pass the puck to Delvecchio but it hit a Pittsburgh player at the blue line and bounced back.

The unselfish performance brought the Olympic Stadium Croked of 12,000 fans to their feet for a standing ovation.

Howe's career record of goals now totals 729, almost 200 ahead of the nearest NHL all-time goal-scorer, the retired Maurice (Rocket) Richard of Montreal Canadiens.

His go-get-'em play has made him the runner-up to retired former team-mate Ted Lindsay in the penalty minutes department. Including eight this season, Howe's total stands at 1,555; Lindsay's at 1,808.

CFL Dusts Off Emergency Measures File for Playoffs

TORONTO (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Toronto Argonauts, opponents in Sunday's sudden-death Eastern Football Conference semi-final, have met six times in playoffs since the Hamilton club was reorganized in 1950.

Toronto won in 1955 and 1958, the two times the teams met in the semi-final.

The Canadian Football League, in its weekly statistics story, notes that when they met in the Eastern final, Argos won in 1950 and 1953 and went on to win the Grey Cup both years.

Hamilton came out on top in 1951, then lost in the final to Ottawa Rough Riders. In 1961, the Ticats toppled Toronto in the semi-final and went right to the Grey Cup where they lost to Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

League by-laws provide for the postponement of a game as a result of "unfavorable playing conditions" such as fog or other major forces of nature.

"For a playoff game other than the Grey Cup game such postponement may be effected by agreement between the commissioner and the competing clubs," the rules read.

"The commissioner alone will make the decision in the Grey Cup game."

If a game has started and such unfavorable conditions suddenly arise, it may be postponed to the following day under the following procedures:

1. If the game is suspended anytime during the first three quarters, it will be resumed with possession and location of the ball, downs and yardage to be gained, time to be played and score remaining the same as they existed when the game was suspended.

2. If the suspension comes in the fourth quarter, two 10-minute halves will be played the following day with only the score remaining the same as it was when the game was called.

3. Having regard to the score and the time remaining, the game may be declared complete and called off.

The CFL also issued the final EPC player statistics.

Belvedere Looks Like Quinte Team to Beat

The word is out that Belvedere is the Quinte Hockey League team to beat, and the Hotelmen put some beef in the rumors by dumping defending league champion Stanson's Construction 5-2 last night.

In the other half of the Quinte League's opening doubleheader, a short-handed Aluminum Star squad stayed off Central Taxi 4-3.

Music by the Versailles drum and bugle band and celebrities in the persons of Mayor Russell Scott, Alderman Kenneth Sodon and Recreation Director Charles Williams gave the city's commercial hockey loop a decorous seabeef.

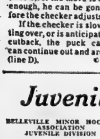
Latchford's goal in the last 10 minutes of play proved to be the winner.

Bob Moon scored a pair for the losing Taxiteers, with Terry Cleaniow adding a single. Central pulled goalie Ken Genereaux for an extra attacker in the final two minutes, but couldn't get the equalizer past the Stars' Bob Cook.

The losers drew four of seven minor penalties.

McMullan's two goals paced Belvedere Hotel to their second-game win, with others coming from Doug Hallam, Bob Goodfellow and Nolan. Dennis Ray and Bill Genereaux replied for Stansons, who drew three of eight minor penalties assessed by referees Ted Hurst and "Weiner" Brown.

Hockey for Minors



In this play the forward approaches the defence pair (line A), skating at three quarter speed. When he is about 15 feet away he bursts into full speed (line B) and tries to go out and around one of the defencemen. If he sees the checker covering him quickly, he can suddenly cut back in to the centre (line C). If the move is quick enough, he can be gone before the checker gets to him.

If the checker is slow getting over, or is anticipating a cutback, the puck carrier can continue out and around (line D). —TSS

Gives Parents Blast

CHATHAM (CP) — Statue-seeking parents are responsible for boys entering organized hockey too young, Lloyd Davidson of Ontario Minor Hockey Association vice-president, said Monday.

He suggested a minimum age of 12 at which a boy should enter organized hockey.

Davidson told the Chatham Sertoma Club that because some parents want to dress their "kid like Bobby Hull", the association has had to "give in to pressures and provide proper supervision.

He said the OMHA has so far successfully fought pressures that novice competition for young boys should be province-wide, but added: "We will probably lose that one too."

Jackson Has Lien on Schenley Award

MONTREAL (CP) — The field was set to fire today in the balloting to choose the top football players in Canada in three categories.

RUSS JACKSON

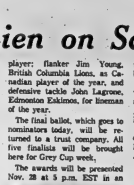
Nominators, Canadian Football League writers and broadcasters voting on behalf of the sponsoring distillery, cut the field from 27 with the naming of three candidates from the Western Conference and two from the East.

It was Ottawa all the way in the East, with quarterback Russ Jackson nominated as outstanding player and Canadian player of the year. The nomination as lineman of the year went to Riders' Billy Joe Booth, all-star defensive end in his eighth year with the club.

In the West, it was fullback George Reed, Saskatchewan Roughriders, for outstanding player; flanker Jim Young, British Columbia Lions, as Canadian player of the year, and defensive tackle John Lagrone, Edmonton Eskimos, for lineman of the year.

The final ballot, which goes to nominators today, will be returned to a trust company. All five finalists will be brought here for Grey Cup week.

The awards will be presented Nov. 28 at 5 p.m. EST in an



GEORGE REED

"academy awards" type of ceremony.

Jackson, who joined Ottawa in 1958, was Canadian player of the year in 1959. He has announced that this is his last season in football.

Jackson is the only Canadian ever to win the outstanding player award and he did it in 1962 and 1966, winning top Canadian player honors both years.

If he takes the outstanding player category again this year, he will equal the record set by Jackie Parker in 1957-58-60. Parker, with Edmonton at the time, now is head coach of B.C. Lions.

Reed, the outstanding player in 1963, won the WFC rushing title this season for the fifth year in a row and set a league record for career touchdowns by rushing.

Young, a native of Hamilton, went through Queen's University in Kingston, Ont., then joined Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League.

B.C. Lions gave up defensive star Ted Foots and halfback Bill Symons to Toronto for the Canadian rights to Young.

Symons turned out to be Canada's outstanding player last season.

Lagrone was named outstanding WFC lineman in 1967, his rookie year, and was the lone Eskimo picked to the 1968 all-star team selected by the Football Reporters of Canada.

Football Briefs

REGINA (CP) — Quarterback Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan Roughriders has been voted the Most Valuable Player in the Western Football Conference for the second consecutive year. It was the third time that Lancaster, 30-year-old veteran of seven seasons with Roughriders, has won the honor.

* * *

MONTREAL (CP) — Quarterback Sonny Wade of Montreal Alouettes found out Monday his jaw was not broken in Sunday's 22-18 Eastern Football Conference loss to the Argonauts in Toronto. Wade was knocked out of the rough game temporarily in the third quarter after being hit by defensive end Vernon Vanoy. He returned to the game, but was sidelined for good in the 4th quarter by Toronto lineman Ed Harrington. He reported to a Montreal hospital for x-rays of his swollen jaw on the Al's arrival here Sunday night. Jim Dalton, the Al's head coach, said Monday the quarterback's face is still badly swollen from the pounding he took Sunday.

* * *

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts may have to increase ticket prices for next season's Canadian Football League games despite the biggest gross receipts in their club records, "It's mostly because of increased expenses,". Argo president Lew Hayman said Monday. "I don't see any other way but to increase prices for next year. "It will probably cost Argos $50,000 in gate equalization payments this season." Gate receipts from all CFL clubs are pooled and an average is calculated. Clubs with receipts in excess of the average pay a third of the difference into a pool for clubs which had poor attendance. The Argos played to capacity crowds of 33,135 in five of their seven home games this year.

This year, Canada Savings Bonds are offering a record average yield of 8%—if held to maturity in 1978. This is the highest average yield in Canada Savings Bond history. Because Canada Savings Bonds are always worth their face value (plus monthly earned interest), they are an important part of every investment program as "instant cash".

As in recent years, holders of Canada Savings Bonds can "double their money" if the bonds are held to maturity, because of the compound interest feature. The Bonds are available in amounts from $50 to $25,000, purchased for cash or in monthly installments.

To see how Canada Savings Bonds can fit your investment plans, contact the nearest Wood Gundy office. "Instant Cash" is a good investment.

Napanee Celebrates Hallowe'en Quietly

NAPANEE — Hallowe'en was comparatively quiet in Napanee itself, with no serious damage reported. The firemen were kept busy, receiving 12 calls to put out leaf bonfires, and two to turn off hydrants. One broken window was reported.

One boy collected a booby-trapped apple during the evening but did not know where it had been given to him. The apple, containing a pin, was brought to the police. A week earlier, Constable Hugh Brennan, the safety officer, had visited the schools warning children not to eat any of the food given them until it had been inspected by their parents at home.

Householders almost unanimously stated that they had fewer visitors than usual Hallowe'en, and that in most cases groups of children were accompanied by an adult.

Bonarlaw

A Hallowe'en party was held at St. Mark's Hall on Friday, Oct. 31.

A Hallowe'en party was held in Springbrook Hall on Friday evening, Oct. 31.

Minto

MINTO — Mr. and Mrs. Ken Learmonth of Montreal and Mrs. Doris Polk of Ottawa attended the 50th anniversary of their aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Vance of Stirling.

St. Thomas ACW held a quilting at the home of Miss Edna Tanner recently.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

In previous columns I have said there is no choice between keeping a pet and endangering the health of a patient. If the attending doctor has proof that dog dander, for example, is causing attacks of asthma in a child, then one must find another home for the beloved pet.

It may hurt the child emotionally for a while, but it often helps him physically. To this date — and I am knocking on wood — I have not received any letter of condemnation for cruelty to animals and children, from dog lovers among my readers. Nevertheless, I receive suggest ions which may be quite helpful at times:

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I keep thinking about the anxious grandmother who had written you concerning her grandson and his dog. You may recall the child was allergic to dog dander. "

I certainly agreed with your answer but wish you had added and let the child a lifesized, stuffed dog, the same breed if possible; at least the same size and color.

It would ease the hurt and give the child an outlet for its love. I have had cats and dogs most of my life, but now I am retired and live in an apartment where pets are not allowed.

One day, in a store, I saw a stuffed Pekinese that I could not resist. Believe it or not, he seems almost real and a joy. You have guessed it. I am an animal lover and so is the boy. If a stuffed dog gives me, a grownup, so much pleasure, think how much it might do for a boy deprived of his pet. — Mrs. C.

Comment: I think this is a practical suggestion. Just make certain the stuffed toy dog is not a dust - gatherer; and that his artificial fur is not itself an irritant to the child's asthma.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Could LSD affect children I might have in years to come? I am 18 years old and am very curious to find out "what it's like."

I'm not a fanatic, nor do I smoke marijuana, but I would like to try LSD just once. I hope you won't tell me not to, as I imagine most doctors would. I'm not hung up on drugs. As I said before, just "curious."

Comment: Once upon a time there was a curious cat . . . But why go into how curiosity killed the cat? Your own brand of curiosity isn't less dangerous.

Recent studies show LSD seems to have some bad effect on chromosomes — and, therefore, on unborn children. You may get "off easy" if you decide to go through with your experiment — but you may be buying a one-way ticket. It's true some who've taken LSD only once haven't been home emotionally ever since.

* * *

For Mrs. T.: I do not advise hypnosis in treating planter warts. I know they are stubborn, these pesky warts on the sole of the foot. Conservative treatment deserves a trial before even considering surgery, or burning them off, or hypnosis.

* * *

For Mrs. K.: Heel spurs are not due to gout.

* * *

For Mr. B.: For "gas" and heart skips at the age of 84 or at any age I'd suggest a physical examination rather than daily gulps of bicarb of soda solution.

Grace United Church Celebrates 127th. Anniversary Service

NAPANEE — Grace United Church was filled to capacity for the two anniversary services last Sunday. This church was established 127 years ago as a Methodist Episcopalian Church.

Probably some in the congregation had come to hear Rev. Harry E. Mellow, B.A., D.D., a native son and a graduate of Napanee school. Dr. Mellow preached two thought provoking sermons, informing his congregations that this sermon had been prepared especially for them and not "pulled out of a barrel" and dusted off.

His subject in the morning was "Standing For Something". He used Martin Luther as an example of one who had arrived at a truth and did not waver from the course which he believed in. During the evening, speaking on "Being in Love," he analysed the different types of love, but reminded his listeners that the love of God superseded all others.

The music for the day was exceptionally fine, with Mr. Tom Dawson, organist and choir director, choosing three great anthems for these great services. Mr. Marie Ramsay and Mrs. Marjorie Baird sang solos in the evening.

In the evening there was a second anthem by the junior choir, Mrs. Terry Larstone directs them and their pianist is Mrs. George Robinson.

Mr. Jeremy Livingston was the soloist for both services.

Rev. O. Glen Taylor, minister of Trinity Church, was accorded a hearty welcome when he assisted with the evening service. Minister of Grace Church is Rev. Guy W. Case.

Most of the evening congregation remained for the friendship hour in the church hall.

THE REAL STUFF

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The real tequila is not mescaline, but can, contends the Chamber of Tequila Industry of Mexico. The chamber's Guillermo Rosales says imitation tequila—made without the special Mexican kind of maguey plant juice—being produced in the United States, again, Brazil and elsewhere, hopes to have the United States, at least, ban the selling of the non-Mexican product as tequila.

An Ottawa man escaped injury Saturday evening when his car was demolished by the CN's Rapido at the east end of Station Street, police reported this morning.

He and a passing motorist attempted to get the vehicle free, but they heard a train coming and abandoned the vehicle.

The Rapido struck the car and knocked it 1,650 feet along the tracks.

Annual damage figures were unavailable. The car was wrecked.

Red Fishing Fleets Threaten Canadian Industry's Existence

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian fishing industry will be destroyed if control of foreign fishing fleets is not extended beyond the present 12-mile limit, the Commons was warned Monday by Fisheries Minister Jack Davis.

Mr. Davis accused trawler fleets from the Soviet Union, Poland and East Germany of sitting outside the Canadian fishing limit and working major grounds in depletion.

"As far as they are concerned there are no rules in this game." he told the House during the seventh day of the eight-day throne speech debate. "It is a matter of first come, first served and heaven help the blindmost.

"Unfortunately, the hindmost, in this case, is our own Canadian fishermen. They are being outfished, not because they are less efficient but because foreign governments are prepared to build massive fleets and run them like military operations."

Mr. Davis said the government intends to press for effective conservation management of marine resources at least to the limit of the continental shelf. Proposals will be made, he said at the next international law of the sea conference which the government hopes will be held in 1971.

If necessary, he added, the government will take the issue to the United Nations.

To a question by Lloyd Crouse (PC—South Shore), Mr. Davis said that a withdrawal by stages of giant fleets operated from Spain, Portugal, France, Great Britain, Denmark and the United States from Canada's 12-mile fishing zone could begin immediately. But, he said, a withdrawal would not be required until Canada finishes drawing baselines from headland to headland along the coast to establish its exclusive zone.

Mr. Davis said overfishing has already reduced the annual catch of haddock on the East Coast to 25,000,000 pounds from 100,000,000 pounds 10 years ago. Newfoundland's inshore fishermen have been especially hard hit—their daily catch has been cut in half over the past 10 years.

John Lundrigan (PC—Gander-Twillingate) greeted Mr. Davis's concern with skepticism. He wondered whether there would be any fish to conserve by the time the next law of the sea conference.

Prime Minister Trudeau announced that starting next Jan. 1, the government will restrict the use of DDT to 12 farm crops, a reduction of 60 per cent in application of the pesticide.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp told the Commons the need for economy has dictated closing seven Canadian diplomatic missions—the Dominican Republic, Uruguay, Ecuador, Cyprus, West Berlin and Canadian participation in the international joint commission in Cambodia and Laos. He estimated the reductions would save the government $7,000,000 a year.

Later in the day the government was attacked for its decision three weeks ago to send an ambassador to the Vatican.

Murray McBride (L—Lanark and Renfrew) said the move undermined the government's efforts to win acceptance for the Official Languages Act among English-speaking Protestant Canadians.

Recognition of the Vatican also linked Canada with reactionary Roman Catholic regimes in South America, he said.

Criticism of government policies came from other Liberal back benchers.

Western Liberal Albert Bruce Douglas (Assiniboia) said the government should "disavow, at least partial...responsibility" for the current glut of wheat.

He reminded the House that in 1967, the minister of agriculture at the time, Joe Greene, had urged farmers to maintain a high level of wheat production to meet international demand. Mr. Douglas called for a $1.95% a bushel price support program.

Joseph Guay (L—St. Boniface) added that westerners are Canada's forgotten people, and cited as examples Air Canada's withdrawal from Winnipeg and the forthcoming U.S. withdrawal from the atmospheric testing program at Churchill, Man.

Opposition speakers picked at some of the same themes.

David MacDonald (PC—Egmont) said the government was too concerned with legal issues to take effective action on the Nigerian civil war or the question of Arctic sovereignty.

Canada's Car Safety Rules Will Follow U.S. Pattern

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will follow U.S. standards closely if an auto safety bill given first reading Monday in the Commons wins passage, Transport Minister Don Jamieson says.

The nature of the auto industry made it unlikely that Canada alone could require automakers to meet specific Canadian conditions, such as rear-window fogging and icing.

Autos' roll off the assembly line without variation, he said, and it was unlikely that specific northern safety features could be built into all of them.

Mr. Jamieson told a news conference the 29 federal guides adopted in 1966, and now voluntarily by automakers, will probably become mandatory with passage of the bill.

The guides apply only to new cars but the proposed legislation would extend them to trucks, buses and even motorcycles.

The federal bill is aimed mainly at the manufacturers' level and would set standards for new vehicles and parts only. Violation could mean fines up to $200,000 and jail terms.

Mr. Jamieson said the provinces are moving towards regulation of used-car sales and uniform standards on parts.

The bill would require all motor vehicles to bear a federal trademark indicating they are up to standard.

A few European models don't comply with federal guides. These would have to adapt or get out of the Canadian market.

Wells Says Cotnam's Talk Unfortunate

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Thomas Wells told the legislature Monday he is "unalterably opposed" to the legalization of marijuana and believes recent remarks by Ontario Chief Coroner Dr. H. B. Cotnam were "most unfortunate."

Dr. Cotnam proposed in a speech to coroners that marijuana be legalized so that it can become available for controlled research.

His remarks were followed by reports from Ottawa that the federal government may permit marijuana to be used in controlled experiments to determine its effects on the human body and whether or not it is physically or psychologically addictive.

a possible break for North American automakers.

Federal inspectors would be able to go into Canadian plants, or on to the wharves, to inspect vehicles. They could seize where there was failure to comply.

The 29 guides now on the books cover brake systems, tires, safety belts, windshield glass, even hood latches. Dr. Robert Campbell, federal director of road motor vehicle safety, said most complaints are about braking systems.

He said inspectors won't be stationed at the end of assembly lines to check each car. Rather they would check test records, make spot checks and rely on buyer complaints.

The bill would make Canadian manufacturers, distributors and importers liable to as much as a $200,000 fine on conviction by indictment for putting the trade mark on a vehicle that did not comply with the safety standards.

If a manufacturer, distributor or importer failed to warn a new-car buyer "of any defect in the construction, design or functioning of that motor vehicle," while it was under warranty, the corporation involved could be fined up to $10,000 and any individual given up to two years in jail and fined $5,000.

Quick Style Changes Out

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

My colleague, Art Buchwald, had an amusing piece a few weeks ago about the Nehru suit. Like, and so taught a Nehru suit a couple of years ago, at the prodding of his wife — and, like me, wore it twice.

Just as suddenly as it came in, it went Out. And there we were, stuck for a hundred bucks, with this damned costume in the closet, too vain to throw out, and too passe to wear with any self-confidence.

Now, I am all for the fashion revolution in men's clothes, and I have publicly applauded the color, the boldness, the flair of modern male attire, as contrasted with the dull conformity of the recent past.

But psychologically, the style manipulators cannot handle men with the same arrogant impunity they handle women.

Men are willing, even eager, to try something new, something that makes them feel more virile and dashing. They are not willing to change fashions every few months — or even every year — because they are the ones who pay the bills, and not the ones who carry the change-plates.

It hits a husband right in the solar plexus to buy a piece of clothing that will be obsolescent as soon as the wind changes.

Women, over the years, have learned to accept the weather-vane nature of fashion with a philosophical shrug. They throw away perfectly good shoes and skirts and coats that are only a season or two old, because they have been conditioned to do this from birth.

I don't believe that men can be conditioned in the same way. We are willing to change our image, as the phrase goes, but not to enter an Annual Style Derby, in the hot, competitive spirit of women.

Last year, for instance, I bought a half-dozen pairs of dress slacks that were neatly tapered down to a peg bottom, because they look sleeker than the old "fat pants" men used to wear. This year, the "elephant leg" is being shown for men, with a bell-bottom flair; and if anyone thinks I'm going to donate my tapered slacks to Goodwill, they don't realize the small amount of ill will this fashion change has generated on my part.

And it's not just the principle of the thing. It's the money. Few families can afford to support two wardrobes in the style to which the manipulators want us to become accustomed. And if only one of us can keep up with the whirligig of fashion, you know darn well which one in the family it's going to be.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For November 5

Your birthday today: There is a great deal of pressure but no particular direction in the pattern of the coming year's events. It is up to you to consolidate where you are, while allowing yourself open options for abrupt changes of plans. Probably no momentous decisions you must devote your resources to purposes you had not thought about earlier. Emotionally this year tends to become one of high adventure. Today's natives are noted for stability, self reliance.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Take all the reasonable shortcuts in your work today: avoid rush and fatigue. Expect some criticism from associates in any case. The evening hours are a little more tense with the same trends. Patience.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): There is help for your creative projects provided you ask for it quietly. If you let trifles irritate you, nothing runs quite smoothly. Spend this evening on what is going on.

GEMINI (May 21—Jun 20): Your imagination runs ahead and can be turned toward productive goals. Relationships improve or suffer, directly, according to your words. Try the peacemaking role this evening.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Care in travel is essential today. Relatives seem unwilling either to co-operate or keep quiet, according to how you treat them. Sentimental interest.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 21): Your venturesome streak comes out on top today: just check your information carefully as you take chances. Invest in improving home conditions. Do something for loved ones.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 — Sept. 22): Your energy supply rises and can be put to very constructive uses, especially in creative activities. The temptation is toward haste and force directed at chronic irritations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): If the deal has to be secret, you probably are leading yourself astray. Trying to be of major assistance to some people could hinder your own interests.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): A definite bid for co-operation can succeed today. Keep it for all to see; strive to settle a long standing aggravation. Routine can be cleared off with a determined effort.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): New business schemes pop up all around you. Listen to your associates carefully. Your enthusiasm may lead you past noticing essential facts which would make a great deal of difference to you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Plans for the future involving distant people and large organizations are favored today. Tact is at a premium here, especially with in-laws and others who may not understand your values.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Group affairs relating to money should get processed until you are all in definite agreement. Focus more on your own personal resources.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): The people closest to you may feel called upon to help even in matters you feel are personal concerns. Diplomatically turn them toward co-operation in matters conflicting with outside.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissue.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "wonderful healing improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and strengthens weak supporting tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Ontario Government Under Investigation

Businessmen and Civil Servants on Committee

TORONTO (CP) — Treasurer Charles MacNaughton announced Monday the membership of a special committee which will be given "carte blanche" to investigate government procedures and recommend ways to increase productivity and efficiency.

In a statement to the legislature, Mr. MacNaughton said the committee, comprising five members from the business community and five senior civil servants, will have as chairman John B. Cronyn, director and executive vice-president of corporate affairs, John Labatt, Ltd., London.

The other members are:

Charles C. Hay, former president of Gulf Oil Canada Ltd., Toronto; Gerald R. Heffernan, president and chief executive officer, Lake Ontario Steel Co., Whitby; Alfred Powis, president and chief executive officer, Noranda Mines Ltd., Toronto; and Ray D. Wolfe, president of Oshawa Wholesale Ltd. and IGA Canada Ltd., Toronto.

G. H. U. Bayly, deputy minister department of lands and forests; C. E. Brannan, secretary of the treasury board; A. R. Dick, deputy minister of justice and deputy attorney-general; H. I. Macdonald, deputy treasurer and deputy minister of economics; and Dr. J. K. Reynolds, secretary to the cabinet.

Mr. MacNaughton said the committee, first announced last February, will have the authority to appoint study groups to investigate every area of government and will have "the broadest possible scope for inquiry and recommendation."

The committee will study personnel management, paperwork and systems, automatic data processing, organization of government related to the examination of new policies, relationships between departments, financial control and planning.

The treasurer said this type of committee was chosen in preference to a royal commission so that advice and recommendations can be put into effect as received, rather than waiting for an over-all report.

The civil service members, aside from learning from their studies, will bring to the committee a depth of knowledge about government operations that would take an outside group months to obtain, he said.

The committee, which will select its own executive director, probably at an organization meeting Nov. 24, is expected to take about two years to complete its investigation.

In other legislature business:

—Lands and Forests Minister Rene Brunelle said a provincial receipt for $5,700,000 has been issued to Algoma Central Railway in return for the rights to five species of trees on company land. The company can use the receipt as a claim against both federal and provincial corporate income taxes.

—Premier Robarts, commenting on the hiring by Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park) of paid informers to report on conditions in mental hospitals, said he felt there had been no violation of the Civil Service Act. But he said the government would try to find out who the informers are and what they have done—then decide whether their actions were legal or illegal.

Idea of Purchasing Right to Pollute Rejected

TORONTO (CP) — A suggestion that industries be required to pay for the right to pollute a body of water was rejected Monday by a member of the University of Toronto's Pollution Probe.

The suggestion was one of several ideas on how to deal with the problem of pollution by phosphates, used in detergents, put forward at Canada's first conference for users of the Great Lakes.

Replying to the proposal of a form of fee system, Pollution Probe spokesman Brian Kelly asked:

"How can you put a dollar value on a river? I don't think it's feasible."

Dr. A. T. Prince, director of the inland waters branch, federal department of resources, suggested that the charges could be used to clean up pollution, and asked what preferable alternative there might be.

When Mr. Prince said the detergent industry is "pouring millions of dollars" into research to get rid of phosphates, Mr. Kelly argued that research is being restrained by long-term contracts with phosphate manufacturers.

The exchange took place on the first day of the two-day conference of about 117 representatives of industry, anti-pollution groups and control experts from the United States and Canada.

The meeting was arranged by the University of Toronto's Great Lakes Institute, the Ontario Economic Council and the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

Labor Parley Opposes Any Form of Pollution

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Nearly 1,000 delegates to the Ontario Federation of Labor's convention voted unanimously Monday to support a resolution asking the provincial government to make any form of pollution a criminal offence.

Although some delegates commented jokingly that they were suffering a form of "noise" pollution from too many speeches, no one commented on the clouds of smoke circling overhead from the many cigarettes and pipes.

The resolution said Ontario should pass legislation imposing heavy fines for first pollution offences and allowing for possible government takeovers or forcible cleanups of companies who commit second offences.

Ontario May Sell Summer Cottage Sites by Lottery

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario may consider selling cottage-property lots by lottery after changes in the Criminal Code become effective in 1970, the legislature was told Monday.

Lands and Forests Minister Rene Brunelle said the government already has considered a proposal, made last Friday by Pat Reid (L—Rainy River) that lots be sold by lottery instead of auction.

Mr. Reid also suggested that the lottery should be open to Canadians only.

Glut Will Continue

EDMONTON (CP) — Two experts on world marketing say the world's major wheat producers are likely to suffer from over-production for several more years and that the only relief they see is a global crop disaster.

The two- Donald K. Woodward of New York City, director of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization office, and J. W. Madill of Edmonton, general manager of the Alberta Wheat Pool, were featured speakers Monday at the opening session of Direction '70, a conference on food marketing potential sponsored by the Alberta agriculture department.

"The 1969-70 production outlook . . . holds little promise for substantial relief . . . unless crop failures arise in countries of major supply importance," Dr. Woodward told delegates.

Santa Claus Parade Cancelled, But Next Year's Plans Start

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
(Staff Reporter)

Santa Claus will by-pass Belleville this year in his annual pre-Christmas tour of southern centres.

The decision to cancel the Santa Claus parade this year was made last night at a meeting of the Belleville Santa Claus Parade Committee at the EMO headquarters on Dundas St. East.

About 20 people attended the meeting, called to engineer the official take-over of the committee from the Firefighters' Association, the group responsible for the parade in former years.

Newly elected chairman of the committee, Bert Reddick, said the majority of those in attendance voted against holding the parade this year because of lack of time and lack of community involvement.

Although those present volunteered their services to direct and co-ordinate activities in connection with the event, few people were available to work at building the required floats.

Representatives of the Downtown Businessmen's Association service clubs, the Elks' Lodge and the city offered their services on the same basis as in previous years.

Ald. Art Keegan told the committee Ben Bleecker Auditorium at Exhibition Park would be available for one week for the building of floats.

In former years, the parade and float building were directed and carried out by the members of the Firefighters' Association. This year, with the purchase of new firefighting equipment and the increasing demands upon the firemen, the Association was unable to take responsibility for the parade. The group of citizens that formed the Santa Claus Parade Committee last night offered to take over the job, but has been stymied by lack of volunteer help.

Nixon Wins Support

War's Foes Seek Renewed Inquiry

Mass March Permit Denied

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has rejected a permit for a mass march from the Capitol to the White House Nov. 15 to culminate what is being billed as the largest anti-war protest in history.

Only "a small symbolic parade" will be allowed, the justice department announced Tuesday night, citing "reliable reports" some demonstrators plan to "foment violence or to stage confrontations."

A department spokesman claimed "co-ordinated and effective law enforcement would be impossible" if "any serious violence" should erupt along the Pennsylvania Avenue route.

Immediately, the New Mobilization Committee, sponsor of the anti-Vietnam protests planned for Nov. 13-15, denied the charge and accused department officials of negotiating in bad faith.

"We vehemently deny," the committee said, "that any New Mobilization group is planning activities . . . which are not legal."

Some demonstration leaders earlier had forecast as many as 500,000 persons would take part in the massive protest.

Two weeks of negotiations between the government and New Mobilization representatives broke off Monday because of a stalemate over the planned mass march finale.

But Ron Young, co-director of the project, suggested the department's refusal to allow a mass demonstration is a "delay-ing tactic" designed to make it "much more difficult for us to do all the necessary planning and co-ordination for the event."

Fulbright Plans Televised Probe

From AP-Reuters

WASHINGTON (CP) — Senior members of the Senate foreign relations committee, critical of President Nixon's Vietnam report, have paved the way for a new round of televised hearings on the entire war issue.

Chairman J. W. Fulbright (Dem. Ark.) called the committee into session today and predicted it would decide to go ahead with the hearings which had been scheduled last week but were postponed until after Nixon's Monday night speech.

Committee aides expressed some doubt the panel would be able to land the two leading administration figures it wants as witnesses: State Secretary William P. Rogers and Defence Secretary Melvin R. Laird.

The earliest possible day for the hearings was seen as Nov. 17. Next week Senator Stuart Symington's subcommittee studying U.S. overseas commitments has sessions scheduled on Thailand.

"He now has fully and truthfully taken on himself the Johnson war, and I think it is a fundamental error."

Besides Fulbright, calls for committee hearings on the war came from Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, and Senators Albert Gore (Dem. Tenn.) and Jacob K. Javits (Rep. N.Y.)

Symington, Missouri Democrat, joined Assistant Democratic Leader Edward M. Kennedy in asserting Nixon's speech shows he has no plan at all for ending the war.

Most Republicans expressed support for Nixon's policies. But Republican Senators Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon and James Pearson of Kansas said they don't expect Nixon would announce new U.S. troop withdrawals.

Pearson, however, predicted a further announcement before Christmas, and added he expects most U.S. ground troops to be out of Vietnam by the end of 1970. Similar predictions had been made earlier by senior congressional Republicans.

Gore gave the Senate a long critique of Nixon's speech Tuesday, and warned if the United States withdraws "without laying the foundation for a compromise political settlement . . . we will be inviting the death knell of democratic processes in South Vietnam and a bloodbath of vast proportions."

Meanwhile, leaders of anti-war groups said Nixon's speech has increased the likely size of forthcoming protest demonstrations.

But Fulbright criticized plans for a mass march on Washington next week, saying he is "very fearful" there will be incidents that would harm the cause of peace.

CBS Says Nixon Planning To Replace General, Envoy

NEW YORK (AP) — The Columbia Broadcasting System reported Tuesday night that Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, and Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, chief of the American delegation at the Paris peace talks, soon may be replaced.

The reports were broadcast on the CBS Evening News with Walter Cronkrite.

Abrams is known to be unhappy about the Vietnam troops cuts and orders he began receiving in July telling him to change his "search and destroy" tactics to a "protective reaction" posture, Rowan said.

Egyptians Cross Suez

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egyptian commandos crossed the Suez canal today and attacked an Israeli patrol, but Egypt and Israel disputed the results of the raid.

Egypt said its force killed an Israeli officer and eight soldiers, captured another wounded man and destroyed two armored cars and a tank.

Israel said two of its soldiers were killed, two wounded and a fifth was missing, probably taken prisoner by the Egyptians. The Israelis said nothing about any equipment losses.

Philip Visits Nixon

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Prince Philip dined with President Nixon Tuesday night at a private affair and had breakfast with Vice-President Spiro Agnew today.

The Prince flew his private plane to Washington Tuesday from Sheridan, Wyo., where he had stayed at a ranch owned by Oliver Wallop, father of Lady Porchester, a friend of the Royal Family.

He arrived in Sheridan Oct. 31 after touring Canada to promote the Duke of Edinburgh Awards program.

Philip will continue on in New York later today where he will confer with UN Secretary General U Thant and Gov. Nelson Rockefeller.

At a banquet tonight, the prince will receive the Pilgrims of the United States' gold medal for outstanding contributions to Anglo-American relations.

He is scheduled to return home Thursday.

Canada To Abstain In UN Vote

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada plans to abstain again this year on the question of mainland China's admission to the United Nations, it was learned today.

The vote on Albania's resolution calling for the admission of the Peking government and the expulsion of Nationalist China is expected to be taken by the UN General Assembly in New York this Friday.

So far the government has carefully refrained from saying officially when way the Canadian delegation intends to vote on the issue.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp has repeatedly stated that Canada's position will be consistent with the status of negotiations in Stockholm on Canadian recognition of Peking China.

Talks between Canadian and Chinese diplomats in the Swedish capital, aimed at establishment of diplomatic relations between Ottawa and Peking, have been under way for more than eight months.

Ships Could Be in Hot Water

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario Hydro meteorologist Tuesday criticized suggestions that heat from thermal power plants could be used to keep the St. Lawrence River free from ice and extend the shipping season.

Donald A. K. Gillies, a delegate to the Conference for Users of the Great Lakes, said the effects of freeing the river from ice have not been looked into.

He said it is not known what effect the heat would have on winter weather—if it would stimulate formation of snowstorms in Montreal or increase fog, for example.

He told a discussion group on navigation and electric power that it probably would be impractical to get enough heat from power stations to free much of the river from ice.

Other members of the group said there were advantages to heating lake and river waters by the outflow from power stations.

Dr. A. D. Misener, director of the Great Lakes Institute of the University of Toronto, said bass spawning had improved as a result of the warm water from the Douglas Point nuclear power plant on Lake Huron.

Bread and Milk Price Differences Due Competition

OTTAWA (CP) — Regional differences in bread and milk prices have been caused mainly by business competition rather than illegal manipulations, federal investigators conclude in a report released Tuesday.

Several inquiries into bread and milk prices in Quebec and Ontario have been abandoned says D. H. W. Henry, director of combines investigation and research, because:

"The situation in both bread and milk appears to have been that whenever competition was vigorous, because of the existence of competing chain stores and other low-priced outlets, there were lower prices."

Eight In City To Run

Although nomination day is still two weeks away, interest is rapidly building up in Belleville's forthcoming municipal election.

As of today, a fight for the mayoralty is assured between incumbent J. Russell Scott and Alderman Richard Ellis.

Also five of this year's aldermen have decided to seek re-election, with four men from outside the council having announced their intentions of seeking aldermanic seats.

Both members of the Public Utilities Commission, Lyle Langabeer and John W. Deacon, have announced they will seek re-election to the two seats open.

Sitting aldermen who have announced their candidacy are Gerald Joyce, E. A. Orr, Arthur Keegan, Paul Russell and Enos David, leaving Aldermen Robin Jeffrey, Douglas Boyle, and Kenneth Sadden still to make up their mind.

Alderman Richard Ellis is contesting the mayoralty, while Donald Williams has moved out of the city and will not seek re-election.

Others who have announced intentions to seek council seats are Donald M. Soutter, Andre Mercier, Gerald Cunningham and Ray Bradshaw.

Retirement Marked

Hunter Shoots Self

The accidental shooting of a Kingston - area man yesterday etched the 1969 deer-hunt season in the Quinte district with tragedy.

Provincial police say 42-year-old Hubert Patrick Kelly, of Glenburnie was shot with his own rifle while hunting near Enterprise, about 20 miles northeast of Napanee.

Mr. Kelly was on a hunting trip with three companions when the accident occurred in bush near the 15th concession of Sheffield township.

Russell Seeking Re-election

Alderman Paul Russell, today announced his intention of seeking re-election at the Dec. 1 municipal election.

Ald. Russell said Belleville was progressing and that it was important to try to continue to provide the climate under which the progress can be continued.

"At the same time," he said, "we must watch our program so that we don't get growth merely for the sake of growth."

A member of the local law firm of Temple and Russell, Ald. Russell has served on council for the past two years during which time he has taken an active interest in the city's parks and recreational program. He is currently a member of both boards.

Looking ahead in anticipation of continued city growth, Ald. Russell said it was important that Belleville's parks and recreational facilities be increased as the city expands.

Another area of civic administration which Ald. Russell feels is of great importance is that of planning.

"We must give a lot of attention to planning and to work for early completion of the city's official plan."

In this respect he said he was pleased to hear of the recommendation for increased staff for the local planning board.

WELLINGTON — A nomination meeting will be conducted in the village of Wellington on Nov. 17. An election will be held for reeve and for councillors on Dec. 1.

Quinte Election Roundup

TWEED — The villages of Tweed, Madoc and Marmora will not hold elections this year.

Reeves, councillors and public utilities commissioners in these municipalities are elected for two year terms which expire in 1970.

Each of the communities elect a reeve, four councillors and two public utilities commissioners.

In Tweed, the term of one commissioner expires this year but since a commissioner can be appointed to the post, it is considered unlikely an election for the position will be called this year.

BANCROFT — A 4/5ths vote to be held in Bancroft Dec. 1 will be coupled with a municipal election for the village.

J. W. Gordon, clerk-treasurer for the municipality, explained that an election would be held Dec. 1 to elect council to a one-year term to coincide with school board elections, which elect trustees to two-year terms.

A nomination meeting will be held in Bancroft on Nov. 24 to begin the 21-day election. There will be an advance poll.

FRANKFORD — Municipal elections in Frankford will not be held this year as in other municipalities, but elections to council will be next year.

For 1970, Frankford council will continue two-year terms of office to coincide with school board elections, which put trustees in their positions for two-year terms.

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford will have no election Dec. 1.

The town's two-year terms of office for council already coincide with the elections of school board trustees who are elected to two - year terms as well.

Deseronto

DESERONTO — Residents will elect a mayor, reeve, three councillors and one public utilities commissioner Dec. 1.

The town elects its municipal officers on a staggered basis — the mayor, reeve, three councillors and one commissioner one year, then the councillors and one commissioner the next year. They serve two-year terms.

This year's election will be held Dec. 1, with polling booths open from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Nominations will be taken Nov. 20 at 7:30 p.m. in the Town Hall. There will be no advance poll.

Santa Claus Parade Dropped

Ben Corke, president of the Downtown Businessmen's Association, said this morning his organization was disappointed by the cancellation of the parade.

"But for some time we have recognized that the parade would have to be taken over from the firemen, who have done a great job for many years," Mr. Corke said.

"In order to put on a parade of the calibre of other years, a start must be made many months in advance."

He said the Downtown Businessmen's Association is in no position to organize the parade, build floats and carry the event through to a successful conclusion.

"As past treasurer of the parade committee, I can report that the audit shows an expenditure of $4,148 for the 1968 parade," Mr. Corke added. "This is more than the income. The necessary sum could not be raised again this year without a large tag-day and contributions in excess of those of former years."

Last year, the tag day raised $1,600 for the parade. The Downtown Businessmen gave $1,000 and the city $300. Several organizations contributed sums of $100 each, and a service club gave $200.

Officers of the re-organized committee, elected last night are: chairman, Bert Beddis, vice-chairman Lieut.-Col. Angus Duffy; secretary Mrs. Ruth Brauer and treasurer, Ley Shore.

Two honorary chairmen appointed are former Fire Chiefs Ted Poole and Gerald Vance. A board of trustees was appointed to take over the assets in the form of floats and costumes, from the Firefighters' Association.

Cunningham: Decisiveness Lacking in Civic Affairs

Mr. Cunningham, a Belleville and District Labor Council vice-president, today confirmed his intentions to contest next month's civic elections.

Besides two previous election bids, Mr. Cunningham's active community credentials include former membership on the Belleville General Hospital Board of Governors and one-time presidency of the city United Appeal. He also is an honor-graduate of the Labor College of Canada.

In his election announcement Mr. Cunningham was critical of what he called "a lack of decisiveness" in civic affairs.

This, he charged, "has placed us in the position of possibly losing such important projects as the Four Seasons Motel, the northend (shopping) plaza and the Bell Telephone centre.

"We have procrastinated regarding the matter of a new community arena. If this is contingent upon the adoption of an official city plan, then it's time this responsibility was met by council."

Belleville said Mr. Cunningham needs a major industry "that pays a decent wage."

Industrial acquisition is influenced by available facilities, including "the project we've lost, or are in danger of losing, as well as the recreational facilities we don't have."

He also suggested a special committee on youth might be established by city council.

Stirling To Have Election

STIRLING — The village of Stirling will have a municipal election Dec. 1.

To be elected for one-year terms are three councillors, a reeve and deputy reeve. Last year, the council was also elected for a one-year term of office.

In 1970 the council seats will be up for grabs again — this time for a two-year term, to permit council elections in the future to coincide with county board of education elections.

The nomination meeting will be held Nov. 24. There will be no advance poll for the election.

Another Foster Patrols Beat

Following in father's footsteps oftimes presents a hefty challenge. Particularly if father walked a police beat.

But Merle Foster is built for the job.

Standing six-three, he weighs in at 220 pounds as the second generation Foster to don Belleville's city police uniform.

The department's latest recruit, he mingles in the ranks with fifty veterans who shared law enforcement duties with a man fondly remembered by force — his father William "Buck" Foster.

The immediate postwar era made for a more boisterous community in those days and the senior Foster rapidly made a reputation as a law enforcer. His stature — nearly 280 pounds looming more than six feet — combined with a calm, unruffled manner in the most turbulent situations — made him an awesome figure in action.

Constable Foster died in 1960 — when Merle still was in his early teens.

Now a probationary constable, the latest Foster to join the force guesses police work "is a little bit in the blood."

However, his decision to enlist had little link to sentiment.

Law enforcement he believes "is interesting, more interesting than most jobs," he says, "and it seems to have a pretty good future."

Sealed with A Smile

Like other young people helping with Christmas Seal campaign, 15-year-old Penny Webster seems happy in her work — for good reason. There's the personal satisfaction of knowing chore of distributing seals will bring in needed funds for Hastings County TB association work.

Seals Packaged with Care In Annual Fund Campaign

More than 4,000,000 scraps of paper, designated for distribution through Hastings County, probably are worth their weight in gold.

Or, at least about $17,000. They have extraordinary appeal — as artistic entities and as a community project.

Now being prepared in Belleville are thousands of envelopes containing Christmas Seals — the annual reminders that the Hastings County Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association is still actively operating and in need of community support.

The little tabs are a familiar part of the bulky Christmas mail scene. Affixed by donors to letters and parcels they carry a public reminder of the continuing campaign against a disease still a perpetual presence even in today's sophisticated society.

For local associations like the Hastings organization, they also are the only source of operating funds. Despite the fact that recipients of the seals need only honor donations as a matter of conscience, returns usually increase each year.

"Last year we got $17,200", says association secretary Margaret Hallam, "We always hope for an increase but you never know what's going to happen." (Last year sales were up 1.6 per cent).

Mrs. Hallam couldn't be closer to the campaign.

Despatch point for the seals is her own home on Bleeker Avenue. Last night young people from the Tabernacle United Church BI-C group were totally involved in the operation. Tonight, she expected students from Moira Secondary School's Key Club to be on duty.

When the young people have completed the chore some 21,000 envelopes will have been sealed — containing anywhere from 100 to 300 seals.

The seals, annually designed by an artist of national standing, this year bear a Northern theme. In green and blue they draw obvious inspiration from Eskimo soapstone carvings.

The cash realized is put to work directly in Hastings County, says Mrs. Hallam, although a donation is sent each year to provincial and national associations for research.

Scope of the organization's work has broadened in recent years. Now, its campaign includes a drive against smoking.

Being currently enlisted in the fight are county school principals and women's institutes.

And while the provincial government has taken over the detailed chore of tuberculosis case discovery, there is still much work for the association in the field.

While drugs and serums have been evolved to contain many other diseases, no effective medicinal antidote has yet been discovered for TB, says Mrs. Hallam.

Its threat is underlined by its contagiousness, says Mrs. Hallam who is not certain the disease will be easily obscured from society.

"They've made great strides — there's no doubt about that," she says. "We'll see it eventually abolished — but not in our generation."

Water Talks Thursday

The chairman of the Ontario Water Resources Commission will meet Thursday with the councils of Thurlow township and the city of Belleville to outline what benefits smaller municipalities might receive through new legislation regarding grants toward sewer and water service installations.

Township Clerk Earl Dafoe said that D. J. Collins would explain the new legislation to his council and on the suggestion of the OWRC chairman Belleville council was also invited.

The announcement regarding the new legislation indicated that a ceiling would be put on the annual cost of services to the ratepayers in smaller municipalities and that grants of up to 13 per cent of the cost would be provided for "oversizing" of services to take care of future expansion.

The Cannifton meeting with the OWRC official was arranged by Hastings riding member Clarke T. Rollins.

This Campaign No Chore

Young Bellevillians work deftly in group to lighten kind-size campaign chore of packaging Christmas Seals for distribution through Hastings County. Seals, sent to 21,000 potential donors, are old source of funds realized by county's Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association.

Four Seasons Hearing Monday

The Ontario Municipal Board hearing on an application for rezoning of local waterfront property to allow construction of a $2,300,000 motel and communications training centre will get under way at Belleville city hall on Monday morning.

Plans by the Four Seasons Hotel to build on the Belleville waterfront were announced in June of this year but a construction start had been held up pending OMB approval of rezoning.

The motel would be used for ten months of the year to house the Bell Telephone employee training centre.

Present zoning permits motel construction on only part of the waterfront site and the principals wants proper zoning to cover the entire operation.

However, Sam Goodman, proprietor of the Sun Valley Motor Inn on North Front Street entered a formal objection to the rezoning and the Ontario Municipal Board ordered a public hearing.

Mr. Goodman based his original objection on the grounds that the Four Seasons project might "interfere drastically with the proposals to be recommened for urban renewal in downtown Belleville."

Since then the city has terminated its contract with Procter and Redfern who were doing an urban renewal study for the city.

But Mr. Goodman still feels that if fringe development is permitted the city's downtown area will never be redeveloped.

"There is no question that if all development is permitted it will detract from the downtown area," he said.

He feels that with proper planning private interests would be ready to invest in the downtown area.

Teams Reach Accord; Wilson Union to Vote

Current contract negotiations at Wilson Concrete Products tonight will directly involve those for whom the issue is being waged.

A snap call went out today to organize a general membership assembly of United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers' Local 424.

The meeting, set for 8 p.m. at Club Canara, will hear the results of one of the toughest bargaining sessions involving the local.

Negotiators for both sides stood up from the bargaining table in the bleary morning hours today, ending a marathon 17-hour dialogue.

Behind closed doors at the Sun Valley Motor Hotel, both teams wrestled with disputed issues striving for common ground until 3.30 a.m.

The results of the protracted debate were as closely guarded as the session itself.

No details were publicized and are not expected to be known until after tonight's meeting of Local 424.

"Both sides negotiated well, I would say," was the only reaction from Arthur Slaght, president of the local and a key figure on the union panel.

However, added Mr. Slaght-ley, both delegations mutually agreed immediately after the talks ended that no details would yet be made public.

The Sun Valley session renewed contact between both sides in the dispute on which the union originally served notice for a $1.50 across-the-board hourly wage increase.

The talks were resumed after a telephone call Monday from company vice-president James Clarke to Donald Burnham, the union's district representative.

Rev. J. Neal Inducted As Rector

DESERONTO — Proof that the ecumenical movement is a reality was evident in St. Mark's Anglican Church in Deseronto last Thursday evening, when the Rev. John R. Neal was inducted as rector of the parish. In the processional were 15 clergymen representing the Anglican, the United and the Roman Catholic Churches. Other clergymen were in the congregation, which crowded the church to capacity.

The sermon was preached by a Roman Catholic priest, Rev. James R. Roach of Salem, Mass., chaplain of the Salem State University. Mr. Neal made his acquaintance at the Ecumenical Institute near Geneva, Switzerland, last year, Father Roach brought greetings from Cardinal Cushing, Archbishop of Boston.

The service was conducted by the Right Rev. K. C. Evans, Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario; and the Venerable W. L. Simmons, Archdeacon of Ontario and rector of the Church of St. Mary Magdalene in Napanee.

Refreshments were served later in the parish hall. Arrangements for this informal hour were made by the newly formed Family Life Group, whose chairman is Mrs. Ted Lindsay.

Picton Pays Its Dues

PICTON — Picton residents this year are making prompt response to a taxing situation.

Town clerk Andrew Jarvis reports that as of Oct. 31, $608,000 has been collected in tax money.

Municipal Election

With more than three weeks to go before Belleville's December 1 municipal election the pace is quickening.

Mayor Dr. J. Russell Scott, Alderman Gerald Joyce, Alderman Arnold Orr and Alderman Art Keegan are among members of the present council who have announced they are running again.

Interest in the campaign is all the keener, moreover, with a contest for council leadership. Opposing Mayor Scott is another member of the present body, Alderman Richard Ellis.

New candidates for election so far are newspaperman Donald Soutter, Andre Mercier, believed to be the first member of the local French Canadian community to offer himself for council, and Belleville Labor Council president Ray Bradshaw.

One of the first to announce his candidacy, Mr. Bradshaw said that though welcoming any support from the labor council he would not be a labor candidate as such, but sought to represent the whole city. He declared himself in favor of more industry, recreation facilities and housing.

Mr. Soutter envisages regional government in the Belleville area within a few years and suggests decisions affecting the city must also be taken with the whole Quinte area in mind. He is urging a positive approach to urban renewal, and attention to the waterfront which he sees as a prime asset, as well as emphasis on industrial growth and housing.

Mr. Mercier, active in community work — he is a director of the Red Cross locally, founding president of the Club Alouette, and connected with Scout and Navy League work — sees involvement in municipal work as a means of promoting the city further.

Alderman Joyce is concerned that portions of the interim urban renewal study do not reflect today's picture of urban growth and community attitudes. For example, he says the city consultants' continual reference to slow growth industry is erroneous, as plant expansion and increased employment have shown. He points also to the role of Loyalist College in promoting local industry. Seven hundred night students alone are taking courses to upgrade their skills, with potential benefit to local industry.

Alderman Orr, a two-year member of council, believes that in addition to completion of present and planned traffic projects, improvements in the city's north-south arteries and downtown area problems must be tackled. The former Collegiate principal is also for continued industrial and commercial development and sound community planning, not forgetting the need for keeping pace with sewer and water services.

It promises to be an interesting election. It will be a vital one, too, for Belleville voters. An estimated 19,400 persons are on the ballot lists and with the city at the turning point in many spheres of activity it is to be hoped as many as possible will go to the polls.

'Pot' Probe?

Since even the medical profession is not fully cognizant with the effects, harmful or otherwise, of marijuana, the suggestion of Dr. H. B. Cotnam, Ontario chief supervising coroner, that experiments should be conducted with a select number of people over a set period of time to determine if the drug is harmful, has merit.

It is no use closing our eyes to the problem of drug addiction in society and this is one way of tackling it. But whether marijuana should be legalized is another thing; the drug apparently affects different people in different ways.

Confirming this, a Brockville physician, Dr. Anthony Dunn, told a service club audience recently that marijuana alters a person's sense of perception, space and time.

"And we know," he added, "that chronic users become lethargic, and mal-nourished, and just plain sick."

Consider also this fact: a 14-year-old Calgary school girl who had taken drugs wrote a note to her classmates last week. In it she spoke of drug-induced depression and "black moods." Then she picked up her father's gun and shot herself.

A girl of 14 — killed by her own hand (like Art Linkletter's daughter and she was only 20) because of drugs. Is it worth encouraging countless other deaths by sanctioning marijuana or any other drug? It is a disturbing thought.

Big Powers Seek Settlement

Middle East Peace Talks Move to New York

By STEPHEN SCOTT

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The big-power search for a Middle East settlement staggers to New York this month where representatives of Britain, France, the United States and the Soviet Union will continue talks broken off July 1.

In a way the decision to return to the four-power talks is an admission of failure on the part of the Soviet Union and the United States of private talks in Washington during the summer and fall.

As far as can be determined about all that was achieved in Washington was a clarification of points of disagreement.

One knowledgeable Western source said Monday that it is expected that the talks will be held about the middle of the month.

Some observers expect that the talks will be distinctly icy because of exchanges between Soviet Union and the United States last week which questioned each other's sincerity in the search for a Middle East peace.

But one informed Western big power source said this may not be the case and that the strong anti-American remarks of the Soviet Union need not be considered a "danger signal."

A Soviet foreign ministry statement last week called for resumption of the Big Four talks and added that "unfortunately it cannot be stated that the contacts which have taken place have produced tangible results."

Then it went on: "The reasonables in the obstructionist line of Israel and the one-sided attitude taken by the representatives of some Western states who assume that Israel should benefit from the aggression it committed."

The U.S. replied in a strong attack.

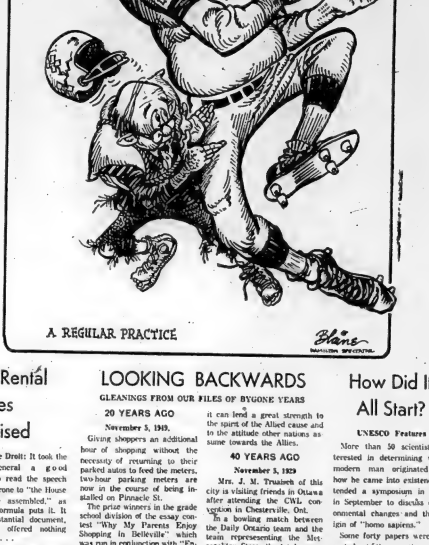
The Western source said the Soviet attack was to be expected and he did not expect it to interfere seriously with the working of the group.

But nobody is holding out a hope for an early agreement among the four. No matter how many attend these kind of talks, there must be agreement between the U.S. and the Soviet Union. And they are far apart on the basic points of Israeli withdrawal from captured territory and solution to the Palestinian refugee question.

The U.S. and the Soviet Union also are looking at each other with strong suspicion about the Lebanon situation which will complicate the renewal of talks.

The objective of the big-power talks is to recommend to Gunnar Jarring, the UN's representative in the Middle East, a course of action that could lead all sides in the area toward settlement.

There are a couple of hopeful things that might help the Big Four in their task. Israel may be in a more viable position now that its national elections are over and Arabs might be more willing to reach a compromise because of their fears of the difficult-to-control Palestinian commando organizations.



A REGULAR PRACTICE

A Serious Question Gets Silly Answer

Ottawa Journal

An example of a good question in the House that failed to procure information:

HON. GEORGE HEES (Conservative — Prince Edward-Hastings): May I direct a question to the Minister of Industry, Trade and Commerce. As Canada's export trade has been expanding at half the rate experienced by Great Britain, the United States and Japan and at one-third of the rate experienced by the 10 principal industrial countries of Europe, would the minister take the first opportunity on motions to outline to the House and country what steps he and his Department plan to take to bring our rate of increase of export at least up to the level of our principal industrial competitors?

HON. JEAN-LUC PEPIN (Minister of Industry, Trade and Commerce): I will send copies of my recent speeches to the hon. member.

MR. HEES: I read the minister's speeches and there is nothing in them to indicate that any steps at all are to be taken to increase our trade in any way whatsoever.

The figures in George Hees' question would be enough to set off concern in the mind of the average Canadian. To Mr. Pepin they stimulated merely the standard kind of sophomoric reply which Liberal ministers have been giving lately. In turn, Pepin's wit evoked a childish chortle of glee all along the Government benches!

Later the same day the Prime Minister ended his address by saying: "I look forward to a productive and effective session which will bring deserved repute to this House." If he means this, he and his Government should answer intelligent questions intelligently.

Low-Rental Homes Promised

Ottawa Le Droit: It took the Governor-General a good half-hour to read the speech from the throne to "the House and Senate assembled," as the ritual formula puts it. It was a substantial document, although it offered nothing really new. . . .

There is one department which we are led to predict will increase in importance, and it is that of Mr. (Regional Development Minister Jean) Marchand. The objective of the government is to stimulate employment and economic growth in regions handicapped by climate or geography, to give Canada the means to face "the challenges of the post-industrial era."

This phrase belongs to the vocabulary of rhetorical clichés, but since it is accompanied by the government's promise to have built in five years 1,000,000 new and maintain by low-rental dwellings, we can no doubt hope for a liberalization of taxes on construction materials and a reduction of interest rates, the main obstacles to renewed activity in this field.

Repeal of the arms embargo under the United States neutrality law satisfies the viewpoint of most, American and that the "cash and carry" plan is a safeguard in keeping the United States out of war. Under the embargo Britain, France, Canada and the rest of the British Dominions have been unable to purchase munitions in the United States, while neutral nations could trade pretty much if they desired. There is a moral importance in the measure for it can lend a great strength to the spirit of the Allied cause and to the attitude other nations as some towards the Allies.

More than 50 scientists in terrased in determining where modern man originated and how he came into existence attended a symposium in Paris in September to discuss environmental changes and the origin of "homo sapiens."

Some forty papers were presented at the meeting. They looked at the period under consideration, from 40,000 to 30,000 years ago, from four main view points.

Man's physical evolution and, in particular, the question of whether all Neanderthal men represented an evolutionary dead end or whether some contributed to the development of "homo sapiens";

Evolution of Old Stone Age industries and cultures;

Dating of human remains by various methods;

The natural environment and its possible influence on man's evolution during this period, with emphasis on climatic changes and their effects.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nov. 5, 1903 . . .

Britain, following the lead of Russia, declared war on Turkey 55 years ago today — in 1914 — after two German warships which had become units of the Turkish Navy, but under German command, attacked Russian ships and ports in the Black Sea. France also declared war on Turkey. Germany had offered the ships — the Breslau and Goeben — to Turkey after the British government commandeered two Turkish dreadnoughts under construction in Britain.

1956—Color TV was first tried in England.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today — in 1944 — Field Marshal Sir John Dill, head of the British joint staff mission in the United States, died; 3rd Fleet carrier planes destroyed 249 Japanese planes on second successive day of a raid on the Manila area; Field Marshal Montgomery launched a new attack near Arnhem, dropping sabotage parachutists behind Arnhem bridge.

Cars, Clothes, Top Sales

Ontario Government

Retail sales in Ontario reached a record $2,800,000,000 in 1968 — 8.7 per cent higher than in 1967. For the first time in three years, sales by motor vehicle dealers increased substantially, rising almost 12 per cent to more than $1,600,000,000.

Sales by Ontario department stores rose 12 per cent, while food stores, general merchandise stores and garages advanced from 8 to 10 per cent. Men's clothing stores enjoyed a brisk 8 per cent sales increase, while other clothing and food stores held to gains of close to 5 per cent or less.

Hamilton Spectator

It was only a few years ago that a newspaper or magazine writer who wanted to show that his subject was in the million-aire class would write that a man had "a wardrobe of $125 suits."

The rest of us, who were buying our two pants, hard-wearing worsteds off the rack at $35, were suitably impressed.

Now, we notice, $125 is the advertised SALE price of men's suits in many stores. It makes one wonder what the millionaire's model is selling for these days.

Senior Citizens' Experience Should Be Put to Use

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

The suggestion that a Company of Older Canadians be set up as a government alternative to the Company of Young Canadians has merit.

More Canadians are living longer today and getting excellent health because of advances in medical science. Why not put them to work, improving Canada? After all, the late Pope John proved that young people do not have a monopoly on new ideas. He made sweeping changes in the Roman Catholic church although he was in advanced age when elevated to the papal throne. And many Canadians over 65 or 70 still must have promising new ideas for the development of a better Canada too.

The concept that our senior citizens are unproductive or opposed to change is a false one. Individuals vary, and age has little to do with it. Besides, the experience to be learned in the professions and so on during a lifetime of Canadian citizenship would be of considerable value to retired men and women in analyzing the ills of the establishment and putting Canada's social house in order.

In short, the Senate is perhaps already a company of older Canadians. But its function is not as a continuing check on parliament if necessary in the consideration of legislation. It has little ability (and probably little inclination) to get out among the people, hear their views and find ways and means of improving society. Besides, Senate appointments are largely political and a company of older Canadians should be chosen from all the main streams of Canadian life.

What About Alcohol?

United Church

In spite of, or perhaps because of, the many articles and television programs on drugs, most parents have evidently reached the first point regarding drugs and the young.

The more most adults warn about marijuana, the more their hypocrisy shows.

Many young people are aware of the dangers of marijuana. They have also seen the dangers of alcohol. They consider them both to be mood-modifying drugs. Both are drugs. Many have experienced both, know the differences, know the similarities.

Young people are aware of the fact that many parents, anxious, puzzled, righteous, to lecture the young about alcohol the first point regarding drugs and the young.

And that is the first point. It must be dealt with before there can be useful discussion, between adults and the young, on mood modifiers whether inhaled or imbibed. . . .

Service Costs Cut

Pensioners Aided by Banks

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

A short time ago I protested an action by banking authorities when they increased by one cent the service charge for each cheque issued against a true chequing account.

I suggested that this was a cheap means for this part of the banks just when Mr. Trudeau was appealing for co-operation by labor and industry in the government's effort to control inflation.

A bouquet now to the Bank of Montreal for their recognition of the financial squeeze currently experienced by senior citizens who are dependent on fixed incomes and who have no effective way to check the erosion of their standard of living caused by inflation.

While the having of the costs of certain services may not represent a large saving to individual pensioners, it will mean considerable expense to the bank concerned and program the required changes in all the branches across the country. I hope other banking authorities will inspire similar recognition of the plight of pensioners by following the lead of BMO and hopefully by the federal and provincial governments who, if they are aware of the serious effect which inflation has upon pensioner groups in the country, apparently are unwilling to take any action that might alleviate the problem for them.

Renovation Ends

Hospital Adds 54 Beds to Capacity

A major recovery operation is in its final phases at Belleville General Hospital.

With its conclusion, the hospital's patient capacity will be greater by more than 50 beds.

Next Monday will see the return of patients to what was once a core of BGH activity.

But the surroundings may be only vaguely familiar.

Scene of the move is what formerly was the hospital's west wing, second patient floor — known for years as second - west.

The floor — which also housed the hospital's paediatrics section — was temporarily vacated this year with the February opening of BGH's spanking new quarters.

But plans called for its return to service as quickly as possible. As patients moved out, work crews moved in to begin a months-long refurbishing project.

With the hospital's maintenance staff doing much of the chores, the floor was rehabilitated into a new environment.

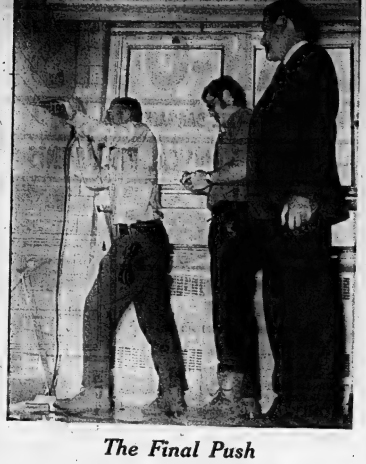
Replanned, refurnished and redecorated it now becomes BGH's extended-care units, for patients under treatment for lengthy periods, says administrator Phillip Rickard.

Added is maternity accommodation on the floor above and the new wing's 313 beds, it gives the hospital a bed capacity of more than 400.

The project is the latest phase in a continuing modernization process that has made Belleville General Hospital one big construction project in recent years.

And there's more to come.

Scheduled for the future is demolition of original hospital quarters dating back to the late 19th century, construction of a new laundry building and an administration wing.



The Final Push

Belleville General Hospital administrator Phillip Rickard pauses to watch workmen in final stages of revamping hospital's former second west-wing floor, into quarters for extended care patients. Starting Monday, the refurbished area will provide 54 more beds — giving BGH total accommodation for more than 400 patients.

Duncan McDonald First to Announce

TRENTON — Councillor Duncan McDonald has become the first candidate to announce his intention of contesting the mayoralty in the up-coming municipal election.

Tuesday afternoon councillor McDonald announced he would resign his council seat Friday and run for the mayor's position in the Dec. 1 elections.

According to the municipal act, a councillor intending to resign and seek another office must file his council resignation not later than 10 days prior to the day of nomination.

Nomination day in Trenton is Nov. 17, so Duncan McDonald will just meet the deadline with his resignation Friday. McDonald's resignation Friday will terminate his service immediately. He will lose the second year of his two year term and will also be disqualified from the remainder of this year's council meetings.

The Canadian Pacific Railway's passenger service representative in Trenton, McDonald has served eight years on council and has contested the mayoralty once before.

That was in 1965 when he was defeated by the present mayor James MacDonald.

Mayor MacDonald, who is now completing his 10th year in office, said this morning that he hasn't yet decided whether he will run in the coming election.

B. C. Longshoremen Again Reject Strike Settlement Proposals

VANCOUVER (CP) — Longshoremen's union officers and members of the British Columbia Maritime Employers Association reserved comment in the face of Tuesday's rejection of revised contract proposals by B.C. longshoremen.

Andy Kotowich, Canadian arcs president of the ILWU, announced the results of the vote Tuesday night but said he would have no further comment until after an executive board meeting called for 2 p.m. today to discuss further policy.

E. M. Strang, president of the employers association, was not available for comment Tuesday night.

Meanwhile in Ottawa, Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey said he was disappointed with the results of two days of voting by the 3,200 dockworkers. He said he had nothing further to say until later today.

Mr. Mackasey, who was in Vancouver last week to guide renewed talks between union and employers, said then that if a settlement was not reached soon he would be forced to use legislation instead.

Ninety-two per cent of union members voted on the newest proposals with 58 per cent of them against acceptance.

Earlier company proposals, approved by union negotiators, were rejected by 70 per cent of the membership two weeks ago.

The dockworkers agreed then that a wage increase of 85 cents an hour, in a 27-month contract was satisfactory. Pre-strike base rate was $2.88 an hour.

Federal mediator William P. Kelly, who had been working with both parties to reach a settlement, said Tuesday night if the dockers expect a legislative settlement "they will have nothing to gain."

Mr. Kelly said there will be no further mediation attempts by the federal government.

"I think the union executive and membership will have to do some soul searching and see what their own difficulty is. The membership has repudiated their negotiators who, I think, had done a pretty good job on their behalf."

The new proposals, which were agreed upon during the weekend by union negotiators and company representatives, further provided for six-man minimum work gangs in B.C. ports and assured longshoremen they would not be required to work overtime if there were other men available.

During the voting, Monday and Tuesday, there were reports of dissatisfaction over a lack of a guaranteed number of hours per week, but these were unconfirmed by the union.

The strike began Sept. 25.

Professor Wants 'Pot' Made Legal

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Legalization of marijuana for all persons more than 18 years old and the release of all prisoners now in jail on marijuana convictions are advocated in a brief prepared by a University of Windsor professor.

Dr. W. Spellman, head of the department of Asian studies, submitted the brief to the committee reports to John Munro, medical use of drugs. The committee reports to ohn Munro, federal health minister.

In the brief Dr. Spellman recommends that present legislation on marijuana should be rescinded; that it should be legal for anyone over 18 to sell or possess it and that "the provisions of the law with respect to police power to search and seizure be denied on marijuana cases."

He also advocates the release of all those in jail on marijuana convictions and that their criminal records be "expunged in this matter and special provisions made in aid them in educational and employment opportunities."

Absent Lawyers Castigated

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Provincial Judge Gordon R. Stewart Tuesday took to task duty counsellors who do not show up in court.

Appearing before him was a 17-year-old youth facing three serious criminal charges including armed robbery. No duty counsellor was present to advise the youth.

"This is another case where a man takes on a job to act as duty counsel, then doesn't show up or make any arrangements," the judge said. "... I'm just a little sick of it."

Judge Stewart said men who are now listed as duty counsellors never appeared in court before legal aid started to pay them. Now, he said, every lawyer in the city has become a "criminal lawyer."

"They only come to court when they've nothing else to do," the judge commented. "Some of them couldn't find their way to a courtroom with a compass."

Hitch-hikers Said Raped

ST. THOMAS (CP) — Two London men are to appear in county court today charged with raping two 14-year-old girl hitch-hikers Monday night near Glencoe, 25 miles west of here. Police released no names.

The two girls, from Kingston, told police they were picked up outside Windsor by two men. The car was later stopped on the outskirts of Chatham at a police roadblock.

Dean Named

He succeeds Dr. George Stanley, who went to Mount Allison University, Sackville, N.B.

Dr. Cairns, a native of Galt, was appointed head of the political and economic science department in 1964, four years after he came to RMC. He will continue to hold that post.

AID SHIPPED

VANCOUVER (CP) — A shipment of materials to aid civilians in North and South Vietnam has left Vancouver for Vladivostok where it will be received by the Soviet Red Cross. A spokesman for Canadian Aid for Vietnam Civilians said the Soviet organization will transfer the medical goods, school supplies and clothing to Red Cross representatives of North Vietnam and the National Liberation Front in the South.

Belleville in Step with Maxi Coat Trend As Younger Set Go for Latest Fashion

By NANCY BARRIAGE
Women's Reporter

If you haven't noticed already, Belleville is right in step with the current fashion fad — the "maxi" coat.

For the proud owners of maxis there will be little fear of freezing legs this winter. They can be worn with mini and midi skirts and even pants. They come in a variety of styles and materials anywhere from vinyl to softly textured elegant rabbit's fur designed to catch the eye of any fashion-conscious girl.

Maxis seem to be selling well in Belleville according to some sales people interviewed. Walkers Dept. store has sold approximately 35 already and there is still a good stock of them on hand. Artistic and Rachael's are also selling them this winter and hope to sell several more in the near future. This reporter was told that the "younger set" is buying the majority of these sold. However some saleswomen are hesitant about selling them to young girls for fear of parental disapproval.

Some of the "older generation" believe that the fad will not last and next winter the coats will be obsolete. One survey taken by the Star Weekly drew a mixed reaction. A woman spokesman for a Montreal manufacturer had this to say: "It's not practical for Canadian weather—slosh sloshing along slushy, muddy streets dragging frozen hemlines is not my idea of fashion."

Just for curiosity sake The Intelligencer interviewed some of Belleville's male population to get an indication of their reaction to the maxi. The results were rather enlightening. Most males do not like the maxi — they prefer to see a girl's figure rather than have it "left up to the imagination" as one male phrased his comment.

One fact is certain—this winter girls will have to make a difficult decision — whether to wear a maxi for style and warmth and risk male inattention or dress for the male and possibly freeze.

'Fur' as They Can Go

Enough to Stop A Policeman

The sharp contrast of fashions on Belleville streets since the maxi-look has become popular was enough to catch Deputy Police Chief Harold Reid's interest on Tuesday afternoon as Mrs. Gary Stewart in maxi coat passes Irene Taylor on the steps of a downtown bank. Visiting her home city Mrs. Stewart purchased her coat in Winnipeg and is wearing it over a black pant suit.

Talk Given by Director of Social Services

MARMORA — Members of the Marmora Chapter IODE met recently for their regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Douglas Miller. Reginald E. Tucker, Director, Social Services Dept., Belleville, was guest speaker and gave a most informative and enlightening talk on some of the services his Department, is responsible for in the County of Hastings.

The Regent, Mrs. William Regan, presided for the business meeting. Mrs. Douglas Miller, treasurer, reported that two recent projects, rummage sale and bake sale had been most successful. The members voted to have a draw for a basket of groceries, which is a regular feature of the annual fund raising program.

Mrs. H. H. Borland, services convener, reported that a donation had been made in the air drop of Christmas parcels for children in the North West Territories. Further, that almost a quarter of a million dollars had been spent by the IODE National Services Committee, with one-third spent for services overseas and the balance in Canada.

A bridge party is being planned for Thursday, November 13, in the Marmora Public Library, with Miss Miriam Savage and Mrs. Alice Stark as co-conveners. A thank you note was read from the Scott Mission for clothing donated and members were invited to attend a tea in Norwood, sponsored by the Norwood Chapter, IODE.

The educational secretary, Mrs. Gordon Bennett, advised that the donated reference books are being shipped to the Chapter's adopted school in Labrador. Mrs. Bennett also stated that plans are being formulated for the 2nd Science Fair.

At the next meeting, members were asked to take articles for layettes, which will be packed then.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Leonard Bicknell, Mrs. Granville Meiklejohn and Mrs. Alice Stark.

Less Cavities For Breast-fed

TORONTO (CP) — Babies fed from the breast for at least three months have 46 per cent fewer tooth cavities than bottle-fed infants.

Mrs. Clement Thompson, president of the La Leche League International, told a recent meeting here that the American Dental Society study also showed that in communities where fluoride was added to the drinking water the percentage increased to 59 per cent.

The attractive mother of seven said this reduction in tooth cavities was only one advantage of a mother's milk.

Mrs. Thompson, who founded the league 11 years ago when she had trouble getting information or encouragement on breast-feeding, said another study of 2,000 families where parents had allergies showed that 60 per cent of bottle-fed babies developed similar sensitivities while only 18 per cent of breast-fed infants did.

She disagrees with the current idea that a breast-fed baby ties the mother down.

"Breast-fed babies are so portable you can take them anywhere without bothering about bottles and formula," she said.

She claims doctors and nurses now receive virtually no instruction about breast-feeding, but with natural childbirth becoming more popular, the trend to breast-feeding is increasing.

Club Activities

LAMBDA CHAPTER ALPHA DELTA KAPPA

The regular meeting of the Lambda Chapter, Alpha Delta Kappa was held at the home of Mrs. Faye Burnett.

Pretty Brunette Sings Way Across Canada

HALIFAX (CP) — Newfoundland's Anne-Marie Murray, an attractive brunette with two ambitions—"to sing and see the world"—is singing her way across Canada.

The young singer from Placentia, Nfld. has a contract with Canadian National Hotels that will keep her busy until Christmas on a cross-country tour.

After that, she plans a visit back home, and then perhaps a trip to Europe—to sing and see, or just to see.

Before she went to the Chateau Laurier in Ottawa for a five-week engagement, she charmed lounge patrons at the Hotel Nova Scotian's Chart Room here with selections ranging from love ballads, some of which she composed herself, to Newfoundland folk songs.

From the time she was five or six, Anne-Marie knew she wanted to sing, she said in an interview here. She also wanted to see the world.

She started to prepare for the first ambition after she finished high school when she went to the Royal Conservatory of Music in Toronto for three years of study.

Back in Newfoundland, she taught music to children, and with her sisters did some entertaining around St. John's. By 1967 she was working as a solo entertainer and writing a song for Newfoundland's "Come Home Year."

Soon she was booked at the Hotel Newfoundland, where she performed, on and off, for 18 months in the friendly and cramped confines of the Captain's Keg.

There she met some people from Miami who invited her to perform at the Seaview on the Ocean Club in sunny Florida for a week. One of her Florida fans was Hubert Humphrey, then U.S. vice-president, who told her he was impressed with her singing.

Last summer she realized her second ambition, when she and a sister toured Europe—"I love the Old World; there's no hurry"—and she even got a chance to sing in a Dublin nightclub.

After her cross-country tour, if she doesn't head back to Europe, she may go to the United States to try her luck at making a career in the really big time.

Or maybe marriage will come along, which means "putting my husband and children before my career," she said.

In between, or during any one of these possibilities, she said she would like to make an album, with her own compositions on one side and Newfoundland folk songs on the other.

'Housewarming' Party Held by W.I Group

A "Housewarming" party was held Saturday evening, Nov. 1 in Rose Valley WI centre with over one hundred people in attendance. There were 20 Institute members in the group as well as guests from Toronto.

The president of the Institute, Mrs. Roy Tucker welcomed all present and Mrs. Sheldon McIntosh and Mrs. Philip Conley conducted the sing song.

Linda, Isobel and Margaret Hoard and Hilda Talma gave a musical number and dance. Then humorous selections were read by Mrs. George Grills and also by the president.

Miss Jeannette Hoard contributed a piano solo and Mr. and Mrs. Glen Bennett rendered a duet.

Two special messages were given by the public relations officer, Mrs. Percy MacMullen and the curator, Mrs. Roy Bush.

Mrs. MacMullen gave an outline of all the Institute activities since the first organization at Stony Creek in 1897 and she traced the growth, when in 1969 there are over one million members of the Associate County women of the world.

Mrs. Bush displayed the Tweedsmuir History Book and told of the many changes that have taken place since River Valley WI was organized in 1910.

The president told of the various plans that had been made since June when the school was closed and the institute assumed responsibility.

Mrs. Glen Bennett, treasurer of the property committee, thanked all contributors and conveners. The recent appeal for funds was gratifying and this money will be used to improve the centre and to provide light and heat.

Mrs. Jack Bush conducted a humorous game and the two refreshment groups served lunch.

Spice Cake with Luscious Topping

By MARY MOORE

This is one of those cakes that gathers glamor as it goes. You add some batter to the pan, then spread on some mixed spices, more batter, more spices. When it comes from the oven an easy luscious topping is spread on and broiled for a few moments. This is a cake reputation maker.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Meat Loaf with Catsup Glaze; Scalloped Potatoes; Chive Buttered Carrots; Tossed Greens; Dessert Pears; Crackers and Cheese; Tea.

SPECIAL SPICE CAKE

1 cup dairy sour cream
1 tsp. baking soda
½ cup shortening (room temperature)
½ tsp. salt
1 cup granulated sugar
2 eggs
1 tsp. vanilla
1¾ cups sifted all - purpose flour
2 tsps. baking powder
½ cup brown sugar
2 tsps. cinnamon
½ tsp. nutmeg
½ tsp. ground ginger
½ tsp. allspice

In a small bowl combine sour cream and soda. They will double in volume.

In beater bowl blend shortening, salt and granulated sugar until light then beat in eggs and vanilla. Sift together flour and baking powder and add alternately with sour cream mixture. Line bottom of 8" square pan with wax paper and grease it and sides of pan. Spread half of the batter in the pan. Mix together the brown sugar, cinnamon, nutmeg, ginger and all spice and sprinkle half over batter. Repeat with another batter and spice layer. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 45-50 min. Cool cake a little before removing from pan to cake rack. While still warm spread with Pineapple Topping:

Mix together 2-3 cup light brown sugar, 2-3 cup well-drained crushed pineapple and 2 tbsps. soft butter. As soon as topping is spread on cake slide (on rack) under broiler and brown until it bubbles — but, watch it! It takes only a few moments. Cool.

Only Seven Girls in Cast of Over 300

OTTAWA (CP) — Seven girls and 300 men.

Those are the odds in the British Tournament and Tattoo touring cities in the United States and Canada until Nov. 26.

"We get on very well with the men, too," Paula McKie of Manchester, a 20-year-old member of the Parachute Regiment's team of gymnasts, said in an interview between performances here recently.

"They escort us around each new city when we arrive because they don't like us to go out alone," said her Dorset-born team mate, Anne Read, 19.

Six of the girls, all army members, take part in the gymnastic program, while the seventh, Capt. Lorna Mortimer, 23, of Aberdeen acts as chaperon for the girls.

Paula, a lance-corporal, has been in the army for 2½ years and Anne, a corporal, has just over two years of service.

This is the girls' first trip abroad, and they were especially entranced by Montreal.

"It's so friendly and clean," said Anne. "And the audience was with us all the way."

But the show isn't all applause and adulation. It can be downright dangerous, as Paula discovered at the beginning of the tour in New York.

"She slipped and hit her head and required several stitches to close the wound," Capt. Mortimer said. "But instead of worrying about her injury, she was more concerned with the fact her eye makeup was rubbing off."

Both girls had had some elementary gymnastic experience before they were asked to join the parachute gymnasts. Training for the tour started last April.

Wardrobe and hairdos present no problems. Warm but baggy maroon gym suits cover figure-hugging red leotards used in practice and shows.

Most of the girls do their own hair but if a special coiffure or cut is called for, Paula has a way with tresses.

Child's Brain Needs Right Stimulation

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. Donald Hebb, a McGill University professor of psychology, says there is scientific evidence that if a child does not receive the right stimulations at appropriate ages his intelligence will be permanently impaired.

Bombarding an infant with complex information is naturally pointless, but at 10 years of age he may respond favorably to it.

On the other hand, if deprived of sufficient physical and intellectual challenges in the first 15 years of life, a child's brain dulls and becomes sterile.

Dr. Hebb, famous in the field of psychological research, considers his experiments in stimulus deprivation to be his most important contribution to science.

His interest was triggered by publication of studies done on children raised in orphanages, Kentucky mountain children and youngsters reared on canal boats in Britain.

The orphans, who were kept in cribs and received only perfunctory handling by nurses at feeding time, were extremely retarded. Many could not sit up at 12 months, were slow to walk and even slower to talk.

Children in the other two groups were also mentally impaired, but physical development was average.

Dr. Hebb said it appeared they had received sufficient stimulation prior to age five but were deprived in the next decade.

To get final proof, experiments would have to be done on 200 infants at a time, under laboratory-controlled conditions. However, since half these children would have to be raised in a sterile environment, physicians consider it immoral to deprive them deliberately of stimulation which later helps adults cope with problems.

Therefore, Dr. Hebb did the next best thing—he experimented with dogs, whose brains approach the complexity of those of humans.

First, it was necessary to define two types of intelligence—the genetic or potential endowment at birth and what existed after a person had been through his childhood experiences.

After weaning a group of terriers, Dr. Hebb placed them in comfortable cages with two compartments. While they were in one section, the other was cleaned and food deposited for the dogs.

This meant they could smell and hear the lab assistant who handled the cages but they never saw him. Nor did the terriers see any other dogs. They were never handled and never exposed to problem-solving situations because they had no problems.

The result was that at 11 months, the puppies were healthy and seemed happy but were stupid. Dr. Hebb described them as "completely untrainable," a diagnosis confirmed by a terrier expert.

Dr. Hebb believes these tests were valid proof that the same thing would happen to humans under similar conditions.

In fact, the low intelligence scores some Negroes register in tests can often be attributed to their rearing in slum areas, he says. If raised in a less stultifying environment, their IQs would shoot up.

Dr. Hebb, a native of Nova Scotia, obtained his doctorate at Harvard University and has taught at McGill since 1947.

He has written numerous scientific papers, two books and has been awarded eight honorary doctoral degrees. In recognition of his knowledge and accomplishments, Dr. Hebb served as chairman of both the Canadian and American psychological associations.

Other Hebb experiments which attracted public attention were those done in the 1950s to determine what effect complete isolation had on the minds of adult humans.

They proved it was possible to break a man simply by confinement. There was a distinct deterioration of thinking capability, but it was temporary and capability returned to normal a few hours after the experiment.

From the tests psychologists also learned that boredom produces hallucinations, a finding which could explain otherwise inexplicable plane, car and truck accidents.

Thirty long-distance truck drivers interviewed said they while driving. Drivers in city experienced hallucinations, where there are interruptions of traffic, and people and buildings, said they did not.

Dr. Hebb believes the desire to escape boredom is as basic as the hunger, pain and sex drives. This wish for distraction and excitement could be one reason why men continually are at war, he feels.

On an equally controversial topic, Dr. Hebb said women are smarter—socially and verbally—than men. But men are better at quantitative and mechanical matters.

A lifetime of psychological observation, however, has convinced him women do not aspire to be company presidents and prime ministers.

Being socially oriented, they would rather manipulate people in a more personal manner. They would rather run the company president than the company.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Tracy squirms and wiggles all over the table when I try to change her diaper. It's a wonder I don't stick her with the pins more often."

Grandmother: "Babies hate to be still at her age."

A 6-month-old baby can be so energetic, it really takes two persons to change or dress her, but a little ingenuity may be substituted for the extra pair of hands.

Mother: (to baby) "Would you like to look at this book? See the picture of the baby." (to grandmother) "Tracy will lie still for a few minutes if she has something to distract her."

BONARLAW — SPRINGBROOK WI

Mrs. Cyril McKeown opened her home for the October meeting of the Bonarlaw - Springbrook WI with 20 members and two visitors present.

Mrs. W. J. Barlow gave a report of the last meeting and dealt with the business. Donations of $10 were given to the Home for Mentally Retarded Children in Plainfield and to the Christmas gift fund for shut-in patients in nursing homes and hospitals.

It was decided to hold a card party at Harold Hall on Nov. 18 and Dec. 2.

Mrs. James Spry reported on the convention at Belleville.

Guests were Mrs. Bailey and Mrs. Tobin of Madoc. Mrs. Bailey gave a short talk and Mrs. A. V. Brown spoke on "citizenship." Mrs. George Williams gave an address on the topic as well.

Mrs. Spry conducted two contests and passed Hallowe'en candy for prizes and Mrs. George Williams conducted the penny auction.

The meeting closed with a dainty lunch served by the hostess and her assistant.

Mrs. Everett Heath will be the hostess for the November meeting.

Red Cross Entertains Sr. Citizens

DESERONTO — At least 75, and possibly 80 Deseronto senior citizens enjoyed themselves Wednesday afternoon in Stover Hall of the United Church as they were entertained by the Deseronto branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society. Transportation was arranged by the Society for those who needed it. Mrs. Donald Dawson made two trips to Hastings Manor in Belleville, to make sure that Mrs. Orpha Travers and Mrs. Mary Young could enjoy the party with their former neighbors.

Rev. William Hendry, minister of the church led in a sing-song, with Mrs. Helen Tunnicliffe as accompanist.

Tables were set up for those who wished to play bingo, with Gerald Lott as head man. Others chose euchre, supervised by Mr. Hendry. Still others elected just to sit and reminisce. Among the visitors for the afternoon was Rev. Robert Jones, minister of the Presbyterian churches in Picton and Deseronto.

Small tables then became tea tables, each centred by a Hallowe'en container and filled with after dinner mints. These were the work of the Explorers, whose leader, Mrs. Kay Hood, heads the senior citizens' committee for the Deseronto branch of the Red Cross.

Many prizes were awarded. Merchants had contributed groceries, and these became first and second door prizes. Mrs. Harry Glover won first prize and Percy Stover won second.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Foster were lucky winners of two major prizes. The first was for the couple whose wedding anniversary was nearest the date of the meeting, Mr. and Mrs. Foster had celebrated 60 years of marriage the previous Saturday, October 25.

An entertaining program followed.

Loves Fiance Deeply, But Not His Name

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am engaged to be married. I love my fiance deeply. The thought of carrying his name for the rest of my life and handicapping our children with it makes me terribly unhappy. His name sounds like a dirty word.

Is there any law that says a woman must take her husband's name when they marry? Could he take hers instead? Our family name is simple and pleasant-sounding and I would much rather have it than his. What is supposed to the idea and I think he's being unreasonable. Please comment. — NAME OF THE GAME.

* * *

DEAR GAME: Your opinion is not legal. It's emotional. A man's name is important to him — even if it does sound like a dirty word.

I can readily understand your fiance's reluctance to trade his name for yours. In our society, females are coming on stronger and stronger. Your suggestion could well be interpreted as the ultimate attempt at emasculation. Don't press him or he might wind up letting you keep your simple, pleasant-sounding name and give his to somebody else.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You aren't wrong very often, but when you are wrong, madame, you are very wrong! Your advice to unfortunate people who must live with a gabby relative was off target. Time doesn't help these beleaguered victims. It merely wears them down.

I eloped at a tender age to get away from a non-stop talker — my mother. I realized, too late, that her continuous talking drove me out of the house into a disastrous marriage. Believe me, Ann, I have listened to her for 70 years, and if it were possible to become accustomed to incessant jabbering I would surely be used to it now. My mother is nearly 85 and dead as a whatever. This is, of course, a tremendous advantage for her. She doesn't hear herself. She can't get along with a single soul. She is never wrong. No idea is good unless she thought of it. She is understandably frail, her eyesight is poor and her hands are unsteady. But her vocal cords, the part of her anatomy which has every right to be worn out by now, are better than ever — BUNIONED EAR NUMBER TWO.

* * *

DEAR BUN: For those of you who must contend with the running commentary of a non-stop talker: and there were many who wrote: I should have suggested earplugs. They do work!

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a middle-aged male who never thought I'd be writing to you, but here I am. Now you can say, "Welcome to the Club."

The problem is our daughter-in-law. She is driving us crazy. Our son, Buddy, left her three months ago for good reasons which I won't go into here. The girl telephones or comes over every night and cries her eyes out. She wants us to help her get Buddy back. We can do nothing for her.

My nerves are shot and I am sick of the sight of her. My wife is a wreck from listening to this nutty girl repeat, in minute detail, stories which are trivial and irrelevant. How much do we owe her? What do you suggest? — POINT OF NO RETURN.

DEAR POINT: You don't owe her your sanity. Tell her to get professional counseling since she obviously needs someone on whom to unload.

So Little It Takes to Make One Sad or Glad

By DORIS CLARK

It takes so little to make us sad . . . just a doubting word or a slighting sneer . . . just a scornful smile on some lips held dear . . . and our footsteps lag, though the goal seemed near . . . and we lose the courage and hope we had . So little it takes to make us sad.

It takes as little to make us glad . . . just a cheering clasp of a friendly hand . . . just a word from one who can understand . . . and we finish the task we long had planned . . . and we lose the doubt and the fear we had. So little it takes to make us glad. — Author Unknown

* * *

Dear Doris: This summer during the hot weather we camped out among our trees, right here on our farm. We bought a camp stove and burned scrap lumber and brush for fuel.

Parents, give your boys and girls a chance to enjoy the outdoors at home, right from spring until fall. Let them rough it a little — use an empty lard or honey pail to boil water in, and drink tea or coffee from a tin cup. In the early fall they can roast ears of green corn with the husks still on in hot coals.

With a second-hand tent the young folks can try home camping out. They will learn what our pioneer settlers did:

The years are past and gone forever,
Since my father's prairie schooner
For a port beyond the horizon.
Where the sky line never fades,
And where God and God's creations live alone. — Filius Terrae

Dear Filius: Lovely! I know city dwellers whose youngsters pitched pup tents in tiny backyards and giggled most of the night; others with half - size barbeques giving oversize meals to hungry teens.

DORIS CLARK

And many who would envy you the broad expanse of your farm home to pitch a tent in.

* * *

Dear Doris: I noticed a letter from a woman with a husband with an obviously alcoholic appetite, and smiled when she said that he says he has no drinking problem. How true that is she will perhaps some day realize.

At the moment he has no drinking problem. She is the one with the drinking problem (By this I mean it's not a problem to him, only to her. He is enjoying himself.) Until it becomes a problem to him — until he realizes that drink is making his life miserable— he will never see any need to stop.

Since she is the one with the problem, it is up to her to decide what she intends to do about it . . . ignore it, cater to it, fight it, walk out on it, seek help for it, or whatever. — S. M.

Dear S.M.: You're right! And for that very reason Al-Anon came into existence: to solve the problems of the wives. For one thing, by talk and sharing a woman can get the general idea that she might stop covering up for her erring mate — or he may never come to and see what he's doing to everybody. And she gets the strength — in herself — to detach herself emotionally.

* * *

Anonymous letters are bad manners and may be ignored. When writing in, give Doris your right name and address. It will be kept confidential.

Exemptions Made To Languages Act

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has exempted certain customs and excise posts and certain services of Canadian National Railways from complying immediately with the Official Languages Act, which became law Sept. 7.

Exempted until Sept. 10, 1970, are customs facilities, including the international bridges at Cornwall, Sault Ste. Marie, Landsdowne and Prescott, Ont.; and airports at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and North Bay.

Services of Crown owned CNR exempted include:

—Passenger trains operating between Montreal and Toronto, between Toronto and Ottawa and between Toronto and Capreol until Oct. 31, 1972;

—Railway stations at Pembroke, North Bay, Longlac, Smooth Rock, Hornepayne, Welland and Windsor, all in Ontario, until Aug. 31, 1974.

CN Offers New Service For Travelling Salesman

TORONTO (CP) — The idea may not be new, but the Canadian National Railways hopes it is having a resurgence: travelling salesman toting his wares in a railway car.

In the 1969 version, however, the whole company sales staff is involved. The wares can fill several railway lounge cars converted to display anything from television sets to furnaces and kitchen sinks.

The railway also supplies auxiliary services as specified; stewards, porters, bartender, liquor, and complete buffet meals for every car.

The display cars hook onto regular passenger or freight trains for the run to the next destination. Between runs, they're dropped on a downtown siding where they become showrooms and dealer-customer meeting places.

The railway has not yet come up with an official name for the service, although its public relations department likes Showroom on Wheels.

"We think it should be a good source of revenue, if the idea catches on," says F. A. Rowell, CN's supervisor of sales and services, in charge of the project.

"It puts our spare club and lounge cars to use in the fall and winter, when they aren't needed on regular passenger lines.

"The timing should work well for the companies too. They usually change product lines in the fall—a good time to show the new merchandise to dealers."

He admits the idea originated not with the railway but with John Saso, sales manager of Clairtone Sound Corp. Ltd.

Anxious for a good image after two loss-making years, Clairtone last summer rented two club cars for a month, put its newest television and stereo models in one, a representative sales force, two CN stewards and a barman in another, and set off on a 10,000-mile round trip to dealers from Vancouver to Halifax.

It cost Clairtone about $30,000 —"approximately the same price as hotel accommodation," Mr. Saso says. "But apart from the convenience of having permanent displays, and a place to entertain dealers and guests, we saved valuable time by not having to pack and unpack equipment everywhere we stopped."

Clairtone later said the tour was a great success.

The railway's price for the cars varies according to the time, equipment, and service wanted. Mr. Rowell says $15,000 a car for a coast-to-coast tour would be a good average price. But the railway will quote as low as $500 for one car, with steward and buffet, for a day's display.

Mr. Rowell says the railway is working with a number of companies for displays in the new year.

"One man from an English silver company flew over just to look at the setup," Mr. Rowell says. "His company is considering combining with a china manufacturer and taking 10 to 12 cars across Canada."

"One of the children comes down with something, and before you know it, they're all sick. I've found the cost of medicine is kept down at Towers Drug Department".

"Of course, I try to prevent these little outbreaks of illness in our home. Like . . . I make sure all the kids take vitamins regularly. We can afford to because we get all our health and beauty aids at Towers Drug Department. We like their prices, and their people."

Lower prices on quality goods has always been a Towers policy. Towers Drug Department reflects this policy in all the drug items your family uses. From cosmetics to prescriptions, you'll be pleased with the prices at Towers Drug Department.

Language Bill Backed 89-5 By Quebec 'Moderate Majority'

QUEBEC (CP)—The people who often describe themselves as representatives of Quebec's moderate majority spoke up Tuesday night.

The national assembly of Quebec voted 89 in 5 to endorse the principles of the Union Nationale government's language bill.

The Liberal Opposition joined with the government to vote second reading of Bill 63, target of several student demonstrations in Quebec.

The vote was the first by the assembly guaranteeing Quebec parents the right to choose English or French schools for their children.

This principle has been under attack since 1968 when a school board in the Montreal suburb of St. Leonard made a move toward French-only instruction.

The assembly is expected to resume study of the language legislation Thursday and a procedural battle is in the offing.

The five dissidents in the 108-seat house included two rebel government backbenchers whose negative votes could cost them their party membership.

Antonio Flamand (UN—Rouyn-Noranda) and Jerome Proulx (UN—St. Jean) ignored party policy to vote against the bill.

Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand told reporters that the bill represents government policy and that the caucus would decide what to do with the rebels.

Others who voted against the bill were Rene Leveque, leader of the separatist Parti Quebecois, Yves Michaud (Ind—Montreal Goulin) and Gaston Tremblay (Ind—Montmorency).

Mr. Michaud, a 35-year-old journalist, quit the Liberal caucus last week rather than vote for the bill during second reading.

Mr. Flamand, a 36-year-old teacher, said the bill would only speed up the process of Anglicization of French Canadians.

Mr. Proulx, 30, another teacher, somersaulted politically, first announced he would vote for the bill, then said he would vote against it.

His self-described confusion arose from Premier Bertrand's announcement that there will be two government amendments.

One amendment would empower the Office de la Langue Francaise to encourage Quebec employers to make French the working language in industry.

The other amendment would bilvite immigrants to choose schools of Quebec's French-speaking majority.

Apparently satisfied, Mr. Proulx said he would vote for the bill. But less than two hours later he changed his mind.

Two other dissident backbenchers, Denis Bousquet (UN—St. Hyacinthe) and Fernand Grenier (UN—Frontenac), walked out prior to the vote.

The vote in favor of Bill 63, an act to promote the teaching of French in Quebec, was accompanied by desk-thumping applause of most members.

Immediately after the vote, Mr. Michaud presented a motion, seconded by Mr. Leveque, to refer the bill to the constitutional committee.

Speaker Gerard Lebel said he would announce his decision on the acceptability of the Michaud motion Thursday.

The dissidents can be expected to wage a procedural battle in an attempt to delay or block passage of the bill.

CYC Inquiry Opens

OTTAWA (CP) — A Commons inquiry into allegations of subversion in the Company of Young Canadians learned little in its opening session Tuesday.

The first witnesses, members of the CYC new permanent council, said they didn't know much about specific cases because they were either too new on the job or had been away for too long.

They said however that a policy directive Oct. 19, two weeks after they took office, bans partisan political involvement and has cut by five the 70 or so CYC members, volunteers and trainees in Quebec province.

"We will deal in good faith with any complaints," said Council Chairman Jack Johnson.

William McWhinney, said that as acting director for nine months in 1968, he was in before the CYC began running into the publicized problems.

The Liberal Opposition plans to introduce amendments to elevate French to a position of priority over English, but the government has the force to push the bill through the house against the existing opposition.

Algoma Steel Strike Settled

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Algoma steel workers, their strike settled by a narrow voting margin, may be back at work by late this afternoon.

The members of Local 2251, United Steelworkers of America, voted 2,587 to 2,319 Tuesday night to end their walkout against Algoma Steel Corp. which began Aug. 28.

A total of 4,936 workers cast ballots out of a membership of more than 6,700. There were 30 spoiled ballots.

A meeting is scheduled with management at 9 a.m. to work out details of a memorandum of agreement. Company officials announced prior to the vote they were ready to recall employees as soon as the agreement was signed.

Algoma officials now will concentrate on a strike by about 700 members of the United Transportation Union, out since Oct. 16. The only outstanding issue is wages.

Company officials have said they intend to operate the plant without the UTU members if necessary.

Two groups who earlier settled their grievances and awaited settlement of the strike here before returning to work were 600 at the company's Wawa operations, north of the Sault, and about 800 office and allied plant workers.

The wage package, said to be identical with that received by employees of the Steel Company of Canada Ltd. in Hamilton, Ont. when they settled their strike recently, will give the Sault workers an increase of 75 cents an hour over three years, retroactive to Aug. 1, 1968.

They will get 25 cents at once, 20 cents Aug. 1, 1970 and the remainder a year later. The basic minimum wage previously was $2.51 an hour and the average wage $3.12.

Workers will also get a cost-of-living bonus in the second and third years and improvements in the welfare and vacation package.

Prison Terms Said as Destructive as Drugs

OTTAWA (CP) — Lengthy penitentiary sentences to young drug offenders are as destructive as the drugs themselves, a Calgary lawyer said in an impassioned Commons plea Tuesday night.

Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North) urged the government to help create a compulsory educational program for youth to teach the perils of drug-taking and the "terrible jail sentences" they face if caught.

He was one of the concluding speakers during the eight-day throne speech debate which began Friday, Oct. 24. The Commons later approved by a voice vote the traditional address in reply to the throne speech.

Today the House returns to normal business with scheduled consideration of two bills arising out of the June 3 budget. They extend to the end of 1970 the three-per-cent surtax on personal and corporate income, and amend the customs tariff and the Excise Tax Act. Both were given routine first reading Tuesday.

In other business Tuesday, Prime Minister Trudeau tabled in the House the report of a three-man study group on government information services.

It recommended creation of a new agency—Information Canada—to tell Canadians about their government. The report offered scathing criticism of existing information services and said it found many information officers unhappy in the service.

Mr. Woolliams accused Solicitor-General George McIlraith of attempting to mislead the House through his replies to questions by Mr. Woolliams earlier about the conviction and sentencing last week to a total of 29 years of seven Calgary youths on drug charges.

Manpower Minister Allan MacEachen, the only minister to enter Tuesday's debate, said the proposed white paper on social security, expected this session, will show what accommodation the government has made between the options of expanding present welfare schemes and establishing a guaranteed annual income.

Mr. MacEachen branded opposition speeches during the debate as examples of "obsessive negativism" and said non-confidence motions had been vague and general.

The government easily batted down four opposition non-confidence votes during the throne speech debate. It defeated Conservative motions 113 to 94 and 91 to 46, an NDP motion by 105 to 53 and a Creditiste confidence test 165 to 13.

Standing in the 264-seat Commons: Liberal 154, Conservative 72, NDP 22, Creditiste 14, Independent 1, vacant 1.

Former prime minister John Diefenbaker entered the debate Tuesday with an attack on the government for chiselling away "our cherished traditions."

This was a reference mainly to the throne speech in which the Queen's name "was brought into it in a shabby and discourteous manner."

Pharmacies to Provide Drug Information

TORONTO (CP) — The newly-created Council on Drug Abuse in Canada will dispense advice on the dangers and uses of drugs at drug store information centres as part of a massive education program, it was announced Tuesday.

Nicholas Leluk, executive director, told an inaugural luncheon that the first step in a four-point action program would be creation of information centres in some 5,000 pharmacies across Canada.

Also planned are the preparation of films for television and theatre use, introduction of an educational program for Grades 6 and 10 and involvement of pharmacy and medical students in universities in anti-drug programs.

Health Minister John Munro told about 400 persons attending the luncheon that the council represents a "major breakthrough" in dealing with "one of the most dangerous" problems in today's society.

The council, formed 18 months ago by members of the pharmaceutical industry, plans a general fund-raising drive to commence shortly and has issued an appeal for various businesses to underwrite "special projects" at a cost of $1,000 to $5,000 each.

Mr. Leluk said in an interview that although the council now represents "the establishment," there are plans to offer general membership to young persons at a nominal fee.

Murray B. Koffler, council president, said the organization eventually may enter areas of research, rehabilitation and drug legislation but is primarily interested in preventive education.

Mr. Leluk said members of the Canadian Pharmaceutical Association generally are in agreement with plans to sell CODA memberships to pharmacists who would receive special kits containing information on the non-medical use of drugs.

The first phase of the program would begin with a pilot project among Ontario's 1,800 pharmacists and expand later across Canada, he said.

He also said CODA probably would not distribute information on marijuana, at least initially, because there is no scientific evidence available on its effects.

In his speech, Mr. Munro reported that a research group at Halifax's Dalhousie University has been studying the effects of marijuana on animals for some months and that the federal government is "prepared to support . . . research on human."

Information Work Will Be Revamped

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau says he expects to outline before the end of the year plans for revamped government information services.

He made this comment Tuesday as he tabled a two-volume report, the result of a year's study, by a three-man task force appointed by himself.

In the current fiscal year, the report estimates, information services by government departments, agencies and Crown corporation are costing $140,000,000 — a "vast amount."

It says these services are in a mess of confusion, contradiction and incompetence mainly because no federal government has ever delineated an information policy.

It urges definition of such a policy by a cabinet committee and, to help put it into effect, creation of an apparatus to be known as Information Canada which would, among other things, pump out all government press releases on its own wire service.

The report says strengthened information machinery—there are already 800 federal information personnel—could lead to government manipulation of public opinion.

Consequently, it recommends some safeguards.

One would be annual review of government information policy and services by a parliamentary committee.

The three members of the task force were D'Iberville Fortier, 41, former chief of the external affairs department press office and now ambassador to Tunisia. Bernard Ostry, 42, former CBC producer, and Tom Ford, 33, Toronto newspaper man.

The group takes as its basic premise: "The government has an obligation to provide full, objective and timely information; and the citizens have a right to information."

It suggests that, to a start, the government make public its deliberations on formulation of a new information policy.

Quinte, Moira Teams Game Away from COSSA

Quinte and Moira Secondary Schools each have a football team that wants to make Nov. 11 a day to remember for their respective student bodies.

Both the senior Saint and junior Trojan Bay of Quinte high school football champions have only one hurdle between them and a berth in COSSA games Tuesday the 11th.

The Saints, who wrapped up their title Friday after a perfect 7-0 season, travel to Oshawa tomorrow for a 2 p.m. COSSA semi-final game with Oshawa Eastdale.

The winners will meet Kawartha District senior winners Thomas A. Stewart of Peterborough in Tuesday's COSSA game.

"If we beat Eastdale, we'll have the COSSA game on our home field, probably a 1 o'clock game Tuesday," noted Quinte coach Jack Sisson. It'll be interesting if we meet Thomas A. Stewart. They're coached by Wayne Gilroy, one of our students at Quinte a few years back."

Meanwhile the junior Trojans will play their COSSA semi-final at home Friday at 1.30 against visiting Oshawa Central. Also coming off a perfect 7-0 season, the junior Trojans' 302-for-34-against points record was the best in both categories by any district team.

The winner of Friday's game will play Kawartha junior titlist Adam Scott Collegiate in Peterborough Tuesday.

This year's 'A' representatives in both junior and senior are Nicholson teams who were forced to an exhibition schedule when Madoc left last year's four team district "A" league in favor of the eight-team "AA" grouping.

Nicholson Seniors lost their COSSA semi-final yesterday 34-8 to Bowmanville in only their fourth game of the season.

Coach Dennis Duggan's charges won a pre-season exhibition with Moira seniors and a pair of home-and-home games with Tweed.

Tomorrow, Nicholson juniors travel to Bowmanville for their COSSA semi-final. A win there would give Nicholson a home game for COSSA with St. Peter's of Peterborough.

Nicholson juniors split a home-and-home set with Tweed, and lost 33-12 to the powerful Moira Trojans in their only activity this season.

In Caesar's hey-day, the Roman sports fans had a simple way of showing their approval or lack of same at the fun and games served up to them in the Circus.

If the spectators turned their thumbs skyward, they were pleased with the performance of their "entertainers."

Thumbs down, and every lion in the place had a Christian sandwich.

Problem these days at Belleville Mo-Hawk games is that everyone's thumb seems to be pointing one way.

Last Sunday's convincing 6-2 dispatching of Barrie Flyers by the local seniors was a case in point.

There's no question why only about 900 people were on hand to watch the Mo-Hawks' best display of the year to date. Hadn't they lost to last-place Woodstock Friday night and didn't that mean that Barrie would probably pummel them Sunday, on home ice or no?

The only logical thing to do, then, was to curl up in front of the magic box and watch O. J. Simpson try to earn his half-million.

That accounts for Fickle Company, but what about the lethargic herd that DID make Sunday's game?

Their reaction to a first-class home-team effort was anything but ardent.

Oh sure, there was the spontaneous "Yayyy" when Belleville scored, but that's a reflex action. You'd do the same thing if someone stepped on your foot, but that would hardly qualify you as a charter member of a cheering section.

What we have in mind is a genuine positive vocal indication by the hometown fans that they are, indeed, alive, and not merely paintings on the seats to make the Mo-Hawks feel good.

The only "Go Hawks, Go" we heard Sunday came after a small, but enthusiastic group of Barrie supporters had started a chant of their own.

Anyone who doesn't think hometown bleacher support means a lot to a team has either never played hockey, never talked to somebody who has, or both.

On the other hand, everybody seems to think $1.50 buys them the right to badmouth visitors, referees AND Mo-Hawks alike.

You'll hear the railbirds yell "C'mon, get the puck out of here, yahoonja!", but how often will the same loudmouth cheer the same player for setting up a pretty pass-play or scoring a big goal?

The players don't mind, in fact, expect to hear the wrath of Joe Fan for a minute. They also expect, and rightly so, that good efforts on their part will meet with some smattering of applause.

It hurts when you hear a carload of fans behind the visitors' bench making more racket than 1,000 hometowners.

Last year's Kingston visits were prime examples.

This may come as a shock for some, but Belleville Mo-Hawks are NOT going to win a world championship this year.

Not even an Allan Cup, if you'll pardon a lapse in optimism.

And anybody who doesn't have that straight better decide right now why he goes to the arena Friday nights and Sunday afternoons: to indulge in some personal fantasy or to lend support to a group of hard-working hockey players who intend to do their best to win.

Apollo Lifters Tops in Country

By MAURICE SWITZER

Apollo Barbell Club coach Ken Carr-Brainl gets the gist of the joke where the drunk falls down an open elevator shaft and says: "Boy, that first step is murder!"

It took the local weightlifting club a long time — five years, to be exact — to gain its first championship. And it was nine years after the club's 1961 inception before John Lewis brought a Canadian title to Belleville.

Since then, the titles have been coming as fast as that quick step down the elevator shaft.

The 33 - member club attained the pinnacle of its success yesterday with the announcement that three of its members are Canadian champions.

The performance of light-weight Enos Evans, light-heavy Art Walt and middle-heavyweight Gary Walt in the weekend's Ontario Intermediate championships have stood up as standards for weight-lifters across the country, coach Carr-Brainl announced.

Third brother Bob Walt, 30, won the 165 - pound class Ontario Intermediate title in Woodstock, but his 730-pound three - lift total wasn't the best in the dominion.

"Baby" brother Art, 17, is Canadian intermediate champion in the 181 - pound class by virtue of a 750 aggregate, while Gary, 21, won middle-heavyweight honors with 725.

All told, there are 11 titles now held by the Apollo Club's 33 members. "Can you think of a better average?" beamed Carr-Brainl, who has been Canadian national coach in three international competitions.

Bad presses in May's Quebec City national meet cost heavyweight Price Morris the Canadian senior championship he had held for five consecutive years, but he still reigns as Ontario champion and his three - lift 1,030 and his 408 clean-and-jerk are Canadian records.

"You might think this is ridiculous," said Carr-Brainl, "but we're the biggest club in Canada. The average is only five or six members. "At one time, we were as high as 67 m

The serious lifter's training program of two or three hours daily keep the members down.

Right now, all Apollo efforts are being geared towards the British Commonwealth Games Trials, to be staged in Belleville in May.

About six of the local club's lifters will be serious contenders for the three positions on the team that will represent Canada in the Edinburgh games.

DRAMATIC COMMERCIAL — Bobby Hull, recording radio commercials Monday in Toronto, had trouble getting his tongue around the word "dramatic," a term which is a capsule summary of his hockey career. After tapings, he headed for Chicago to rejoin Black Hawks and end his temporary retirement from hockey. (CP Wirephoto)

Hull Closer to Hawks, But Not to Playing Hockey

CHICAGO (AP) — Bobby Hull and Chicago Black Hawks were in conference Tuesday night but no decision was expected immediately in the dispute between the high-scoring left winger and the National Hockey League club.

Hull, who scored a record 58 goals for the Hawks last season, announced his retirement before the current season started because of a contract dispute.

Although Hull last year signed a four-year contract at an estimated $100,000 annually, the Golden Jet has complained the Hawks have not lived up to certain agreements outside the legal pact.

Hull has missed the Hawks' first nine games during which they have won two, lost six and tied one.

Look Out League!- Habs' Casualty List Growing Shorter

By CHUCK SVOBODA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

At least some of the pieces fell back into place for Montreal Canadiens in the last few days and their prospects for another National Hockey League championship appear stronger.

The defending Stanley Cup champions started the season with four stars sidelined and two more added to the casualty list in the early going.

Also sidelined was left winger Gilles Tremblay whose recurring respiratory ailment has put his hockey career in jeopardy, and captain Jean Beliveau who was suffering from fatigue at the beginning of the season.

But Beliveau is getting back into stride, Duff has given up his retirement plans, Ferguson has all but forgotten his fractured thumb and Cournoyer is recovering from a fractured nose.

The little right winger is expected to appear with a face protector tonight when the Canadiens on home ice against Minnesota North Stars.

J. C. Tremblay is out with an injured left hand but could be back next week.

The Canadiens have dropped all the way to fourth place in the East Division standings, but are only one point behind Detroit Red Wings and two behind Boston Bruins and New York Rangers who share the lead with 14 points.

And to make things easier, tonight's game is one of four against West Division clubs in the next five for the Canadiens. In between they play host to Toronto Maple Leafs.

Cournoyer's return to the lineup will likely mean Pete Mahovlich or Marc Tardif of the Voyageurs will not dress for the Canadiens. Defenceman Guy Lapointe remains with the club in place of Tremblay.

The club said Duff will resume skating today but there was no indication when he might be ready to play.

Another player trying to get back into shape is veteran centre Orland Kurtenbach of New York Rangers. The NHL club assigned him Tuesday to Buffalo of the AHL for further conditioning after a spinal fusion operation last year.

Rookie John Weling has taken Kurtenbach's place in the lineup. Back in action with the Rangers is team captain Bob Nevin who suffered a knee injury early in the season.

Bobby Hull was in Chicago Tuesday for talks with Chicago Black Hawks, but no immediate decision was expected on his contract dispute with the club.

Toronto will be trying to extend its current undefeated road record tonight against Los Angeles Kings. After a 4-4 tie with Boston Bruins Sunday, the Leafs whipped Oakland Seals 5-2 in the only scheduled game Tuesday night.

The Leafs, now just two points behind the Canadiens, continue their road trip at Montreal Saturday and Chicago Sunday.

Murray Oliver got two Leaf goals in the second period after captain Dave Keon answered first period score by the Seals' Doug Roberts.

Left winger Paul Henderson made it 3-1 for the Leafs early in the third period. Ted Hampson scored for the Seals but Jim McKenny, a defenceman playing right wing, got his fourth goal of the season to wrap up the scoring for Toronto.

The Leafs defence was slack in the first period allowing the Seals to break through for 13 shots on goalie Marv Edwards but they tightened up and allowed only three shots in the second and eight in the third. Toronto outshot Oakland 37-24 through the three periods.

Only 4,672 fans saw the Seals take their third loss in four straight games against East Division clubs.

Other games tonight have New York at Chicago, St. Louis Blues at Boston and Detroit at Pittsburgh against the Penguins.

YVAN COURNOYER

This NHL Scorer Even Had Hull Beat

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Who in the National Hockey League was the most prolific goal scorer on the basis of the number of games played?

Maurice (Richard) Bobby Hull? Gordie Howe?

Wrong—it was Babe Dye, who played 45 years ago with Toronto, Chicago and the old New York Americans and who scored 202 goals in 253 games.

Cy Denneny, who played with Ottawa and Boston and was a contemporary of Dye's, is second with 246 goals in 334 games.

Hull ranks third, Richard fourth and Howe is away back in 10th place.

It's all there in the NHL Guide for the 1969-70 season, a 436-page work edited by Ron Andrews, publicity director and statistician for the NHL.

The Guide was a 240-page work when Andrews took it over in 1963 and at that time it included Stanley Cup statistics. Ron cut out the Stanley Cup facts and figures—today he puts those out in a separate volume—and expanded the Guide to its present formidable form.

The pocket-sized publication can be found bulging the jackets of every writer who covers the NHL and many who have never seen a big league game other than on television.

This year's press run went 14,000 copies and is for sale in every rink in the NHL. In addition, it goes overseas to hockey writers and broadcasters in Sweden, Finland, Czechoslovakia and Russia.

Andrews explained that he found Blake's record by going back through all the individual game reports filed during the time Blake was active as a player.

It's a far-out hockey question that can't be answered by turning to the Guide. Toe Blake, former coach of Montreal Canadiens, challenged the book last year on his own personal record.

"I don't know how many games I played in my career," he said. "How can you possibly know?"

Windsor Wants In

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A group of Windsor, Ont., men will make application to the Ontario Hockey Association next season to obtain a Junior A League franchise for the city.

Ed Dougherty of Windsor made the announcement at London Tuesday, and said the group had already expressed verbal interest to the OHA and was willing to pay the existing franchise fee of $30,000.

Nats Pull Out Late Tie

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada's national team scored two goals in the third period to tie Montreal Voyageurs 3-3 in the second of a two-game exhibition hockey series Tuesday night before 2,000 fans.

The Nationals won the opening game 2-1 Monday night.

Third-period goals by Chuck Lefley and Steve King salvaged a tie for the Nationals, who never led.

Scorers for the Voyageurs, who lead the Eastern Division of the American Hockey League, were Jules Dresila, Bob Berry and Guy Charron.

The Nationals' first goal was scored by Fran Huck.

Montreal protested in the third period when eight penalties, including two misconducts and a game misconduct, were called against the Voyageurs by referee Lou Joyal of Winnipeg.

Assistant captain Larry Hickey was ejected from the game for arguing a minor penalty to Jean Gauthier. Gauthier also drew a misconduct.

Montreal drew 15 of the 22 penalties.

Ken Dryden stopped 26 shots for the Nationals. Phil Myre and Jack Norris split netminding duties for the Voyageurs, stopping a total of 25 shots.

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario schoolboy curling playoffs have been scheduled for Jan. 31 at Kingston, the program's director said Tuesday.

Ross Paull of Guelph said the playoffs at Kingston's Cataraqui Golf and Country club will involve winners from eight divisions. The winner of the knockout tournament represents Ontario in the Canadian championship at St. erome, Que.

Western Conference Keeping Foot in Canadian Football

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Football League's final statistics for the 1969 season show the Western Conference is keeping the foot in football.

Five of the top seven scorers in the WFC were place kickers while only two kickers appeared in the top seven spots in the Eastern Conference.

Total points of the Western Conference kickers who finished among the top scorers was 430 while the eastern specialists booted 205.

Jack Abendschan of Saskatchewan Roughriders won the western scoring championship and emerged as the league's highest scoring kicker with 118 points on 42 converts, 21 field goals and 11 singles.

Tommy Joe Coffey of Hamilton Tiger-Cats won the EFC title with a season CFL record 148 points but almost half the total came on the offensive end's 12 touchdowns. Don Sutherin of Ottawa Roughriders, second in the EFC, tied Abendschan with a 118-point total but the Ottawa defensive back's scoring included one touchdown.

Some might argue that Abendschan's kicking also decided the final playoff spot in the Western Conference. The 245-pound offensive guard kicked a field goal in the final minute of Sunday's game to give the Roughriders a 27-25 victory over Edmonton Eskimos.

The Eskimos were eliminated from the playoffs with British Columbia Lions earning the third position on their two victories out of three games against Edmonton.

The top three quarterbacks in the WFC appear in the playoffs starting Saturday when the Lions meet the Stampeders in Calgary.

Calgary's Jerry Keeling, with 229 passes completed out of 411 for 3,179 yards and 20 touchdowns, meets the Lions' Paul Brothers who completed 200 of 405 for 2,671 yards and 14 touchdowns. The winner goes against second-place passer Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan in the final.

Lancaster, voted Most Valuable Player in the WFC for the second consecutive season, had a 188-354 passing record for 3,-194 yards and 25 touchdowns.

The Lions go against the Stampeders with the second best kicker in the conference—Ted Gerela—and a defence that intercepted 28 opposition passes during the season to equal the mark set by Edmonton in 1954 and tied by Ottawa in 1957.

But the Stampeders boast a powerful kicker as well in Larry Robinson who totalled 95 points against Gerela's 98.

The six-year-old mare, owned by Duncan MacDonald of Sydney, N.S., drew the outside No. 8 post for last week's $50,000 Gotham Trot, but she easily won the 1¼ mile heat against the same field she faces in the UN at 1¼ miles. Eskimo Going South?

EDMONTON (CP) — The Journal says Neill Armstrong head coach of Edmonton Eskimos, probably will leave the Western Football Conference club to become athletic director at Oklahoma State University.

The newspaper says Armstrong, coach for six years, left Tuesday for interviews at the university, where he formerly played and was an assistant football coach.

Armstrong has another year on his contract, but club president Jack Baker described it as "a special contract," taken to mean either party might break it.

Some Democracy!

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The 1970 Super Bowl football game will be democratic in that it will cost you $15 no matter where you sit—end zone or 50-yard line.

The ticket price for the Jan. 11 game in Tulane's 80,000-seat stadium was announced Tuesday by Jim Kensil, executive director of commissioner Pete Rozelle's office.

Tickets to the last game, which saw the AFL champion New York Jets upset Baltimore Colts in Miami, were scaled at $12, $8 and $6.

Kensil said the game is expected to gross about $1,-700,000.

Each player and coach on the winning team will draw a $15,000 share of the net receipts, Kensil said, with each player and coach on the loser to get $7,500.

Boxer Hides

MONTREAL (CP) — Joey Durelle, Canadian welterweight champion, came up against a new tactic in a boxing match Tuesday night and couldn't cope—his opponent hid in a corner.

Durelle was awarded a third-round TKO when Bobby Fayzant of Freeport, Me., wouldn't fight.

Fayzant, cornered, put his gloves up over his curly sideburns and struck such a posture, Durelle refused to hit.

Referee Guy Jutras ruled Fayzant unfit opposition.

About 1,000 were on hand for the bout in a gymnasium.

Teachers Superannuation Fund Ruled Out as Mortgage Source

TORONTO (CP — Ontario teachers learned Tuesday the government opposes allocating part of their superannuation fund to social services such as housing mortgages.

Provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton told the legislature that money in the fund — about $469,000,000—is used for provincial purposes through the consolidated revenue fund, which would be reduced if some money was taken for special purposes.

Replying to Elie Martel (NDP —Sudbury East), who suggested that part of the fund be used for mortgages to give teachers a better return and provide lower mortgage rates, Mr. MacNaughton said the province also subsidizes the teachers' fund against an actuarial deficit.

It also makes no charge for administration costs, he said, and the five-per-cent rate on the teachers' fund, established in 1963, was guaranteed years before market rates were that high.

George Ben (L—Toronto Humber) said the government must subsidize the teachers' fund because it does not pay enough interest on the money it borrows from the fund.

Mr. MacNaughton said he agrees the interest paid on the fund should be re-examined.

In other business Tuesday, Premier Roberts rejected opposition requests for a royal commission to review agreements made with Algoma Central Railway since 1900.

Mr. Roberts said there is little value in passing judgments on old decisions and new agreements between the railway and the government were reasonable.

The railway runs from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., 300 miles north to Hearst, Ont. Opposition demands grew from a statement that in return for rights to species of trees on company land, the railway received a receipt for $5,700,000 which could be used as a claim against corporate income taxes.

The government also proposed a new election act, calling for nominations on a Thursday and the election 14 days later.

Mr. Roberts said the proposed act incorporates recommendations of a select committee which reported several weeks ago. It provides for polls for the handicapped or bedridden and does not restrict how ballots may be marked.

In other business Tuesday:

—James Breithaupt (L—Kitchener) suggested the department of revenue was created last year only to give a cabinet job to John White (PC—London South). He said the department is duplicating functions of the treasury department and has led to "government by civil servants." Mr. White admitted his department will gain new functions, becoming a central billing agency.

—The government announced it will proceed with its controversial Bill 72, which would require that unwanted stray animals be used for scientific research.

Ben Palmer, who travelled for two years with the Beatles management agency touring with groups like The Cream, has returned to wood carving for a living. At his flat in the north wing of Wytham Abbey, Oxford, he is shown putting finishing touches to an oak soldier for a tobacco shop in Italy. (CP Photo)

Liberals Endorse RC School Support

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Liberals have endorsed full financial support for Roman Catholic high schools, party leader Robert Nixon announced Tuesday.

Mr. Nixon said the 77-member Liberal caucus wants public money for Roman Catholic schools to be given through to Grade 12. Support now ends at Grade 10.

Speaking at a news conference, the Liberal leader urged a select committee of the legislature be set up to work out administrative and financial details of the proposal and report to the house by next Oct. 15.

The province now pays equal grants for public and separate school students to the end of Grade 8. Limited grants are given to separate school students in Grades 9 and 10—about $200 less than for public school students. No grants are provided for separate school students in Grades 11, 12 and 13.

Premier John Roberts has said that the government cannot afford massive spending to support Roman Catholic schools beyond Grade 10.

Mr. Nixon said the Liberal caucus wants the grants for Grades 9 and 10 to be made equal under the next budget, due in a few weeks. There are about 16,000 students in Grades 9 and 10 in separate schools in Ontario, so the grants would cost about $3,200,000.

In return for the grants, private Roman Catholic schools, most of which are run by religious orders, would be asked to turn over their capital facilities without cost to the separate school boards.

Hydro Spending Called Suicidal

TORONTO (CP) — A government statement that Ontario Hydro will need $2,472,000,000 in capital funds by 1970 touched off an angry outburst Tuesday by a Liberal member of the legislature who termed the corporation's spending program a "suicidal, disastrous campaign."

Eddie Sargent (L—Grey Bruce) criticized Hydro's lack of accountability to the legislature and said the corporation "has to be told how much it can spend."

Mr. Sargent's comments came after Treasurer Charles MacNaughton, explaining why the government would continue to borrow foreign capital, said Ontario Hydro alone will take almost all the available capital on the Canadian market this coming year.

Mr. MacNaughton said the corporation will require from $400,000,000 to $500,000,000 in capital funds each year for the next 10 years and that its capital spending program envisions the need for $2,472,000,000 by 1970.

Questioned by Mr. Sargent as to how much money Ontario Hydro now has committed to nuclear power development, the treasurer replied that this was a question for Energy and Resources Minister George, Kerr.

Questions And Answers

By The Ontario Motor League

QUESTION — In November we are driving down to Florida and will remain there about four months. Is it possible to obtain the 1970 car license plates before they go on sale December 1?

ANSWER — No, you won't be able to get your license plates before December, but if you send in your completed ownership application along with a cheque or money order in Canadian funds for the amount of the licence fee plus $1 to cover the cost of mailing the plates, they will be sent to you in Florida by registered mail. We suggest that before mailing in the application, you obtain a photostatic copy of your 1969 licence to carry with you until the new plates arrive. The charges for the 1970 licence plates are as follows:

Four cylinder cars $20, six cylinder $27.50, eight cylinder $35. Be sure to add $1 for each set of plates if they are to be mailed to you, also, be sure to include the correct mailing address.

QUESTION — We are planning a trip to Acapulco this winter and would like to know some of the main attractions there, a good route, and mileage from Belleville.

ANSWER — This Pacific coast resort has long ago established itself as Mexico's Riviera, mostly because of its near - perfect climate, fine beaches and unbelievable setting of mountains and blue, blue sea. But once you get there you will find that it has much more to offer. There's an infectious informality which soon leaves you not caring what you wear to dinner even at posh hotels, and there is plenty to do when you tire of sunning yourself, so let's take a look at the activities that make Acapulco jump.

The La Perla Divers: These daze-devils perform daily and hourly, beginning about 11 a.m. at the Hotel El Mirador. They leap from high rock formations north of the town, doing a graceful swan-dive 136 feet down into the Pacific Ocean. If the diver times his landing to coincide with an incoming wave, there will be nine feet of water in that narrow crevice. If not — scratch one diver! The best place to watch the action is the balcony of the El Mirrador where you are shielded from the blazing sun. The cost varies between 80 cents to $1.25, depending on how many people are around — the more people the less you pay. You can also enjoy a late supper at the hotel and watch the divers plunge through darkness carrying lighted torches in each hand.

Pie De La Quebrada Beach is definitely not for swimming, because of the violent undertow. This is the famous Sunset-Beach eight miles north of the town and can be reached by bus or car. Park your car and lock it, then find yourself a quiet spot on the beach. Then just sit there and watch the sky change colours as the sun goes down. This is a very beautiful sight.

Paradise Beach, located on the Bay, between the Acapulco Hilton and the El Presidente, is the place for afternoon dancing on a patio or sand. Here you will see the swimmers in action. Bathing suits are in order here for the atmosphere is very informal.

The best and least expensive way to see Acapulco from the sea is to take one of the daily yacht cruises either afternoon or evening. The large yachts take boatloads of passengers on three to four hour cruises around the bay. The cost in season is around $5 and includes swimming, dancing, all you want to drink plus a small buffet service.

SHOPPING — The Mexican Village Shopping Plaza on the main street or the stores near the Hotel El Mirador are excellent places to shop. The main street is lined with curio shops and boutiques of all kinds. Order almost any made-to measure item and it will be delivered to your hotel the same night. The best way to shop is in a store where there is a fixed price. When you deal with the sombrero salesman on the street you are open to haggling.

Scuba-diving lessons are offered along the beach or try a glass bottom boat tour, or water-skiing.

Mileage from Belleville approximately 3,015 miles.

GOP Wins Showpiece Elections

Mayor Lindsay Victor in New York with Increased Plurality

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Republicans have captured showpiece state elections with a Virginia upset and a new Jersey landslide, while New York Mayor John V. Lindsay fashioned a personal triumph and became his party's ranking free-lance politician.

President Nixon, who intervened as a campaigner, shared in the victories Tuesday which made a Republican the governor of Virginia for the first time in nearly 25 years and won the New Jersey state house after 16 years of Democratic rule.

Lindsay, a Republican but not a Republican nominee, won his three-way race with a plurality of more than 150,000 votes—a margin greater than he built four years ago to win his first term.

The victory gave new lustre to his credentials as a man with a potential future in national politics.

Cleveland Mayor Carl B. Stokes, a Negro, won by about 2,000 votes over Republican Ralph J. Perk, who challenged his crime - fighting record.

A Democrat claimed victory in a New Jersey U.S. congressional election, but a recount loomed there.

Republican Linwood Holton captured the Virginia statehouse in the major upset of the elections, defeating Democrat William C. Battle by more than 50,000 votes.

Representative William T. Cahill, a six-term congressman, topped former Democratic Gov. Robert B. Meyner by 300,000 votes to win election as governor of New Jersey.

That victory delivered to the Republicans the last of the northern industrial states still governed by a Democrat, two-term incumbent Richard J. Hughes, who was ineligible for another term.

And the two victories gave the Republicans 32 governorships and left the Democrats with 18.

"One thing is evident in the two races," said Representative Rogers C. B. Morton of Maryland, the Republican national chairman,

"In New Jersey, the Democrat made an issue out of the president's position in Vietnam and lost, and in Virginia the Republican made it an issue by backing the president and won."

Morton said that signalled a voter endorsement of the policy Nixon described in an election-eve report.

But Lindsay called his re-election as a Liberal-Independent "a message that the people of New York City want the war to end."

Lindsay defeated Democrat Mario A. Procaccino, the city comptroller, and John J. Marchi, the conservative who five months ago beat out Lindsay for the Republican nomination for mayor.

Wayne County Sheriff Roman Gribbs, who stressed crime control as a campaign issue, was elected mayor of Detroit in a tight contest with county auditor Richard Austin, a Negro.

The virtually complete count there gave Gribbs 257,512 votes, Austin 256,020.

In Pittsburgh, Independent Democrat Peter F. Flaherty, who repudiated the old fashioned city organization, racked up a two-to-one margin to defeat Republican John E. Tybor.

Among the other contests:

—Republican Mayor Ann Uccello of Hartford, Conn., was re-elected in a city beset by two major racial disturbances since June.

—Democratic Mayor Frank A. Sedita of Buffalo, N.Y., won a second term, defeating Republican conservative Alfreda W. Slominski.

Australian PM Faces Hard Fight

CANBERRA (CP) — Prime Minister John Grey Gorton is struggling for his political life after a federal election that brought his Australian government to the brink of defeat.

Political observers agree that it is doubtful if his government can survive its three year term. They believe it is only a matter of time before a Labor government achieves power for the first time in more than 20 years.

When Gorton took over as prime minister in January, 1968, his government had a majority of 38 seats in a House of Representatives of 124 members. In the new House of 125 seats, his majority has been cut to six, with counting not yet completed in some ridings.

Gorton is getting the blame for the government's disastrous losses. Australia has never been so prosperous, there is full employment and the economy is booming. There appeared no real issue that could damage the government.

But Labor Leader Gough Whitlam, 53, has emerged as Australia's political strong man. He waged a vigorous election campaign.

Observers agreed he outclassed the prime minister in appeal and enthusiasm. And he expects to be Australia's next prime minister.

Whitlam's confidence is well justified. Within the Liberal party, which governs in a coalition with the Country party, there is widespread dissatisfaction with Gorton.

He has been criticized for a lacklustre election campaign and the decline in support for the government at the polls is attributed to his own lack of popularity.

A Gallup poll published just before the election on Oct. 25, showed that 44 per cent of the persons interviewed were satisfied with his leadership compared with 66 per cent seven months before.

Treasurer William McMahon, 61, and Dafid Fairbairn, 52, minister for national development, both have said they will try to wrest the party leadership from Gorton.

Queen's Grad Wins U.S. Fermi Grant

WASHINGTON (CP) — Dr. Walter H. Zinn, a native of Kitchener and one of the world's foremost developers of nuclear reactors, will receive the United States government's $25,000 Enrico Fermi award for 1969 in San Francisco Dec. 2.

The award will be presented on the 25th anniversary of the achievement of the first sustained controlled nuclear chain reaction by the late Dr. Fermi, an Italian. The award was announced Tuesday by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission.

Dr. Zinn worked on the first successful atomic pile, a project directed by Dr. Fermi.

Dr. Zinn graduated from Kitchener-Waterloo Collegiate in 1924 and later graduated from Queen's University in Kingston. He did graduate work at Columbia University in New York City and became a U.S. citizen in 1937.

Labor Refuses 'Fall Guy' Role; Won't Curb Wage Hikes

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The federal government is waging an all-out propaganda campaign to make Canadian workers the "fall guys" for spiralling inflation, Donald MacDonald, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, charged Tuesday.

"There has never been to my knowledge a similar exercise designed to make the victims appear to be the culprits and then force them to pay the price for their own victimization," he told the Ontario Federation of Labor convention.

But despite this campaign of "distortion and misrepresentation" Canadian labor had no intention of accepting federal calls for curbs on wage increases until the Trudeau government proves its good faith by also placing controls on profits.

"We are sick and tired of being forced to play the fall-guy role by our own government," he said.

Mr. MacDonald's speech was his hardest attack yet on federal response for wage restraints and departed widely from a more mildly-worded text he had issued to the press earlier in the day.

One reason may have been the receptive mood of his audience.

Earlier in their three-day convention, the 1,000 OFL delegates gave unanimous support to a no-nonsense resolution calling on labor to reject the federal Prices and Incomes Commission's suggested guidelines for holding annual increases in wages down to five per cent and prices to two per cent.

"If there ever was any doubt that I was not truly reflecting the views of organized labor on wage restraint, the action of your convention has dispelled it," Mr. MacDonald said.

The CLC president said that the "latest ploy" in the federal campaign of laying inflation on labor has been a television speech last weekend in which Prime Minister Trudeau equated organized labor with big business.

"The trade union movement was singled out and pictured as a selfish and disloyal group promoting its own narrow interests at the expense and peril of the whole community," Mr. MacDonald said.

This was the picture presented despite the Prices and Incomes Commission's failure to produce "one shred of evidence" that wage increases have contributed to inflation, or is what extent.

The government was ignoring its own large responsibility in creating inflation problems by pursuing expansionary policies after it had become evident that the economy was "over-heated to an alarming degree."

The government was also ignoring the inflationary effects that the Vietnam war had on the American economy—effects which had inevitably carried over into Canada.

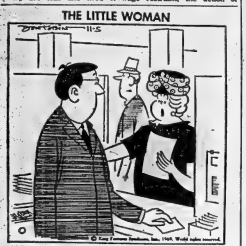
The CLC president said that the Prices and Incomes Commission has done no research or analysis of the cause of the current inflation and has pulled its suggested monetary guidelines out of thin air.

Now the federal government is expecting labor to accept the guidelines suggestionsly despite the fact that similar guidelines had proved unworkable in other countries with regard to the needs of workers on very low wages.

"Needless to say we cannot and will not accept that kind of approach.

"How can workers be expected to accept these restraints while other sectors of the economy are allowed to run rampant."

THE LITTLE WOMAN



"There must be a mistake. The reason I opened a checking account was so I wouldn't HAVE any more 'Insufficient funds'!"

Newspaper Plays Growing Role as Schoolroom Teaching Aid

By LINDA GELDART
(Staff Reporter)

Put a newspaper in the classroom, and you bring a great wide spectrum of subjects into focus for young eyes to see and understand.

You bring history and geography, art and science, and set it down in front of them. You not only capture their interest, but more important, their curiosity.

Understandably, there has been a growing desire on the part of teachers to implement the newspaper as a "living textbook" and teaching aid — and thousands of schools in both Canada and the United States are using it for these purposes at the present time.

In the Quinte area, the Intelligencer offers more than 15,000 complimentary papers to 27 schools as part of the "newspaper in education" program.

The program involves regular use of a daily newspaper in the school curriculum for all grades for a wide range of subject areas.

Geared to the students, the newspaper in the classroom helps them to understand the role of the press in society, while becoming aware of what is happening around them and the relevance these events hold for them.

The Intelligencer first participated in the "newspaper in the classroom" program in 1956, but the actual program was started in 1958 by the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

To further assist teachers in making the newspaper in the classroom more of a valuable asset, the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association held its first seminar in 1963.

The Intelligencer has sent teachers as representatives of this area to the seminar at the University of Waterloo since 1967. Sister Mary Fleurette of Nicholson College is the first from this area to participate.

Terming the seminar "the most rewarding summer course I have ever taken", Sister Fleurette explained that the two - week session was aimed at demonstrating how the newspaper could be used to teach, or supplement a subject.

"We were shown the various methods that news is disseminated. Key people spoke to us — editors, reporters and publishers, explaining the gathering and treatment of the news."

"This seminar provided, for me, further insight into the use of the newspaper in the classroom. I can't imagine a more profitable or educational venture," she added.

Sister Fleurette commented on her own particular way of putting the newspaper to work for her students.

"I use it daily — one could term it a must, really. The provision of such readily available information to supplement my history classes is something I try to use as much as I can — if not all the time."

Even for teachers who haven't gone to the NIC seminars, the newspaper is a valuable teaching tool.

Kente Public School in Ameliasburg has been making particular use of the Prince Edward County and Industrial editions of the Intelligencer as part of the curriculum.

Mrs. Walker's Grade seven and eight history and geography students almost take for granted their current events as part of the everyday run-of-the-mill school day.

"I have been using the newspaper as part of my classes for the past five years. I have always found that if I start a class with current events, I catch the interest of the students right away."

"They begin to realize history repeats itself. They learn to appreciate history, and at the same time gain a wider and broader outlook. This wider scope that a newspaper opens to them has endless benefits," remarked Mrs. Walker.

"But perhaps the most important thing is that it brings everything into focus around it more easily," she commended.

In the Thick of Current Events

Current events are the order of the day at Kente School in Ameliasburg, and (from left to right) Scott Dawson, David Sonter, Carol Morton and Garry Milligan are reading the Prince Edward County edition of the Intelligencer to complete their assignments. This class is an example of the newspaper being used as living text book of history.

Intelligencer Sponsoring Seminar To Outline Role to Teachers

A one - day seminar on the use of the newspaper in education will be held Nov. 20 at Centennial High School. The five - hour seminar, sponsored by The Intelligencer, will be modelled after the week - long course run each summer at the University of Waterloo.

"We hope to be able to give an insight into the techniques of using the newspaper as a teaching tool," said William LeSurf, circulation manager of The Intelligencer. "Right now, 32 Belleville and area teachers have registered their intentions to attend. We can accept up to 100. There is no cost involved as far as the teacher is concerned.

"We won't be able to come close to covering all the ground discussed at the Waterloo seminars but we have made arrangements for a "teaching tool," said William LeSurf, circulation manager of The Intelligencer. "Right now, 32 Belleville and area teachers have registered their intentions to attend. We can accept up to 100. There is no cost involved as far as the teacher is concerned.

"We won't be able to come close to covering all the ground discussed at the Waterloo seminars but we have made arrangements for a one - day workshop such as ours."

Taking part in the Nov. 20 seminar will be Mr. Noble, Intelligencer managing editor Donald Soutter, and teachers from this area who have attended the summer sessions.

"Teachers find out at the conduct our seminar, Mr. Noble has been chairman of the past few seminars at Waterloo and has been commissioned to provide a suitable format to allow newspapers to sponsor one - day workshops such as ours."

Taking part in the Nov. 20 seminar will be Mr. Noble, Intelligencer managing editor Donald Soutter, and teachers from this area who have attended the summer sessions.

"Teachers find out at the seminar each year that the newspaper is a valuable aid," said Mr. LeSurf, "and is viable enough that it can be used from kindergarten to Grade 13 and in some way in almost every subject.

"Each year at Waterloo there are some teachers who come not convinced on the value of the newspaper in education program. I think by the end of the seminar they all go home convinced of its value."

What Is Happening Now?

MOIRA Spells VICTORY

Moira's Cheerleading Squad yells out their favorite word: victory. The squad place second in the senior division at the recent Eastern Ontario Cheerleading Competitions held in Kingston. One of the squad, Sue Bishop, was named Miss Cheerleader — for the best individual performance.

Cheering Has Its Cheerful Rewards

All any cheerleader really needs is heart, heart, heart to push that team, team, team on to win, win, win.

But when the cheerleader has heart, there is more to be won than just a football game.

The Moira Cheerleading Squad can tell you all about winning — because they are exceptionally good at it.

The squad recently was awarded second place honors in the senior cheerleading section at the Eastern Ontario Cheerleading competitions held in Kingston.

Held in Queen's stadium on the campus at Queen's University, the competition saw Belleville well-represented with squads present from all city high schools. Taking third place in the junior section was the BCI cheerleading squad.

Moira is justifiably proud of its squad which competed against more than 20 other teams from the Kingston - Quinte area.

As if this victory wasn't enough, Sue Bishop, who has only been a member of the Moira squad since September, was named Miss Cheerleader, an honor awarded for the best individual performance.

Each squad had to perform six "cheers," ones normally used at games. The girls, as a group, were marked on their enthusiasm, co-ordination, overall group formation, and, of course, how loud they yelled.

Miss Bishop summed the squad's reaction to their victory by admitting the whole thing was quite a surprise.

"We were very surprised when we found out we had won — the girls felt just great about it."

Campbellford Ready To Attract Industry

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford council cleared the way for the establishment of new industry at its meeting on Monday night and made service possible for the enlargement of an industry presently operating in the town.

An option was signed with J. M. Benor to build a building on "the island". The purchase price of the land is $5,000 for ten acres. Mr. Brown will provide water service at his own expense; the sewage will be taken care of by the installation of a pipe to the present sewage disposal unit now being constructed by OWRC in proximity to the land in question.

Quotmart of the proposed industry will manufacture and store furniture and the other part will manufacture synthetic enames used in road construction and for other uses. There is also a possibility that Mr. Benor may enlarge his creamery operation by building a new building on the proposed area.

Some time ago Canadian Flight Equipment took an option on land on the industrial site. However since it has never been serviced with sewer and water facilities it has been a handicap in procuring new industry. Council decided to put water service to the edge of the industrial land. Although the budget for such services would not completely carry the cost, it would have done no except for the installation of traffic lights at both ends of the new bridge. Council decided to go ahead with the installation of water service to the boundary of the industrial site. On this agreement Canadian Flight Equipment will begin a new one-storey plant to carry on an enlarged industry.

With the new arena opened last year; a large new addition to the hospital being built and a large addition to Campbellford and District Hospital, the town is in a more favorable position to attract new industry.

Finish Job: David

A veteran of local municipal service, Alderman Ross David, has decided he will offer himself for re-election to council.

"I have the time, the experience and the desire," said

ENOS DAVID

Ald. David in announcing his candidacy.

Ald. David said the past term to council had been very satisfying and productive "for all council members working together on the important issues."

"I want to assure the successful completion of a number of projects already under way such as the Dundas Street bridge and roadway to relieve congestion at the lower bridge, further access and exits from the downtown business area, sewers and services to the northeast industrial area, the elimination of litter, and further beautification of our city."

Aside from regular council duties, Ald. Davis is currently chairman of two special committees — one to provide a new museum, and the other to investigate the feasibility of long term accommodation for the Belleville Transit Commission.

"I would like to finish these jobs," he said.

Looking to the future Ald. David said it would be inevitable that the city will be involved in important negotiations regarding regional government.

"No person on city council has more experience to help negotiate the best possible status for our city," he said.

Leslie Uggams Show Bounced

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS formally announced Tuesday the cancellation of the Leslie Uggams Show, and drew a protest from Whitney M. Young Jr., director of the National Urban League, Inc.

A spokesman for Young said he intended to send a telegram to network officials saying he is "deeply disturbed" that cancellation of the show would diminish opportunities for black performers.

Miss Uggams is the only Negro with a variety show on television. The network confirmed earlier reports that it would end the show with the Sunday, Dec. 14 program and replace it the next week with the Glen Campbell Show.

Young felt the show wasn't given a chance, his spokesman said. "Apparently the same rules do not apply to Negroes on television as apply to whites," he said.

The show suffered from low ratings in its time slot against NBC's Bonanza and the ABC Sunday Night Movie. It is conceived last spring after CBS fired the Smothers Brothers.

Saul Ilson, executive with Ernest Chambers of the Miss Uggams's show, said in Hollywood last Friday: "We feel we have a unique show with a black hostess. We have 28 black creative people on our staff. I think if this show goes off the black community will be very upset."

Hee Haw will replace Campbell on Wednesday nights beginning Jan. 17. Hee Haw is sort of country Laugh-In, ran as a summer replacement for the Smothers Brothers.

The Tim Conway Show will replace The Good Guys on Friday nights beginning Jan. 30.

Bob Hope Is Love with Roberta And History Proves He's Right

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A girl named Roberta has an irresistible allure for Bob Hope, as he demonstrates once again with his monthly television special Thursday night.

The Bob Hope Special on NBC will be another rendition of the Jerome Kern-Otto Harbach operetta, Roberta, which the comedian considers a good-luck talisman. The original Broadway version launched Hope on his way to fame.

The late Messrs. Kern and Harbach might have trouble recognizing the version which Hope presents Thursday night. The book will have numerous modern touches; only the songs will remain the same. And with tunes like Smoke Gets in Your Eyes, Lovely to Look At, Yesterday and You're Devastating, it's understandable why they're unchanged.

Hope talked about his long association with Roberta after returning from Dallas, where he taped the show at the new Bob Hope Theatre of Southern Methodist University. He first did the show on Broadway when the production version appeared in 1933-34. Two other newcomers were in the cast: George Murphy and Fred MacMurray.

"I got a lot of movie offers from the show, but I turned them all down," he recalls. "I was still nursing a grudge . . . because they didn't like the test I did in 1930.

"I stayed with Roberta until the summer, and then the producer wanted us all to work for scale (minimum salary) during the hot months. I had too many good offers to play movie houses on stage shows, so I cut out."

Hope did three more Broadway shows before going to Hollywood. He agreed to come west for Paramount's Big Broadcast of 1936, in which he was given a song called Thanks for the Memory.

In 1938, Hope returned to Roberta, saying the operetta in the Los Angeles Civic Light Opera opposite Carole Landis.

In 1938, Hope went back to the theatre and played Roberta in St. Louis to mark the 40th anniversary of the Municipal Light Opera. Hope performed the musical in one of his TV specials that fall.

Now it's Roberta revisited, with fewcomers John Davidson and Michele Lee as co-stars.

"The show holds up just as good as ever," Hope says. "We played it straight through before the theatre audience, with local camera crews shooting it from the rear of the theatre. The audience was great, even when they were paying $1.000 a seat for charity."

Sewage Treatment Addition Due to Start Next Year

Construction of the long proposed secondary treatment facility for the city's sewage treatment plant in Foster Ward is expected to get under way early next year.

This was indicated to city council yesterday in a letter from P. G. Cockburn, director of project development for the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

The letter said that final plans for the addition, along with specifications and contract documents would be in his hands by Nov. 22 and tenders would be called by Nov. 22.

Tenders would be open prior to the Christmas season or early in the New Year.

It is estimated that 18 months would be required for construction of the secondary treatment plant, estimated to cost close to $2,000,000.

The Ontario Water Resources Commission will erect the plant and in turn will present the city for capital and operational costs.

Council approved a resolution calling for agreements between the OWRC and the city to be signed.

Inquest to Be Held Into Death of Family

PICTON — An inquest will be held in connection with the death of a Prince Edward County family of four last week.

The decision to hold the inquest was revealed this morning by Ontario Provincial Police Corporal W. MacGregor of the Picton detachment.

Chandler Ross Sears, 45, his wife Darla, 30, and their children, Robbie, 4, and Debbie, 2, were found dead in their Green Point home last Thursday by Fearn.

Corporal MacGregor said this morning the investigators from the Ontario department of energy and resources had left the scene and he assumed their report was complete. The inquest, however, was not called as a result of their find. Leigh Deming, in the fact county coroner, C. R. Richmond, is out of town no date has yet been set.

Mr. Kenneth Gilbert Smith has graduated from the University of Western Ontario with a Bachelor of Arts degree in history. Kenneth is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ine K. Smith, 184 Herchimer Ave., Belleville and the grandson of Mr. William G. Smith of L'Amable. Kenneth has returned to UWO to continue his studies towards a Masters degree.

Students Visit New York

A group of Nicholson Catholic College students from Grades 11, 12 and 13 spent last weekend in New York city on a school-organized tour.

Sister Mary Fleurette, four teachers and 37 students left Belleville Friday night and returned Sunday from the excursion. The prime objective was a tour of the United Nations. They also took in the Empire State building, the Statue of Liberty, Rockefeller Centre and a concert at Radio City Music Hall.

They attended Sunday services at St. Patrick's Cathedral and some of the students were able to view the medieval collections at the Cloisters.

All expenses for the trip were assumed by the students, and Sister Mary Fleurette is hopeful more trips of a similar nature can be undertaken by students groups in the future.

STOP

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Constipation can be stubborn. Its causes vary. Some get constipated because they get into the habit of taking daily laxatives or enemas. The bowel gets lazy, and refuses to work without help.

Others get constipated because they have a spastic lower bowel. The stools are infrequent and ribbon-like.

Still others do not have regular movements because their diet is deficient in roughage — foods like celery, lettuce, cabbage and fruits with skins.

Lazy bowel often is present if we get into the habit of postponing or overlooking signals which indicate we should evacuate. The phone rings, a pressing appointment hurries us, and we put off bowel movement. When this happens often enough, the bowel at last becomes impervious to signals. Then comes the daily enemas and laxatives.

Another important point is some people who think they are constipated aren't. For example, I know patients who have a daily movement yet consider themselves constipated. Sometimes they've heard it's necessary to have at least two or three movements daily "to get rid of the poisons."

Whatever the cause of constipation, it is evident each individual must look for the cause and try to overcome it. Sometimes lack of fluid intake is an important cause. Many of us drink too little water. For example, consider the following letter. This patient cured her own constipation. It may or may not work for you:

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: During a greater part of my life I have resorted to laxatives. I had many problems but constipation were me out. After four months of not one regular movement a new doctor said "drink more liquids." I did and nothing happened.

Then he said, "Drink 20 glasses of water a day and keep a score pad near the sink. No one ever drinks as much as they think they do." I kept score, but could never get up to 20.

The fourth day, after drinking 17 glasses of water a day, I had my first bowel movement. After that, as long as I kept to the 17 glasses a day schedule, I went regularly. Since then, almost three years ago, I haven't taken one cathartic or laxative.

Now I need to drink only about 10 glasses of water daily. If a couple of days go by without taking my regular liquids, I bind up. However, if I start drinking a lot, within 12 hours I'm back to normal.

Whenever I hear of someone with this problem and tell them to drink so much water, they say, "My body holds the water and I get fat." But I have not gained an ounce on this schedule. The body eliminates what it doesn't need.

Enough said! — Mrs. C.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Six months ago I had my uterus removed. My problem is my family says I have not had a hysterectomy because I still have my tubes and ovaries. My doctor claims the removal of the uterus is a hysterectomy.

What is the surgery called when they remove all of you tubes and ovaries. Please print the answer in your column. I am depressed enough without having to stand my family's nagging. — Mrs. A.

Comment: Removal of the uterus is a hysterectomy. Removal of uterus, ovaries and tubes is called: panhysterectomy.

There Are Variety of Causes Of Stubborn Constipation

Bert Works Like Ox To Win His Trophies

BAKER SETTLEMENT, N.S. (CP) — It was the contest the man, who pulled 513 per cent of their own weight — a 3,300-pound load—to win one of the many trophies that ask on Bert Seamone's trophy shelf in the small settlement 10 miles inland from Bridgewater, Lake.

But Seamone, 55, can testify that it is hard work to be an international ox-pulling champion.

He is quick to credit luck for his victory over eight Canadian and United States teams at the Bridgewater Exhibition this year. But if luck were a factor, it was only because about 100 other Maritimers have spent the same long hours with their yokes as Seamone has with his.

At the second international pull of the season, Sept. 28 in Maine, Seamone placed third with a pull of 7,000 pounds.

To ensure that he is not badly beaten, he gives his team a heavy workout three times weekly.

The workout may be harder on the man than on the two huge beasts that do the dragging.

A crude wooden drag must first be loaded—1,800 pounds is a good practice run—and a man works up a healthy sweat wrestling the huge field stones, used as weights, into position.

"The small stones are no good," Seamone says. "They fall off too easily."

After loading comes the long pacing with the team, up and down the dusty trail gouged out of grassland by countless trial runs.

Watching a typical workout, it isn't hard to understand why the sport has thrived only among hearty Maritimers and New Englanders while it is relatively unknown elsewhere in North America.

And while the 1,800-pound workout is featherweight to the oxen—they have pulled nearly 14,000 pounds in competition—Seamone says the workout is not the only work for a champion.

There are long training hours which must be spent with the young oxen to make them a team with the man.

Oxen are docile animals, he says, and they don't mind being put to work.

But, to get their best, "you've got to gain their confidence."

"Oxen generally hand what they think is enough for them to haul."

Fashioning a yoke to harness a team is still another complicated chore. Each yoke must be hand-made and designed to fit a specific team.

"It takes two days to see it done right," Seamone says. "And you never know when the will break on you."

It is with the yoke that Canadian and United States competitors differ. Canadian competitors use a head yoke strapped to the horns. Americans prefer a neck or shoulder yoke which rests across the animal's neck and cushions on the shoulders.

Seamone has used a neck yoke to break a young team which had not yet developed proper horns. But in competition he's a firm supporter of the head yoke in the controversy which sometimes rages about which is superior.

Why the head yoke?

"Tradition. I wouldn't be guilty of saying that a head yoke is better than a neck yoke. But it's a tradition."

Winterize Boats

If you've got a fibre glass boat, you know you don't have to do much for it to weather our rugged Canadian winter. But don't get carried away and ignore your outboard motor.

Freezing temperatures are not too far away and definitely outboards should be winterized . . . after all you winterize your car.

First let's state categorically that the easiest way to winterize an outboard is to hand it to a marine dealer (along with a $10 or $20 bill), but for the do-it-yourself boaters here are seven recommended steps:

(1) Be sure to drain water pump and cooling system. There's always some residual water left from the last trip that might freeze and crack a casting.

(2) Take out the spark plugs and pour about a teaspoon of oil in each cylinder. Crank engine two or three revolutions. Put plugs back in.

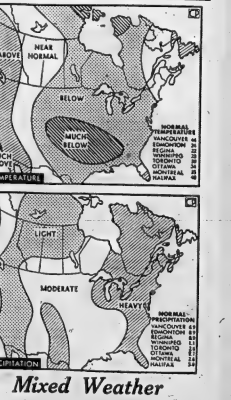
(3) Take drain plugs out of carburetor (filter bowl and drain it. Clean bowl and clean filter. Drain and clean fuel tank and hoses. Getting rid of all traces of last summer's fuel is important. It stops formation of gum.

(4) Take off the prop. Look carefully for fishing line around the shaft. If left, fish line might back up the shaft and ruin the oil seal. Lubricate shaft, replace shear pin, and prop nut. Replace pin. (If your motor has no shear pin replace prop and inspect shaft for damage.)

(5) Take out the drain plug from the lower unit — from the vent screw a few inches above it. Let the gears in the lower unit drain. Refill with gear case oil recommended by the manufacturer. (If there's water in the oil which drains out, better have an outboard mechanic or dealer look at it. The seal may need replacing.)

(6) Wipe off external surfaces of the motor. Grease, then all covers and shrouds, with a cloth dampened with light engine oil.

(7) Place motor in a safe spot for winter storage, in an upright position. A dry, well ventilated place is best. Don't store in an airtight container or any place in which condensation may occur. Once or twice during the winter crank engine over with starter cord a couple of times.



Mixed Weather

Below-normal temperatures are expected for western Quebec, Ontario and Manitoba in the next month, according to the 30-day outlook of the United States weather bureau. British Columbia and Newfoundland will have above-normal temperatures while all other areas will have near-normal readings. Precipitation will be heavy in most of eastern Canada. Other areas will have light to moderate precipitation. The outlook is not a specific forecast and changes may occur. Other normal temperatures (precip.): New York 47 (3.6); San Francisco 55 (1.6); New Orleans 60 (3.4).

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — A rally that began in mid-session Tuesday continued in moderate mid-morning trading today as the Toronto stock market posted a small gain.

On index, industrials were up .23 to 181.88, western oils 2.34 to 193.88 and base metals .47 to 114.58. Golds slipped .53 to 160.51.

Revenue resumed trading today, down 35 cents to $3.15. The exchange halted trading Oct. 29 pending release of information setting the date of Revue's annual meeting, now scheduled for Nov. 24.

Algoma Steel lost ¾ to 15 in active trading. Steelworkers at Algoma, on strike since Aug. 27, voted Tuesday to return to work.

Algoma reduced its quarterly dividend to 12½ cents from 25 cents because of the loss of earnings from the strike.

Seaway slipped ¼ to 11½. American Ship Building Co. of Ohio, said it is involved in preliminary discussions for the possible acquisition of Seaway.

Falconbridge rose 1 to 14¾. Mine, Mill and Smelter workers at Falconbridge have been on strike since Aug. 21.

Matagami was up ¾ to 25½ and Abitibi ¼ to 12. Matagami has a 60 per cent interest in a base metals property in the Sturgeon Lake, Ont., area and Abitibi a 40-per-cent interest.

On index Tuesday, industrials closed off .09 to 181.65 after being down 1.09 in the first 2½ hours of trading. Golds slipped .28 to 160.54 and base metals .11 to 114.11.

Western oils closed up 1.05 to 191.54 after touching their low for the year of 188.66 1½ hours before the market closed.

One observer said buying from the U.S. seemed to be the reason for the sharp movement. Hi Home stocks. Home stocks have fallen steadily since the Alaskan oil lease sale in October.

In other oils, Dome fell 3 to 66, Scurry ¼ to 23¼ and Banff ¾ to 11. Pacific Pete gained ¾ to 27¾.

Falconbridge lost 2¼ to 14¼. Mine, Mill and Smelter workers at Falconbridge have been on strike since Aug. 21.

Dominion Foundry & Steel, which now attracts more than 600,000 visitors annually.

The department of lands and forests has spent more than $70,000 this year to clean up garbage in the park. It has used trucks, canoes—and even airplanes—to collect the garbage which has piled up since the park opened in 1894.

"It was getting so bad that people were digging into garbage to try to buy garbage," said John Oatway, acting district forester for the Pembroke district of the department.

"We sent 30 men in on a spring cleanup and kept 28 canoe rangers on a garbage patrol all summer."

Mr. Oatway said public cooperation has been generally good but portages and campsites are still being despoiled by some campers who have no respect for cleanliness.

"If the people who gave us troubles this year do the same next year then we will charge them under the Parks Act with littering."

The department "has the number" of the violators.

"We give out big green garbage bags with numbers on them so we know who is doing the littering."

He said the department has mailed personal letters to offenders who failed to burn in their bags this year, but next year it won't be as lenient.

"We have audio-visual presentations telling the people how important it is to keep the park clean and we feel that we have been quite successful this year. We figure that about 50 to 75 per cent of the campers returned those bags."

The department advises campers to burn their tin cans and to try to refrain from throwing away non-return soft-drink bottles.

Mr. Oatway said the department wants to preserve the wild aspect of the 2,500-square-mile park and that "there is nothing more polluting than tin cans and empty pop bottles."

He said this year was the first time the department had made a concentrated effort to clean up the garbage.

"If you bury it the bears get it—and it gets so thick that you can't move. We knew we had a problem and we knew that we had to do something about it."

Jumbo Tanker

This is an artist's conception of one of two 250,000-deadweight-ton tankers being built in Japan for Canadian Pacific (Bermuda) Ltd. They will be among the largest ships in the world when they go into service in 1970 and 1971, under charter to Gulf Oil Corp. Each ship will be 1,109 feet long. The Bermuda-based shipping company was formed in 1965 to build, own and operate chartered vessels for world trade of dry and liquid bulk cargoes.

By ARNIE HAKALA

Keeping Canada's forests beautiful is becoming as much a fight against garbage as it is against forest fires.

The best example of this is in Ontario's Algonquin Park

CPR Aims to End Passenger Services

No Change

Reductions in CNR transcontinental passenger service announced Wednesday will have no affect on Belleville train patrons.

The CNR announced yesterday that it will reduce transcontinental passenger service during most of the year effective Jan. 7 and will eliminate the Panorama, a two-leg train providing service between Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg and between Winnipeg and Vancouver.

Transcontinental service after Jan. 7 will be provided by CN's Super-Continental which does not run through Belleville.

"What's it like out there?"

Montreal Area Only Exception

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Pacific Railway has asked the Canadian transport commission for permission to drop all passenger train services except commuter services in the Montreal area.

The commission revealed Wednesday that CP Rail has filed for cancellation of 18 regularly scheduled passenger routes on which it claims to have lost $30,000,700 last year.

The CNR has submitted 13 routes for cancellation on routes with losses in 1968 of $11,630,233.

The railways may be required to continue any of the money-losing services if the commission decides the public interest demands it. In such cases, the companies will be eligible for a federal subsidy of up to 80 per cent of the loss on the runs.

Before the commission makes a decision on the applications, the losses claimed by the companies will be compared with a costing formula established by the commission to determine legitimate railway costs and losses. CP Rail now is appealing to the Supreme Court of Canada against the formula.

Before cancellation, the commission may also call for public hearings in the areas involved in the service to determine whether it should be continued in the public interest.

The applications for cancellation come as the general subsidy paid to the railways by the federal government dwindles by $14,000,000 a year.

Under the National Transportation Act, the general subsidy, which reached at one time $110,000,000 a year, is to be replaced by 1975 entirely by specific subsidies tied to operating losses on services maintained in the public interest.

At the top of CP Rail's list of money-losing services is its prestige transcontinental service on the Montreal-Toronto-Vancouver route. The run lost $19,550,900 in 1968, nearly twice the amount on all other non-commuter passenger services.

The extent of the requested cutbacks come as little surprise to commission officials. CP Rail has long made known its desire to withdraw from the passenger market and CN has declared that except in the profitable Toronto-Montreal corridor, most passenger services are a losing proposition.

Congress Fearful Of Anti-war Riots

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Concern mounted in Congress today that the Nov. 15 anti-war demonstration in Washington might erupt into violence. Several leading congressional supporters of the protest shield away from giving the march their firm endorsement.

While many of the war critics continued to blast President Nixon's speech Monday on Vietnam policy, they also appeared to be afraid of being linked with militant elements reported to be moving in on the protest.

The New Mobilization Committee, which is organizing the march, said it would scale down to about 70,000 the number of people taking part in the demonstration. The original plan called for 200,000 marchers.

But the committee also warned that the chance of violence could increase if the administration continued to refuse a permit to stage the march past the White House. A knot of anti-war congressmen tried to hold an all night debate on Vietnam in the House of Representatives Wednesday night. But fewer than 15 of the 435 House members turned up and the public galleries were nearly empty. They adjourned after 35 minutes.

One of the debate organizers, Representative Allard K. Lowenstein (Dem., N.Y.,) has expressed doubts about the march.

Lowenstein, who spearheaded last year's "Dump Johnson" movement, played an active part in the Oct. 15 Moratorium Day protest against the war, which drew support from hundreds of thousands of people across the country.

Others who played a major role last month, but are distinctly cool to the effort next week, also voiced misgivings about the plan and fears of violence.

Meanwhile, the Senate foreign relations committee whose chairman, J. William Fulbright, has been one of the most consistent opponents of the war, decided to hold closed hearings on the administration's handling of the Vietnam situation.

Fulbright said the committee did not want to do anything that could be interpreted as antagonistic "or lead to inflammation of the public mind."

Reply to Nixon Show Us Silent Majority

NEW YORK (AP) — A spokesman for anti-war activists has challenged President Nixon to bring his "silent majority" of supporters into the open.

"We don't believe it exists," Joanna Misnik, New York co-ordinator of the student Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam, said Wednesday.

"We issue a challenge to you, President Nixon. If you believe a silent majority exists, we want to see it," she told a news conference. "Get it into the streets . . . We demand your majority no longer be silent."

Miss Misnik, 25, said Nixon's policy speech Monday night "will result in more and more people getting involved" in demonstrations set for New York Nov. 14, Washington Nov. 15 and San Francisco Nov. 15 to protest U.S. policy in Vietnam.

Some Taxes May Be Cut

Wholesale Tax Reforms To Be Proposed Friday

OTTAWA (CP) — Proposals for wholesale reform of federal tax law, probably including new taxes and perhaps including some tax rate reductions, are to be tabled in the Commons Friday by Finance Minister Edgar Benson.

They result from three years of study of tax reform recommendations made by the Carter royal commission on taxation. That was a sweeping plan to integrate personal income and corporate profits taxes, to tax family units instead of individuals, and to tax all forms of income on the basis that "a buck is a buck," whatever its origin.

The Benson proposals, however, are not expected to go as far as the Carter proposals. Mr. Benson has said that his plan would be a modification of the Carter proposals, based on recommendations by government officials, businessmen, and taxpayers generally.

All the secrecy normally surrounding preparation of a federal budget has been employed in producing the government's white paper on tax reform.

It will be tabled in the Commons just before the House rises at 6 p.m. EST Friday for its weekend recess. This time has been picked because stock markets will be closed. When they reopen Monday, investors will have had a chance to digest the plan.

Main interest appears centred on whether the government will recommend a capital gains tax, now enthusiastically supported by the New Democratic Party and accepted, at least in modest form, by most of the Progressive Conservative Party.

Whatever the tax plan, however, it will not take immediate effect. The Commons finance committee, meeting in joint session with some senators, is to review the proposals at hearings running into next spring.

Tanker Broken, 36 Men Hunted

BOSTON (AP) — Seven persons were rescued from a sinking sloop off Nantucket early today while navy and coast guard ships plowed rough seas in search of 36 men last reported on the stern section of a tanker that broke in two.

The lgw section of the tanker, the 628-foot Kos of Liberian registry, was found Wednesday night by the British ship Border Laird.

Hope faded for the 36 men as the hours passed. The Koo's captain, a garbled S O S message at 10:30 a.m. EST Wednesday, estimated the stern would not remain afloat more than an hour.

Three coast guard cutters and three navy destroyers searched the area 120 miles southeast of Nantucket Island.

The ships encountered raging seas, whipped by an intense northeaster to 70 to 80 feet. Winds gusted to 70 miles an hour. The coast guard said visibility was almost zero.

Father Delivers Baby on Ferry

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — The stork beat the Glenora ferry near here today.

As a result Napanee artist Sidney Ledson turned midwife, safely delivering his wife of a six pound 12 ounce daughter.

The Ledsons were enroute here to leave their 14-month-old baby with a relative while Mrs. Ledson entered Prince Edward County Hospital for confinement.

They boarded the ferry at 7 a.m. at Adolphustown for the brief crossing of Picton Reach.

But events moved faster than expected. Shortly after the ferry Quinte Loyalist docked at Glenora, the Ledsons once more were passengers.

Later, mother and baby were reported "doing fine" in Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital.

Mystery Ill May Spread

WASHINGTON (AP) — Doctors expressed fear today a newly discovered "mystery disease" found only in the Philippines may be spread to other countries by visiting sailors if a planned international seaport is opened in the hardest-hit area.

More than 100 of the 1,388 persons afflicted with the disease since 1957 have died, the American Society of Tropical Medicine was told.

The disease is caused by a hair thin intestinal worm.

Students Oppose Missile Research

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A militant anti-war group driven from a Massachusetts Institute of Technology research laboratory Wednesday by police using fully clad tear gas demonstrations against defence research will continue.

The demonstrations Tuesday and Wednesday were directed by the Student Action Committee, a group composed of college-age protesters including members of Students for a Democratic Society.

The group opposes work done at MIT's Instrumentation Laboratory on the guidance system for the Poseidon missile.

MIT said work at the laboratory went on as usual. NAC said it halted research for two hours and called it a victory.

Like Any Briton, Queen Troubled by Rising Cost of Living

LONDON (CP) — Like any other British housewife, Queen Elizabeth is having troubles with the family budget over the rising cost of living.

Palace officials are having quiet and "informal" talks with the government treasury over her problem.

Already it has stirred up controversy and more is promised if the government asks Parliament to grant her the first increase in the privy purse of £715,000 ($1,235,000) a year since the Queen came to the throne in 1952.

"My heart bleeds," William Hamilton, a Labor MP from Scotland, said Wednesday night. He promised to lead "a hell of a row" in the Commons if the move is attempted.

On the other hand, the tabloid Daily Sketch points out that Her Majesty's allowance is less than half the yearly government subsidy to the Covent Garden opera house and adds: "Don't be mean to the Queen."

It is unofficially estimated that the purchasing power of the Queen's purse has shrunk to around £300,000 since the coronation. This has been supplemented for some time by undisclosed sums from the Queen's huge estates, but at the same time she had reduced her full-time staff of 300 by 15 per cent as an economy measure.

This income is reported to gross about £200,000 a year but the Queen pays special tax on it under an 1862 statute. While she is reputed to be worth more than £50,000,000 in property and other possessions, these are virtually entailed to the monarchial succession and a palace aide said today it would be "unthinkable" that any should be sold off to meet expenses.

Cost of Living

Of her annual provision from Parliament, she has only about £60,000 to disburse at will. The remainder is tied up in such items as household expenses and salaries, charities and payments to some members of royalty who do not receive direct grants from Parliament.

Antlers 22 Inches

Hunters Bag 15-point Buck

BRIGHTON — Since Monday morning "hunters have been thicker than trees" in the area about seven miles north of Brighton and a mile east of Highway 30.

The word was out that deer abounded in that particular area. But news of the deer which touched off the migration reached the hunters' ears too late.

Deer season opened in Brighton township amid a pouring rain at dawn Monday and two hunters — Gerry Plumley and Basil Donaldson—entered the woods at 6:30. At 7:05 a.m. Dicy emerged with a deer for all seasons.

It was a white-tailed buck—believed to be the largest ever bagged in the district—which weighed in at 229.5 pounds "gutted". His antlers measured 22 inches from tip-to-tip and the magnificent rack was a 15-pointer.

Most white-tailed bucks average between 135-150 pounds, with the rare exception tipping the scale in the 200 pound range.

W. F. Chesire, biologist with the Tweed branch of the Ontario department of lands and forests, said that records were not usually kept on the size of deer bagged by hunters.

Chesire noted that deer tended to be larger in agricultural areas than in the bushland up north because of the higher quality of feed available in the farming districts. It's the "grain with crops," he said, "good land will produce a much better crop than bad or barren land."

The large buck proved the validity of the biologist's statement. He was full of corn when he met his end and he is believed to have been the same large deer that had been spotted in Brighton area corn fields this summer.

Gerry and Basil were hunting in dense hardwood bush on the 50 - acre farm owned by Basil's father Archie when the buck appeared.

"What is the next thing on the agenda for the buck?

"Well he's headed for the freezer and then frying pan," Gerry revealed, "then I'll get the head stuffed and mounted if I can and if not I'll save the 15 - point rack."

The prize buck was only Gerry's second deer in nine years of hunting and it came in a township which has strict laws protecting the deer population.

Brighton township prohibits the use of dogs for hunting deer, prohibits the feeding of deer prior to the hunting season and allows only shotguns to be used. In addition the deer season lasted only three days.

Despite the success of the Brighton pact, the Tweed Branch of the Department of Lands and Forests reports that so far the hunt is down this year.

In a normal year approximately 20 per cent of the total kill is harvested on opening day, but hunter success is reported to have been low Monday because an all-day rain coincided with the opening of the deer season.

Most Trenton Area Municipalities to Hold Vote on Dec. 1

TRENTON — Most area municipalities will vote the same day — Monday, Dec. 1 — in the forthcoming civic elections, but few will hold nomination meetings simultaneously.

Trenton will be the first to hold nominations when the town's municipal offices open from 7-9 p.m. Monday, Nov. 15, to accept nominations for three council seats, the mayor-alty and the Public Utilities Commission posts.

Next in line are Murray and Cramahe Townships, with Cramahe two hours ahead of Murray.

Both will hold their nominations Friday, Nov. 21. The Cramahe nominations will be taken at Castleton Town Hall from 1-2 p.m. according to township clerk Gordon R. Beavis, while the Murray nominations will be received between the hours of 3-4 p.m. at the township municipal offices.

All five council positions (reeve, deputy - reeve, and three councillors) will be up for grabs in both townships with the major difference being that the Murray council will be elected for a three-year term while the Cramahe council will serve its customary one-year term.

Murray has switched from a two-year term to a three-year term this time in order to have the school board, council, and PUC elections all coincide starting in 1972.

Archie Edwards, clerk-treasurer of the village of Brighton, reports that nominations in Brighton will be held at the Town Hall from 7:30 - 8:30 p.m., Monday, Nov. 24.

The public utilities commissioner's post held by Maurice Herrington and the five council seats — reeve, deputy-reeve, three councillors — all expire this fall.

There will be no advance poll and all terms will be on a one-year basis, to make council elections coincide with those of the PUC and School Board, starting next fall.

The lone exception to the Dec. 1 voting date is Percy Township.

Clerk W. G. Allen said that nominations will be conducted in Warkworth at the Percy Township Hall Friday, Nov. 26, from 7-9 p.m. for a Dec. 6 election.

All the positions open — on council, reeve, deputy-reeve three councillors and for the village, three trustees — will have two-year terms.

Frankford village will not hold any elections this year because the council, PUC and School Board all went in for coinciding two-year terms last fall.

Seymour Township and the village of Campbellford are in the same position as Frankford and will not hold municipal elections this fall.

MDs Not Yet Active Staff

TRENTON — The dispute between the town's doctors and Trenton Memorial Hospital board of directors has reached an impasse.

Dr. J. V. Byrne, president of the medical society, said Wednesday the doctors have not filed applications for transfer back to the hospital's active service staff.

In a letter received by the hospital board Oct. 24, the Ontario Hospital Services Commission requested that all doctors eligible for privileges derived from attending patients in the hospital apply for active staff designation.

The board unanimously endorsed the OHSC request and sent separate letters to this effect to each eligible doctor.

Early in October all doctors except two permanent hospital staff physicians resigned from active status and asked to be placed on courtesy staff. They charged the board had failed to implement recommendations contained in an OHSC survey report made last summer.

"We're just biding our time, awaiting to see what the board has up its sleeve," Dr. Byrne said Wednesday.

He said the medical staff did not even receive a copy of the report made by two OHSC representatives who visited the hospital in October following the mass resignations.

Dr. Byrne stressed that patients at Trenton Hospital are receiving good care in spite of the long-standing dispute between doctors and the board.

Dr. D. J. Twiss, OHSC commissioner of hospitals, said today the OHSC had the dispute "very much under our scrutiny". He expressed the hope that "both the board members and the doctors would act as responsible people and straighten things out".

"They can't go on without an active medical staff indefinitely and I hope it's settled before long or we'll be back down," he added.

Active staff meaifs that doctors participate in committee activity and also accept responsibility for completion of internal reports and records. These reports and records are essential to hospital administration.

When the doctors resigned in October, Dr. Byrne cited two main reasons for the move.

These were: (1) board failure to consult physicians on policy involving patient care, and (2) an undue delay in appointing a qualified, experienced hospital administrator.

Both of these points were stressed in the OHSC four-year very report. Dr. Twiss said this morning the report would be the basis for continuing discussion between the OHSC and the hospital's board of directors.

Destruction, Prelude to Construction

The wreckage piles up on Division Street in Trenton where buildings are being torn down to make way for the new Regional Assessing Offices in the town. Workers have already demolished one house and the barn in the background will soon fall prey to the axe.

Workers Get 70-cent Hike

Tension drained from the issue last night after a membership majority of local 434, United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers, accepted the results of a hard - driven contract bargain.

The new deal — accepted only days away from the deadline legalizing strike action — gives Wilson workers a 70 - cent across-the-board increase over two years.

This is a key feature in a package deal of wage adjustments and fringe benefits union negotiators estimate is worth about 86 cents an hour.

The across-the-board boost will hike Wilson's basic labor rates from $2.15 to $2.85 by Oct. 30, 1970. Wage adjustments also has clerical increase will raise skill pay from $2.75 to $3.70.

The company also will pay 75 per cent of group insurance, while workers also will get an additional paid holiday — for a total of 10 holidays — during the year.

It took 30 minutes for the 160 members of local 434 to approve the package, wrapped up early Wednesday morning after a 17 - hour bargaining session between plant and union negotiators.

Union officials revealed that the vote taken at Club Caesars, was about 80 per cent in favor of the new two - year contract terms.

"It's the biggest package that's been negotiated around here for an industrial union," said union district representative Donald Barshaw.

"This was rough bargaining for both sides," he added. "Both the company and union tried hard to avoid a strike and a sincere effort was made by both."

Wilson vice-president James Clarke, who headed management's negotiating team, said the company was happy with what he called a "fine wage settlement."

"It sets us in the top wage group of industries in Belleville," he said.

Assessment Office to Employ 40

TRENTON — The new Hastings and Prince Edward region assessment offices will be erected on the west side of Division Street near downtown Trenton.

Location of the new assessment operation was jointly announced today by Mayor James MacDonald and Councillor E. M. Parker.

Three houses and a barn will be razed to make way for the $121,000 development on Division, south of Joseph Street.

A local contractor, Future Factories Ltd., will construct a three - storey office building on the site.

The new assessment office will go into operation on the building's main floor Jan. 1— when the provincial government assumes municipal - assessment functions.

The basement and upper floor of the new building will be completed as the demand for commercial office space increases.

Each floor will contain 7,000 square feet office space.

Miron - Wiggers Construction Ltd., of Trenton, will raise the building.

The new assessment operation, headed by Leighton Thompson, Belleville's assessment commissioner recently appointed to the provincial post, will employ 40 - 50 personnel.

Deseronto Council Appoints Dog Catcher

The Deseronto regular council meeting Monday evening was a comparatively quiet one. Correspondence cast no further light on the question of sewers and water, the major issues in the town.

The composition of next year's council did, however, come up when Councillor George Lyons, whose term of office does not expire until 1970, resigned as councillor, and announced that he would run as reeve in the December election. Reeve Donald Armitage had intimated several months ago that pressure of business would force him to withdraw from municipal politics. He has held the office for four years.

Councillors Mrs. Dorothy McCullough and J. A. Layfield have one more year in office. But Mayor J. W. Sharpe, E. Gordanier, Clayton Brooks and William Saunders must retire or come up for re-election. Council will meet again November 17, and nominations are November 20. Elections are December 1.

Murney House of Bloomfield was given the contract to demolish the old water storage tower at a cost of $650. The new water tower has been in operation since July.

Deseronto now has an official dog - catcher again Wayne Braid, an employee of the streets department, was appointed, with the understanding that time taken off to round up stray dogs, would not be counted as working time on the streets. He will not receive double pay for that time. He is to be paid a standing fee of $5 per month, plus $1 for each animal impounded, plus $2 for each trip to the Ontario Humane Society animal shelter in Napanee, with at least two animals. Deseronto will no longer maintain its own dog pound, but will make use of the facilities in the Napanee shelter.

A grant of $100 was made to the Victorian Order of Nurses, and $50 to the St. John Ambulance Corps.

Councillors Layfield and Saunders were absent from the meeting.

Arena Closed

PICTON — Prince Edward County Centre, its ice plant believed deliberately immobilized will be closed for several days.

Hockey games and skating have been cancelled for the next few days.

It was reported by arena manager James Latchford at the arena commission's monthly meeting that on Oct. 26 someone had deliberately turned a safety valve on the ice - making machine. This allowed 1,000 pounds of ammonia, valued at $500, to escape. The valve is situated about seven feet from the ground.

Steps will be taken to protect the valve from future vandalism, he said. About $100 worth of ice rental time was lost because of the incident.

Main Shut For Repairs

Water was shut off in the east end of the city for almost three hours last night as Public Utilities Commission crews worked fa repair a water main break.

The rupture in the six-inch main on Bridge St. East, just west of Farley Ave., was reported at 9:40 last night and repairs were completed by 2:15 a.m.

Cause of the break is unknown. Street flooding was minor and no damage resulted from the break.

Coffee House Topic Of Council Meeting

For the past two years Campbellford teenagers have operated a coffee house on Front St. They have now been asked to vacate the premises by Nov. 1.

Miss Sheila Chard addressed council to request the use of a room in the old Bridge St. School which belongs to the corporation. From now on it will not be needed for high school classes. Mr. William Rothwell supported the request and said a coffee house was needed, operated and supervised by the teenagers as a way of showing adults their capability in looking after their own affairs.

He said however, that there was no room available at the high school and even if there were it was not a suitable place for such an undertaking.

He said the students had demonstrated that they could be self supporting and that juvenile delinquency had shown a marked drop in areas where such retreats were established.

Council discussed the cost of heating the building and also the responsibility of safety and cleanliness. The teenagers were given permission to store a soft drink machine and tables and chairs while an investigation is made regarding the future use of the building.

Closing That Gap

Prince Philip has concluded his Canadian tour. As ever he leaves behind challenging thoughts on a wide range of topics, including the role of the monarchy in Canadian affairs and on education. We have already commented on the former but if we had thought everything there is to be said on education has been said we would of course have been wrong. And particularly where Prince Philip is concerned.

Education he suggested must be more than just absorption of academic and vocational subjects presented by professional teachers. Increasing leisure time, for example, must be turned into creative, meaningful endeavor.

He warned of new inequilities not of class but of age group. The young, he said, "are first segregated into schools and then later segregate themselves. The middle-aged stick together and finally the old are sent off to keep them out of the way."

So simply expressed — yet it all rings true. Dialogue between the age groups is almost non-existent, except across a shadowy barrier of misunderstanding of each other's ideas and feelings. Hence the awesome gulf people refer to as the "generation gap." To be sure, there has always been one, but never was it comparable with today's.

Bringing these different age groups into closer contact and understanding should be one of the purposes of education today. Each has something to contribute, for the betterment of society as a whole.

Closing the so-called generation gap is a task that should engage the attention of us all. Certainly it is encouraging to observe it happening in our midst.

There was the father-and-daughter banquet for example, held recently by the Kiwanis Club, as well as the Belleville and District Men Teachers' Federation gathering which honored three of last year's Grade 8 pupils at a banquet. Janet McMurter and David Clare of Harmony school and Jamie Mason of Queen Alexandra school received awards for citizenship and efficiency.

The Rotary Club this week has performed a similar service with its "Youth Viewpoint" panel discussion. And there were the Grade 11 child-psychology students of Moira secondary who entertained pre-schoolers at a Hallowe'en party.

Another occasion when the generation gap could close but strangely does not to any great extent is during the Kiwanis Club's travel series. Here adults are very much in the majority and young people less in evidence.

One would think the films would appeal to travel-minded youngsters but there seems to be a scarcity of them. As it is, there is scarcely room to swing a cat in the Collegiate auditorium, so popular are the films. From an educational viewpoint, though, as well as entertainment, there is something for all ages, in this series.

Hijack Incident

It seems incredible that anyone, let alone the FBI, would jeopardize the lives of those aboard the jet plane hijacked to Rome earlier this week The pilot, Captain Donald Cook, charged FBI men in New York ignored his instructions to keep away from the plane when it made a refuelling stop. At this point the hijacker became upset and fired a shot into the roof of the cockpit.

According to Cook, the FBI men said: "We'll move the plane when we get good and ready." As it was, the plane refuelled at Bangor, Maine. An attorney for the FBI charged Cook's statement was irresponsible and said the pilot was portraying himself as "the sole hero of the escapade." This is sheer petulance, if not a case of "sour grapes" — if there were any heroes in this lamentable affair they were certainly not among the FBI.

Of the many planes that have been hijacked thus far — all but two of them to Cuba — none has involved loss of life. The reason is that the plane crews have done as they were told and offered no resistance. There is a lesson here for the FBI.

As for the hijacker, Vietnam veteran Rafael Minichiello, 20, there is a curious parallel between his family background and that of another young man of questionable mental stability, Sirhan B. Sirhan, the convicted killer of Senator Robert Kennedy.

Sirhan's father returned to his native Jordan after emigrating to the United States with his family. Similarly Minichiello's father, now 80, took his family to the United States in 1963. They settled in Seattle but the senior Minichiello subsequently returned to Italy alone and settled in Naples.

This is a divisive pattern that occurs frequently with immigrant families from Europe, Asia and the Middle East and one that is significant in the circumstances of these two young men. It is a subject worthy of research by medical men or by universities.

Someone Did Pinch A Watch...But

PM's Security So Tight Police May Nab Even Their Own

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Outside No. 150 Wellington Street, directly opposite Parliament Hill, security men, in RCMP scarlet and blue uniforms, and in plain clothes, clustered round the door, casually running a not-so-casual eye over everyone entering.

Inside the building, in the foyer by the elevators and on the other side of the cushioned doors in a small, very specialised theatre like zone other in the National Capital, more security men backed up by Prime Minister Trudeau's East Block aides who knew almost — but not quite — every face there.

The security appeared to be as tight as a cork in a bottle.

But still, somebody managed to make off with the $50 stopwatch the prime minister had been using to time a statement on television opening his press conference.

It was not the PM's own personal watch — he had borrowed it from one of his four press secretaries — but that did not make the disappearance of it, al the heirly of all this elaborate security, any less ironical.

And nobody yet has explained how the watch vanished from the press conference pollthis from under the prime minister's nose nor discovered any trace of it.

The security nonetheless can be so tight that the agents have been known — just once, though — to grab one of their own.

It happened at one of the half dozen or so press conferences staged every week in the theatre.

A civilian, one of 50 or more — but a face new to the national press corps — ambled through the Wellington street door and got as far as the felt-padded (for silence) entrance to the theatre when a uniformed Ottawa city policeman took him by the elbow, because, explained the officer, the man looked "just a little suspicious."

Surprised, the civilian reared back, shook off the officer's arm, snorting "hey, what's with you, I'm a policeman too!"

Why all the security?

Well, in this increasingly permissive day, there is always some apostle of dissent to picket a press conference.

The Vietniks, the Biafra lobby, the Voice of Women, the anti-Americans, the hippies, the student radicals, and the professionals - of - protest who make a hobby of being anti-anything-and-everything going are never in short supply in the Capital.

Wellington street, flanked by Parliament Hill, the American Embassy and the National Press Centre, makes just a dandy parade square for Protest.

So somebody has to keep the lid of law and order on, and it is the police, our own Ottawa and the RCMP forces, and if the VIP holding the press conference comes from abroad, his own corps of bodyguards.

It is sure chuckle-making now to remember why former Prime Minister Lester Pearson shoi $100,000 of the taxpayers' treasure in creating the press conference theatre back in 1967.

The motive largely was his wish to escape the scrimmage he always had with press, radio and television reporters in the second floor corridor of the East Block when he emerged from cabinet meetings, to buzz and buffet his way the 50 or so feet to his office.

Admittedly it was quite a gauntlet he ran past a picket-fence of radio mikes, with TV mobile shoulder-shooting camera men backing up ahead of him and as many people as the jam-packed corridor possibly could hold all trying to elbow within listening distance.

It could get pretty rough, and one day Lester Bowles Pearson let out an explosive "Oh for goodness sake," and in self-defence came up with the idea of spending $100,000 on a formal, theatre, with the star of the show safely up on a platform out of the rush and the crush.

He should see the mob scene around the doors these days — and he might have been happy to settle for the East Block corridor caper and save the $100,000.

The $100,000 bought a lot of luxury for the reporters who did not ask for it nor particularly want it. The wall-to-wall rug is deeply rich, the terraced theatre seats are softly foam-rubber padded in cubby brown, the glass-enclosed TV stands are wood-panelled, the podium is back-dropped in royal blue, the air-conditioning and simultaneous translation plugins at every seat make for comfort and convenience, the batteries of ceiling-sunk lights blaze for TV, Plexiglass on the walls say "No Smoking, Please" in English and French, and on the back of every seat is a built-in ashtray.

It is a little gem of a theatre — but so it should be at $100,000.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nov. 6, 1863 . . .

The first federal Parliament assembled at Ottawa 102 years ago today—in 1867. The British North America Act provides: "There shall be one Parliament for Canada, consisting of the Queen, the upper house, styled the Senate, and the House of Commons." Today there are 264 members of Parliament and 102 senators.

1879—Thanksgiving Day was first observed in Canada.

1947—The terms on which Newfoundland would become a part of Canada were announced.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1944—Lord Moyne, British resident minister in the Middle East, was fatally wounded by two gunmen in Cairo; RAF attacked Stuttgart during the night, making 21 German cities hit by 9,000 Allied planes in the greatest 36-hour bombing siege of the war; Premier Stalin declared 20 German divisions were cut off from East Prussia in the Baltic states.

Galbraith's View of Economy

Peterborough Examiner

There is only one way in which Canada can hope to curb inflation without bringing on massive unemployment; that is to impose compulsory price and wage restraints in the major industrial sectors of the economy.

That judgment comes from one of the world's foremost economists Canadian-born John Kenneth Galbraith, currently professor of economics at Harvard University. Prof. Galbraith told an Ottawa study group this week that big business and big unions are able to adjust to continual price rises while public employees, those employees with minimal bargaining power, pensioners and whitecollar workers in the private sector are the ones who feel the full impact of rising prices.

Thus the strong parts of the economy continue to force prices up and shift the burden of the inflation to those sectors of the economy which are less powerless to cope with them.

During the past two weeks Canadians have witnessed a first-hand illustration of what Prof. Galbraith was saying. After an 81-day strike the United Steelworkers of America won increases in wages and fringe benefits of almost $1.35 and $1.37½ per hour in a new contract with the Steel Co. of Canada. Only a week later Sefco announced a 6 per cent increase in the price of its major steel products.

Winter's Drab Preliminaries

Montreal Star

We are on the downward slope to Christmas and a new calendar year. The time of change is here and northern man must contents himself in a world of blacks, browns and grays. He barries from warm houses to comfortable stores and offices. Lighted windows beckon like welcoming beacons of comfort in the early dark of nightfall.

It is a time of drabness. There is little encouragement for lingering outdoors . . . the canny birds have already migrated to the warm south.

Most will not admit it, but there will be some form of relief when the snow comes to give definition to a world of skeletal trees and hibernating nature.

Unsolved Murders

St. Catharines Standard

It was a little over three weeks ago that the nude, battered body of a 15-year-old girl was found floating in a creek on the outskirts of London, Ont. The shock of the crime, the fact that it was yet another in a series of murders with sex overtones in the Western Ontario area, and the fact that — like the other killings — it has remained unsolved have not been lost on the people of London.

But for the rest of us, reaction has been minimal. It was just another incident in some other place, and of no real concern to us. Yet we could be wrong. Though the unknown killer must bear responsibility for the murder of Jacqueline English, it was the community's lack of concern that aided and abetted him in his crime.

Critics Skeptical

Nixon Counts on Silent Majority to Back Peace Plan

By RAY DICK

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon's televised speech to the American people Monday night was more a call for peace at home than in Vietnam.

If this was the intention, it failed to reach what Vice-President Spiro Agnew has called "the effete corps of impudent snobs," the hard-core critics of the Nixon administration's war policies.

What effect it had on the "vast silent majority" to which Nixon mainly directed his plea remains to be seen, but it seems likely the silent majority will remain just that.

The speech offered nothing surprising, but did let the public know of Nixon's personal efforts to end the war, including an exchange of letters with Ho Chi Minh just before the North Vietnamese president died.

Nixon's address Monday was that the American people "must persist in our search for peace through a negotiated settlement if possible; or through continued implementation of our plan for Vietnamization if necessary."

He described this as "a plan in which he will withdraw all of "our forces from Vietnam on a schedule in accordance with our program, as the South Vietnamese become strong enough to defend their own freedom."

No timetable for troop withdrawals was given "for obvious reasons," he said; such a move would only encourage North Vietnam to stand pat at the negotiating table and win the war by default.

The speech was far from what many administration critics had expected. They had looked for a withdrawal timetable, a ceasefire or some type of specific proposal to end the fighting.

It was a hard speech, and it definitely ruled out any unilateral withdrawal, as demanded by critics of the war. Nixon said such a course would have disastrous results at home and abroad.

The speech guaranteed "the continuation of a seemingly endless war," said Sam Brown, national organizer for the Vietnam Moratorium Committee, which plans another national demonstration Nov. 15.

"A war speech, not a peace speech," said a member of the new Mobilization Planning Committee.

Reaction was similar from other hard-core critics who claim President Nixon will find out at the next moratorium demonstration who the "small minority" really is.

Senator J. W. Fulbright (Dem. Ark.), a long-time war critic, said Nixon "now has fully and truthfully taken on himself the Johnson war, and I think it is a fundamental error."

He predicted the Senate foreign relations committee, of which he is chairman and which had delayed Vietnam hearings pending Nixon's speech, will go ahead now with a broad review of U.S. policy.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said he had hoped Nixon would offer more. Now, he said, the best that can be expected out of Vietnam is a stalemate.

Whether the Democratic majority's action in postponing hearings and criticism prior to the speech was a behind-the-scenes political manoeuvre is immaterial: the Nixon administration can expect renewed criticism from several fronts.

For this reason, observers here believe, Nixon chose to gamble on the support of the "silent majority" for his peace plan which he said is "the right way" to end the war.

"North Vietnam cannot defeat or humiliate the United States," he said. "Only Americans can do that."

He made clear he was laying everything on the line.

"I have chosen a plan for peace. I believe it will succeed. If it does succeed, all the critics say now will not matter. If it does not succeed, anything I say then will not matter."

Tax Paper Is Due

The government then plans to introduce legislation in the early fall of 1970, which might not become law until early 1971.

The royal commission headed by the late Kenneth Carter, Toronto accountant and tax consultant, was appointed in 1962 by the former Progressive Conservative government. It was the first thorough study of tax law from the ground up that Canada, or almost any other country, has had. It set out to determine why taxes should be levied as they are, and recommend how they should be imposed.

The Carter report's main principles were to devise a tax system that raises sufficient money for government purposes, but is fair to all taxpayers. Persons in different circumstances should be treated differently, the report conceded, but only in proportion to the difference in their circumstances.

The commission found that wage and salary earners, and some who receive investment incomes, were carrying more than their fair share of the tax load. Some industries—like insurance and banking—were carrying less than they should, it said.

The Carter commission would have done away with corporation taxes, except for the amount of business done in Canada by foreign corporations.

Instead, it suggested that the Canadian owners of business be given tax credits on their personal income taxes for the taxes paid by their corporations. Corporations, in the Carter view, are only creatures of their shareholders.

The commission also regarded current income tax rates as too high in the upper brackets. Income taxes now begin at 11 per cent on the first $1,000 of taxable income and run up, by stages, to a rate of 82.4 per cent on any taxable income in excess of $500,000 a year, including the current anti-inflation surtax.

Anyone in Canada earning more than $25,000 taxable income a year pays in taxes more than half of each extra dollar of income.

The Carter report said no income tax should be higher than 50 per cent. To go higher only destroys incentive and encourages tax evasion, the report said.

But while recommending a cut in the rate of taxes, the commission recommended that all forms of income be treated as taxable, thus widening the tax base to make up any lots of federal revenues.

Trenton Chamber

Charles Lynch Guest Speaker

TRENTON — The news in Trenton today is that one of Canada's best known newsmen will be in town tonight.

He's Charles B. Lynch and tonight he'll be the guest speaker at the Trenton Chamber of Commerce's annual dinner and election of officers at the Trenton Country Club commencing at 6.30 p.m.

Mr. Lynch came to Canada from his birthplace — Cambridge, Mass., at the age of two weks and was educated in Saint John, New Brunswick, where he began his newspaper career in 1936.

He joined Reuters as a war correspondent at the end of 1942 and covered the D-Day landing in Normandy, June 6, 1944, as well as subsequent campaigns in Northwest Europe.

After the war he served as Reuters correspondent in Berlin and headed the team of Reuters correspondents covering the Nuremburg War Crimes Trials.

Upon leaving Reuters Mr. Lynch became chief of the Ottawa Bureau of Southam News Services in 1958 and was appointed chief of the news services in 1960, with responsibility for the Southam's national and international news coverage.

A noted speaker and lecturer from coast-to-coast and also in the U.S., Mr. Lynch has appeared on CBC television since its inception and is a veteran reporter of the political scene.

These days he writes a daily column of political and international commentary for the Southam newspapers, but he has covered the last four Presidential elections in the U.S. and the six Canadian federal elections since 1957.

Teachers Hear Consultants

PICTON (Staff) — Wellington Consolidated School yesterday opened its doors to a special teachers' convention.

Eric Runacres, director of education for Hastings County, addressed 240 teachers from Prince Edward County, his topic being "Who shall bring about change?"

In attendance, as well, were representatives from the board of education and members of the Home and School Council.

Also attending the convention were a group of program consultants from Kingston. A question and answer period followed Mr. Runacres' address and at its conclusion subject groups were formed for discussion.

Prince Edward County director of education, John McNeil remarked: "We wish to acquaint the teachers with these program consultants in the hope that other spontaneous meetings will spring up afterwards."

One such meeting is already scheduled to be held in Bloomfield on Nov. 14 for home economics teachers.

These teachers organized the meeting of their own volition.

Air Search Unit Seeks Plane

TRENTON — A Dakota aircraft from the CFB Trenton left at noon today to search for a missing plane lost over the upper St. Lawrence River Valley.

Squadron 424 of the CFB Trenton Search and Rescue Unit stood by all morning to start the search as soon as the weather cleared over the river.

Fog, rain and cloud cover have reduced visibility to 500 feet in the area along both sides of the river.

Ontario Provincial Police were notified that the missing plane was last seen Monday when it left Kingston on a flight to Bainsville, near the Quebec border, and a complete communications check is being carried out from both sides of the St. Lawrence.

Two people are aboard the missing craft, a white single engine Champion with red trim. The plane's call sign is CF-YXF.

The plane's pilot failed to file a flight plan before his departure on what would normally be a two-hour flight. Authorities are checking all 16 airports on both sides of the river to see if the plane was forced to land before reaching its destination. Names of the missing persons have not been released.

Pelletier Was Ready to Disband CYC Before 1968 Election

OTTAWA-(CP) — State Secretary Gerard Pelletier was ready to disband the Company of Young Canadians when evidence of separatism in its Quebec operation grew as the June 25, 1968, federal election loomed, a Commons inquiry was told Wednesday.

Alan Clarke, executive director of the CYC for 30 stormy months ending June 15, 1968, said that Mr. Pelletier's determination to get rid of Martin Beliveau, the CYC's associate director in Montreal, left him "boxed in" and unable to disagree. Mr. Beliveau was regarded as a separatist.

He wanted to hold off the dismissal until new leadership and a new program could be found for the CYC's Quebec program. But he received a telegram at 3 a.m. May 25 telling him to be at Mr. Pelletier's Montreal home 12 hours later.

He said he was told by Roger Tessier, then vice-chairman of the CYC council, that "it was important for us to co-operate with the minister because he was at the point where he would ask that the cabinet be convened to have the company disbanded."

The Beliveau case, which ended with Mr. Clarke's resignation, was laid out in detail in a statement he gave the CYC council on his departure.

Mr. Clarke told the committee that:

—His troubles began October, 1967, in a conflict with R. A. J. Phillips, a council member, over how the case of Yorkville volunteer David Depoe should be handled.

—Mr. Phillips used his influence as a member of the Privy Council secretariat on poverty to "harass" the council into making certain decisions.

—Mr. Phillips was responsible for surprise appointment of a comptroller.

Mr. Clarke said he was excluded from part of a council meeting, without reason, early in 1968.

He said the Commons announcement of a 20-per-cent cut to $1,900,000 in the budget the CYC had submitted came as "a traumatic blow" and without warning.

By the spring of 1968, his relations with the council had deteriorated, he said.

At that time, conflict erupted in the Quebec operation with Mr. Beliveau "dismissing" Andre Bonin, a project co-ordinator, and Mr. Bonin demanding at one point, to Mr. Pelletier, the dismissal of both Mr. Clarke and Mr. Beliveau.

After an inquiry, most of the council wanted to get rid of Mr. Beliveau while Mr. Clarke said he wanted to wait until after the June 25 election.

He was told by Mr. Pelletier May 25 to get Mr. Beliveau's resignation within 48 hours a week after he had announced that both Mr. Beliveau and Mr. Bonin would be reinstated.

In his written statement, he said he had an affidavit from a CYC volunteer who said that Mr. Pelletier, in conversation, had "commented very negatively, and in one instance scurrilously, on my administrative ability" and discussed appointment of a new executive director.

MPs, scanning the CYC documents before them, found that the company paid $3,600 in legal costs for David Depoe, acquitted of a charge of disturbing the peace in a Toronto anti-war demonstration. Another $2,000 was paid in legal fees for another volunteer acquitted in Inuvik, N.W.T., of a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Mr. Clarke said the company was told by the prime minister's office there was no legal basis for paying the fees but decided volunteers had to be backed up because of the nature of the work.

The inquiry began Tuesday, when the witnesses included William McWhinney, Mr. Clarke's predecessor and first executive director of the CYC. Mr. McWhinney said he resigned after 10 months because he felt inadequate to the task.

Mr. Clarke's successor, Charlie Vidal, last weekend narrowly escaped censure by the current council for suspending two Toronto volunteers he felt were not acting in accordance with CYC principles.

CYC Never Given Definite Role Says LaMarsh

TORONTO (CP) — Judy LaMarsh says the Company of Young Canadians has been the enfant terrible of the federal government because it has never been given a clear definition of its role.

"CYC was very much the idea of Mr. Pearson (former prime minister Lester Pearson)," said Miss LaMarsh, former secretary of state, in an interview.

"I think the present government would be very happy to squash the company and that would be unfortunate. It should be made the responsibility of someone like Jean Marchand (minister of regional development) or Ron Basford (minister of consumer and corporate affairs).

"I don't think that Mr. Pelletier (Secretary of State Gerard Pelletier) has the confidence of enough people in Canada to give the company any real direction," says Miss LaMarsh.

"But I don't think that Mr. Trudeau has any interest in the company and that he would like to do away with it. But if it were given to Jean Marchand or Ron Basford, men who are intelligent and who are sympathetic with the young people, there is probably a great deal that CYC can still do.

"It would be unfortunate if it were abolished right now because it would mean that there was no place within the formal structure of government where people could work with the poor and underprivileged members of our society."

Miss LaMarsh said it was at her suggestion that the CYC received its name.

Long Lunch Brings Jail

TORONTO (CP) — Frank Worden, 50, was charged with assault and ordered jailed overnight Wednesday after he returned to court too late for the resumption of his trial after a lunch recess.

Judge Charles Drukarsh initially ordered a bench warrant for the arrest of Frank Worden, 50, but cancelled it and ordered the defendant be jailed overnight after he returned while another case was being heard.

Worden's lawyer had told the court the defendant had been trying to bring more defence witnesses to court during the recess.

Worden and his son, Allan, 19, are charged with assault causing bodily harm to a 16-year-old girl who was taken to hospital after a beating Sept. 27.

BC Denies Dumping Transients on Ontario

VICTORIA (CP) — Complaints that British Columbia has unloaded transients from Ontario back on that province's shoulders were denied Wednesday by a social welfare official.

E. R. Rickinson, deputy minister of social welfare, said The Globe and Mail reported complaints by Ontario welfare officials.

He said B.C. receives four times as many welfare recipients from Ontario as that province does from B.C.

Overall, he said, B.C. gets an "unfair share" of unemployed persons from all the other provinces.

He said the newspaper reported that Ontario was not complaining about accepting young migrants—69 in the last six months who were 18 years of age or under—but suspected B.C. was using Canada Assistance Plan procedures as a routine means of unloading welfare recipients from the East.

Mr. Rickinson said B.C. had no intention of altering its present methods.

Ontario is asking that B.C. prove it is "good social policy" to return the migrants, and "nobody is returned now unless it is good social policy."

He said there was no question of "just dumping" people back to Ontario.

Basford Defends Officials

All Polite at Gleaner

OTTAWA (CP) — Corporate Affairs Minister Ron Basford said Wednesday his officials acted with complete courtesy in a search of the Fredericton Gleaner under the Combines Investigation Act.

He also said there is no discrimination being practised against the daily newspaper.

"I am also familiar with some of the newspaper editorials that have attacked the conduct of my officers," Mr. Basford said in reply to a Commons question.

Hugh John Flemming (PC—Carleton-Charlotte) had asked Mr. Basford whether he was prepared to answer a question that Mr. Flemming asked last week "in relation to the apparently discriminatory raid that was recently carried out by officials under the Combines Investigation Act on the premises of the Daily Gleaner of Fredericton."

"I should like to inform the House that I have investigated these allegations and I am quite satisfied that my officials, all of whom are professionally trained, comported themselves with complete courtesy to those involved," Mr. Basford said.

"They acted in a polite and efficient manner and confined their search to matters concerning the ownership and control of the newspapers involved.

"The search that they were conducting was carried out by these representatives pursuant to Section 10 of the Combines Investigation Act and the statutory duty of the officers in my department to examine into this sort of matter."

Mr. Flemming asked whether the same type of investigation has been made of newspapers and newspaper proprietors in other parts of Canada.

Mr. Basford replied:

"I do not have in front of me the details of other inquiries, but I do know that the restrictive trade practices commission has conducted over the last few years three inquiries into the proprietors of newspapers."

Mr. Flemming asked on whose complaint the investigation was ordered "and whether any complaint has been made in regard to any other newspaper proprietors in Canada."

Hawaiian Decor Highlights Bazaar

Anyone for a trip to Hawaii? If not a good substitute was the St. Joseph's Parish Bazaar held at the school on Wednesday afternoon.

Convener for the event was Mrs. William Buckley and co-convener was Mrs. H. Carr-Brazier.

Highlighting the decorations was a Hawaiian couple (mandarins, 'alas). He played the guitar as she danced the hoola. While she danced she women poured tea and served dainty delicacies.

The tea table was decorated with a white linen table cloth, candelabra with red and green candles and centred with a bouquet of colored flowers. A silver tea set sat at each end of the table. Individual tea tables were centred with a flambeau or an ornamental centrepiece of palm trees accenting the entrance of tea room, which featured a path offset by a coconut tree at each side. The women serving wore matching hats and flowers in their hair. Pouring tea were Mrs. Mountford, Mrs. Farrell, Mrs. Throop, Mrs. Mulvihill, Mrs. Hackett, Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. O'Callaghan and Mrs. Panting.

In charge of the Christmas table was Mrs. R. Park. It featured Christmas stockings, wreaths and tree decorations. Rosaries, religious ornaments and pictures were also available.

In charge of the bake table was Mrs. G. McDermott: apron table, Mrs. J. Maloney; knitting table, Mrs. G. Pillon; sewing table, Mrs. A. Eves and parcel post, Mrs. R. Nagode. Mrs. J. Canty looked after the pull tickets while Mrs. James Anion and Mrs. Jack Belanger looked after the grocery basket draw. Mrs. W. Hurley was in charge of advertising.

The knitting table was especially interesting. Knitted monkey's made from men's wool socks were eye catching along with owls made from colored wool and filled with foam.

Winners of the prizes were as follows: Mrs. Belanger, $40.50; Mrs. Tugnett, the monkey doll; Mrs. Donati, the groceries; Mrs. Towns, doll set; Mrs. O'Rorke, aprons; Mrs. O'Neil the centrepiece and Mrs. Clarke, the cake.

Autumn Tea and Bazaar Held By Quintena Rebekah Lodge

The Odd Fellows Hall, Front Street was a riot of autumn colors for the Quintena Rebekah Lodge tea and bazaar held Wednesday afternoon under the convenership of Mrs. Doris Clarke with Mrs. Grace Alley as co-convener.

In the vestibule adjoining the main hall the many guests were warmly greeted by Noble Grand Elda Sopha and Vice Grand Betty Anderson. Tickets were taken by Mrs. Ella Mason.

On this floor, the various sales tables were located, each carrying out the gold, brown and green color scheme. Large baskets of colorful autumn blooms lent further accent to the attractive setting.

With Christmas not too far in the offing, the aprons, children's wear and fancy work tables were especially popular. Each had a splendid number of gift-giving items. Aprons were sold by Mrs. Nelda O'Neil as convener and Mrs. Doreen Hackett, co-convener; children's wear by Mrs. Florence Pollitt and Mrs. Ellen Anderson, and the fancy work items by Mrs. Sally Mossman and Mrs. Merle Simpson. A china and novelties table with a wide range of miscellaneous items was convened by Mrs. Phyllis Wing and Mrs. Ida Holt.

The home bake and candy tables were also well patronized with each having an abundant supply of sweet treats. Homebaking was in charge of Mrs. Marg. Wessels assisted by Mrs. Gladys Brickman, while the candy sales were looked after by Mrs. Lillian Jensen assisted by Margaret Nelson.

Away from the hustle and bustle of the sales booths, was the tea room, located on the upper floor. The fall decor was again most eye catching with a white picket fence and gate-way enhanced with tall wicker pedestals containing yellow, bronze and golden 'mums. The attractive tea table was highlighted with an arrangement of yellow and gold shasta daisies and 'mums in golden wicker basket, flanked with green and white candles in tri-branch crystal candelabra and sparkling silver tea services.

Each guest table was decorated with a white luncheon cloth bearing the lodge insignia and centred with a miniature golden basket containing artificial fruit.

Mrs. Rosetta Kerr was tea room hostess and here taking tickets were Mrs. Annie Rose and Mrs. Pearl Baird. Pouring tea at various intervals during the afternoon were four Past Noble Grands Mrs. Eva Judge, Mrs. Bernice Booth, Mrs. Alice Adams and Mrs. Ila Addy; also Mrs. Margaret Nelson and Mrs. Ellen Anderson.

A large number of the members assisted in the serving and replenishing, while kitchen duties were in charge of Mrs. Helen Shorey and Mrs. Nora MacDonald.

Church Groups

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH MISSIONARY SOCIETY AND LADIES' AID

DESERONTO — The women of the Presbyterian Church of the Redeemer met at the home of Mrs. Donald McMillan for the October meeting, combining the Missionary Society and the Ladies' Aid with the president, Mrs. Gladys Pearase in charge.

Mrs. Charles Griffiths and Mrs. Blake Moore read passages of scripture, and Mrs. E. L. Quirk offered prayer during the early part of the meeting, devoted to the study of missions. Mrs. Albert Walker gave a study of conditions existing among Indians and Eskimos of Canada's north land, and Mrs. Moore contributed a reading on Thanksgiving. A hymn concluded this part of the meeting.

Turning to the work of the Ladies' Aid, those present discussed the forthcoming bazaar and feel safe in announcing the date as November 15. They wish to hold it in the church hall but because of the uncertainty of the completion of the restoration of the interior, had hesitated to set the date until now. However, since the scaffolding is now down and only the varnishing of pews and woodwork and the laying of the carpet remains to be done, there is every hope that the church will be in use early next month.

Th women are having weekly work meetings, going from home to home, and are completing very attractive articles for the bazaar.

MARMORA C.W.L.

Following 7.30 Mass on Monday, members of Marmora Council of the CWL met in the parish hall, with Mrs. Joe O'Neill presiding. Conveners' reports were given as follows:

Missionary Activities: Infant clothing will be packed for Cumbermere Indian Nov. 19. A letter of appreciation for shoes received by the Stamp Burse, Holy Redeemer College, was read by convener Mrs. Charles Lajoie.

Christian Family Life: Mrs. Charles O'Connor read an excellent article entitled "You Can't Give Too Much Love."

Communications: A letter of objection to a local store regarding their display of indecent literature resulted in the owner deciding to cancel further sales of these periodicals. Mrs. Paul Brady gave a thorough report of coming educational TV programs.

Church Life: Convener, Mrs. Charles Brady, read excerpts from chapter two of "Time of Change" dealing with renewal in the church.

The Christmas meeting of the League will be Sunday, Dec. 7, with the gift groups contributing to the program. A good report of the rummage sale held a few days earlier, was given.

Varied Art Collection Submitted

Mrs. Bea Williamson assists Toronto art juror Alex Millar as he selects paintings to be hung for the Belleville Art Association Show at the Corby Public Library continuing today and tomorrow.

Paintings Chosen for Art Show

It's that time of the year again — the Belleville Art Association is holding its annual exhibit at the Belleville Public Library. Each member can donate a total of four paintings and a total of 110 has been submitted.

Judging the collection this year is Mr. Alex Millar of Toronto, an honors graduate of the Ontario College of Art. He has done post graduate work at the Institute Allende Mexico and St. Martin's School of Fine Art, London, England. Mr. Millar's works hang in the National Gallery, Ottawa; the Museum of Modern Art, Houston, Texas; the Sarnia Art Gallery and the Michael Conservation Collection at Kleinburg, Ontario. He has taught at O.C.A. and has had wide experience in summer schools including Queen's University.

The judging took place on Wednesday morning and the selected ones are being hung for display on Thursday. On Friday evening a presentation of a painting on behalf of the Belleville Art Association will be made to the chairman of the Library Board.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

MELROSE WI

Mrs. Arthur Long was hostess in her home for the October meeting of Melrose WI with an attendance of 18.

Business arising from the minutes of the last meeting was dealt with. The trophy for the 4 H calf club is being inscribed and will be presented at awards night at Centre Hastings School.

The women who represented the WI reported on their attendance at the Music and Art bazaar and the Hospital Auxiliary tea and style show at the home of Mrs. Kvarda.

A number of women had attended the meeting and showing of pictures at the Lonsdale WI Hall.

Wayne Parks of Hay Bay, who had visited England and Scotland as an exchange student, showed his collection at this meeting as well.

Melrose WI members have arranged to provide lunch for achievement day at Gilead Hall on Nov. 22.

The Christmas party will be held on Dec. 10 and arrangements for place and program will be made by the committee in charge.

The next 4 H Homemaking Club "Focus on Fitness" is open to girls and young women between the ages 12 and 26 inclusive. Training school dates are January 29 and 30. The meeting place has not been announced as yet.

The leader and assistant will be confirmed at the next meeting.

The only FWIO project for the 25th anniversary of the WI is the $6,000 subscribed to Macdonald Institute at Guelph. Twenty five dollars was voted to the funds at this meeting. An appeal was also made for the gifts in the Mental Health Institutions to be left unwrapped, at 31 Pine St., Belleville by Dec. 12.

Program convener, Mrs. Harold McMechan called on Mrs. Mac Lazzer for a reading after which Mrs. McMechan gave a paper on Thanksgiving, Hallowe'en and Christmas customs of other lands. Mrs. Earl Badgley gave a reading entitled "Is a Woman's Place in the Home".

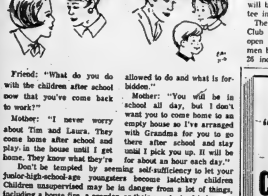
Mrs. Clarence Hagerman was in charge of two contests. Following this refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. H. Melburn, Mrs. R. Biddgley, Mrs. J. Summers and Mrs. G. McLaren.

GUM DISEASE

Most cases of gum disease result from local irritations such as tartar formation and poor oral hygiene.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON



Friend: "What do you do with the children after school now that you've come back to work?"

Mother: "I never worry about Tim and Laura. They come home after school and play in the house until I get home. They know what they're allowed to do and what is forbidden."

Friend: "But aren't they lonely?"

Mother: "You will be in school all day, but I don't want you to come home to an empty house so I've arranged with Grandma for you to go there after school and stay until I pick you up. It will be for about an hour each day."

Don't be tempted by seeming self-sufficiency to let your junior-high-school-age youngsters become latchkey children unsupervised may be in danger from a lot of things, including a house fire, a prowler, or their own lack of judgment.

PANASONIC

Meet the family.

Our TV's. From 11-inch Panasonic, world's smallest TV—to 29-inch Panasonic. Every one of them made with the legendary Panasonic quality.

At Panasonic, size has nothing to do with quality. Every model we make, we make like it was our only set.

And we don't skimp on features that make viewing simple. Like slide-lever controls that let you adjust your set with precision. And automatic circuits that make sure it keeps put.

Like dark-tinted screens that shade the picture from glare and reflection. So you don't see halos when a boi-no-sainty character is on.

And Speed-O-Vision. Which means you never need an appointment with your television. Click . . . and on come sound and picture. Instantly.

A lot of other features we don't skimp on include direct vision tubes for better viewing, illuminated channel selectors, dipole antennas for clear reception, and earphones for privacy. And a lot more.

So if size has nothing to do with a good black and white TV, what does? Quality. Quality and a lot of innovation. The type you get from a company with 2,500 scientists and research engineers. With 60,000 technicians in over 80 factories. And with experience in selling 4,500 products in 120 countries.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Spies Make Excellent Pioneer Apple Fritters

By MARY MOORE

Besides being a cook I am a baby-sitter par excellence. Don't laugh. When 18-month-old Gregory throws his soup plate plus soup on the floor I know he does not want it. When three-year-old Hilary flails her arms and knocks off my glasses I know she's mad at me. When seven-year-old Jennifer says she saw them making Apple Fritters at Pioneer Village I know she wants me to make some. So I did and they were good. Use cooking apples for these. Hard apples such as Spies would not cook soft enough in the two or three minutes the fritters take to cook in the hot fat.

PIONEER APPLE FRITTERS

¾ cup stirred but not sifted all-purpose flour
1 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
2 tbsps. icing sugar
1 egg
1/3 cup milk
1 tsp. rum flavoring (or 1 tbsp.-rum)
2 average-sized apples (see below)
Pineapple or lemon juice (see below)

Into the heater bowl measure the flour, baking powder, salt, icing sugar, egg, milk and rum flavoring (or rum). Beat until smoothly blended.

Wash, pare, quarter and core apples and cut each apple into eight or 12 wedges. Immediately coat with pineapple or lemon juice to prevent browning.

Heat fat or oil (at least 1½" deep) in 350 deg. Fahr. Drop about six apple wedges at a time into batter to coat them, lift with fork, drain a second and drop into hot fat. Turn over with fork or slotted spoon as soon as bottom is deep gold and brown other side. Lift from fat, drain on paper towelling. Keep warm. Fry remaining fritters. Serve about six fritters on each plate for dessert sprinkled with icing or powdered sugar or use as an accompaniment to baked ham or baked ham slice.

NOTES: 1) This recipe is not included in many cook books so I would advise you to clip and save it.

2) It could be served as dessert with a Lemon Sauce or Lemon-Nutmeg sauce.

Cure for Alcoholic Not Compassion

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am fed up with your advice to wives of alcoholics that goes like this: "Have a little compassion. The man is sick. Alcoholism is an illness. Etc., etc., etc."

ANN LANDERS

It's apparent that you have had no experience with alcoholism. Well, I have, so please listen. After 32 years of hauling my drunken bum out of hotels, motels, jails, hospitals and other women's bedrooms, I resent being told I lack compassion. If you think I'm hard-hearted, wait until you read the rest of this letter.

Three weeks ago I received a call from the police. They asked me to come to the morgue and identify a man they believed to be my husband. I recognized him immediately since he was in a prone position, which is the way I saw him most of his life.

I had tried kindness and compassion. It didn't work. I begged him to go to A.A. and even offered to go with him. He refused. He wouldn't see a counselor or a clergyman because they were all "fakes." He was no father, no husband, no provider, no human being. It took 38 years to figure out that compassion was not the answer. If I had it to do over I'd have thrown him out and let the sot sink or swim. — TELLING IT LIKE IT IS AND WISH YOU'D DO THE SAME.

DEAR TELLING IT: You have a valid point and I would not deny it. Not all approaches work for all people. Authorities have been rethinking the techniques for treating alcoholics since alcoholism has assumed epidemic proportions in this country. Many distinguished authorities now say that love and compassion fail, the alcoholic who refuses to accept counseling or medication, should be thrown out. They now believe that some drunks will straighten themselves out only when it is made abundantly clear that they are responsible for themselves — that no one will provide them with room and board, coddle them, clean up after them or make excuses for them to family, friends and the boss.

Tobacco Makes Money; Also Costs Many Lives

By DORIS CLARK

What Canada makes out of the manufacture of tobacco just isn't peanuts. Thirty-two cents out of every 94-cent package of cigarettes go to federal and provincial coffers. Nearly nine out of every $100 spent by the federal government come from tobacco taxes.

But have we noticed enough just how costly is the habit of smoking? In Norway a survey showed that when all the costs were added — hospitalization, medical fees, loss of productivity and so on — the cost of lung cancer alone was greater than the revenue taken by the government in tobacco taxes. Here in Canada a Health and Welfare report estimated that cigarette sickness was costing Canada around $500,000,000.

Not to mention that a third of all property fires are caused by smoking — and the toll in forest fires is astronomical.

Put that in your pipe and smoke it!

* * *

Dear Doris: I promise to abide by what you say. We live in an old section and there are very few children.

This concerns our two youngest, five and six. They play with a six-year-old boy who is a little slow and has a very bad temper. He wants his own way at all times. We don't let our children eat in front of others if they happen to have treats unless they offer part of what they have.

This boy comes across to our place with whole soft drinks, large packages of Cheezies or cookies and just stands and watches and never offers any. He's in our yard playing all the time but if our children go to his house he just says, "Get out of my yard" or "Get off my porch." Both parents work and he is left to his own devices with a 13-year-old brother. Parents belong to a lot of committees.

My husband seems to think our two children shouldn't be allowed to play with this lad, but I say that he may learn something good from our children and I can watch over him a bit. — Who Is Right?

Dear Who: From the sound of you, your two youngest are so much richer than little Mucher, that what he does won't throw them. They have love, solid security, some rules to go by.

If you can take it, I don't doubt you can help him. And your youngsters will pick up a little about compassion and getting along with the not-so-perfect members of the human race.

* * *

Is it better to put up with misunderstandings, or to begin talking things over? Let Doris help you see the light.

Trade Union Delegates Pledge Increased Support for NDP

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario Federation of Labor ended a three-day convention Wednesday with a pledge of increased support for the provincial New Democratic Party and a call for a guaranteed annual income.

The 1,006 delegates also passed resolutions suggesting that technological change be made an issue for collective bargaining, and opposing Sunday opening of retail stores.

In approving the technology resolution, the delegates bypassed an attempt by a group of 34 trade unionists to introduce the issue of industrial democracy, as spelled out in the Watkins manifesto.

The manifesto, prepared by a left-wing group of NDP members led by Prof. Melville Watkins of the University of Toronto, was rejected by the party's national convention in Winnipeg last week.

One of its recommendations was that the NDP attempt to give workers "substantial power" over matters such as allocation of profits, reinvestment policies and employment policies.

OFL Vice-President Harold Thayer, commenting on the low attendance of trade unionists at the Winnipeg convention, said this opened the way for "a bunch of intellectuals who tried to turn the party left."

"The trade union movement should keep the NDP on an even keel. The party should be working at winning votes, not debating fine points of principle."

The resolution opposing Sunday openings of retail stores said the costs of keeping stores open an extra day would lead to higher prices.

Hugh Buchanan, Ontario director of the Retail-Wholesalers Union, warned all Ontario workers would end up being forced to work Sundays if retail store employees lost their day of rest.

Resolutions passed Monday and Tuesday included the following:

—Two resolutions rejecting any income policies suggested by government that seek to curb increases on workers' wages and opposing federal guidelines and salaries for government employees.

—A resolution that the OFL will "take whatever steps are necessary" to fight any attempt by the Ontario government to put the "anti-union" Rand report into legislation.

—A resolution instructing the executive to organize a mass protest march on Queen's Park unless major changes are made in the Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan—described as being "inadequate."

—A resolution demanding that Ontario raise its minimum wage to $2.50 an hour from the present general rate of $1.30 an hour.

Earns Habs Tie

Cournoyer Back Just in Time

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Yvan Cournoyer's breathing bothered him Wednesday night, but not enough to stop the Montreal right winger from scoring late in the third period to give the Canadiens a 2-2 tie with Minnesota North Stars.

Cournoyer, sidelined with a fractured nose, returned to the National Hockey League team after a two-week absence.

The goal, at 18:38 of the third period, came on a back-handed shot that trickled past Minnesota goalie Cesare Maniago, who had 43 shots fired at him.

The tie was the fifth this season for the defending Stanley Cup champions, and it left them in fourth place, two points behind Detroit Red Wings and Boston Bruins, who are tied for first in the East Division.

The Wings moved into the first-place tie with the Bruins by downing Pittsburgh Penguins 4-2 while the Bruins and St. Louis Blues were playing to a 4-4 tie.

Chicago Black Hawks beat New York Rangers 3-1, ending the Rangers' four-game unbeaten string, and Los Angeles Kings thumped Toronto Maple Leafs 6-2 in a game on the West Coast.

At Montreal, the Stars had gone ahead on second-period goals by Bill Goldsworthy and Bill Collins after Jacques Lemaire gave the Canadiens a 1-0 lead with only 41 seconds gone in the game. The Stars held the lead until Cournoyer scored before a crowd of 15,378.

The Red Wings scored three goals in a three-minute span to defeat the Penguins, who allowed the Wings only one shot on goal in the first period.

Garry Unger, Frank Mahovlich, Bruce MacGregor and Pete Stemkowski scored for Detroit while Jean Pronovost and Tracy Pratt replied for the Penguins before a Pittsburgh crowd of only 3,966.

Phil Goyette scored a goal and picked up two assists as the Blues overcame a 2-0 deficit to tie the Bruins. Boston had taken the first-period lead on goals by Dallas Smith and Phil Esposito but the Blues came back with three unanswered goals in the second period—one by Goyette and two by Larry Keenan—to take the lead. However, Fred Stanfield scored less than a minute after Keenan's second goal to tie the score.

St. Louis took the lead again early in the third period on Ron Anderson's goal but Jim Harrison tied the game just over a minute later.

New York's loss to the last-place Black Hawks dropped the Rangers from a first-place tie in the east to third place. The victory was the third in 10 games for Chicago.

Stan Mikita, with his first goal of the season, Jim Pappin and Gerry Pinder scored for Chicago while Bob Nevin scored for the Rangers before 18,666 fans at Chicago.

Los Angeles won its first victory of the season over its Eastern Division club and its third in nine games by downing the Leafs. The Kings scored four consecutive goals in the first two periods after Toronto had taken a 1-0 lead on Dave Keon's goal.

Dennis Hextall and Ross Lonsberry replied for the Kings in the first period and Eddie Shack, Dale Rolfe and Bill Flett connected in the second period to make the score 5-1.

Keon scored his second goal of the night in the second period but Skip Krake blasted a 35-foot slap shot in the third period to end scoring for Los Angeles.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1969

A touring card on the United States Professional Golfers' Association circuit is about as easy to come by as a Nobel Prize, sometimes makes a recipient more famous, and almost always, richer.

At this moment, Belleville native Gary Bowerman is waging one of the strongest bids among 48 aspiring young golf pros battling for player cards in the PGA players' school qualifying tournament.

The blonde Bay of Quinte Club graduate Wednesday toured the par-72 Palm Beach Gardens tourney site in 68 in tie for the first-round lead with British Ryder Cup Team member Brian Barnes.

Bowerman's four-under round included a blistering 32 opening nine for the first of the tourney's four rounds.

HMMM! — Gary Bowerman ponders a tough lie during the 1968 Bay of Quinte Golf Festival while veteran Moe Norman looks on.

"He was feeling pretty good about it, in Gary's own quiet way," she described a telephone conversation with her 25-year-old son. "It looks as if about 10 cards will be issued, mainly on the basis of the four tournament rounds. We'll see Saturday."

Bowerman scored an 86 per cent in writing examinations Monday and Tuesday, his mother said.

Gary was one of 132 aspiring young pros who originally set out in quest of one of the handful of touring cards made available for next year's U.S. pro tour, where $180,000 tournament purses are as common as bankers.

Zone competitions narrowed the field to the 48 now in the final Florida stages of trying to crack the USPGA's charmed circle.

Bowerman, a PGA golfer in Canada for six years now, is one of three Canadians in the group. He is assistant club pro at Toronto's Maple Downs C.C.

Toronto's Ben Kern was all alone in fourth spot after Wednesday's opening round with a par 72. B.C.'s Ken Fulton shot 76.

No Way NHL Won't Expand: Habs' Pollock

MONTREAL (CP) — Sam Pollock, vice-president and general manager of Montreal Canadiens, says there isn't the remote possibility that the National Hockey League will not expand by two teams for next season.

The NHL, now a 12-team two-division league, is asking a $6,000,000 entry fee for each of the two new franchises it plans for the 1970-71 season.

Unless there is some startling turnabout before the Dec. 1 deadline for firm applications, it appears almost certain that Vancouver and Buffalo interests will be the new operators.

Pollock, a major architect in the expansion to the current 12-team setup from six of the 1967-68 season, said Wednesday in an interview:

"In my opinion, there isn't the remotest possibility that the league won't expand."

Recently, two American Hockey League cities, Baltimore and Cleveland, withdrew from the bidding. Both cited the $6,000,000 franchise price as too high.

Even Vancouver, which has been clamoring for a franchise for some years, claims to have had several prospective backers shy away from the enterprise.

However, both Pollock and NHL president Clarence Campbell feel Vancouver will be one of the cities that will make it.

"Vancouver is the most lucrative franchise in hockey, potentially," Pollock said. "Some of the people who have the controlling interest in the Vancouver Canucks right now would like to keep controlling interest in the NHL franchise.

"It's an internal problem, but the money will come. . . .

"Buffalo is miles ahead of any other U.S. franchise. The money is there and the intent is there."

He agreed that the $6,000,000 price tag was certain to attract criticism.

A year ago Vancouver was anxious to purchase the floundering Oakland Seals franchise and have it transferred to the Canadian city.

"We hear all this complaining about $6,000,000 for a new franchise, but can somebody tell me if the transfer of Oakland to Vancouver would have been cheaper for the Vancouver people?" Pollock asked.

"You bet your life they can't, because it would not have been cheaper."

Buffalo bidders are the Knox brothers—Seymour and Northcliffe—who currently hold a minority 20 per cent interest in Oakland. If their bid for Buffalo is successful, the Knox interests would have to be withdrawn from the Seals.

A Vancouver bid was turned down three years ago because it did not meet NHL specifications. However, since that time the city has opened a new arena with a 15,000-plus seating capacity.

Rolling Stones' Visit Cuts No Ice

MONTREAL (CP) — Los Angeles Kings face the risk of losing a National Hockey League game against New York Rangers by default next Saturday, league president Clarence night.

The Rolling Stones, a rock n'roll band, are scheduled to play in Los Angeles Saturday night. So are the Rangers and the Kings.

Campbell said the Kings "rather belatedly" sought permission to change the game to 2 p.m. from the scheduled time of 8:05 p.m.

But such a change cannot be made under league bylaws without the consent of the visiting team, Campbell said. The Rangers have declined to permit the change because they are playing a Friday night game in Oakland, he said.

Campbell, NHL president since 1946, said it is the first time in his experience that a problem of this sort has arisen over the efforts of one team to switch the time of a game.

Walton On Carpet

MONTREAL (CP) — Centre Mike Walton of Toronto Maple Leafs, who shoved a referee during a National Hockey League game in Oakland Tuesday, has been summoned to a hearing at NHL headquarters here Friday.

Until then, the NHL announced, Walton is suspended without pay. This means that he would miss the Leafs' Wednesday night game in Los Angeles against the Kings.

Walton was handed a game misconduct penalty in the Oakland game for pushing referee Tom Smith after the official had given him a minor penalty for high-sticking. Toronto won the game 3-2.

Report Says 1969 Expos Worth $25,000,000 to Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Expos, Canada's colorful addition to major league baseball this year, will boost Montreal's economy by an estimated $25,000,000, says a report released by the club Wednesday.

In direct spending alone the National League team brought in nearly $4,000,000 at the baseball stadium, Jarry Park. This included $3,085,000 spent by fans for tickets, $1,250,000 at the park's concessions and about $100,000 for parking fees.

Outside Jarry Park, the study says, direct spending by local and out-of-town fans totalled almost $3,500,000, with the largest portion being $1,885,000 for food and entertainment. Gasoline and lodging brought in $441,000 and $321,000 respectively.

The report, presented by club president John Moffatt, noted that taken through the various stages of money circulation this direct spending will result in about $25,000,000 revenue for Montreal business.

The figure filters through the economy in the form of wages, transportation, food and household services.

The figures also show that 38 per cent or 460,780 of the total 1,212,608 season attendance came from Metropolitan Montreal. And 84 per cent of the visiting 387,000 fans said they came to Montreal primarily to see a ball game.

The province of Quebec contributed 56 per cent of the out-of-town spectators and Ontario 13 per cent, while 25 per cent crossed the border from the United States.

Further evidence of the club's economic contribution to the economy is the payroll of the 136 employees holding new jobs created by baseball.

Forty-nine full-time and 267 part-time employees received more than $750,000 in 1969. The city received $480,000 in taxes and $162,457 in stadium rent from the ball club.

Million Mark Routine In NL

CINCINNATI (AP) — National League baseball attendance reached an all-time high of 15,-694,946 this year but the fact there were two expansion clubs in the loop did not account for all of the 3,308,586 increase over 1968.

The 10 previous established clubs had an increase of 1,-384,019 over 1968.

Seven members of the league went over the 1,000,000 mark. The world champion New York Mets led with 2,175,373 a 393,718 increase over the previous year. Cincinnati missed being the eighth team with a 1,000,000 attendance by only 12,000. Chicago Cubs showed the biggest increase, going up 631,594 for a total of 1,674,982.

San Diego drew only 512,970 for its first year in the league. Offsetting that, however, was the surprising 2,212,608 attendance at Montreal, the other expansion city.

McLain, Cuellar First To Split Cy Young Award

NEW YORK (AP) — For the first time in the history of balloting by the Baseball Writers Association of America, a major award wound up in a tie when Mike Cuellar of Baltimore Orioles and Denny McLain of Detroit Tigers each received 10 votes for the 1969 American League Cy Young Award.

The other votes of the 24-man committee, two from each league city, went to Jim Perry of Minnesota Twins, who got three, and Dave McNally of Baltimore, who received one.

The Cy Young winner in the National League, announced last week, was Tom Seaver of New York Mets, who topped both majors with 25 victories. Seaver received 23 of the 24 votes in the National League.

McLain was a unanimous winner of the award in 1968 when he won 31 games. Bob Gibson also scored a 24-6 shutout in the National in 1968.

McLain, sharing the laurels, was the first American Leaguer to repeat. Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles Dodgers won it three times. McLain had a 24-9 won-lost record for the Tigers and a 2.80 earned-run average. His nine shutouts led the league.

Cuellar, a left-hander with a darting screwball pitch, came to the Orioles from Houston in a trade last winter. He helped pitch Baltimore to the pennant with a 23-11 record and a 2.38 earned-run average.

Meet Stamps Saturday

Odds Against Lions, But Not Fate

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The odds have been against British Columbia Lions but the Lions haven't folowed the betting sheets in the race to the Western Football Conference semi-final at Calgary Saturday.

The Lions, early season losers, won four straight games to batter their way into third place behind Calgary Stampeders, dropping only their last regular-season game to Saskatchewan Roughriders.

They got in with 10 points—the lowest third-place total since the 16-game WFC season was instituted in 1952.

Calgary's 18 points was second only to the 17-point low that got Winnipeg Blue Bombers into second place in 1965.

The strongest factor in Calgary's favor, aside from command of the best conference passing attack this season, is their record against the Lions—three victories in three games.

With Jerry Keeling at quarterback for Calgary after nine years as defensive halfback, B.C. must find ways to apply pressure to Calgary's strong passing attack.

In the second half of the season the Lions grabbed off 28 opposition passes to tie a record set in 1954 by Edmonton Eskimos and tied in 1957 by Ottawa Rough Riders.

B.C. coach Jackie Parker was stressing ways of keeping the Stampeders on the ground, where his men excel.

"If Keeling gets enough time, he'll complete the pass," Parker said after a Wednesday practice.

* * *

"We blitz probably as much as Calgary does, but we rely, mainly on our front four to force the quarterback to throw the ball away."

One potential weakness in the defensive wall appeared solved Wednesday with the signing of import lineman Mike Martin, called from Seattle Rangers of the Continental League.

Martin, 29, who played with B.C. until last year after joining them in 1957, will back up a spot weakened when import defensive end Bob Brown pulled a knee ligament in B.C.'s last game against Saskatchewan. The rest of the team remains healthy, said Parker.

That means the B.C. running game could pit Lance the Stampeders, and Calgary coach Jim Duncan says he's working on ways to hold back their ground attack.

His biggest worry is Jim Evenson, second in rushing only to George Reed of Saskatchewan. Jake Scott and Jim Young, who is the Lions' top pass receiver and third in conference receptions, are the other two he wants especially to stop.

But the Stamps are hurting at some key positions with Keeling still recovering from an ankle injury and defensive tackle Don Luzzi missing a practice Monday to have fluid drained off his knee.

Doubtful Saturday starters are Rudy Linterman, who suffered a slight shoulder separation in a game last Saturday against Winnipeg, and offensive guard Bob Lueck, who has a torn calf muscle.

The game will be televised nationally over the CBC network starting at 3 p.m. MST.

All Quiet on Eastern Front

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Argonaut and Hamilton Tiger-Cat game plans are expected to have more wrinkles than a prune Sunday in the Eastern Football Conference sudden-death semi-final at CNE Stadium.

But neither Hamilton coach Joe Restic nor Lee Cahill of Toronto are prepared to concede any but the most veiled suggestions of what might be expected.

"We could try some of our offensive people on defence and some of our defensive people on offence," Cahill said Wednesday. The Toronto coach did not mention Dick Thornton, who has proven equal ability as a running back and a pass defender, but hinted defensive halfbacks Jim Tomlin and Jimmy Dyp could see action as part-time flankers on the attack.

Restic countered by stating Garney Henley and Dan Eckstein may both switch from the defensive backfield to offensive flanker. The Hamilton coach also said Joe Zuger, out of action for weeks with a broken finger on his passing hand, will start at quarterback against the Argonauts.

Zuger was not in the lineup when the Tiger-Cats were twice beaten by the Argos, 17-7 and 51-8 in the only other Toronto-Hamilton league game, the Tiger-Cats won 34-28.

You'll never grow about snow storms again. If you do, we'll buy back the unused miles. It's that simple.

If, for any reason, you must pass up the new Glass-Belted Polyester tires, you can still get Hiway-Byway snow tires in the tried and true conventional Nylon — without the new Glass Belts. Yours is the choice. Canadian Tire satisfies all needs, so why look any further.

Barriage Team Puts Women's Hockey on Map

By GREG McLEOD
(Staff Sportswriter)

Mel Barriage, the owner of a landscaping business, took on a tall task in 1967 when he offered to sponsor a hockey team in the first season of organized women's hockey in the city.

But the girls, now in their third season of the Quinte and District Women's Hockey League emerged from their rookie year with a provincial tournament championship and last year not only were the recipients of the provincial championships but also captured a dominion 'C' title as well in a Toronto tournament.

"Mr. Barriage deserves a lot of the credit for our success, said league vice-president and Barriage player Jerri Rushlow. Nobody could ask for a better sponsor."

When the team want or needs something Mel is always right there," added Terri Stevens, the treasurer of the league, also a member of the Barriages squad.

The Barriages are scheduled to play 24 league games this year. Opposition will be provided by Belleville Legion Branch 90 team, Picton Hockettes, Picton Dhemkies, Kingston, Napanee and a team from Norwood.

Most of the Barriages' home games will be played in Stirling with three games later in the season scheduled to be played in the Memorial Arena.

"The only time we can get the Belleville ice is when the Juniors aren't scheduled to play that Sunday," added Jerri Rushlow.

Barriage players come from a variety of walks of life. Judy Rappell, Sharon Lamas, Susan Morton, Cynthia Corby, Charlene Quinn, Susan Wright and Linda Wright are all still attending school. Gladys Smith is a housewife, Jerri Rushlow, a housewife and employee at Bells Shirt, Bernie Muir, a secretary who works at McFarland Gendron, Nancy McCallam, employed at General Electric in Trenton.

Valerie Brown is a Bank of Montreal employee, Terri Stevens, a store clerk in Trenton, Jo-anne Dafoe a housewife working at Deacon Brothers Sportswear, Sandra Claus, a secretary for Electric Motors Sales, Barb McCracken is employed at Corbeils Locks Hardware and Marjorie Reid is a teacher at Queen Elizabeth public school.

Don Rushlow, husband of Jerri Rushlow and Bruce Muir, Bertha Muir's husband are the coaches of the team while Bernie Hyderman is the trainer.

"Lionel Body and the other members of the hockey school have done a great deal toward helping us this year," said Terri Stevens.

"Wilma Summers from the Recreation Centre has certainly done more than enough to boost women's hockey," added Marjorie Reid, league president and another member of the Barriage team.

Sharon Hanna a member of the Legion Branch 90 team is the secretary of the league, the fourth member of the executive.

The Mel Barriages visit Picton this Sunday for an encounter with the Picton Rockettes at 8.30 p.m. Admission is 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children.

"If we could get more fans out to our games, it would help give Women's Hockey a big boost, added Terri Stevens. We could show them that women belong in this sport as much as men do."

'Remember This'

Sponsor Mel Barriage is shown here with last year's goalkeeper Doreen Cooke, displaying trophy won by the Mel Barriages Hockey team when they captured their second consecutive Dominion women's hockey title.

Support from Wellington

Mo-Hawks Sign Moon to Back Up Rexe

It never pays to take chances, and that's why Belleville Mo-Hawks were glad to finally come to terms with backup goaltender Bob Moon.

Moon, 22, last played in the netor four winters ago with Belleville's Junior Bs, but put on an impressive display in playing 50 minutes of shutout hockey in the Mo-Hawks' two pre-season exhibitions with Kingston Aces.

In the second one — a 7-3 loss in the Limestone City — Moon was in the unique position of embarrassing Mo-Hawk regular Steve Rexe. Moon held the Aces scoreless for the first half of the game, then the Aces outpaced the tiring Mo-Hawks and poured all seven goals past Rexe.

The local seniors have acquired backup services of another variety in their bid for one of the OHA Senior A's six playoff berths.

Coach Dave Jones announced a working agreement with Wellington Intermediates. "We can make use of some fellows like Rick Rosebush," Jones added, "without having to meet any signing deadline."

Rosebush looked promising in a couple of pre-season Mo-Hawk appearances.

Club scoring statistics show winger Lorne O'Donnell comfortably within the top 10 of the senior loop's point-getters as the Mo - Hawks prepare for this weekend's home - and - home series with perennial rival Kingston Aces.

O'Donnell sports 11 points in eight games. Linemate Al Ferguson's seven-goal sum, which he accounted for in just two games, put him among the top two or three senior lamp-lighters.

The Mo-Hawks return to Kingston for a Sunday night 8 p.m. encounter after entertaining the Aces here 9 o'clock Friday night.

Ellis Juniors Attract 'Maxis'

The agenda for Sunday evening's 7 p.m. hockey contest between the Belleville Ellis Juniors and the Oshawa Crushmen at the Memorial Arena may prove very interesting to the male population who thank the younger generation and their mini-skirts don't leave too much to the imagination.

"I'll give free admission to any girl wearing a Maxi coat and to any red - haired boys, said Belleville coach Jim "Snipe" Matthews. We're reserving Friday home games as high school nights".

The Ellis Juniors are looking to pick up their first win of the young 1969-70 season against four straight losses.

"If the boys play the same organized hockey against the Crushmen that they showed against Peterborough Don Byes, we have a very good chance to win this game," said Ellis Junior coach Floyd Crawford. "The boys are starting to switch into individual play and are starting to pass the puck more."

The Juniors would like to get a win under their belts before meeting Trenton Golden Hawks Friday, Nov. 14 at the Memorial Arena and then repaying the Crushmen's visit Saturday, Nov. 15 in Oshawa.

Newcomer Kevin Lundy Paces Kinsmen to Opening Win

The Belleville Kinsmen Bantam all-stars got off to a flying start in their 1969-70 Quinte - St. Lawrence Hockey League season with a 10-3 road victory over Gananoque last night.

Newcomer Kevin Lundy led the Kinsmen with a hat trick while Mark Coates scored a pair of goals. Peter Crawford, David England, Steve Cowan, Barry Marks and Tim Whalen all accounted for single goals for Belleville club, defending Ontario Minor Hockey Association Bantam 'AA' outlists.

Gananoque scorers were not available.

The Kinsmen bantams' next contest comes Saturday, Nov. 15 in Trenton. Game time is 11.30 a.m.

CMA States Health Professions Share Blame for Drug Abuse

MONTREAL (CP) — The health professions must accept "a significant share of the responsibility" for the widespread misuse of many drugs, the Canadian Medical Association said today.

It said this applies to stimulants, hypnotics and sedatives.

The prescribing habits of many doctors are questionable and too many druggists contribute to the problem by failing to meet their professional responsibilities, said an association brief to the federal drug use commission.

"We believe that a complete re-thinking of current drug categorization, legislative control, penalties and enforcement procedures should be undertaken."

The law now dealt with a problem of drugs rather than the problem of drug users. Classifying and treating users according to the kind of drugs they consumed failed to get at the real social problem.

Drugs of varied hazard carry the same penalties for possession and other infractions, said the CMA brief. The law and its application often resulted in worse effects on the users than the drugs they employed.

The brief, described as the association's "interim" position, said marijuana should be regulated as a drug which has no recognized therapeutic use and is subject to misuse, rather than as a narcotic. Effects of its use were unknown and should be examined.

"The harmful effects of police apprehension, conviction and its resultant criminal record and incarceration with hardened criminals of the youthful marijuana user has been a prime example of this inappropriate and incorrect drug-category-oriented legislation."

The brief warned that effective control of marijuana may promote dangerous "chemical promiscuity" with stronger drugs, resulting in more serious effects.

Firs in Japan

Giant Douglas fir trees lie on the Expo '70 site at Osaka, Japan, waiting to be hoisted into position at the British Columbia pavilion. The firs, more than 150 feet high, will symbolize the richly-timbered mountain slopes of the Pacific coast province.

Motel Owners Want Loans

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario motel owners will ask the provincial government to set aside $3,000,000 a year for loans to the tourist industry.

A resolution, passed Wednesday at the annual convention of the Ontario Motel Association, calls on the government to make the money available to the Ontario Development Corp., which is to lend it at eight-per-cent interest for 15-year terms.

The association, representing more than 300 Ontario motels, says present terms of loans to the tourist industry are not long enough and the ODC will not lend money for refinancing.

The association also plans to ask Ontario Hydro to charge motels the domestic rate for electric power, rather than the higher commercial rate they now pay.

Motel owners claim they use electricity for the same purposes as households and should pay the same rate.

'Triple Apartheid' Charged in North

TORONTO (CP) — A system of "triple apartheid" prevails in the town of Moosonee, J. A. Renwick (NDP—Riverdale) charged Wednesday in the Ontario legislature.

He said whites live on the north side of a creek that divides the town and Indians live on the south side. Personnel at the federal radar base formed an exclusive enclave with "every conceivable facility" outside the town.

Mr. Renwick was speaking during debate on the second reading of a bill to amend the Moosonee Development Area Board Act of 1968. The bill was passed 54 to 38 over the combined opposition of Liberal and New Democrat parties.

Mr. Renwick suggested the province ask the federal government to move the living quarters from the radar base into the town. And, he said, if a pipe were installed to take the water in the creek, the area could be sodded over to end one of the physical causes of segregation in the community.

Mr. Renwick said the five-man board appointed a year ago to oversee the area is "totally undemocratic," "perpetuates paternalism" in the area and is the mouthpiece of the department of municipal affairs.

He asked Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough consider extending the Ontario Northland Transportation Commission to encompass all methods of transportation and communication, including a provincial air service that could cover the eastern Arctic.

Mr. McKeough said he does not agree with the concept of improvement districts, or appointed boards, but found that was the only form possible until Moosonee establishes a viable economic base.

As for integration of the community, he said, the province is looking to the Moosonee education centre as the hope for integration in the future.

Job Opportunity Study Is Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — A national study of job opportunities for post-graduate students should be done, one of several groups here from the radar base into the town, and, he said, if a pipe were installed to take the water in the creek, the area could be sodded over to end one of the physical causes of segregation in the community.

Mr. Renwick said the five-

Financial Discrimination 'Rules Out Equality'

TORONTO (CP) — The 27-man Liberal caucus this week became the first political party in the Ontario legislature to endorse full public financial support for Roman Catholic high schools.

The Liberals, in a statement Tuesday, said they want an all-party committee set up immediately to work out details for extending provincial grants to the end of Grade 13 in separate schools, giving them financial equality with schools in the public system.

The Conservative government, in statements by both Prime Minister John Robarts and Education Minister William Davis, already has rejected, on grounds of economy and constitutional difficulties, Catholic demands for an immediate change.

The New Democratic Party, which has had national and provincial committees studying the issue for five years, is examining a committee recommendation for extension of full grants to separate high schools which cease to operate as private schools and become the responsibility of elected separate school boards.

The report, however, was prepared for consideration at a party convention and no caucus action is expected until a party decision has been made.

All parties in statements have tried to dissociate themselves from the religious controversy that surrounds the question of separate school support.

The Liberals and the NDP say the issue has to be considered only in the light of the provincial policy of providing equal educational opportunities for all children from kindergarten to the beginning of university.

Robert Nixon, leader of the provincial Liberals, told a news conference Tuesday that his caucus has accepted the argument of the Ontario Separate School Trustees Association that equality is impossible when there is financial discrimination.

Under the constitution, public and separate schools are guaranteed tax support for grade schools. Until about 10 years ago in Ontario, this was taken to mean Grade 8, and separate schools received tax support only to the end of elementary education.

Support now is extended to the end of Grade 10, using funds from corporation taxes. But per-pupil grants from Grade 9 and 10 in separate schools are about $300 lower than for public schools, and there is no support for Grades 11, 12 and 13.

The Catholic high schools operate their senior grades as private schools, support by fees charged to parents and averaging about $40 annually.

In his most recent statements to the legislature on separate schools, Premier Roberts said the cost of extending assistance to Grade 13 would be "astronomic."

He said it could not be countenanced by the province unless there is some system of integrating the more costly school functions such as libraries, athletic facilities and special-education teachers and counsellors.

Mr. Roberts also questioned the constitutional problem involved. If further assistance were made available, he said, it might also have to be extended to other religious and private schools.

Both the Liberals and the NDP have dismissed the constitutional argument.

The Liberal paper says the constitution was intended to guarantee separate school support for the full educational experience, which in 1867 was elementary only but now extends to Grade 13.

The Liberal caucus statement said the constitutional guarantee applies only to public and Roman Catholic schools.

Mr. Nixon said anomalies in support for Grades 9 and 10 should be immediately corrected, at a cost he estimated to be about $3,300,000 a year for 16,000 separate school students.

The Liberals have estimated the cost of extending grants to Grade 13 at $20,000,000.

The NDP position paper suggests that, where possible, public and separate schools should be built on the same site, sharing such facilities as gymnasiums, and that students move from school to school for some courses to avoid expensive duplication.

Although the Liberal caucus said it wants an all-party committee to study the matter and report to the legislature by Oct. 15 next year, no motion has yet been made to the legislature.

Airports May Soon Lose Subsidy Eligibility

MONTREAL (CP) — The era of self-sustaining airports—facilities run without the usual injections of federal cash—may not be too far off, Transport Minister Don Jamieson indicated Wednesday.

In a speech at the closing dinner of the annual conference of the Air Transport Association of Canada, Mr. Jamieson said the question of self-sustaining airports is being considered as part of a general review of Canadian transportation methods.

"I think it is generally felt that air transportation is no longer a young industry requiring federal government financial support.

"Like most mature industries, air transportation should provide an adequate rate of return on invested money.

"The federal government has invested heavily in the industry and soon the taxpayer should expect to see a return on the investment."

The federal review is being made within the scope of the National Transport Act, which specifies that each form of transport is required to pay a "fair proportion" of the real costs of the resources, facilities and services provided through public taxes.

To meet this requirement, Mr. Jamieson said, the government is considering the possibility of reducing subsidies, increasing user charges and imposing user taxes.

Included in the review are national railway subsidies which, Mr. Jamieson said, will "hopefully be phased out."

"We are also examining in detail the entire fee structure on the St. Lawrence Seaway."

Government Refuses To Reveal Algoma Deal

TORONTO (CP)' — Opposition members questioned the government for the third day Wednesday but failed to gain any fresh answers concerning a recent agreement with Algoma Central Railway.

Treasurer Charles MacNaughton told Liberal Leader Robert Nixon that the agreement between the company and the Crown over disposition of Algoma land concerned "tax relations with taxpayers and there are elements that cannot be disclosed."

Opposition questions have centred on two agreements made with the company, one in 1956 and the other last month.

Under the 1956 agreement, the company returned 400,000 acres of grant land on which it held mineral rights in return for being excused more than $3,000,000 in delinquent mineral taxes.

Under the October agreement, the company gave to the Crown its rights to five species of trees growing on grand lands. In return, the company received a receipt for $5,700,000 which it can use as a claim against federal and provincial corporation taxes.

Tuesday, Premier Robarts rejected Mr. Nixon's demand that the history of the company's relations with government's be reviewed by a royal commission.

After reiterating information already given the house by Lands and Forests Minister Rene Brunelle and Mines Minister Allan Lawrence, Mr. MacNaughton said:

"I will not pursue the relationship on taxation between the company and the government further than that. It properly involves an element of secrecy. You have no right to expect any further answer."

Regional Development Councils Criticized

TORONTO (CP) — Edward Good (L—Waterloo North) told the Ontario legislature Wednesday the regional development branch should be done away with because it created ill lame-duck regional development councils and is in conflict with other government programs.

He was speaking during debate on treasury estimates of $1,042,000.

He said the present plan for regional development has become Toronto-oriented and has been used as a vehicle for empire-building and professional advancement by members of the regional development branch.

Treasurer Charles MacNaughton had made a mistake in staffing the branch with theoreticians who have alienated members of local regional councils.

The boundaries of the 10 areas, he said, are a hangover from areas drawn up by the federal government for wartime controls.

Mr. Good said the regional development plan is not compatible with programs of the department of municipal affairs or the equalization of industrial opportunity program of the department of trade and development.

Russell Rowe Named Deputy

TORONTO (CP) — Russell Rowe (PC—Northumberland) Wednesday was appointed deputy chairman of the Ontario legislature.

The position is new and places Mr. Rowe third in the hierarchy of presiding officers—after Speaker Fred Cass and Allan Reuter (PC—Waterloo South), chairman of the committee of the whole House.

Mr. Rowe, 54, a Cobourg stockbroker, often has filled in on an informal basis as chairman of the committee of the whole House.

Apollo Landing Site

Composite picture shows where the Apollo 12 spacecraft will land on the moon Nov. 19. Since the subsequent eight moon missions will attempt to park the landing craft in areas far more rugged than the lunar plains chosen for Apollo 11 and 12, much depends on the Apollo 12 crew's ability to put their craft down on the moon within walking distance of a crater 636 feet wide. The Apollo 11 astronauts missed their aiming point on the moon's Sea of Tranquility by nearly four miles. (AP Photo)

Canada Likely to Abstain On China Recognition Vote

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — As the annual decision on the admission of Communist China to the United Nations nears it climax—expected early next week—the word is out that Canada probably will abstain for the fourth year in succession on the question. Nothing official has been announced.

The Stockholm talks between Peking and Canadian representatives on Canadian recognition of the Mao Tse-tung government are hung up over mainland claims to sovereignty over Formosa, seat of the Nationalist Chinese government, informed sources reported.

Thus, Canada has informed her friends that she probably will abstain on the annual Albanian resolution in the UN General Assembly calling for the replacement of Nationalist China by Communist China in the UN.

Canadian officials refrained from any public announcement of their position on the Albanian resolution.

The possibility, however remote, still remains that Communist Chinese could signal Canada that they are willing to extend recognition. In that case, support for the Nationalists here and in Ottawa would end.

Pending the outcome of the eight-month-long Stockholm talks, Canada continues to maintain diplomatic relations with Nationalist China, and the Nationalists have an embassy in Ottawa but there is no Canadian embassy in Taipei, the Formosan capital.

There has been no doubt here that Canada would change her vote on the Albanian resolution from abstention to yes after recognition by the Communist Chinese. But there has been some question of whether Canada would jump the gun if there was hope that Peking's recognition was imminent.

Informed sources say Canada still refuses to accept Communist China's claim that Formosa is part of the mainland.

The Formosa question has held up the Stockholm talks, sources here say. Canadian and Communist Chinese representatives last met in the Swedish capital in September.

In the debate Wednesday, Britain again urged admittance of mainland China to the UN without delay.

Settlement Vetoed

Longshoremen Asked to Return to Work

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's 3,200 striking dockworkers today will be asked to go back to work until a new union negotiating team is elected and a third settlement with maritime employers made.

International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union officers made the decision following closed meetings Wednesday in the face of two rejections of their settlement proposals and the threat of federal legislation to get longshoremen back to work.

Meetings will be held at six B.C. port centres today to inform strikers their current leadership will continue office until Nov. 14, when a special convention will be called to elect new union officers.

Union sources said Andy Kotowich, Canadian-area president, would continue in that position until that date but would not seek re-election.

The longshoremen, voting in Vancouver, New Westminster, the Vancouver Island centres of Victoria, Chemainus and Port Alberni and north-coastal Prince Rupert, Tuesday turned down the second settlement package in two weeks.

The latest offer included wage increases earlier agreed upon as well as guarantees that work gangs would have a six-man minimum and dockworkers would not have to put in extra time if other men were available.

The latest rejection was by a majority of 58 per cent, with 92 per cent of the membership voting.

Union sources said Mr. Kotowich was persuaded to continue in office for the next week after offering his resignation at an executive board meeting. His term would normally expire next April.

Indications now are that other members of the 19-man bargaining team will also offer their resignations at the special convention.

Terms of the oil contract, with a base rate of $3.88, would apply should the men return to work pending the leadership shuffle.

Wage increases offered included an 85-cent hourly increase over 27 months with an additional 50 cents hourly in fringe benefits.

The B.C. Maritime Employers' Association made no statement in reaction to the rejection and its president, Ed Strang, was in Ottawa and not available for comment.

Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey, who returned to Ottawa Sunday after overseeing negotiations, said only that he would have a statement Friday. He did not indicate what action he planned to initiate to follow up his threat to legislate an end to the strike. But he was reported to have given the disputants an ultimatum to settle within 48 hours or face prospect of a government-enforced settlement.

Meanwhile in Kelowna, B.C., officials of the B.C. tree fruit industry said they are hopeful a $200,000 consignment of apples will be shipped from the West Coast by Friday as growers in the Okanagan Valley area will not lose their first opening in the New Zealand market.

Young boys, called "lion cubs," undergo military training in the Middle East. The boys, some as young as seven, are being trained to shoot to kill and are an important part of the Palestine Liberation Organization. The organization is recruiting "freedom fighters" who are willing to try to penetrate Israel even though their chances of getting in and out alive are slim.

Federal Government Abandons Educational Television Plans

OTTAWA (CP) — Unable to obtain even an acceptable definition of the beast, the federal government has decided to back away from educational television broadcasting.

The decision, announced Wednesday by Secretary of State Gerard Pelletier in the Commons, throws back to the provinces responsibility to arrange transmission as well as production of educational television programs.

It also aroused a suspicion in J. P. Nowlan (C — Annapolis Valley), a member of the Commons broadcasting committee. He suggested the decision is a retreat by the government in the face of provincial jealously over the constitutional control of education.

The main change from the present situation is that all cable television operators will be required in future to keep open at least one channel for ETV. Any control the federal government will be able to exercise over the content of such programs will be through the Canadian Radio-Television Commission.

Recent technological developments were offered by Mr. Pelletier as the reason why the government will not attempt to revive Bill C-179 which was presented in the last session March 10.

The bill would have created a Canadian Educational Broadcasting Agency to set up and operate for the provinces a series of ultra-high frequency stations. The proposal came as a result of recommendations of a federal task force study of ETV and detailed hearings by the Commons broadcasting committee.

Since then, however, developments in the use of cablevision and in programs made with video tape recording and laser beam transmission have rendered UHF less attractive. A note to Mr. Pelletier's statement claims the cost of UHF is nearly four times as high and the technique is less effective.

As well, Mr. Pelletier said, the provinces will have available services provided by the CBC, to be paid for by the government. Also successful have been measures worked out to get programs on the air in specific parts of the country.

As treated by the bill, legitimate programming was to be presented in a "structured context" which meant audiences would be enrolled in courses or required to take an exam or be given a diploma.

The provinces, particularly Quebec, have protested the definition is too narrow. Mr. Pelletier told the Commons discussions will continue in an effort to reach an acceptable solution.

Meanwhile, he reassured the Opposition, the government will stick to its policy of refusing a broadcasting licence to provincial governments.

Opposition MPs Want Details of Expo Bills

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition MPs want to know how Expo 67 rang up a bill of $235,000,000.

They demanded an accounting Wednesday as Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin introduced Commons debate on a bill to wind up the affairs of the Canadian Corporation for the 1967 World Exhibition.

The Commons is to return to the topic today.

Douglas Harkness (PC—Calgary Centre), in demanding explanations "to see whether there was waste and extravagance," said:

"The original estimate put before cabinet was for a deficit of $40,000,000 and it was agreed that of this the federal government would pay $20,000,000, the Quebec government $15,000,000 and the city of Montreal $5,000,000."

But the total cost topped $283,000,000 and even Parliament's spending watchdog, the auditor-general, reported his inability to account for what happened.

There was also criticism of the government's decision to dispose of assets on the basis that the government with the most need for a given structure be allowed to purchase assets owned by other governments for $1.

The Commons also pressed Labor Minister Bruce Mackasey for a report on the bogged-down British Columbia longshoremen's strike.

He said he is reluctant to intervene again after twice having a hand in tentative settlements that were later rejected by the 3,200-member union. However, he said a course of action has been decided to end the dispute and he will reveal it by Friday at the latest.

The House also gave routine first reading to the proposed Canada Water act which would give the government authority to establish Crown corporations to build sewage treatment plants across Canada. The bill also establishes "water-quality management areas" each to be managed by a Crown corporation.

On the Expo cost, Mr. Harkness said the increase from the estimated $20,000,000 federal share to more than $140,000,000 is seven-fold.

Mr. Pepin interjected to say he hoped to appear before the committee on finance soon "and I will explain all these matters."

Mr. Pepin said Expo's estimated physical assets cost about $182,000,000. Their book value now was some $74,000,000.

Using dual criteria on which government owned the land and owned the assets and "what government can make the best use of that particular facility" the federal government paid $1 for all assets on Cite du Havre except the arts gallery and Expo theatre.

It acquired the stadium, the Habitat apartment structure, administration building, labyrinth and Victoria parking lot.

Montreal gained assets on le Notre Dame and le Ste. Helene, including La Ronde, rolling stock, trackage and various bridges.

The Quebec government, for $1, acquired the art gallery, Expo theatre and Expo express. The express later sold for $1,880,000 to the highest bidder.

Narcotics Convictions Have Risen Five-fold

OTTAWA (CP) — Since Canada toughened its approach to the narcotics problem, convictions and persons convicted have risen five-fold.

Analysis of federal health department statistics made available Wednesday to the Canadian Press shows that convictions soared to 1,779 last year from 336 five years ago. Persons convicted climbed to 1,639 from 312.

Eighty per cent of those involved marijuana, a problem that hardly existed when Canada stiffened its narcotics laws. The tougher approach is fully reflected in statistics since 1963.

—Since 1963, convictions for marijuana offences have been twice as high or more each year. Total convictions for all narcotics offences have more than doubled each year since 1966.

—Since 1966, convictions involving persons under age 20 have risen sharply, taking a three-fold surge upward last year.

Napanee Workshop Party

Marion was 18 years old last week, and she had her first birthday party. She is lame, blind, has 16 brothers and sisters. She is now one of the eight employees in a recently established industry near town, and her boss decided to mark her birthday by having a cake for her.

The secret had been well kept, and she was overjoyed as she opened each present and saw the comb and brush, the tooth brush and tooth paste, the small case to hold them, the boxes of cookies and candy and such small things. Then her boss brought out the cake and ice cream all around and took her picture.

The industry is the Adult Rehabilitation Centre, a workshop, and her boss is "Bill" Pollard, the manager-director. The employees are, officially, the trainees.

The following day Marion herself wrote "thank you" cards to each person who had sent her a gift.

It was a big week for Marion, but not all happy. Wednesday at home she fell down stairs and could not come to the workshop Thursday. But she made herself come for Friday's Hallowe'en party. Eight interested adults came along, bringing all sorts of good things, and all the trainees were masked and some were in costumes. Some of the visitors were parents, but not Marion's.

She missed out on Thursday's excitement when the wonderful sewing machine was delivered. It was a gift of the Odlum Group, and Bill knows how to operate it and will be able to train his trainees, but not for awhile, as they are now concentrating on their Christmas bazaar.

They still need candles, plastic garment bags, and colored foil, and any odds and ends of lace or ribbon not wanted, such as the ribbon bows that come with flowers from the florists.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were mixed in active mid-morning trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

On index, industrials were down .03 to 181.62. Western oils gained .19 to 193.36, base metals rose .1 to 114.83 and golds .55 to 142.51.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 1,815,000 shares compared with 926,000 at the same time Wednesday. Gains outnumbered losses 142 to 137.

Eleven of the 17 industrial components were lower. Beverage, chemical, construction and material, general manufacturing, oil refining and pipeline stocks were slightly higher. The miscellaneous group moved ahead fractionally.

Trading in Lake Dufault was delayed at the opening to match orders. The stock opened at 15 up ¾, on 5,510 shares.

The company reported further drilling results, apparently favorable, from its base metals property in the Noranda area of Quebec.

Laurentide gained ¼ to 5⅝. Consumers Gas rose 4 to 38, Electrohome 1 to 34¼, Scott's ¼ to 9⅝ and Bankeno 55 cents to $7.00.

Vary Environments

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

Instead of trying to make most people conform to one social environment, we ought to be trying to diversify our environment to meet the needs of different types of temperaments and aptitudes — one obvious reason for so much of what we call "juvenile delinquency" is the increasing urbanization and mechanization that leaves little room for adolescents to do the things Tom Sawyer could easily enjoy doing.

People recognize that if you feed junk into a computer, junk will come out; but they fail to apply the same rigorous logic to their own brains, and vainly keep trying to make sense out of the mass of nonsense they absorb.

Speaking of brains, it is the particular failing of the intelligent to overestimate the rationality of others; or, as Chamfort put it two centuries ago: "Intelligent people make many mistakes because they cannot believe that the world is really as foolish as it is."

• • •

No one can be as helpful to a mother as a teen-age girl—when she is willing—overnight in someone else's house.

• • •

If it took 40 years for so simple and obvious a convenience as the zipper to be accepted, it may take 40,000 more before the world's war-making machinery with peace-keeping machinery.

Biological science is advancing to the point where, within the next decade, parents may be able to decide the gender of the child they want — which should help stabilize family relationships, since few parents are able to handle both boys and girls with equal skill and fairness.

• • •

To much of our social policies is being directed on the basis of "raw" data that may or may not resemble the facts; there is often a wide variance between data that are true and data that are merely "administratively convenient." (As one glaring example, we still don't have enough accurate data on the basic causations of traffic fatalities to adopt a meaningful "systems approach" to this slaughter).

• • •

The chief problem of education is to make the students want it — and this is not a problem that education can solve, for it is society itself that creates a value-system in which learning is a valuable end for its own sake, or else merely an incidental stepping-stone to "success."

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Nothing gets me down so much as lack of a good night's sleep. I can stand one or two nights of insomnia, but a week of it kills me.

I can't enjoy food, my work, or my family and friends. I become a grouch. Who of us have a sunny disposition when we tired? It's an effort to breathe!

Is there anything I am doing wrong? I smoke, moderately. I drink moderately. I take coffee and tea, moderately. I am not unduly worried about my health, finances or family. It's a mystery this insomnia.

A great, involved mystery. — Mr. F.

Comment: Like a detective, to solve it I'd have to be on the scene, collecting all the clues I can. How old are you? If over 40, it's possible you are no longer sleeping the sleep of a baby. It's physiological. Grownups don't sleep as soundly or as long as children.

You say you're not worried about your health or financ es. That throws out some common clues often tied in with insomnia.

That brings us to your habits. Perhaps somewhere, unsuspected, lies the reason for your insomnia. For example, what is your definition of moderately?

You may do most of your smoking at night. This is often a cause of insomnia in some persons. As for your moderate drinking, some patients I have known have been kept awake by brandy or other liquor before bedtime. Instead of giving them a good night's sleep, it stimulates them.

Coffee? When, and how much of it do you drink? I haven't taken it after early afternoon for years. I am susceptible to it. Beyond a doubt it keeps me awake.

Two nights ago, at a dinner party, I took a large cup of black coffee. My wife said, "Better not." I said, "I'm conducting an experiment."

Result: My mind flicked on and off all night like a crazy light bulb. Sleep? Not two hours. My suggestion, Mr. F., is that you take a long, hard look at your "moderate" habits. They may be immoderate.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Please help me. I am very thin. In fact I have a nickname — Stringy. I am getting tired of it. I'm also tall. That makes it worse to buy clothes. What shall I do? — Only 18

Comment: If you were short and too fat, chances are your parents would take you to the family doctor for a check-up and a special diet. But too many parents overlook the problem of unnatural thinness as being unimport a nt. Although not so common as obesity, it can become a nagging anxiety, as in your case.

Please show today's column to your parents. Perhaps they will now understand you need and want some professional help. Your doctor will put you on a high-calorie regime to put some weight on you. So keep up your spirits. I've been called a lot of "stringbean" turn into a normal-weighted grown-up.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: We are anticipating the birth of our first child. I have the impression our physician is trying to persuade me to breast feed. But my husband and I are definitely opposed to that way of living. Our question is can a physician force a mother to breast feed? Does the mother have a choice in the matter? — Mrs. R.

Comment: Perhaps it's a false impression. No physician has the right, or is likely to "force" a patient into anything against his or her will.

Research Council to Rescue

Phd Holders Shun Industry

OTTAWA (CP) — Growing concern over the apparent unattractiveness of industry to university graduates with advanced degrees may be reflected in plans announced Wednesday by the National Research Council.

Starting next year NRC will underwrite starting salaries of up to 30 PhD holders for one- or two-year research posts with Canadian industrial enterprises. It also hopes to beef up existing programs to stimulate industrial research.

The announcement came within two days of a report to the government by the Science Council of Canada dealing with this problem, among others.

"Many of our MA and PhD graduates are very reluctant to enter fields of employment which do not coincide with the narrow specialty in which they did their graduate work" commented the Science Council.

The Senate Science Committee is also expected to make recommendations on this subject in a report now in preparation.

The Science Council's proposals were that universities try to train more adaptable graduates, including the development of broader, management and teaching skills of advanced-degree graduates.

NRC's new program will begin with a modest first-year top of $216,000 for 1959. Fellowships will be awarded for science and engineering PhDs under age 35 hired at not less than $7,200 a year by 30 Canadian companies.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For November 7

Your birthday today: The coming year is a middle - of-the road period in which you are better off continuing your current programs and striving to improve without major changes of direction or vocation. Study, research, literary activity (either active or passive) are strongly suggested as pathways to greater happiness. The conservative approach is generally much more successful. Today's natives never run out of enthusiasm, whether tycoons or never-do-wells.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Fit your plans into the group program or put them aside. Agreements and unions made today are strongly favored, partnership matters facilitated. Unusual hook-is likely!

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Extra effort today results in much improvement. Co-operation is easier to achieve. Technical advice is more readily available and applicable.

GEMINI (May 21—June 20): Romantic ventures thrive today. Your associates will cheerfully let you carry the main burden of the day's routine—if you will.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): The things most important to you improve now with just a little more push on your part. Changes in home improvements work out quite readily and well.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Messages are not to be neglected today. Be willing to travel to pick up loose ends rather than to have everything come to you. Much can be accomplished by steady effort.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Wind up your workweek with a full tidying - up; some long - sought missing piece may fall into place. The chance arrives to help an item you've misused having in your home. Choose carefully, as the purchase is for long-term possession.

LIBRA (Sept. 23—Oct. 22): The personal touch is all important. Do it yourself, and get the real experience firsthand. The earlier you can close out the vocational day, the better, as emotional fulfillment seems indicated for most Librans in the later hours.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Make the most of the opportunity available today, and be willing to take care of itself. Speak right out and ask for what you want, directly, but make sure that what you ask for can be given.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): For once your friends offer more usable ideas for work and money matters. Strive to confirm and deepen emotional ties.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — an. 19): Think a bit bigger and in bolder terms. Success comes in accord with your morale and the consistency of your effort.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 19): Seek technical advice. Find new collaborators for creative or complex projects. Catch up the loose ends of your correspondence with far places, special associates.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Shared experiences are more important to you today. The closer the relationship, the fuller the joy to be found in minor adventure.

Hoodlums Made Elmira's Streets Unsafe Says Ex-constable

ELMIRA, Ont. (CP) — A former Elmira police constable said Wednesday that he and three other constables who recently resigned did so partly because hoodlums made it unsafe for them to walk their beats alone.

Robert Goring said in a statement that he had been pushed around by hoodlums in front of the police station and that the front door of the station had been kicked in four times.

"The young people here are entirely out of hand," he said, adding that another constable's nerves had gotten so bad "he couldn't take it any more."

Goring, Patrick Forget, Robert Wierstra and John Schreiber resigned from the five-man force Oct. 6, charging that "performance of police duties has become impossible because of no support from the police chief, no support from elected officials and the indifference of the public."

Those allegations, and a subsequent investigation of the force by the Ontario Police Commission, led to the resignation Tuesday of PLOLICE Chief Roy Stable, who will continue serving as a constable in this town of 4,000.

Roy Aberle, a service station owner, said Wednesday that Chief Stable had taken no action when hoodlums threatened him and broke a window of his station as a warning against his giving evidence after he witnessed the smashing of the police building door.

"This gang of hoodlums walks about the streets of Elmira with beer bottles in their hands and the police weren't able to do anything about it."

OWRC Will Share Moira Sewer Cost

Police Chase Armed Trio

By Harry Mulhall
Staff Reporter

BANCROFT — One man was reported injured south of here today after provincial police chased three suspected escapees from Guelph reformatory.

Details were sketchy but the man was reported taken to Bancroft Red Cross Hospital after the chase in the Gunter area, east of Highway 62 about 25 miles south of here.

Police confirmed they had been on the lookout for three men in the area who were reported armed.

Thurlow Is Offered Aid to Get Sewer

By Ray Peacock, Staff Reporter

If Belleville agrees to "oversizing" to provide for sewer service to Thurlow township, the provincial government, through the Ontario Water Resources Commission, will pay 15 per cent of the over-all cost of the proposed sanitary trunk sewer up the bed of the Moira River.

This was indicated yesterday by Donald J. Collins, chairman of the OWRC, as he explained the benefits of new provincial legislation aimed at assisting the smaller municipalities to obtain sewer and water service.

Mr. Collins outlined the new legislation at a special meeting with Thurlow township council. Two members of Belleville city council, Aldermen Roban Jeffrey and E. A. Orr, sat in on discussions.

Following the meeting, Thurlow council voted to accept in principle the Ontario Water Resources Commission proposal and the matter of "oversizing", the proposed river bed sewer will be up for consideration by city council at its next meeting.

City council last spring indicated a willingness to co-operate with Thurlow in the riverbed project but when the township was unable to see its way clear to pay the additional cost of "oversizing" Belleville went ahead with plans for construction of a 36 inch sewer to serve the northeast city area.

The estimated cost of the 36 inch pipe from the lower Front Street pumping station to College Street is given at $580,000.

Yesterday at Canniffon OWRC officials suggested a 42 inch pipe up the river to College Street and a 33 inch sewer from College Street to Highway 401. The cost of the entire oversize sewer was estimated at approximately $300,000 although it was stated the required pipe sizes were still not definite.

The OWRC would pay 15 per cent of the overall cost of the project.

Egypt Faces Another War

CAIRO (Reuters) — Egyptians are faced with the prospect of another bloody war with Israel, President Gamal Abdel Nasser said in a hard hitting speech Thursday that the only way Arabs can liberate Palestine is "violently and by force, over a sea of blood, and under a horizon blazing with fire."

Nasser said "the inevitability of the battle must give us determination" and disclosed Egypt is placing 500,000 men under arms and allocating 500,000,000 Egyptian pounds (more than $1,000,000,000) for the struggle.

Blast In Mine Kills 62

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) — Sixty two men were buried and feared killed in blasting operations at a gold mine southwest of this South African city today. A mine spokesman said they did not have "a hope in hell" of survival.

Disaster struck the Buffelsfontein mine, near the Transvaal town of Klerksdorp, during the sinking of a new shaft.

All the dead were believed to be Africans except for two Europeans. Twenty-nine injured miners were rescued.

A spokesman for the General Mining and Finance Corp. said: "There is no chance of there being classic 'sealed' incidents of people being trapped behind fallen rock.

"This is literally the bottom of the shaft. Anyone down there at the time of the blast hasn't a hope in hell."

The 29 survivors were on the lowering stages of the shaft, said an official statement. The shaft was being sunk off another shaft 7,700 feet below the surface.

The Buffelsfontein gold mine is about 100 miles from Johannesburg.

New Tough Line Taken In Red Square Speech

MOSCOW (CP) — The Soviet government put on another display of missile might in Red Square today for the 52nd anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution, but Western military experts said they spotted no new weapons.

Defence Minister Andrei Grechko, in his annual address preceding the parade, echoed a new tough line toward the United States by accusing it of "aggression" in Vietnam. It was his only attack on the United States, however.

The military parade featured intercontinental missiles, some more than 100 feet long.

The military display has been virtually the same for the last four years. U.S. intelligence has reported the existence of new, more powerful Soviet missiles, including the SS89 which can carry up to 25 times the explosive power of America's Minuteman.

Grechko did not mention the United States or Vietnam at the ceremony last year, when the Kremlin apparently was trying to get off to a good start with the incoming Nixon administration.

The new line was illustrated at a Kremlin reception Thursday night by President Nikolai Podgorny. He accused President Nixon of taking "non constructive" positions on problems discussed with Moscow, and he expressed particular disappointment with U.S. policy toward Vietnam.

"The whole world now sees the hopelessness of the aggression of ruling circles of the United States of America in Vietnam," Grechko said today.

Congress Committee Backs Nixon Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House of Representatives foreign affairs committee approved Thursday a resolution supporting President Nixon "in his efforts to negotiate a just peace in Vietnam." The vote was 21 to 8.

The resolution, which originally had the sponsorship of 100 House members evenly divided between Democrats and Republicans, was introduced Tuesday. About 80 others have joined in backing the proposal since then.

In a closed-door session Thursday, the committee defeated a series of amendments calling for public or closed hearings.

The committee tentatively agreed to seek three hours of debate on the proposal when it is considered by the House at a date to be determined.

Edward Said Watched as Pro-German-

LONDON (CP) — King Edward VIII in his brief reign was under scrutiny by the British security services because of his attempts to bring about an understanding between Britain and Nazi Germany, says a new political biography.

The foreign office even accessed state papers sent to the King in the famous red dispatch boxes "to ensure that nothing highly secret could go astray," say historians Keith Middlemas and John Barnes in their monumental study Baldwin, published by Weidenfeld and Nicolson.

Baldwin was prime minister three times between 1923 and 1937.

At parties, the book claims, security men kept a watching brief on the King and Mrs. Wallis Simpson—now the Duke and Duchess of Windsor. This was not because of their romance and the impending threat of abdication, but because they both mixed with friends in German diplomatic circles.

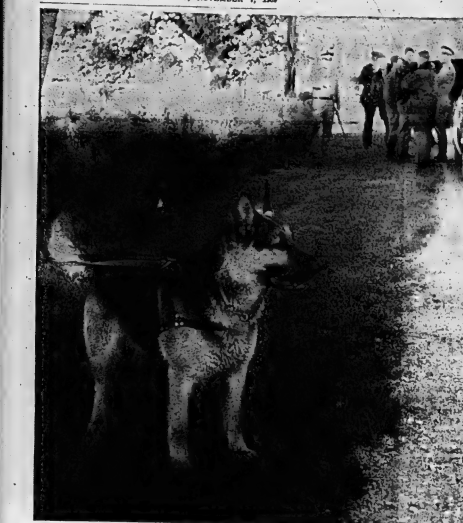
"Where foreign policy was concerned, the King did not disguise his opinions and attempted to enforce them on the government in a manner unknown for over a century," says Middlemas and Barnes.

"He not only attempted, in a pro-German sense, to influence (Anthony) Eden over the Rhineland occupation—a fact which the latter admitted to Jan Masaryk in October, 1938—but in response to a direct appeal from Hoesch, the German ambassador, he also sent for Baldwin.

"Hesse (author of a book called Hitler and the English) recorded his subsequent conversation with Hoesch and alleged that the King said: 'I sent for the prime minister and gave him a piece of my mind. I told the old so-and-so that I would abdicate if he made war. There was a frightful scene. But you needn't worry. There won't be a war.'"

There was, however, an abdication, and Middlemas and Barnes throw interesting light on Baldwin's often-misunderstood part in it.

They show that Baldwin sincerely tried to help the King find a way out of the impasse of his love for a twice divirced American woman. But the question of their marriage found the prime minister under heavy pressure from outraged parts of the Empire, chiefly Canada.



Canine Corps Puts New Teeth Into Provincial Police Work

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Law enforcement receives new teeth in the Belleville area this month.

Hopefully, they'll never be needed.

Equally — if not more — significant for local police work will be the nose that comes with the teeth.

Both belong to a police dog now nearing completion of his training before being assigned to duties out of Belleville OPP district headquarters.

The new posting will be part of a current expansion of the provincial police canine corps which already has demonstrated its value in crime detection in the Quinte district.

some years ago when an OPP tracker dog was pressed into pursuit of bank robbers at Frankford. The dog led police directly to the spot where ban dits had cached their loot.

Last May, following the flank of Nova Scotia holdup at Consecon, provincial police again called on the canine corps.

These were localized incidents. The present increase in the OPP canine ranks is linked to even more dramatic results.

The team was first formed in 1965, but had received little publicity. Then, earlier this year came the kidnapping of Mrs. Harry Nelles.

During the Nelles investigation one of the dogs demonstrated the corp's detection potential when he unearthed clothing and blankets used by the kidnappers 20 minutes after being brought to the scene of the crime.

The five-dog team now is being expanded to seven — with the new recruits being posted to Belleville and Barrie.

Currently, both are undergoing a 14-week training program at Mount Pleasant, along with the officers who will be their handlers on the beat.

Drawing the new assignment at the Belleville OPP headquarters is Constable Ted Arbuthurs.

District Superintendent D. E. Wellesley says he expects the new man-dog unit to be on duty by the month's end.

The officer will ride in a cruiser with his canine companion in a cage.

But readying the dog for its public role means intensive training.

The first six weeks at Mount Pleasant was designed to join the dog and his police handler into a working team. After the familiarization, the dog is put through an obstacle course — learning to jump from roofs, windows, across water, and to scale walls.

They are familiarized with fire and firearms.

Tracking, the most important and role for the dogs, rounds out the program.

But, in the basics of law enforcement, dogs already have proven their value. On patrol, they are a guarantee of security for their human police partners.

"Most criminals are deathly afraid of a dog. They've no idea how he'll react," says one of the officers on the Mount Pleasant program.

"They also know that if they shoot, they have to kill him with the first shot — because they'll never get a second chance."

The current course finishes the dogs into police work. But they must be returned at regular intervals for refresher courses.

Awaiting the Word

Butch, police dog brought into manhunt after Consecon bank robbery last May, awaits word to begin tracking bandits through Prince Edward County swamp. With expansion of provincial police canine corps, tracker dog will soon be stationed permanently at Belleville OPP district headquarters.

Wreckage Found

TRENTON (Staff) — The search for a plane missing since Monday on a flight from Kingston to the Quebec border is now concentrated in the Thousand Islands area just east of Gananoque.

Thursday, the passerby found a wheel and a strut on the north shore of the St. Lawrence River, one-half mile east of Gananoque.

CFB Trenton Search and Rescue Unit reported this morning that the plane parts are being flown today to the aeronautical investigation board in Toronto for proper identification. Current ly the parts have not been positively identified as those coming from the missing plane.

Two people were aboard the plane. The pilot failed to file a flight plan before departure from Kingston Monday on what would normally be a two-hour flight to Bainsville, near the Quebec border.

Separatism Dying Out?

TRENTON (Staff) — Bilingualism is the biggest problem facing Canada today.

So said Charles Lynch last night, speaking at a Trenton Chamber of Commerce meeting.

"In fact, the French are almost on a predominate basis," he added.

"The English-speaking majority has adjusted more readily than any other in history to the accent on the French minority."

"The relationship between the French and the English is not a natural love affair and if the policy of the Trudeau government succeeds, Canada will be the first country in history to achieve that unity."

Lynch said Trudeau's election was timed just right to alleviate the Quebec issue and he expressed the opinion that the separatist issue, gaining ground in Quebec a few years ago, is now at a dead end because of the Trudeau government's policies.

Mr. Lynch said recent events in Montreal are "the dying throes of the separatist movement."

'Best Is Yet to Come,' Lynch Says of Trudeau

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — The Trudeau administration is a risk - taking and adventurous government in the opinion of one of Canada's leading newsmen.

Charles Lynch, speaking at Trenton Chamber of Commerce annual dinner Thursday night, discussed "life with Trudeau".

The news chief for Southam News Service said, "I thought we elected a revolutionary government last June and the policies now unfolding confirm this view."

"Although he's an amateur, Trudeau has the country by the neck; he knows how to deal with and delegate power and is willing to risk his status on his policies."

Lynch said that the Trudeau government cared less for tradition than any other government in Canada's history and offered this evaluation of Trudeau: "He got off to a good start but the best is yet to come.

"Young people lit the spark and set the stage and Trudeaumania followed," Lynch stated. "Although he doesn't have the people mesmerized any longer he still has many strong supporters."

Evaluating the Trudeau government further, Lynch noted that the parliamentary system has been changed beyond recognition. He charged that the prime ministership of Canada is being changed into a presidency, adding, "If you can't see it, you're blind".

Incogerence was cited by Lynch as being one of the major faults of Trudeau and his government. He described the inner circle of the Trudeau team of being idealists, whose opinions had to be tempered by the prime minister.

According to Lynch, one of the most radical changes is the method of releasing parliamentary information.

"They have bypassed the press and set up their own system of pragmatism."

As a result, information which should be made public remains shrouded in the Parliament Buildings for months before coming into the open, he said.

"The people wanted a government with a solid mandate and we've got a much healthier situation than in the past five years," he said.

There has been some breakage, but the signs are hopeful," he added.

Lynch concluded that the federal party is the only one capable of governing Canada at present because of splits in the other two major parties.

This is the government of the next three years," he asserted.

Five Chamber members were selected by vote last night to act as the executive for the coming year. They are Doris Beith, Mrs. Edeyn Forchuk, Cliff Graber, William Norman and Douglas Whitley.

Voting for the office of president will take place in the Chamber office today.

A crowd of almost 200 was on hand for the annual meeting at Trenton Country Club.

'Colloidal Silica'

Agriculture Researcher May Have Discovered DDT Replacement

Potato Beetle Damage . . .

Bernard C. Smith, research scientist at the Canada Agriculture Research Institute in Belleville, checks experimental plot of potatoes completely denuded of foliage by potato bugs.

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

A Belleville research scientist is experimenting with a new pesticide that hopefully will take the place of DDT, banned by the federal government as of 1970.

Bernard C. Smith at the Canada Agricultural Research Institute here, has found that colloidal silica, a chemical so safe that it is widely used to control texture in foods, can also effectively control the potato beetle.

Laboratory tests commenced three years ago showed that silica can kill both potato beetles and lady bugs.

More recently, limited field experiments show the chemical eats down on insect activity and delays the time when they strip away the foliage.

Next year extensive field tests on actual crops will be given at the Smithfield Experimental Farm near Brighton where both dry and suspension applications will be tried.

Tests to date indicate that the dry application was more effective than the suspension, but Mr. Smith is hopeful that a spray application using conventional power spraying equipment can be worked out.

According to Mr. Smith, the limited field tests on research plots in Sidney Township showed that the chemical "greatly reduced larval populations of potato bugs and increased plant yields appreciably."

In the Smithfield farm tests different dosages will be experimented with. At the same time, the chemical will be used on other plant feeding insects.

If the field tests prove colloidal silica successful as a pesticide, there will be no problem about supply to put it into general use. It is already in use by food processors and production of the chemical could easily be stepped up.

And possibly equally as important from the standpoint of commercial users, the chemical is cheap.

On the basis of laboratory and limited field tests, Mr. Smith is hopeful of the success of silica being used as a pesticide, but at the same time admits that its usefulness depends on several factors.

Unless the material adheres to the foliage the number of applications required might be prohibitively high. Also, assessment of the effects should be made in crops with normal yields.

Assurance is also needed that silica in the form used for control of pests is not harmful to humans and other animals.

The research institute at Belleville is primarily interested in biological control of insects, (using harmless insects as predators on the harmful ones) but this approach is not always successful over a short period of time.

But, according to Mr. Smith there is always a "here and now" demand for insect control.

For this reason he expects there always will be some demand for chemical pesticides.

The objection to DDT as a pesticide to control insects is because of its toxic properties.

The pesticide is blamed for contributing to pollution, and also for the death of birds and wild life. Claims are that DDT has also been found in fish life.

The advantage of colloidal silica when used as a pesticide is that it must be ingested to be effective. The lethal properties of silica experiments indicate the lethal properties of colloidal silica probably do not depend only on its power to dry up the insect larvae but also act through interference with digestion or passage of food.

On the other hand silica is not expected to cause any pollution problem.

. . . Saved by Silica

OWRC to Share Sewer Cost

The OWRC chairman said in his opinion the 15 per cent payment by the province on the overall cost would more than pay the cost of oversizing.

"It might even be a benefit to the city," he said.

Prompt action on a decision to enter into the joint sewer project was urged by the OWRC chairman, who pointed out that Belleville had a commitment to provide sewer service to the city's northeast industrial area by the end of 1970.

The OWRC proposal would be to provide sewer service for the Front Street and Black Diamond Road areas in Cannifton and in the Cloverleaf Drive north of Highway 401 and west of the Foxboro Road.

This would entail construction of a sewer river crossing and a sewer underpass under the four - lane highway.

Mr. Collins said there were three alternative plans under which the river bed trunk sewer could be built.

The one he favored, however, would be for the city to do the actual construction and then sell the sewer to the OWRC for operation.

This method would assure earliest completion of the project, and the city would be able to recover the costs of engineering already done.

Due to the urgency of the riverbed sewer, yesterday's discussions were confined principally to this phase of the project, but Mr. Collins did outline other benefits which township home owners might expect to receive under the new provincial legislation.

Under the legislation the annual cost for sewer services in Thurlow (capital cost and operation) would be limited to $120 per householder with the provision that the province's contribution would in no case be more than 50 per cent.

If annual costs amounted to more than $120 then the additional expense would have to be paid by the householder.

The provision for water service would be somewhat similar to that for sewers with the annual ceiling cost per householder set at $100 instead of $120.

Belleville Alderman E. A. Orr pointed out, however, that Thurlow could not expect consideration for water service by the city for at least two years until the proposed filtration plant addition was completed.

Alderman Jeffrey wanted to know if Sidney township could be included in the OWRC project.

Mr. Collins replied that Sidney would not be able to hook into the proposed Moira River sewer.

But he said he was prepared to talk with Sidney at any time.

The Hastings County School Board was represented at the meeting by Roy Dulmage, board executive secretary, who said his board had plans for a new secondary school in Sidney township near Bayside.

Mr. Collins said his department would be available for discussions regarding services to the school.

Yesterday's meeting was arranged by Hastings MLA Clarke T. Rollins, who termed the provincial legislation a break - through in the problem of providing services to the smaller municipalities.

Today city engineer Wilbur Purcell said if immediate action was taken by the city with respect to oversizing, the December 31, 1970 commitment for completion of the river sewer to College Street could still be met.

He felt the same would also be true for the Cannifton Road — Adam Street sewer, for which the city is now preparing to call tenders.

All it would mean he said, was that tenders for the Cannifton Road — Adam Street sewer would not be called now.

Instead tenders for the entire river project would be called together.

Picton Honoring Mayor Tonight

PICTON (Staff) — Appreciation Night, a salute to Picton's mayor H. J. McFarland, will be held tonight at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute.

All residents of Picton and Prince Edward County have received an invitation to attend, with a special welcome extended to children.

Everyone has been invited, it seems, except the mayor.

Because the sponsors of Appreciation Night want the event to be a complete surprise, Mr. McFarland has been "kept in the dark" concerning the occasion.

During the past week his wife has carefully clipped out invitations to Appreciation Night appearing in local papers.

Mayor McFarland has frequently emphasized the bond between Picton and neighboring municipalities, indicating that they benefit mutually from progress, whether that progress has its roots in Picton or in another part of Prince Edward.

Appreciation Night opens at 8 p.m. with a reception following a program featuring Picton's Junior Band and a special choral group.

Hees Wants Inflation Fought

SOURIS, P.E.I. (CP) — More inflation-control measures should be adopted by the federal government, George Hees, Conservative member of Parliament for Northumberland, said Thursday.

Mr. Hees in a speech to a meeting of the First District of Kings Progressive Conservative Association, outlined four measures which he said should be implemented.

The former federal trade minister suggested a meeting between Prime Minister Trudeau and top business and labor leaders to negotiate price and wage guidelines.

Industry should receive tax incentives for installations and equipment which would cut production costs and consumer prices, he said.

Prices of commodities could also be decreased if importers were obliged to pass on savings in tariffs which resulted from Kennedy-round negotiations.

Mr. Hees said the consumer and corporate affairs department has "completely failed" to do the job it was created to do, and suggested if the department prevented unjustified markups in large retail chain stores that prices would be kept in check.

Kiwanians Hear Talk On Drugs

TWEED — Tweed Kiwanis members and their wives attended the services at St. John's United Church, Tweed on Sunday last, to hear Peter Tabbitt, of Toronto, discuss the work of the Alcohol and Drug Concerns Inc.

The Kiwanis Clubs throughout Canada and the United States, are being urged by the Kiwanis International to take a leading part in the program with major emphasis on Operation Drug Alert, (ODA).

The Tweed Kiwanis has appointed four of its members to help form a co-ordinating group in the community, to deal with problems arising from this project. They are Ray Woolfrey, who is the chairman; Dalton Lindsay, Frank Tate and R. D. "Dick" Simon.

Individuals or service clubs interested in this group are asked to contact any of the above as soon as possible for additional information.

Lost and Found

A Belleville motorist yesterday found his car was prone to disappearing in the tradition of the Cheshire Cat from Alice in Wonderland.

Clifford D. Gray of First Street reported the theft of his car from the parking lot at Stephens-Adamson to Belleville City Police yesterday.

He said that it had been taken from the parking lot sometime between 7 a.m. and noon

Then, at approximately 4.30 p.m. there was a knock at Mr. Gray's door.

A note pinned on the door told him his car could be found in the vicinity of Elmwood Drive, east of the city.

The car was there all right — but it was out of gas.

Railroad Cuts

Rail transport in Canada, never a paying proposition, is causing more financial headaches for the two main carriers.

If approved by the Canadian Transport Commission, the requests of the Canadian Pacific Railway and Canadian National Railway to abandon 31 passenger routes would represent a serious dislocation of public services.

But the one that would cause the most regret would be CP Rail's trans-continental service. Together with the now abandoned "Dominion" service across the country, "The Canadian" over the years has sped countless travellers coast-to-coast in each direction.

"The Canadian" is still running, and Canadian National has its comparable services. Together they are among the world's finest long-distance rail services. Lake Superior . . . the prairies . . . the Rockies, the rail traveller can see them all in CP Rail's "The Canadian."

Abandonment of this service in particular would not only be a loss of prestige, but it would cause considerable unemployment within the company and at points served by the route. Yet while it is clear passenger services come nowhere near paying their way such a service cannot be abandoned entirely, for it serves travellers arriving in Vancouver from Australia and New Zealand as well as movement in the opposite direction.

That being so the government may decide to retain only its own Canadian National service, for it is unlikely Ottawa will be willing to subsidize the private company's service as well. Loss of "The Canadian" nevertheless would be a sad event in the history of rail travel in this country.

NDP Conference

Socialism means control over virtually every area of the economy. It is the kind of restrictive overlordship — taxes and all the rest of it — which has put Britain for example far behind modern countries as Germany and Japan, not to mention Canada and the United States.

Yet that is the system of government the New Democratic Party, and particularly its ultra left-wing group led by Professor Watkins, wants in Canada.

The jargon of the Watkins manifesto, apart from its anti-American tone (it complained that Canada had been absorbed into the U.S. military-industrial complex and "has become a resource base and consumer market of the American economic empire") has all the implications of socialist doctrine.

Watkins told the NDP convention in Winnipeg recently that his manifesto "speaks to socialism, to the building of a society of equality of condition by taking the leading sectors of our economy and particularly our rich natural resources under public ownership, by democratizing our places of work and our communities, by building a mass movement for which this party can then speak in Parliament."

That the manifesto was rebuffed by delegates in a standing-vote, 499 to 268, is indicative that the party at large was taken aback by the "Big Brother" overtones of the document. Even under the present Liberal (and earlier Conservative administrations) there is a considerable degree of control over the lives of citizens. An NDP administration, with someone like Watkins in charge, would take us much further in that direction.

As it is, the moderates for leadership of the NDP party, including deputy leader David Lewis, have much the same ideological and economic theories but are less extravagant in their objections to American influence. In fact delegates accepted a counter-proposal prepared by the party hierarchy designed to achieve economic independence but without, as Mr. Lewis put it, placing the NDP in an "ideological straitjacket."

November Gloom

There is no mistaking November. Its clammy mantle hangs like a shroud over the Ontario scene, shutting out the light and giving rise to dark thoughts and anxieties. Of all the months of the year this one is perhaps most depressing, for not March and April in Canada's tired and lethargic spring. Small wonder that those who can, flee to the south.

Democrats Lose New Jersey and Virginia

Public Support and Party Gains Boost Nixon Policy

By RAY DICK

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon, his desk overflowing with telegrams of support from "Silent Americans" and with visions of sugar plums from his Republican party election victories in key states, has the appearance of a gambler who stacked the loot and won the pot.

The change from solemnity, and even gloom, was sudden and sent many of his outspoken political critics scurrying to their think tanks to ponder what a difference a day makes.

It was only Monday that the president, mindful of a massive Moratorium Day protest against the Vietnam war last month and a new and bigger one being planned this month, faced the nation in a solemn appeal for support from the majority he described as the Silent Americans.

On Wednesday, pointing to a mountain of telegrams and a Gallup Poll showing 77 per cent agreed with the president, administration officials said he had gambled and won, and not even a meeting of morgiorium organizers a few blocks away could dampen his spirits.

Then the polls closed in scattered elections throughout the United States and Republican candidates for governor emerged victorious in two important states—in New Jersey, one of the most urbanized states in the populous northeast, and in Virginia, a former Democratic bastion in the South.

Representative William T. Cahill's landslide victory over former governor Robert B. Meyner in New Jersey broke a 16-year hold on the state by the Democrats.

Linwood Holton's victory in Virginia over Democrat William C. Battle brought a stunning end to the Democrats' 84-year reign in that state. In addition, Republican candidates won 19 of 21 races to the Virginia House of Delegates races.

This means the republicans now hold 32 of the 50 governorships, including those of every major industrial state.

Republican Chairman Rogers Morton immediately pointed out that Nixon had campaigned in person a week ago in New Jersey and Virginia, and claimed that "the results are a hearty endorsement of the president, and following close after his Monday night speech, a hearty endorsement of his Vietnam declaration."

Most White House observers here are also interpreting the election victories as presidential victories, carrying with them substantial psychological impact.

There were some drawbacks, however, to Morton's optimistic appraisal and President Nixon's enthusiasm.

The Democrats retained their control of city halls in four cities—Cleveland, Buffalo, New Haven and Pittsburgh. And in New York, Mayor John Lindsay, rejected by the Republican party in favor of John Marchi and opposed to Nixon's war policy, was re-elected.

In addition, the voters in Louisville, Ky., turned out the Republican party after eight years in city hall.

The setbacks in the cities, however, where local issues became national mostly on the law-and-order theme, were overshadowed in most cases by the Republican capture of the two important governorships.

The consensus here is that voting tides are running with the men at the top of the ticket and the psychological impact may mean a big boost for Nixon, at least in the short term.

30 YEARS AGO

There will be no celebration of the Armistice in Belleville or elsewhere in the British Empire this year on November 11th. It will be Remembrance Day only. The Armistice has been broken. To most of the men who fought in the Great War, the present conflict is but a resumption of the struggle against those things which have never ceased to threaten democratic government during the past 25 years.

40 YEARS AGO

Mrs. Claude Hayes and family left for Stratford to join Mr. Hayes who is now located in that city.

Last evening in St. Thomas' Parish House a banquet was tendered to the women of the parish by the men of the parish and 118 women enjoyed the unique event. The men did the serving. The Vicar, the Rev. John Lyons presided, and the principal speaker was His Lordship Bishop Seager. Music was furnished by Mrs. McColl and the AVPA orchestra.

Firm Offers Molotov Cocktail Extinguisher

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

One of the frightening signs of our times is our apparent ability to accept violence and destruction as an almost-routine part of the pattern of our lives. This was brought home to us this week with the receipt of a press release from Sweetco Ltd. Ltd. in Toronto, entitled "Gasoline Bombs Might Be Controlled By Small Fire Extinguisher, Says Simonix."

Quoting general manager Herbert Hayes, the release goes on to declare:

The new Simonix high speed fire extinguisher is an excellent unit for the control of gasoline bombs — sometimes called Molotov cocktails. Those fire bombs are the favorite weapons of radicals and we are not likely to see the end of them until an effective, simple counter measure is introduced," he said. "When gasoline bombs no longer succeed in their purpose, the terrorists will give up using them."

Most fire bombs are made to be thrown and consist as a prime ingredient of about a pint of gasoline which ignites on impact.

The new Simonix high speed fire extinguisher, available to industrial customers and large organizations in Canada, though not to the general public, will put out two pints of burning gasoline in two seconds. Another advantage is that the extinguisher is small and can be carried in the pocket.

"Every police car should carry an adequate number of these extinguishers, said Mr. Hayes. "Public buildings should have them available every 50 feet or so — handy to the grasp, so that fire can be tackled as soon as it breaks out."

Ah, yes. And that should do just fine, until the terrorists develop a better bomb which this extinguisher can't handle and Simonix comes back with a new, improved extinguisher, and the terrorists develop a newer, more effective bomb, and on, and on . . .

And we worry about international armaments escalation!

There's one sure-fire way to stop the bomb-throwers, of course. There would be few bomb-throwers left around in the province of Quebec today if some of the "non-violent" protesters who know who the bomb-throwers are went to the authorities.

But it is too much to expect that people who want change, don't believe in violence, should assume the responsibility which is theirs to see that change is accomplished without arson, or murder?

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nov. 7, 1969 . . .

The schooner Mary Celeste left New York 87 years ago today—in 1872—bound for the Mediterranean with a crew of seven, the captain and his wife and baby. The schooner was sighted five weeks later off Azores and boarded when it was noticed the sails were wrongly set. The boarders found the ship in perfect order, with washing on the line and money in the captain's safe, but there was not a soul aboard. The last entry in the log had been written 16 days before and showed no signs of distress or mutiny. The mystery has never been explained.

1936—Canada's first movie theatre opened in Toronto.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1944—British troops cleared the last German garrison from south of the Meuse River in southern Holland; RAF bombed Cologne, Gelsenkirchen and other Western Germany objectives; Polish troops of the British 8th Army took San Martino and Marsignano after stiff fighting south of Forli near the Adriatic coast.

Phil Gaglardi Socks It To Welfare Recipients

Vancouver Sun

Now rested and refreshed, Mr. Gaglardi is swinging into his new duties with the same sensitivity that he displayed in his bulldozing heyday. He thinks that too many welfare recipients are "kooks" or "deadbeats" and he is determined to "spread rape" to get them off the rolls. This grandstanding leaves all recipients under a cloud unless or until they can prove their entitlement. Mr. Gaglardi seems to forget his own years of outraged innocence when no one would believe he had been proved against himself.

There had been allegations of impropriety in various land ventures and use of highway department labor, followed by a blatant case of misuse of the minister's departmental aircraft. The parliamentary rule cited Patrick Henry as the one stated by Prime Minister Asquith in the British House of Commons in 1915.

"The first, of course, and the most obvious (rule) is that ministers ought to be free from any transactions whereby their private pecuniary interests might, even conceivably, come into conflict with their public duty."

Now that he has been brought back from the shadows by the sunshine of Mr. Bennett's smile beaming, it would have been thought that Mr. Gaglardi would have been eager to impress the public with his contrition for the unfortunate rather than cast himself as the scourge of the unemployed malingerers.

During the recent provincial election the most frequent charge against the Social government was that it lacked genuine concern for the problems of the underprivileged. The unfailing rejoinder was a promise that the government's emphasis was swing toward humanitarian goals. No trace of that spirit can be found in Mr. Gaglardi's approach to his new department. After all, the government is supposed to be in power with a greater majority than before.

From Youth to Maturity—the Big and the Little Things

Shaun Herron in the Winnipeg Free Press

The young ones who protest their inevitable shovelling into the rat race are really saying that living and the quality of life are the things they want most and understand best. They are right, of course. And when that certain age comes round which the young suspect, does not the so-called generation gap close miraculously and the 20s and the 50s think the same thoughts and want the same things? Except perhaps that if the 20s get the life they talk about, they might not, with so much energy to use, be able to live it (there is always the fear in the young that they are missing something) while in the 50s we know that these are the quiet, valuable things towards which all our life has wandered along a devious trail.

When you have seen it all and tasted most of it, the inevitable question becomes: What would I have missed if I had missed most of it? My own answer has become: Not much. Even the excitements of humane concern or discovery that set most of us after cashes become amusing in a sad sort of way.

The United Nations has just announced, for example, that illiteracy in the world is increasing. Well, well. Any farmer on the Prairies could have told them that without a searching study. If world population is increasing especially in underdeveloped countries without rapidly developing school systems obviously illiteracy is increasing. I think what many of us would include in the things we can do without is the false excitement of the contemporary world, its intense exploration of the obvious, its equal emphasis on the little and the big.

When the geese were going south the other night, they woke me with their honking in the air. I got up to listen to them. It wasn't much of an experience in contemporary terms, and I had to go quickly back to bed so that at my age I could get up in the morning. The geese going south is a little thing. In the morning there were big things to attend to: Like raising the 200 amateur social workers in the Company of Young Canadians are a threat to the survival of Canada.

And Heading Into the Home Stretch The Favorite, Star Dust, by 35 Years

PICTON — Hoagey Carmichael's hit tune, Star Dust, was topping the charts 27 years ago when Robert Jamieson bought a saddle horse. The Picton horseman named his big black colt for this popular song and today, both the horse and the Carmichael classic are "still kicking around."

Seven years old when Bob Jamieson purchased him from the late George Atkinson, well known Bloomfield horseman, Star is now 34. Considering the fact that most equines leave this earth for greener pastures before the age of 25, Star seems to have lost track of time. Or perhaps he believes that a horse is only as old as he feels and this could well account for his longevity. Star Dust certainly doesn't act his age.

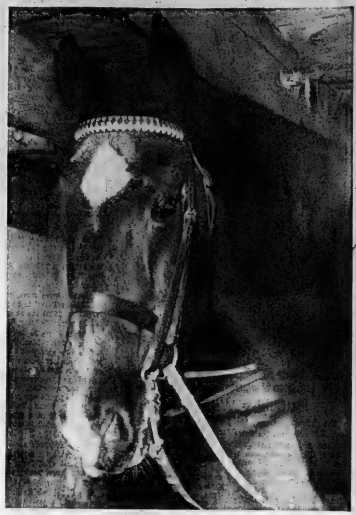
Shortly after Mr. Jamieson purchased the black gelding which stands nearly 17 hands high, he was shown extensively with his stable mate, a mare called Effie May, at major fairs and horse shows throughout eastern Ontario. Classed as a combination horse (shown under saddle and on a carriage) Star won an impressive number of red ribbons before age forced his retirement. Mr. Jamieson and his wife enjoyed weekend riding with a large group of county horse owners during Star's show career. Often Sunday rides through the country included "taking a few fences," a challenge that Star welcomed with the joy of the natural jumper. However, his love for jumping when not directed in the proper channels sometimes had amusing and frustrating results. Turned out to pasture with his stable mate each summer, Star occasionally cleared the fences in the fields and set out on a vacation all his own. On one occasion he took a fence and followed the railway tracks for some distance with Mr. Jamieson following behind at top speed. A man on foot is just no competition for a galloping horse and Star enjoyed this unscheduled frolic for several hours before his owner caught up with him.

Star retired from the show ring but has continued his career as a pleasure horse up to the present day. Mrs. Jamieson still saddles up for a weekend ride from time to time and describes her 34-year-old mount as "frisky" when he hits the trail.

Probably the best proof of Star's youthful spirit is what the Jamiesons refer to as "his last love." Pastured on the outskirts of Picton with several horses and ponies this summer, Star developed a crush on a little bay filly. He quickly adopted the pony mare and turned his heels to the other horses if they tried to approach her. Under Star's protection she enjoyed the choicest patches of grass plus the daily treats brought by her owners. Star's summer love was his undoing. According to Bob Jamieson, Star began to lose weight because of the energy he burned up everyday just trying to keep pace with his lady love. Consequently he was brought in from pasture in August.

While he missed the filly for a while Star Dust apparently has adjusted to the fact that it was one of those May-December things that never could have worked anyway.

Mr. Jamieson, who owns what is probably one of the finest antique cutters in Prince Edward County, is looking forward to driving Star on it this winter. In the meantime, his wife, Margaret keeps the horse exercised with weekend riding. Would Mr. Jamieson like to own another horse? The answer is Yes. Their barn, just now, however, has room for only one horse, a special horse named Star Dust.



A Young 35

Council Will Serve as Liaison

Mr. Don Thompson addressed council asking permission for the Drama Club to practise there and construct any sets needed. Mr. Fred Pallister suggested council look into the possibility of using the building for council meetings and the holding of Provincial court meetings. A report will be given by council at the December meeting.

The council as a whole will be a liaison committee to meet with the Ontario Water Resources Commission to be informed of the progress in the building of the new sewage disposal plant.

Permission was given to the Campbellford minor hockey league to hold a tag day on Dec. 6. Campbellford council granted $100 to the santa claus parade committee. Councillor Carter was named and Mayor Tanner offered his services.

The Department of Transport refused to approve a 20-mile per hour limit on the new bridge recommending the rate be 30 miles per hour. Council members felt there was some confusion in the department between the new bridge at Trent River which would adequately carry 20-mile-per-hour rate and the new bridge in Campbellford with a shorter linear span and steeper incline at which 20-miles-per-hour would be dangerous. Council decided to ask for clarification.

Council was asked to send one administrative official an done elected member to a meeting of the regional school board in Cobourg. The elected member will be spokesman. There was considerable discussion over what are considered expeisive rental rates for auditoriums and libraries in the Campbellford schools. It was felt the buildings had been built with taxpayers' money and the taxpayer should have a certain privilege of use.

The Chamber of Commerce requested council give some thought to new signs placed at appropriate locations — one at Cuff's Corners and another at Warkworth as guides to strangers visiting Campbellford.

Because the road and bridge budget has been expanded the sidewalk replacements will have to be held over and given priority next year.

The Ontario Housing Commission has expressed dissatisfaction with the land proposed by council for senior citizens' units but it is the only available site at the present time.

Bradshaw, He Says, Bradshaw!

Donald Burshaw wants to make it clear he's not seeking election to city council.

He says people are getting him confused with Ray Bradshaw.

Mr. Burshaw is district representative of the United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers International Union.

Mr. Bradshaw is president of the Belleville and District Labor Council.

Mr. Bradshaw sometime ago signified his intention of bidding for a council seat in the next month's city elections.

Today, Mr. Burshaw complained some electors are getting identities mixed. He keeps receiving phone calls about the current election campaign, he says.

To clear the confusion he wants it explicitly known that: "I'm Burshaw. It's Bradshaw that's running for council."

Car Tape Machine Stolen

According to Chief Douglas Crosbie, the theft occurred sometime in the last two days from the vehicle which was parked behind the downtown business section.

The tape deck was valued at $130.

The University Women's Club of Belleville and District have awarded four scholarships this year to girls graduating from Grade XIII in the city and district high schools.

The scholarships were awarded to the four applicants who achieved the highest aggregates in any seven upper school credits taken in the current school year at the conclusion of their first year in Grade XIII.

The University Women's Club Scholarship of $150 has been awarded to Miss Joan Brownson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brownson, R.R. 4, Madoc. Miss Brownson, a graduate of Centre Hastings Secondary School, is enrolled in an honors arts and science course at Victoria College, University of Toronto.

Miss Kathleen Milligan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Milligan, 15 Richard Street, Trenton, has won the Manly MacDonald Scholarship of $150. Miss Milligan, is taking an honor arts and science course at Queen's University, Kingston.

Because of a tie, two scholarships of $100 each have been awarded in memory of Mrs. Beverley MacDonald. The winners are Miss Catherine Cassidy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Cassidy, R.R. 1, Stoco, and Miss Teresa Rutherford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Rutherford, 38 Fifth Avenue, Trenton. Miss Cassidy, a graduate of Tweed High School, is studying honors English language and literature at St. Michael's College, University of Toronto, and Miss Rutherford, a graduate of Trenton High School is enrolled in honors mathematics and psychology at Queen's University.

Funds for these scholarships have been raised at the Club's Spring Fair and Exhibition of MacDonald paintings. For many years, Mr. MacDonald has donated a painting on which draw tickets have been sold. All money received from this source is used to provide scholarships. This year, donations received in memory of Mrs. Beverley MacDonald have been included.

The Experts Say

Live Lobster Not the Most Economical

TORONTO (CP) — When you take a live lobster home for dinner, don't put it in the bathtub. It won't be able to breathe.

That is part of the advice given by Jeri Johnson to people who don't quite know what to do with a lobster.

Miss Johnson, a consumer consultant with the federal department of fisheries, says buying live lobster "may not be the most economical way."

"Officially we tell people that lobsters should be fresh when you buy them, but there are things that affect lobsters so they may not be frisky. The longer a lobster is in storage water, the more it calms down.

"You can't keep them in the bathtub. They need a salt water solution, and you should use them right away. Don't try to keep them several days.

"When you buy them, you will probably be told they're guaranteed to stay alive for 12 hours. Don't buy them further ahead than that."

Miss Johnson says a lobster that weighs a pound or slightly more is about right for one serving. She says larger ones may look good, but can be tough.

"They have to be cooked in salt water, and the shellfish should be. Use about a quarter of a cup of salt to each quart of water. Cook them about 15 to 20 minutes in rapidly boiling water. And the pot should be big enough to take the lobster easily.

"When they are finished, put them in cold water to stop the cooking, or they will get rubbery.

"To serve them you slit the underside of the tail with a pair of scissors and cut up to the base of the head. There is very little meat in the body, but it has to be cleared out.

"There is a little brown sac at the base of the head that has to come out. The liver, which is greenish, and the coral (roe) are in the body cavity. People do eat them as a gourmet treat, but not everyone would want to.

"You can fill the body cavity with a bread dressing or mashed potatoes. Then you heat it at 450 degrees for 10 minutes."

To get the meat out of lobster claws, you crack them with a nutcracker or a sharp knife.

"The claw and the tail are really the only parts that have any meat in them. Maritimers take the legs off and suck them. There is a sort of sweet juice in them.

"Everyone says lobsters are very rich, but they are low in calories. In most restaurants they are done up richly in sauces. You can serve them with melted butter or with butter and lemon juice as Maritimers often do."

You can buy lobsters cooked and frozen and Miss Johnson says you just heat them thaw at room temperature.

If you buy one cooked but not frozen, straighten its tail. If it springs back into place, the lobster was cooked while it was alive. Miss Johnson says you should be sure of that because if it was dead before it was cooked, you can't be certain what it died of.

If you do cook lobsters or shrimp at home, Miss Johnson says, you can cut the steamy smell of the process by adding a little vinegar to the water. She says it does not affect the taste.

Hubby Gives Wife A Meagre Allowance

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband's carry-home pay is $188 a week — not counting overtime. He gives me $50 a week to buy groceries, pay for the dry cleaning, buy whatever gifts we can afford. Usually it's more than enough. We have five children and two of them are old enough to receive an allowance. I give them $2.50 a week.

I know my husband has to pay taxes, interest on a loan, mortgage payments, insurance, clothing and drug bills, and keep the car up, but he never accounts for where his money goes and I am sure there must be something left over.

We have had several arguments about this and I always lose. Is there any law I could point to that makes it mandatory for a husband to give his wife a set percentage of his earnings? —TIGHTWAD'S WIFE.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR T.: A husband can be hauled into court for non-support. But your husband is supporting you so forget it. The wife who has trouble getting money out of a husband who is painfully employed almost invariably has other marital problems. If you will work at improving the total relationship and become friends instead of opponents, you'll find Old Tightwad less reluctant to part with a back.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a man in my mid 60's in excellent health and I hope I have many good years ahead of me. I re-read my last will and testament yesterday and am having second thoughts about my instructions that I be cremated. The will was written six years ago, before there was so much publicity about organ transplantation. I have always been interested in serving humanity and the thought occurred to me that it might continue to serve mankind, even after death, if I could leave my remains to medical science. Incidentally, I always wanted to go to Harvard but never could. Does this suggest anything to you? — GOULISH BUT NOT FOOLISH.

DEAR FRIEND: You might go to Harvard after all. Write to the Dean of Harvard Medical School. His name is Dr. Robert Ebert, Boston, Massachusetts, 02115.

In my opinion, you are neither goulish or foolish. You are a man with a realistic approach to life and death — and I admire you for it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 15-year-old girl with a big problem. I have a friend who is sort of boy crazy. Her mother will not let her call up boys so she comes here and uses our phone to do her dirty work. She called a certain boy and his mother said he was out playing ball. She left our telephone number for him to call her back. She also left my name. I really had heart failure when I found out she did it.

This girl is my best friend and I like her very much. I also want to tell you that I would a lot rather have her for a friend than an enemy. Please tell me what to do. — USED.

DEAR USED: Your signature tells me as much as your letter. You feel that you are being taken advantage of. And you are. Using your phone is bad enough, but to leave your name and number was downright dishonest. Tell your friend she can't use your phone to call boys any more and if she gets mad and you lose her friendship, you haven't lost much.

Reader Wants Recipe For Fried Chicken

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: . . . My family is very fond of . . . Kentucky Fried Chicken . . . do you have anything that comes close to it . . . — Mrs. Fred G.

ANSWER: Yes and it is so popular that although it has been in this column, twice I will repeat it.

KENTUCKY FRIED CHICKEN

Chicken pieces must be precooked by simmering until tender and cooling. If whole chicken is cooked cut into serving pieces. Dip pieces of cooked chicken into this Fritter Batter: Beat 2 eggs and stir in ¼ cup milk. Sift together and beat in 1 cup sifted flour, 1 tsp. baking powder, 1 tsp. salt, ½ tsp. paprika, ½ tsp. MSG, ¼ tsp. curry powder. Beat in 1 tsp. melted fat or salad oil. After coating dried chicken pieces, drain off excess batter and fry in deep fat at 375 deg° Fahr. until golden brown. Drain on paper towels.

QUESTION: My children eat the icing on the cake first and love chocolate. Is there a rich chocolate frosting you could produce that would be the making of ordinary layer or angel food cakes? — Margaret F.

ANSWER: Yes there is and it is comparatively easy to make. For your benefit I made it for my 6-year-old grandson Douglas. His birthday was a last month when I was at their home minding my daughter-in-law's and son's four children while Margaret was in hospital for the arrival of Justin Michael.

RICH CHOCOLATE FROSTING

4 squares (4 oz.) unsweetened chocolate
1 cup unsifted icing sugar
2 tbsps. hot water
2 eggs
6 tbsps. margarine (or butter)

In top of double boiler melt chocolate over hot (not boiling) water. Remove top of double boiler from heat and beat in icing sugar and hot water. Beat in eggs one at a time, then the margarine or butter and beat until smooth. Spread between layers and on sides and top of two 8 or 9" cakes or on sides, centre and top of one large angel food cake.

This recipe is so good I hope our readers will cut it out now and file it in their "Frosting" folder.

Points for Parents

'Revenge Is Not to Imitate the Aggressor'

DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I noticed a quote from Marcus Aurelius in your column a few days ago. I found this one, which I think is helpful. It was all written down for his own use in a little diary, and later published:

"The most complete revenge is not to imitate the aggressor." — A Reader

Dear Reader: Worth thinking over. When we seek direct revenge — eye-for-eye, tooth-for-tooth type, we lower ourselves to the aggressor's level. Sounds as if we should actually do the opposite: Turn the other cheek.

* * *

Dear Doris: I have just recently lost my most wonderful husband. We were married 20 years. May I have the poem "The Message" which you said was a comfort to those bereaved?

I know you would be a very special person to have for a friend, and I seem to be compelled to write to you today. Thank you for letting me unburden myself.

I know only time will heal, but time seems to go so slowly to those bereaved; yet life really goes by so fast. — Just Mary.

Dear Mary: There's the rub: time goes so very fast that we sense the terrible waste, even when we are so depressed that we can scarcely carry on.

I'm sending you "The Message" — a little poem whose main theme is that the dear one who has gone on sends the reassuring thought back that he still "walks unseen, yet ever near." It was written by one of our readers.

* * *

Confidential to Left Unzuckered: Any consultant doubts very much that your husband has lost interest in you. He is more likely overworked and overtired to the point of exhaustion with his heavy job. During pregnancy, there is nothing unusual about a decrease in amorous attentions, especially if a husband is the very considerate type.

Try to do something to decrease the overtiredness. Patience, understanding and optimism will likely do the trick.

Dear Doris: Depression Baby wanted jam. Here are economical recipes for my own strawberry jam (made with rhubarb), grape jelly (made with lemon and carrot and orange marmalade: — Mrs. G. A. H.

Dear Mrs. G. A. H.: Can you make batch without straw bas? I notice you added raspberries in the jam, grape juice to the jelly, and put the carrots through your meat grinder instead of dicing them.

I'm sending them to Depression Baby — and if any other Jam Babies want to see what they can do with these concoctions, they can have them by sending 10 cents and a stamped envelope.

VD Clinics Lack Money for New Anti-biotics

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Thomas Wells said Thursday he is considering establishing a commission to investigate treatment of venereal disease in Ontario.

Answering questions in the legislature, Mr. Wells said such an inquiry has been requested by the Ontario Public Health Association and the Ontario Medical Association.

However, he shrugged off a Toronto clinic director's charge that the health department refuses to supply its public venereal disease clinics with the drugs needed for proper treatment of new resistant strains of gonorrhea.

Earlier Thursday, Dr. Anne Keyl, director of special treatment at Women's College Hospital, told the standing committee on health that the venereal disease division of the Ontario department of health supplies public clinics with penicilin and tetracycline. But it would not supply new antibiotics needed to treat resistant strains of venereal disease.

She attributed an alarming rise in the incident of venereal disease partly to the problem of obtaining drugs and noted that of the last 100 venereal disease cultures analyzed by her laboratory, about 40 per cent had been highly resistant to penicillin and tetracycline.

Mr. Wells said the health department has tried to discuss Dr. Keyl's complaints with her "but we didn't get particularly good co-operation in verifying the existence of these resistant strains."

He said the difficulty with resistant strains of gonorrhea is confined to Dr. Keyl's clinic and is not experienced by other venereal disease treatment centres.

Mr. Wells said he would be glad to make other drugs available if it proved necessary.

However, Dr. D. C. Hatfield, medical officer in charge of the department's venereal disease branch, said later in an interview that the development of gonorrhea strains that are resistant to older drugs "is a problem all over North America."

His branch would like to supply newer antibiotics to the public clinics "but we can't get the money we need."

Measles Serum Praised

TORONTO (CP) — Rose Kennedy, mother of the late United States president John F. Kennedy, urged Canadians Thursday night to "demand and expedite" licensing in Canada of a new vaccine against measles to save children from mental retardation.

Mrs. Kennedy, speaking at an Empire Club dinner, warned that measles, usually treated lightly, can cause brain damage and mental retardation of a child if the pregnant mother is exposed to it.

But the new serum, introduced in the United States several months ago, "you will save many children yet to be born from this dreadful affliction."

Dr. A. C. Hardman, director of scientific advisory services of the Food and Drug Directorate, said later in Ottawa the new serum may be in use in Canada "by late this fall."

Canada May Become Buffer Between U.S., Russia

OTTAWA (CP) — The possibility of Canada becoming a buffer zone between the United States and Russia to help supervise any agreement reached on nuclear arms limitation was raised here Thursday by John Holmes, director-general of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs.

"It would require a lot of homework," he told the Commons foreign affairs committee, "but it's something that might well be probed."

Mr. Holmes discussed the buffer zone proposition as he talked with the committee about Canada's changing relationship with the United States, outlining the various alternatives open to this country.

This relationship is changing faster than its definition, he said. This was particularly true in "the military sphere where massive technological developments have tended to separate the super-powers from other countries.

Mr. Holmes, a former foreign service official with the external affairs department, said that with the U.S. and Russia developing highly sophisticated military equipment in "this terribly important chess game," Canadians wonder "more and more what this has to do with us."

He said he also noticed this attitude developing in Europe.

From a military standpoint, Canada's role as an ally of the United States was less important than it was 20 years ago. With the dominance of intercontinental missiles, Canada's role in the North American Air Defence Command did not have the same impact.

If Canada was to reassess its position in this area, there were several alternatives open.

The first would be to continue as now: sharing in the continental defence program—"although I don't think we've ever had to pay our fair share."

Another alternative, Mr. Holmes said, would be to confine us as an ally of the United States but with a clearly differentiated function.

"We'd have to find out what the U.S. needs of us now in terms of defence."

One possibility would be for Canada to confine itself strictly to continental defence, leaving the strategic area entirely to the U.S.

Mr. Holmes said another alternative, neutrality, is not closely enough related to Canada's national interests. While neutrality might increase the country's influence in some areas it would decrease it in others.

Legal Marijuana Advocated

MONTREAL (CP)—A Quebec government organization for treatment of alcoholics and drug addicts called Thursday for the removal of marijuana from the list of forbidden narcotic drugs.

"The greatest danger to users of marijuana is the law against it," said Dr. Andre Boudreau, spokesman for the Quebec office for the treatment of alcoholism and toxiconanias, which presented a brief to a federal inquiry into the non-medical use of drugs.

"There is, as far as we know, no evidence that marijuana is physically addictive. Whether or not it is psychologically addictive is also arguable.

"The point is that a smoker should not feel guilty for the rest of his life because of laws passed when no one smoked marijuana."

However, Dr. Boudreau said existing laws concerning marijuana should not be amended before more studies.

Ready to Work

Dockers Suggest 90-Day Strike Truce

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia longshoremen are ready to go back to work for 90 days, at their old pay rates, while negotiators try to work out a strike settlement the 2,200 men will accept.

The men Thursday voted 38 per cent in favor of going back at six B.C. ports, stalling Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey's plan to force them back through federal legislation.

Mr. Mackasey said in Ottawa he is optimistic that a settlement will be produced in the 90 days. But, he said at a news conference: "I don't think we would tolerate a third failure."

The longshoremen, on strike since Sept. 25, have twice rejected settlement proposals worked out by negotiators for the B.C. Maritime Employers' Association and the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

No settlement talks will be held until after Nov. 14, when there will be new faces on the ILWU bargaining team. Canadian area President Andy Kotowich said he will quit on that date.

The men twice approved an 81-cent hourly pay increase on a base rate of $3.30, plus 50 cents in fringe benefits, over 27 months. But they twice balked at other clauses, apparently mainly about job security.

The back-to-work vote was announced hours before a deadline of today, understood to have been given by Mr. Mackasey. He had back-to-work legislation ready to submit to the cabinet.

"It is obvious," he said in Ottawa, "that the men preferred to go back voluntarily, rather than as a result of legislation which they knew was just around the corner."

Mr. Mackasey said he hoped the ports would be back to normal in a day or two. There were 30 ships in Vancouver Thursday night.

Ed Sraga, president of the BCMEA, returned from Ottawa Thursday night and said the men could be back on the job Friday night in Vancouver, New Westminster, Prince Rupert, Victoria, Ladysmith and Chemainus.

The union will hold a special convention Nov. 14 to elect new officers. Mr. Kotowich submitted his resignation at the union earlier this week but was asked to stay on until the convention.

Apart from one shipment of cows in calf, bound for South Korea, only export grain from the prairies has moved during the strike.

Enclaves for Life of Mind Suggested

OTTAWA (CP) — The contemporary university should become once again exclusively "a consortium of professional schools," W. A. S. Smith, president of the University of Lethbridge, Alta., said Thursday.

Dr. Smith said the contemporary university faces the dilemma that on the one hand it is looked upon to provide certification for its graduates so they could enter "established roles in established institutions. On the other, the university itself was becoming a place where these roles and institutions were being questioned.

The university might not be able to resolve its own dilemma while retaining its present structure.

He suggested that some sort of enclave "that is somewhat organized, located some place, and doing something like the present undergraduate college or university, with the critical difference that it is dealing specifically with the concerns of the stage of youth" might be established.

"In such enclaves, there would be no more courses, no more grades, no more degrees, and no more entrance requirements.

"What I propose is the creation of a series of such enclaves, judiciously located geographically, open to all, with some live-in arrangement, and staffed by people whose primary reward in life is living the life of the mind, developing individual personness and sharing it with others."

Cockpit Check-out

Capt. Andy Wojiechowski explains the cockpit instruments of a plane to Surgeon-Lieutenant Wendy Clay. The only qualified flight surgeon in Canada, she is stationed at CFB Trenton.

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
(Staff Reporter)

TRENTON — Wendy Clay is an example of the new order of women who are branching out into vocations which were previously the exclusive domain of the male.

"It's mainly a male environment," says the tall 27-year-old blonde, "and there were quite a few surprised people when I arrived 16 months ago. Now I feel I'm generally accepted."

What vocation is Miss Clay pursuing which might not gain the acceptance of the opposite sex?

She is a medical doctor who performs many of the functions of a general practitioner. And what, one might ask, is wrong with a female doctor?

Well Miss Clay is more than just a female doctor. She's a medical officer with the Canadian Armed Forces. In fact, she's the only female medical officer in Canada's regular service ranks.

Surgeon Lieut. Clay, an officer in the navy who is posted at Canadian Forces Base Trenton with Air Transport Command, achieved another distinction last Thursday when she graduated from Canada's only flight surgeon's course at the Canadian Forces Institute of Environmental Medicine in Toronto.

In doing so she became Canada's first and only female flight surgeon. "Wendy is the first woman to take this course simply because she's the first woman who ever applied," said Dr. C. A. Burden, the commanding officer of the School of Aviation Medicine.

In addiction to her regular medical duties, which on the Trenton base with 3,000 employees are much similar to those of a general practitioner, Dr. Clay has become the flight surgeon for the base.

She will now deal with the air crew and says of her new position: "A flight surgeon's duty is as broad or as narrow as a person wants to make it. I could sit in my office for 365 days each year but I want to fly with the crews, give medical briefings and be involved with flight safety."

One of her ambitions is to have the opportunity to fly with the 427 squadron (long range personnel and freight) to study such things as the problems of air crew fatigue and in - flight feeding.

"Aviation medicine just grows on you if you're doing the job conscientiously," claimed the native of Port St. John, B.C., who was stationed at Trenton in June 1968.

Prior to that she studied at the University of British Columbia's Faculty of Medicine and joined the service in 1965 before graduating from UBC in 1967. She interned at Toronto General Hospital before coming to Trenton.

What subjects did Dr. Clay study at the School of Aviation in order to qualify as Canada's first female flight surgeon?

"Five weeks of intensive lectures dealing with medical problems relating to air crew, including aviation physiology (the abnormal environment of flying), ophthelmology, cardiology, hypoxia,. (symptoms caused by a decrease in oxygen) as well physics of the atmosphere, disorientation, hearing conservation and air crew selection were major parts of the eight - week course," she explained.

The lectures also covered safety equipment such as oxygen equipment, ejection seats (in jet aircraft only), parachutes and safety helmets.

The second major part of the course included field trips to Training Command Headquarters in Winnipeg, the Airborne School in Rivers, Manitoba, the Basic Air Crew Training School in Gimli, Manitoba, and the Directorate of Flight Safety in Ottawa.

It was in Ottawa that Dr. Clay became more aware of the problems which might arise in flight and of the emphasis placed on accident investigation.

Flights in helicopters and jet trainers and low level flying were other facets covered in the field trip to Manitoba.

Dr. Clay has yet to get a reaction from the air crews, but Captain Andy Wojciechowski, CFB Trenton public information officer, said "I think it's excellent to have a female doctor on the base."

The lure of the sky extends beyond her occupation. After her first ride in a jet trainer early this summer Wendy took up flying and in only six weeks she obtained her pilot's licence.

Since June she has logged 75 hours of flight time in a Cessna 150 owned by the Trenton Flying Club and she's well on her way to a commercial pilot's licence.

Classical music (Mozart and Beethoven are her favorites) and a record collection rank along with flying as the most absorbing and time consuming of Wendy's hobbies.

Becoming a flight surgeon was a step towards a goal for Dr. Clay who says "I've always been interested in aviation medicine but my interest has increased since I learned to fly this summer."

She would like to specialize in aviation medicine, noted that the service appears to be the best place to pursue this ambition, concluding with: "I'm seriously considering signing a permanent commission in order to make aviation medicine my lifetime vocation."

Meredith Took the 'Blahs' Out of Guidance

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Students in city secondary schools, looking over the racks of guidance pamphlets in their schools' offices, will find one prepared for them by a fellow student.

Surveying as a career is being presented to young people in pamphlet form for the first time this year, and credit for its up - beat cover design goes to Quinte Secondary School Grade 13 student, Meredith Geneja.

Because she is in the process of choosing a career herself, Meredith has definite ideas of what a guidance pamphlet should look like.

"Many guidance pamphlets look boring," she says, "That's not getting the idea across. If someone is enthusiastic about a subject, he should be enthused enough to interest others. What's the use of a 'blah cover?"

About 8,000 copies of the booklet were published for distribution to Ontario's 151 secondary schools.

The booklet was the inspiration of the Association of Certified Survey Technicians and Technologists of Ontario and is intended to show high school students the career possibilities open to them in the field. The lack of a career outline in surveying has long been felt, and with the creation of two and three year courses for survey technicians and technologists at community colleges, the need was acute.

The task was turned over to S. C. Geneja, C.S.T. deputy-registrar at the county building and editor of Northpoint, the Survey Association's magazine.

"The pamphlet was designed to present the many facets of surveying — not just field work," he says. "Letters from guidance heads in secondary schools tell us the publication has filled a gap and we have had requests for more copies."

Meredith's cover design contribution was a voluntary one, made at the request of her father. Her first design was rejected by the Association as "too cartoon-like," and it and the second approved design took about three months to complete.

Meredith studied art in her first four years of secondary school and is thinking of making it her career.

"If the people had the opportunity of doing things like this cover, they would gain a different attitude towards putting their ideas across," she remarks. "It's all a matter of communication, I suppose."

Poppy Sales Aid War Veterans

The poppies are out tonight on city streets.

The handy annuals may be only paper emblems, but their symbolism is rich in tradition.

They signify the Canadian Legion still is actively engaged in its historic role — the welfare of veterans, themselves once engaged by history in an active role — war.

Traditionally this is the time when the veteran is publicly remembered — next week sees the annual observance of Remembrance Day (Nov. 11).

Privately, however, remembering the veteran is a continuing role for the Legion.

The sale of poppies is a source of income for local legion branches, concerned with the welfare of the rank-and-file fighters of the country's wars.

Old warriors now in need receive direct aid from the local branches, tiding them over periods of stress, with hospitalization, fuel, even food payments.

Shelter may be provided transient veterans.

In many instances, points out a Belleville Legion official, such help often eases municipal welfare demand.

"We usually get around $1,600 from our poppie sales in the city," said the spokesman.

The poppies go on sale at 4 p.m. today, and again tomorrow morning.

Chief Crosbie Believes Mott Plan Can Curb Juvenile Delinquency

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Does community involvement bear any fruit when granted on a not community problems?

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie elieves he's got some clear pointers to an answer.

Community involvement, particularly with troubling youth problems, is one way of reducing crime potential.

The indicators were spotted by the chief in statistics at the police department in Flint, Mich.

Much is being talked in Belleville these days about Flint and its Mott program for total use of community services.

Since the initiative of the Quinte Arts Council earlier this year in organizing a flying trip of community leaders to the U.S. city, the Mott program has been increasingly familiarized in Belleville.

Chief Crosbie is the latest returned Bellevillian to survey Flint. He returned this week from a tour organized by the Ontario Municipal Recreation Association.

As a police officer Chief Crosbie had a vested interest in discovering the program's effects on law enforcement.

His favorite impressions of the Mott scheme's broad community achievements were reinforced in a narrower, professional sphere when he sought out police statistics, says the chief.

"I was particularly interested to see how the police fitted into the scheme of things in Flint -- what their role was in the program. I was very impressed," he recalled of his visit late last week.

Specifically, he focussed on juvenile delinquency.

His interest was stimulated by national U.S. statistics. These showed in an eight-year period from 1959-67 the number of juvenile arrests in the U.S. increased by 259 per cent. In Flint, during the same time span, the increase was 80 per cent — roughly one-third of the national average.

"It has to be that they've done a much better job in Flint — and if they can do it in Flint, I don't see why we can't do it here," said Chief Crosbie.

The Mott program, which emphasizes total use of community facilities — notably schools — also created system—soon close co-operation between city agencies, including police.

The system also is applied to youth work.

Flint's police department has close identification with the city's youth—with a detective sergeant attached to each secondary and junior high school, says Chief Crosbie.

"He's their policeman — there to serve the young people and the school," said the chief.

The officers are front-line contacts between the city's youth and the department's youth bureau — a police unit which alone is staffed by 17 officers, in a city of 200,000. —

The result is a broad-based continuing effort to reduce offence ratings.

By nature prevention is undramatic, but Flint statistics can also demonstrate its effectiveness.

At one time, a sample group of 100 youths, accounting for 8.8 per cent of all juvenile arrests in the city, was selected for a pilot rehabilitation program involving community agencies.

The program concentration included family, group counselling while the juveniles were encouraged in work experience and association with peer groups.

"The results was a 70 per cent reduction of incidents in that group, while school attendance was improved by 25 per cent," said Chief Crosbie.

If nothing else, this is convincing evidence of the success of more personalized communication between the community at large and such groups, he believed.

Such success could also be transferred north of the border to Canadian communities, including Belleville.

(Already there have been starts in this direction). The Belleville department now has its own youth officer plus the long-established post of safety officer in the schools. Chief Crosbie looks to the future possibility of a woman being appointed for special duties in the same sphere of youth work.)

"I think very definitely it could work anywhere," said the chief. "The key of course is trained, competent people. And the thing that strikes you (in Flint) is the great co-operation between all community departments."

As a police officer he sees prevention as "very definitely" a part of professional obligation.

"It's part of a policeman's work to try and recognize trouble before it gets serious.

"The more we can do in prevention for the individual young person in halting a trend to crime the better — to stop trouble while it's relatively minor is about having to go in court."

Stamps Still Nine-Point Favorites Despite 'New' Lions

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There's an old football cliche that: "On any given day, any given football club in this league can beat any other given football club."

On four given days this year, one in the exhibition season and three in the regular season, Calgary Stampeders beat British Columbia Lions in Western Football Conference play.

But observers say Calgary played two football clubs: The Old Lions, whom they beat three times, and the New Lions, whom they beat once—and then only 22-17.

The New Lions, they say, could beat the Stampeders in the sudden-death WFC semi-final in Calgary Saturday and go on to face Saskatchewan Roughriders in the conference finals.

Herm Harrison of Calgary, the leading pass receiver in the WFC this season, says he knows who he's playing this time: The New Lions.

"Really the fact that we beat them . . . doesn't mean anything now," Harrison said.

The bookies do not agree; Calgary was listed as the nine-point favorite at last call.

The Old Lions are the ones who lost nine of their first 10 games under Jim Champion. The New Lions are the ones who won four of their last six under Jackie Parker.

Parker has both Jim Young and Jake Scott healthy. So is Jim Evenson, No. 2 rusher in the west behind Saskatchewan's George Reed.

They face a Calgary defence which was hit by injuries this year, but still is effective. Tackle Don Luzzi is bothered by a knee injury.

Jerry Keeling, Calgary's quarterback, is recovering from an ankle injury. Rudy Linterman and guard Bob Lueck suffered injuries against Winnipeg Blue Bombers last weekend.

Keeling will look into a strong defensive backfield, which this year took a share of the CFL record of 38 interceptions. Jerry Bradley and Rich Robinson lead the Lions in this area.

Parker called Mike Martin, a former Lion, from Seattle of the Continental League for the game. He'll replace Bob Brown, injured defensive end.

Keeling says his right ankle is still a bit tender and his arm is a little sore from an awkward throwing action. But he says his play should not be affected.

The game will be shown on the CBC national television network, starting at 2 p.m., MST.

The outlook in Calgary is for 50- to 60-degree temperatures under sunny skies, but there could be a wind of 30 m.p.h. The field at McMahon Stadium was in fine shape Thursday.

Goyette Paying Blues Power-play Dividends

By CHUCK SVOBODA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Phil Goyette could be on his way to his best season yet in the National Hockey League, all because an off-season trade put him into the most powerful power play combination of the season.

Goyette scored—one goal and assisted on another of St. Louis Blues three power play goals Thursday night as the West Division champions downed Detroit Red Wings 5-2.

Goyette's two points moved him into the individual scoring lead with seven goals and 12 assists, one point ahead of Boston Bruins defenceman Bobby Orr.

The Bruins were not in action Thursday, but in one other game, Montreal Canadiens downed Philadelphia Flyers 4-1 to move into a three-way tie for the East Division lead with Boston and Detroit.

The Lachine, Que., native started his NHL career with Montreal Canadiens in the 1956-57 season. His two best seasons were 1963-64, his first with Rangers after being traded from Montreal, and 1967-68. He wound up the 1963-64 season with 24 goals and 41 assists and equalled the total points in 1967-68 on 25 goals and 40 assists.

The 170 pound centre this season joined a power play combination that includes Red Berenson, Frank St. Marseille, Larry Keenan and Camille Henry.

Berenson and Keenan also picked up a goal and an assist each on the Blues other two power play scores Thursday.

Berenson and Ab McDonald scored once each without the odd man advantage for the Blues fifth victory in 11 starts. They have four ties and three losers and lead the West Division with 14 points. Philadelphia, Oakland Seals and Minnesota North Stars share second spot with nine points each.

The Blues, ranked 11th in power play goals scored last season, now have 16 to lead the league in that department.

Scoring for the Red Wings before 12,557 Detroit fans were Gary Unger and Wayne Connolly.

The Flyers took a 1-0 lead before 13,081 home fans on a goal by Bill Sutherland in the first period but the little Montreal right winger tied it up midway through the second session.

The defending Stanley Cup champions came to life in the third period with Mickey Redmond, Claude Provost and Jacques Lapperiere beating goalie Bernie Parent.

Parent stopped 35 Canadiens' shots while Montreal netminder Rogatien Vachon kicked out 34 Flyers drives.

New York Rangers, Oakland for tonight's only scheduled game, still had not made a decision on whether they would play the Kings in Los Angeles Saturday afternoon.

The game was originally scheduled for Saturday night but the Kings found out last week that a rock group was scheduled for the Forum Saturday night and all tickets were sold out.

Other games Saturday see Toronto Maple Leafs at Montreal, Boston at Detroit, Chicago at Pittsburgh and St. Louis at Minnesota. Sunday, Toronto is at Chicago and Oakland is at Philadelphia.

Anyone For First?

NEW YORK (AP) — For the first time in the memory of the oldest officials, there was no winner in the international jumping class at the National Horse Show Thursday night.

Two horses, both from Argentina, finished tied for second place and more than likely most of the crowd of about 8,000 in Madison Square Garden left the premises baffled.

The event was the puissance or high jumping. With the wall set at seven feet, only two mounts remained in the running —Ulano, ridden by Lieut. Roberto Pistarini, and Adagio, handled by Dr. Hugo Arrambide.

The pair were to go through a fourth jumpoff. Dr. Arrambide, a Buenos Aires lawyer who has had considerable international experience, was first out of the gate. He guided the seven-year-old Adagio up to the first fence and stopped.

He tipped his hat to the crowd and took the horse back to the stable. Lieut. Pistarini then came out with Ulano, a 10-year-old.

He piloted his mount over the first fence, and then smiling, trotted back to the outgate without jumping the big wall. He had only gone over the warmup barrier.

He thought he had won the event. But under international rules—judges who "ride," a course cannot finish first. Since both abandoned the course, they finished tied for second.

Lieut. Pistarini, who is just starting out in international jumping, was not aware of the rule.

Canada remained last with four points, behind Mexico.

Clair Hunting For Another Washington

OTTAWA (CP) — Coach Frank Clair of Ottawa Rough Riders, unsatisfied with his club's running attack since the loss of Vic Washington, now is looking over two new halfbacks as Riders prepare for the finals of the Eastern Football Conference.

The Riders, who meet either Hamilton Tiger-Cats or Toronto Argonauts in the two-game, total-point Eastern final, announced Thursday they have acquired Gene Thomas, a recent cut from Kansas City Chiefs of the American Football League, and Leroy Sledge, who played five games this season for B.C. Lions of the Western Conference.

"One of them will play for us in the finals," Clair said Thursday night.

Since Washington damaged a knee against Winnipeg Blue Bombers late in the schedule, Clair has been casting about for a suitable replacement.

Washington was Ottawa's top touchdown scorer and as much a threat on the ground as he was catching a ball.

Two halfbacks Clair brought in earlier for Ottawa's final two games were found wanting and have been cut.

Argos' Cosentino:

Rough Tactics Occupational Hazard

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Frank Cosentino, a 30-year-old veteran of 10 Canadian Football League seasons, disagrees with critics that say rough play will eventually make the quarterback position extinct.

He regards the tactics of opposition players as occupational hazards a quarterback must face and believes they are no greater than previous years.

Cosentino, who will share quarterback duties with Tom Wilkinson Sunday for coach Leo Cahill's Toronto Argonauts in the sudden-death Eastern Football Conference semi-final, will be facing his former Hamilton Tiger-Cat team-mates.

An intercollegiate all star at London's University of Western Ontario, Cosentino flunched his CFL career with Hamilton in 1960 and was traded to Edmonton Eskimos in 1967 before returning east with Toronto this year.

"Everything that happens to a quarterback is usually out in the open," Cosentino said in an interview Thursday.

"The same thing, and maybe much worse goes on in the line all the time, but it isn't noticed. Sure, the quarterback is under attack. That's the game. I don't think it's any worse this year than it has been. Maybe the linemen are getting bigger and faster."

Cosentino does not worry about defensive assaults. "You can't think about them or you would become a bundle of nerves and you wouldn't be able to do your job.

"If you're concentrating, you can get belted and not even notice it at the time. You remember after the game."

He said a quarterback soon is aware of the sluggers and some of them are easy to identify because of mannerisms. He mentioned Billy James Dees, Hamilton's defensive end, who gives his presence away with a punch.

Clippers Admit Raiding Possible

BALTIMORE (AP) — The president of the American Hockey League's Baltimore Clippers acknowledged Thursday that a player raid on the National Hockey League has been considered.

"Don't think that hasn't been thought of," said Robert C. Embry, when the subject was broached at a meeting of the Baltimore Sportswriters Association.

"And, it will be the subject of a lot of discussion in the future," he said.

Embry said the Baltimore organization has been approached several times on the matter, once by "people in the hockey business—from big cities not in the NHL—who wanted to hold a meeting in Denver."

"We didn't go to Denver, and I don't know if the meeting ever came off," Embry said. "We're not encouraging thoughts of a raid, but we're listening with interest in case anything develops."

The Clippers last week bowed out of the bidding for an NHL hockey franchise, which now is priced at $6,000,000.

The NHL had set a Nov. 1 deadline for receiving applications, but later advanced the date to Dec. 1.

Score Soars, Bowerman Still Top of Class

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP-Special) — His score soared, but Belleville native Gary Bowerman still took over the undisputed lead in Thursday's second round of the Professional Golfers' Association approved tournament players' school.

The 28-year-old Bowerman's three-over-par 75, together with an opening 68 Wednesday, put him in the lead of the 47 young pros competing for about a dozen berths on the lucrative 1970 USPGA tour.

First-round co-leader Brian Barnes, a member of England's Ryder Cup team, ballooned to a 78 yesterday to fall a stroke off Bowerman's pace on the 6,478-yard course at PGA headquarters.

Fellow Canadians Ken Fulton of Trail, B.C. (149) and Toronto's Bob Kern (150) were in 12th and 14th positions in the field.

Bowerman, assistant club pro at Toronto's Maple Downs, C. C., scored Thursday's 75 despite an incredible five penalty strokes. He was out-of-bounds on numbers 1 and 11, hit water on 14.

Three finishing birdies kept him three over par on the round, and at 143, one-under for the first two rounds of the four-round events.

Competition is keen, with 13 of the 47 competitors at 149 or under.

From her Bertram Boulevard home in Belleville, mother Joy Bowerman had mixed feelings about her son's success.

Delighted, naturally, with Gary's golf game, but "If he gets his touring card we might not get to see him until the Canadian Open."

Skiers Start at Bottom

Discussion at Belleville's first pre - season clinic started at the bottom.

Proper boots for the advanced as well as the beginner skier was the first item on the seven weekly clinics at Harry J. Clarke School with instruction given by Bill Honeywell, former member of Canada's National Ski Team.

"There are several types of ski boots offered a skier, with the plastic type the best of the choice," said Honeywell. Plastic will not absorb moisture the way leather will thus giving the skier a firmer support."

"The best skis in the world are no good to the sportsman if his boots don't give proper support."

Discussion also dealt with bindings, skis in general and ski poles. "In order to obtain the right ski length a skier should extend his arms in a little more than a 90 degree angle parallel to the ground, added Honeywell. A measurement from the ground to a bent wrist will give a skier the right length of his or her skis.

The 39 some odd people in attendance also enjoyed a film on Giant Slalom featuring widely known Canadian Professional skier Ernie McCullough.

The evening was rounded off with a period of pre - season conditioning starting the students on their way to endurance and strength. Stomach, neck and leg exercises were a few of the calisthenics used in last nights warm-up.

The next meeting of the ski clinic, a program of the YMCA is scheduled for next Thursday evening, 8.30 p.m. at Harry J. Clarke School.

C'mon Stretch

Moira's Secret Revealed Too Late

Moira Secondary School Athletic Director Gord Smith has finally let the cat out of the bag on what makes his junior Trojans click.

"Our whole secret is blocking," Smith said yesterday.

The revelation came a bit late to help the seven other Bay of Quinte high school football teams who fell before the Moira Juniors this season.

* * *

It was also of no use to Oshawa Central, who yesterday lost their COSSA semi-final 32-0 to the Trojans in Belleville.

If the pattern continues, the knowledge will not do much to help Adam Scott Collegians, whom the Trojans meet in Peterborough Tuesday afternoon for the COSSA Junior "AA" championship.

A pair of touchdowns each from quarterback Dale Parmalee and halfback Peter Stalikovich, and one by fullback Bruce McCreary did the main damage in Thursday's semi-final win over Oshawa.

Parmalee's 75 and 83 yard jaunts for six points came on quarterback sneaks, no less.

Steady defensive play by interior linebackers Dave Smith and Tim Yohn were credited by Smith as being major factors in giving the Trojans their fourth shutout of the season.

Defensive co-captain Bill Henry shone, picking off two Oshawa passes, and running one of them back 60 yards to set up Moira's last touchdown in the fourth quarter.

"It was the first game we've played anybody back ways," said Smith. "Danny Coulson played well at right guard and defensive end. It shows we've got a lot of depth."

Quinte Seniors Breeze Too COSSA Semi-final Win

OSHAWA (Special) — Quinte senior Saints yesterday won their COSSA semi - final over Oshawa Eastdale "in a breeze."

Not that the Bay of Quinte senior champions coasted to their 9-3 win.

On the contrary.

Gale - force winds that swept the Oshawa field Thursday could very well have cost Quinte their berth in Tuesday's COSSA final at home to Peterborough's Thomas A. Stewart.

Eastdale had taken a 6-0 second - quarter lead on Doug Whiting's 20 - yard end gallop for an unconverted touchdown.

With the wind at his back, Quinte punter Barry Burnette closed the gap to 6-3 by booting three singles averaging a good 40 yards.

Halfback Jim Sled's major late in the quarter gave the Saints a 9-6 halftime edge.

In the third quarter the elements began to play havoc with Quinte's offensive plans.

"We conceded a two - point safety rather than try to kick from our own fifteen into that wind," said coach Rick Locke. "If we had punted, I think the ball would have gone any further than our 25.

"All I could think about was that Grey Cup game."

("That Grey Cup game" was the 1963 windblown fixture in which Winnipeg Blue Bombers gave up three intentional safeties and lost the game by the same six - point margin - 22-16 - to Hamilton Tiger-Cats.)

But the Quinte defence that helped power the Saints to an undefeated 7-0 Bay of Quinte season again saved the day, and preserved Quinte's 9-3 lead.

A successful stand on their four - yard line gave Quinte possession of the ball later in the quarter after Eastdale elected to try for the touchdown instead of the tying point.

"Third and fourth-quarter interceptions by defensive backs Terry Hagerdorn and Garry Richardson got us out of a couple of holes," added coach Locke.

Behind the tough line play of Doug Otty, Brian Hennessy and Leo Baker, coach Jack Sisson's offence controlled the ball for about seven minutes of the final quarter to send a Quinte senior team into COSSA for the fourth time in five years.

Tuesday's game against Kawartha champion Thomas A. Stewart seniors will be a 1 p.m. fixture at Quinte.

Nicholson Juniors Third City Team in COSSA

BOWMANVILLE (Special) — The Nicholson Catholic College Juniors are a win away from the COSSA Junior A football championship.

"It would be impossible to pick out any individual performance," said head coach Frank Farrell. "Our victory was a complete team effort."

All scoring came in the second half with the ball changing hands frequently in the first half due to sound defensive football on both sides.

Bowmanville got on the scoreboard first in the third quarter with a single when Nicholson failed to run a punt out of their end zone. Just before the third quarter ended, Bowmanville manager to cap a 40-yard march with a touchdown, but missed the convert and led 7-0.

Nicholson wasn't long getting on the scoreboard in the fourth quarter when Mike Harris scored on a 20-yard end sweep climaxing a 50-yard march. Herb Poitier got a two-point conversion on a quarterback end run to give the locals an 8-7 edge.

With the clock ticking away, Bowmanville gambled deep in their own zone on a third and 5 situation. The run was stopped by Nicholson's defence and the Belleville team took over possession of the ball on the Bowmanville eight.

Kevin Joudwa plunged over from the one-yard line for a major score while the convert attempt was unsuccessful to make it Nicholson 14, Bowmanville 7.

With a mere six minutes remaining, the Bowmanville squad marched from their own 25 yard line to their second touchdown on a quarterback sneak, but another unsuccessful conversion attempt left Nicholson with a 13-13 edge.

With a minute and a half left, Bowmanville threatened again with a punt return by Dale Nicholson 26. In desperation to get the tying point, Bowmanville punted into Nicholson's end zone only to have the punt returned by Herb Pointer. Nicholson was penalized for 5 yards on the return punt and Bowmanville got the down over, this time on the 15. On the ensuing kick Bowmanville nailed Mike Harris in Nicholson's end zone only to be themselves penalized for no yards.

The single point was disallowed and the Nicholson squad got the ball on their own ten and ran out the clock.

Nicholson Juniors will meet Peterborough's St. Peters next Tuesday for the COSSA Junior A championship in Belleville, possibly at Albert College.

Mo-Hawks Would Gladly Swap Aces

Kingston Aces have only one player in the top 25 leading scorers in the Ontario Hockey Association's Senior A point derby.

But going into a weekend home-and-home series with the Aces, Belleville's Mo-Hawks would gladly swap a few statistics with their perennial rivals.

The Mo-Hawks boast four players in the league's top 14 point - getters — linemates Lorne O'Donnell, George Goodeve, and Al Ferguson and Billy Armour, O'Donnell's five goals and six assists in eight games puts him in a sixth - place tie.

But the locals would gladly swap their 2-5-1 record for Kginston's 4-2.

The Mo-Hawks get a chance to do something about that tonight when the Aces are in town for a 8 p.m. Memorial Arena game and Sunday night when they travel to Kingston for an 8 p.m. encounter.

The Mo-Hawk Booster Club will be running a bus to Sunday's game leaving the Memorial Arena at 6.30. Ticket will also cover the price of admission to the game.

Sooners Want Revenge

Cinderellas Go After Own Slippers

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Sooners will try to make the slipper fit when they meet Saskatoon Hilltops for the Canadian Junior football championship here Nov. 15, says Sooners coach Don Holtby.

"Our team has really developed from zero in a short time," he says. "I guess it's what they call a Cinderella team but we've made our own breaks and we won't wait for anyone to hand us a slipper—we'll go get it."

Sooners won the right to play Hilltops, who beat Ottawa in the 1968 finals, by defeating Windsor AKO Fratmen 33-9 in Windsor Nov. 1. The Westerners are the defending champions.

Next Saturday's game, scheduled for 2 p.m. EST, will be televised nationally over the CBC.

Hilltops with nine victories in 12 games this season will be fighting for their fifth national championship. Sooners, formed in 1962 will be after their first following an undefeated season. Their only loss last year was to Saskatoon, 27-19.

Members of the Manitoba-Saskatchewan Junior Football League, Hilltops won the western championship last Saturday with a 39-17 victory over Edmonton Huskies of the Alberta Junior League.

Holtby said he is placing every confidence in quarterback John Goudie for the little Grey Cup game.

"He's the best quarterback I've ever coached. He came on gradually all season and now he's at his peak."

Offensive backs Stan Daley, who scored two touchdowns against Windsor, and Merv Visnesike who got one, "are in fine shape," Holtby said.

Much of the team's offense all season has been based on reverse and counter plays featuring both Daley and Visnesike. Sooners will rely heavily on the same strategy against Hilltops, Holtby said.

The Sooners offensive line is "without an injury," Holtby said, and its members have been the unsung heroes of many games this season.

End Doug Moses weighs in at 185 pounds; tackle Chris Black, 220; guard Bill Sherwood, 235; centre Doug Sonnenberg, 220; guard John Kennedy, 235; tackle Don McCulla, 210; and end Ken Livingston, 205.

McCulla and Sonnenberg are five-foot-eleven. The others are over six feet.

"But what you have to watch is our offensive backfield," said Holtby.

Visnesike, John Kiefl and Daley have averaged more than 100 yards in rushing and pass receptions in every game this year, he said.

"I feel better than I did last year—although I don't think Saskatoon is any weaker. We can win this one."

The Sooners defensive line, considered the most powerful in the east, averages 220 pounds a player "and they know where they're going."

Mike Boyle, a four-year veteran, and Mike Quinn had been outstanding in the defensive backfield, Holtby said. Seventeen of the team's 30 players are rookies.

Officials at Lansdowne Park where the game will be played said Thursday they expect at least 10,000 fans.

Police Trio Penalized For Roughing

OTTAWA (CP) — Three members of the Ottawa police force will have to work 15 days without pay or surrender 15 days of vacation as the result of an incident at an Eastern Football Conference game here Oct. 4.

During the incident freelance photographer Ted Grant had some of his equipment damaged.

Three spectators at the Ottawa Rough Riders-Hamilton Tiger-Cats game went on the playing field when the game was over. They were intercepted by the stadium's security force which includes some off-duty city police.

When Grant tried to take pictures of the fight between the security staff and the spectators, he said he was punched and his equipment damaged.

Baby Habs Share Lead By Defeating Ottawa '67s

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Normand Gratton, Richard Martin and Gilbert Perreault combined for 11 points Thursday night to lead Montreal Canadiens to a 7-5 victory over Ottawa '67s.

The victory gave the Canadiens a share of second place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series with Peterborough Petes who tied 3-3 with league-leading Toronto Marlboros in a game at Peterborough.

In another game, London Knight downed Hamilton Red Wings 5-2.

Gratton scored three goals and an assist, Martin two goals and three assists and Perreault got one of each as the Canadiens took their eighth victory in 11 starts. Robert Guindon got the other Montreal goal before 2,778 home fans.

Ramsay and Rick MacLeish gave Peterborough a 2-0 lead but Dale Tallon and Steve Vickers tied it for Marlboros in the second period. Tom Johnston put Toronto ahead at 8:31 of the third period.

London moved into sixth place in the 10-team series with a four-goal flurry in the first period at Hamilton. The Red Wings, playing before 1,760 home fans, dropped their seventh loss in 11 games.

Terry Holbrook, Brian Chinnick, Doug MacDonald, Jack Kell and Gerry Bradbury shared the London scoring. Buster Harvey scored twice for the Red Wings who meet the Knights again Sunday in London.

HARRISBURG, Pa. (CP) — Canadians spent $803,500 on 181 horses at the 31st annual standardbred yearling sale which ended here Thursday. An American breeder, Thomas A. Dexter of West Nyack, N.Y., paid the most for one horse at the sale when he bought Froelich Hanover from the Hanover Farms' consignment for $125,000. The Canadian horsemen, John Hayes of Oshawa, and Herve Filion of Angers, Que., each paid a runner up price of $47,000 for yearlings. Hayes bought the filly, Pennsa Hanover. He shared ownership with Robert and Conrad Shapiro of Montreal. Filion — last year's world record winning driver — bought Brewer Hanover, a three quarter brother to the sport's all-time fastest horse Bret Hanover. The former lieutenant governor of Ontario, Earl Rowe of Newton Robinson, Ont., paid $40,000 for Armbro Lucky, a Bret Hanover yearling. Other Canadian purchases included Delstar Hanover, $38,000 by Keith Waples of Durham, Ont.; Lila Hanover, $17,000 by Albert Seiling of Elmira, Ont.; and Stanton Hanover, $14,000, by Filion.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Clippers of the American Hockey League announced Thursday the loan of veteran centre Bob Cunningham to Denver Spurs of the Western Hockey League. WINNIPEG (CP) — Montreal Expos of the National League have been asked to place their Triple A baseball franchise in Evansville, Ind., but club officials still are holding out for Winnipeg. MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, has fined Minnesota defenceman Tom Polanic $100, North Stars general manager coach Wren Blair said Thursday. Polanic was fined for two misconduct penalties, at $25 each, and a game misconduct, a $50 levy, for his part in a fight last Saturday night in Minnesota's 6-3 loss to Pittsburgh Penguins.

LONDON (AP) — Jackie Stewart, Scotland's runaway winner of this year's Grand Prix drivers championship, will switch to a completely untried British car for the 1970 series. He will race a March Monocoque powered by the same Ford V-8 engine that brought him the title this year. Stewart was left without a car when the French Matra racing division decided that next year they will use new French V-12 engines and drop the Ford power packs.

Expansion Reference 'Baloney'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Montreal coach Claude Ruel says people have to stop talking about the West Division of the National Hockey League as "the expansion teams."

"That's a lot of baloney," he said after his defeating NHL champions beat Philadelphia Flyers 4-1 Thursday night and moved into a three-way tie in the East with Detroit and Boston.

Ruel said the expansion teams, now in their third season, have come of age and are tough for anyone to beat. Montreal, for example, was tied by Minnesota North Stars Wednesday night, and Detroit Red Wings lost a chance to take undisputed possession of first place in the East when they lost 5-2 Thursday night to St. Louis Blues.

Conservative Request for Scrutiny of Expo's Bills Is Denied

OTTAWA (CP) — A Conservative call for a scrutiny of the financial affairs of Expo 67 by the Commons public accounts committee was turned aside Thursday by Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin.

The Commons demand came from Gerald Baldwin, the Conservative House leader, who said that all Canadians were proud of the Montreal world's fair. But the Opposition had a duty to conduct a post mortem to see that high-cost abuses do not arise again in public spending.

He maintained that the public accounts committee was best qualified of any to handle the investigation. It should be put to work on it prior to passage of the bill to dissolve the Expo Crown corporation which developed and operated the fair.

The bill, which also writes off a $125,000,000 debt owed to the federal government by the corporation, was given second reading despite Mr. Baldwin's plea.

It was referred to the Commons finance committee, which Mr. Pepin said would be as good a forum as public accounts to delve into Expo costs touching the opposition. He promised answers would be available to MPs questions in the committee.

Earlier questions about Expo financial conduct included one from Robert Coates (PC—Colchester-Hants) who wondered at the fate of Habitat 67, the avant garde apartment complex build at Expo. He thought it was both a white elephant and a monstrosity.

In other Commons business, External Affairs Minister Sharp said Canada has failed in attempts to persuade the U.S. to extend 30-day layoff notices given civilian employees at American military bases undergoing reductions in Canada. More than 200 employees are to be dismissed at the U.S. base at Argentia, Nfld.

During discussion of a bill to provide salaries for eight new federal judges, Justice Minister John Turner promised a review of salaries, pensions and expenses of judges generally. He said their remuneration is not high enough to attract lawyers to the bench.

The bill was given second reading and sent to a committee for further study. Another bill given second reading expands educational assistance to the children of Canadians killed on military service.

In the Senate, Senator Nelson wick) said that industry must be made to co-operate in controlling pollution. He singled out the pulp-and-paper industry as the greatest polluter of water in North America.

THE BETTER HALF

By Bob Barnes

"You'll have to postpone your trip to your home-town—your brother says it was hit by a tornado and the repairman had to take it into the shop."

Auto Workers Will Demand Stable Prices

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The United Auto Workers union will demand pollution controls and stability in car prices in its 1970 negotiations with automobile manufacturing companies, Dennis McDermott, Canadian regional director of the union, said Thursday.

Mr. McDermott told a panel discussion of the Canadian-American relations seminar at the University of Windsor that the union movement is involved in providing better living standards for its members and also social improvements that will benefit all society.

He criticized the government for setting "double standards" in taxation, medical care and pollution. He said the double standard means a different set of rules for the "privileged and professional elite" and the majority of people.

Mr. McDermott also criticized the prices and incomes commission, charging the body with asking the unions for wage restraints to combat inflation before it had a chance to investigate the true causes.

"In most cases prices have nothing to do with wages," he said.

"They are set up by the corporate marketeer who is set to gouge the public."

Mr. McDermott said the trade union movement is becoming increasingly international in scope as a means of meeting the challenge presented by international conglomerates.

At a panel discussion on labor and government, Thomas Eberlie, Ontario deputy minister of labor, said the roles of labor and management are being reversed as far as their demands for legal and government intervention is concerned.

He said while management is asking for increased government intervention in labor relations to "redress the balance of power," unions either seem satisfied with the law or are no longer interested.

Poverty Probe To Tour PEI

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Members of the Senate committee on poverty will split into five groups today to tour various depressed areas of Prince Edward Island after concluding a one-day hearing here Thursday.

Th senators then return to Ottawa after a week-long look at poverty here and at Halifax.

The committee was challenged by a vocal group of "people power" advocates—mostly students—who demanded and got some speaking time late during Thursday's session.

The young group, led by a spokesmen who appeared to have strong support from the audience of more than 100, said if field workers are sent In teach poor people about their rights and how to demand them, committees such as the one in session would have no problem finding out first hand facts about poverty.

Skip Hembling, a Company of Young Canadians worker from Sydney, N.S., who has worked on the island, said when trained poor people "do become vocal, they do become articulate."

"I suggest to you gentlemen that you are afraid of that very fact," he said.

Immediately after Mr. Hambling's impromptu speech from the floor, chairman Senator David Croll ended the meeting.

An associate of Mr. Hambling, Dennis MacKay, who is attending University of Prince Edward Island, earlier demanded time to read a short brief calling for the same type of community development to give people the confidence and verbal skills to express their views.

Senator Croll said after the meeting: "I didn't understand what they were raving about."

Other briefs were from the Catholic Welfare Service, former members of the premier's task force on extended care and alcoholic treatment facilities, a Charlottetown group for young men with police records called the Fraternity of Grey Knights, Newstart program workers and private individuals.

The Catholic welfare submission dealt with the island's inability to pay for proper welfare programs under the current federal provincial matching grants scheme.

The Newstart workers told the committee of experimental projects being carried out to gather resource material for service agencies.

Doctors' 'Extras' To Be High

BRANTFORD (CP) — Extra-billing by doctors for that part of their fees not covered by Ontario's medical insurance plan will cost provincial residents $10,000,000 a year, Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon predicted Thursday night.

"Doctors should be paid their full fair fee," he said in a speech to the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

"However, the legislature committee on health should have greater control over any further fee increase.

"The public interest must be served in a program that provides more than $400,000,000 for the services of about 8,500 doctors. At a flat average, this comes out to $48,000 a year for each doctor.

"There is no doubt the professional integrity of the doctors must be recognized but ... the responsibility of the legislature and the government to see that public monies are spent effectively ... is paramount."

A text of Mr. Nixon's speech was issued in advance of delivery.

Reverse snobbery

In the past Brights fine Canadian wines had no snob appeal. The self-styled neighbourhood "wine expert" would gush over a wine with an imported label, automatically sneer at any wine with a Canadian label.

Lately an interesting new phenomenon has arisen—reverse snobbery. The same "wine expert" has suddenly discovered Brights fine Canadian wines! He will tell you now, readily, that "there is something to be said for them". They may be "pretentious" but they're "very palatable".

Welcome to the Club!

President Burgundy	• A great dry red table wine
President Sauterne	• A delicate light white wine
President Sherry	• Ideal before lunch or dinner
President Extra Dry	• A dry white wine of quality

For "people who have everything"? A gift of a President wine "cellar" will open their eyes to what they may have been missing.

Police Make Error

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

About a year ago, my sixth-grade daughter and her class at school were visited by Friendly-Officer Jack, a local policeman assigned to "community relations." The cops, understandably enough, are trying to get a better public image these days.

Friendly Officer Jack, in a warm and beaming fashion, told the kids how the police force operates (toward short-haired people, anyway), and advised them how to act if someone on the street tried to molest them or spirit them away.

He warned the girls, particularly, that the biggest no no is getting into a strange car, under any circumstances. "No matter what anyone says," he cautioned, "do not get into anybody's automobile.

The very next day — a Saturday morning around 11 — my daughter was walking back from a friend's house, carrying her Girl Scout knapsack with schoolbooks in it. An unmarked car drew up alongside, two men in mufti got out and demanded to know who she was.

She asked the reason for their question, and they flashed badges, murmuring "Plainclothes Squad." They were looking for runaways, and requested her to get into the car and go to the district police station.

She demurred strongly, inviting them to go to the corner drugstore with her, where she might call home and verify her identification. After a few minutes of intense questioning, the men seemed satisfied with her bona fides, and drove away, leaving a pretty shaken little girl.

Her mother, hearing of the incident, promptly phoned the Police Commissioner's office, and, after a check, learned that the two men in truth were plainclothes detectives. She wanted to know why they had invited the girl to get into an unmarked car, just the day after she had been warned by a policeman never to do so.

"I don't know what the detective bureau thinks about this," said the man in the Commissioner's office, "but if it was a daughter of mine, I'd tell her to bite hell!"

Little wonder that the urban public is confused and resentful over police procedures and practices. How can a 10-year-old girl be expected to know if a police badge is genuine, or an identity card the real thing? Even grown-up, so many detectives in a big city look and sound as tough as the men they are pursuing.

Friendly Officer Jack is not really improving "community relations." He is just confusing parents. Better law enforcements depends as much — if not more — on a change of attitude by the cops by a change of attitude on the part of the public.

Work Was Too Good

Former CYC Chairman Calls Montreal Charges Red Herring

OTTAWA (CP) — The Company of Young Canadians has drawn civic fire in Montreal not because of any subversive tendency but because of its good work with citizens' groups, a Commons inquiry was told Thursday.

The allegations of subversion in the CYC made by Montreal Executive Committee Chairman Lucien Saulnier amount to a "red herring" aimed at killing the company, said Douglas Ward, former chairman of the CYC provisional council.

Mr. Saulnier's charges, after a police raids and widespread violence last month, led State Secretary Gerard Pelletier to have the Commons committee inquire into the allegations.

The committee is still undecided about whether to call Mr. Saulnier as a witness. Fears have been expressed that hearsay police evidence from Montreal could turn the inquiry into a "witchhunt."

Mr. Ward dismissed as meaningless reports that Montreal police found a recipe for Molotov cocktails in the CYC headquarters in Montreal. Every underground newspaper in the world had carried diagrams for the homemade bombs since the 1968 Czechoslovak invasion.

He compared civic reaction to the CYC in Montreal with that of milk farmers near Slave Lake, Alta., when CYC volunteers helped Metis gain fishing rights on the lake, cutting into the source of mink feed.

The CYC in Montreal was "working with the equivalent of the Metis, and the mink farmers aren't happy. Citizens groups can be a pain in the neck."

One CYC project Mr. Saulnier hadn't mentioned was among the best, Mr. Ward said. CYC volunteers were helping the Milan Park Citizens Committee in Montreal stave off efforts by a real estate developer to force them out.

Rather than confrontations and demonstrations, the citizens were going to city hall in Montreal for help. If city hall could give developers advice, it could help the average citizen too.

"Mr. Saulnier is pointing at the CYC as the cause of violence. The CYC is working on the causes.

"With the company, there is some hope of conciliation. I hope there is still some credibility left for non-violent change."

People tended to believe democracy was safe in the hands of government. They had to be made aware that they themselves should get involved.

The tenants association and citizens groups, "quite new in Canadian history," were among the signs that the CYC was succeeding.

The CYC made mistakes. At Lesser Slave Lake, for instance, there should have been more contact with the mink farmers and awareness of their problems.

The war on poverty, which began with the CYC, came up briefly and one MP asked what had happened to it.

"We lost," replied a Liberal.

Mr. Ward said the CYC got off to an ebullient start, with the emphasis on youth, but ran into so many problems that it had to take a more conventional approach.

He said former prime minister Lester Pearson, who brought the CYC into existence in 1965, "didn't understand to any degree what it was all about." Mr. Pearson was back in the 1920s as far as issues were concerned.

The prime minister had refused to appoint a permanent council, allowing the provisional council led by Mr. Ward to remain for nearly three years. Mr. Ward said there were practically no French-language members of the council left at the end and the interests of the others had drifted.

The permanent council didn't hold its first meeting until last month. All through this year, the provisional council was "a lame duck" and had lost the confidence of CYC volunteers.

Mr. Ward said the government twice "interfered" in CYC operations, once when Mr. Pearson's principal secretary moved in to appoint a financial comptroller and once when State Secretary Pelletier engineered the dismissal of Quebec associate director Marvin Belliveau, who was fired for his separatist views, said Mr. Ward.

Alan Clarke, executive director of the CYC when Mr. Belliveau resigned in May, 1968, also resigned at that time.

Mr. Ward said Mr. Clarke's main problem may have been that he didn't speak French, had to depend heavily on Mr. Belliveau, and was perhaps "inadequately informed" of the CYC's Quebec operation.

Mr. Ward said the council refused to support Mr. Clarke after he buckled under and carried out Mr. Pelletier's order to get rid of Mr. Belliveau within 48 hours. The council, which also felt Mr. Belliveau should go, thought that Mr. Pelletier should have come to it rather than Mr. Clarke with the issue.

Mr. Ward said mass resignation was discussed and this could have been the end of the CYC. But the council decided to stand in hope that the Clarke resignation would prevent further interference.

The council later discussed the kind of support it wanted "and the kind it didn't want" with Mr. Pelletier and found him to be a sympathetic figure.

Mr. Ward said he understood Mr. Pelletier's anxiety to get rid of Mr. Belliveau. If there was a choice between the downfall of the government and the downfall of the CYC over the issue of separatism in the CYC, he knew the CYC would get the axe.

Provinces Get $50 Million Bilingualism Aid

OTTAWA (CP) — State Secretary Gerard Pelletier spent Thursday haggling with provincial education officials over the relative importance of second-language training and mother-language education.

He broke it off mid-way to announce to the Commons that in 1970 the federal government will provide $50,000,000 for the provinces to carry out both aspects of the bilingualism policy.

Later on, however, he admitted that some provinces are still not happy with the federal approach announced in the House. The provincial officials refused to comment as they left the conference room in Ottawa's Centennial Centre.

As set out in Mr. Pelletier's statement to the Commons, federal policy ranks mother-language education for French or English-speaking minority groups in any province and improved second-language training in majority group schools as top priorities in its scheme for a bilingual Canada.

But, Mr. Pelletier noted, funds are limited "even in fields of the highest priority."

The $50,000,000 ceiling may be raised in later years but for 1970, it is all the federal treasury can afford. In effect, most of the money next will go for the first priority. Action to develop second-language training for Canadian students, Mr. Pelletier stated, "will require the closest consultation with the provinces . . . and the means to meet the needs."

Pressure will be strong for a modification of the priorities. Legislation moving towards approval in Quebec will require English-language students to graduate with at least a working knowledge of French. Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal has estimated that in a few years up to 40 per cent of class time in English-language school will be conducted in French.

The province has already indicated it will ask assistance from Ottawa in paying the extra cost of second-language training.

Meanwhile, western provinces are concerned that in the bilingual Canada of the future their children will be denied access to the higher levels of the federal public service if they do not get intensive training in French.

Interviewed after Thursday's meeting, Mr. Pelletier claimed the west was even more concerned about assistance for second-language training costs than Quebec.

Ottawa is also limited by the constitution in matters relating to education as it was sternly reminded after Mr. Pelletier's statement by G. W. Baldwin (PC—Peace River) and Andre Ouellet (Liberal—Chambly).

The government was also urged by David Lewis (NDP—York South) to assure the provinces it will not at some future time pull out of the bilingual education field leaving them to bear the burden of the costs.

Mr. Lewis also criticized the government for employing "a totally bureaucratic approach" in determining the size of its contribution to the provinces.

Outside the House Mr. Pelletier went to some length to refute the charges of the NDP deputy leader. The government's figures, he said, were as realistic as possible. They had been carefully calculated, based on recommendations contained in the second volume of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

The report specified a series of federal grants to the provinces, covering such aspects of post-secondary education as teacher-training, university development, transfer programs for students. The report also recommended that Ottawa establish a language research council to assist in development of the programs.

The principle grant system recommended by the report would involve payment by Ottawa to the provinces of 10 per cent of the average cost per student of education in a province for each minority-language pupil. The grant system would concentrate most of the grants in Quebec, Ontario and New Brunswick. Quebec already has a minority-language school system for English-speaking residents; the other two provinces, where most French-speaking Canadians outside Quebec reside, are committed to extending minority language systems.

Mr. Pelletier gave no details of the formula the government would use to split up grant money among the provinces. He said negotiations would continue between officials in his department and the provinces and a meeting of the council of education ministers would probably be called following the continental conference scheduled for December.

PC Says Newfoundland On Bankruptcy's Brink

OTTAWA (CP) — Frank Moores, president of the national Progressive Conservative association, says he thinks Premier J. R. Smallwood of Newfoundland is "foolish enough" to call a snap election.

Mr. Moores, 36-year-old MP for the Newfoundland riding of Bonavista - Trinity - Conception, leaves for his native province Sunday to spend a week on the island—just in case.

"We can beat Smallwood now or two years from now," Mr. Moores said in an interview.

"It will be unfortunate if we have to wait for two years.

"Newfoundland is a sick, sick mess. It is frightening, the province is so near to bankruptcy. It is $1,000,000,000 in debt with no way to pay off.

"Smallwood now is borrowing three-year money at eight to 10 per cent to pay off 20-year-old, four-per-cent bonds. Newfoundland will need austerity to straighten out this mess.

"The next government of Newfoundland will have a thankless job."

Golden Hawks Want Even Record

Trenton Golden Hawks of the Eastern Ontario Junior B circuit will be trying to gain the upper hand over Peterborough Petes Reps when the Don Byes Seniors go into Trenton's Community Gardens for a 8 p.m. hockey game tonight.

The Golden Hawks, now 1-1 with Peterborough, will have regular goaltender Arni Istead back from an injury. "Pete" Upman is back from the Peterborough A team, said Rod Gervais. He will be a big asset to our attacking unit."

"Our last game in Cobourg, our boys didn't display their full potential. Our club is not fully selected as yet, but the boys I go with tonight will be pretty much the regular team for the remainder of the schedule."

The Trenton club has won two games while dropping three decisions to date.

"We are still in our building stage with a lot of wrinkles to be ironed out yet," added Gervais. I don't expect that our team will make their move for a playoff berth until around Christmas time. Our team will be playing the same calibre of hockey at Christmas that the Kingston Frontenacs are showing now."

The Golden Hawks will visit Belleville Memorial Arena, Friday, Nov. 14 for a 8 p.m. hockey game against the Ellis Juniors.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For November 8

Your birthday today: The path to success through the coming year is a combination of hard work plus a search for the right connections. Material success is the greatest challenge now, and the most likely to come within your reach. What it seems to others to be easiness is mostly your more fluently available, driving energy. Today's natives nearly always have rather specific, specialized ambitions. They tend to extremes of stature, tall or short.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Friends and older people take turns adding to the complexities of the day's arrangements. Your deliberate attempt to keep things going smoothly will be much appreciated by all. Do as little changing as can be managed.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Be patient, sincere, and tactful — the quarrel you avert may be all important to your future happiness. Delays are normal and are to be accepted as if they were part of the weather.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Care in the use and handling of tools, particularly power tools, is strongly advised. Discussions may distract you in your work efforts or be of more oversight than some features of your chores.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Group-minds are a potential source of misunderstanding. Find a middle ground between a conservative, thrifty course and the realization that no amount of money is nearly so precious as a happy relationship.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Family and group endeavors build up pressures. Give a little — your moderate, compromise manner, taken soon enough, saves the day.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Find some way to postpone a decision making for the moment since added factors are just beginning to appear.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 —Oct. 22): Your pet temptations today are luxury and speculation and extravagance related to creative urges. Be sure to keep track of what you do with money, but don't let fussiness on the subject will find you with more than enough.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Make a special endeavor to improve your contacts with people who can carry larger communications and think in expansive, optimistic terms.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Prepare yourself for a fairly strenuous day, and go into it with the hope of getting past the bottlenecks or at least finding out what and where they are.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Social activities must take a back seat while you search for better understanding of your problems. The key to the situation may be your failure to realize that because you like variety, you don't necessarily mean they all like each other.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Fatigue factors are trying to make up for lost time would cause even more of a dilemma. Do what you must, and let it go at that for the moment. Older people require attention.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Care in driving is essential. Travelling in general is unsatisfactory, particularly back roads early in the day. People nearby need your consideration more than those at a distance.

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Few Pets Transmit Cat Scratch Fever

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: The child of a friend of mine came down with cat scratch fever. Will you say something about it? We have a cat in our house, too. The question is this: Shall we get rid of it? — Mrs. G.

Comment: I wish we knew how to determine which cats transmit the disease and which do not. But we have no way of knowing. And there is no efficient vaccine which will take care of the problem, either. Fortunately, most cats do not transmit the disease and it is not contagious.

A person is not likely to get it from a well-kept house cat as from some wandering alley cat. It all depends upon which carries the virus. In direct answer to your question, you do not have to get rid of your cat. Just try to impress on your youngsters not to play too rough with their pet. There is less chance of getting scratched.

In some cases of cat scratch disease, there's not even a history of having been scratched. Perhaps the virus can be picked up through handling contaminated objects. After contact or exposure with the scratch, it takes three to seven days for the disease to incubate. Anywhere from a week to a month later, glands may become swollen. And abscessed. They need to be drained in about one-third of the cases.

There may be fever on and off for weeks. But—at last the glands heal and the patient feels all right. Antibiotics are only questionably helpful. A child with the disease does not have to be quarantined.

Considering the millions of cats that are kept as pets, cat scratch disease is relatively rare. So keep your pet and do not worry unduly. All you really need to know is there is such a condition which is usually not serious and goes on to uncomplicated recovery.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am in my 40s and the mother of a large family. I was recently ed, for a long time. Therefore, can you tell me how to avoid developing diabetes? My mother had it and my father had a tumor of the pancreas. — Mother of Seven.

Comment: Keeping your weight within normal limits and taking a sensible diet are important factors. But doing so is no guarantee against developing diabetes. What is important, with your family history, is to discover it early if it develops so you can treat it effectively. Therefore, I believe you should have urine checkups every few months and blood sugar determinations at least once or twice yearly.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: This is a very important question and I'm hoping you will put the answer in the paper as soon as possible. Here is my problem. I am a 17-year-old girl with curly short brown hair. The biggest mistake in my life was when I got it cut. Now I have been asked to go to a prom and I would like my hair longer. The prom is in three weeks. I have been told that hair only grows a half an inch a month.

Is there any way I can make my hair grow faster? Please don't tell me to perm it in a fall because I already have. And so far I've got caught in the rain twice with it and seen it frizz off. Please help! Any advice will be appreciated. Thank you. — Miss B.

Comment: I wish I could make it grow faster — or in some patients — grow at all. I'm helpless to help! How about asking for advice from a beautician? What does you mother say?

Middle Class To Pay Piper

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Business Editor

OTTAWA (CP) — A better break for lower income families — and a bitter pill for people who have added to their annual income by selling assets without paying a capital gains tax.

It would help low-wage earners by increasing basic income tax exemptions to $1,400 for single and $2,800 for married persons, and hit many at the other end of the earnings scale by imposing Canada's first-ever general capital gains tax. A capital gain is made when someone sells an asset such as stocks or real estate for a profit.

To help compensate for the

capital gains tax, however, which Finance Minister Edgar Benson said would be paid mostly by wealthy Canadians, the government's white paper on taxation made public Friday proposed lowering the maximum personal income tax rate to 50 per cent from the present 82.4 per cent.

Suggesting a capital gains tax —almost sure to run into strong opposition from much of Canada's business establishment— had been widely expected since the government promised a white paper to outline its thinking on the report of the Carter royal commission* on taxation. The commission presented its far-reaching proposals for reform in 1967.

The 50,000 word white paper, tabled in Parliament by Mr. Benson, offered lower income taxes for single persons earning up to $3,400 annually and up to $9,100 for married persons.

It proposed child-care deductions, long sought by various women's organizations in Canada, of up to $500 a child to a maximum of $2,000 a year for working parents.

Ordinary workers should be able to take off up to $150 a year from their taxable income to compensate for employment expenses, while unemployment benefits, scholarships and research or job-training grants would be made taxable income. Payments into unemployment insurance would be made deductible.

The capital gains tax proposal, which carried with it a compensating offer of a tax write-off for capital losses, would apply to the sale of assets such as stocks or real estate.

Such gains would be taxed as normal income at progressive rates, but the white paper says home owners should be given special consideration to recognize their place in the Canadian way of life.

These considerations would allow a home owner who makes a profit by selling his house to shuttle the profit down by $1,000 for each year he lived in the house.

In addition, he would be able to deduct the costs of any improvements he made to the house or garage, a flat allowance of $150 a year if he did not keep detailed records of repairs or changes.

The white paper is to go to a parliamentary committee for study, and then will be subjected to public comment.

Mr. Benson told a news conference that he hopes legislation could be effective by the beginning of 1971—but he emphasized that is not a firm target date. Many of the proposals would be introduced gradually, so it would be five years before the full impact was felt.

He described the proposed

Quick Consensus

'Might Have Been A Lot Worse'

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

"It might have been a hell of a lot worse," said Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) after Finance Minister Benson's white paper on tax reform was tabled in the Commons Friday.

This appeared to sum up the feelings of a wide range of businessmen and politicians as they gradually digested the 50,000-word proposal to overhaul the Canadian tax system.

There was general agreement that the proposals, if accepted, would relieve the tax burden for the majority of Canadians who make less than $10,000 a year and help individuals in Canada's less wealthy provinces, but work a hardship on small corporations, which Mr. Benson proposes to tax at the same rate as large ones.

There was general acceptance of the proposed capital gains tax which, if implemented, will be the first in Canada's history.

J. Allyn Taylor, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, also said "it could have been worse."

"The expectation has been that there would be some reference to a capital gains tax," he said. "But beyond that I don't think I'd care to make any comment until the chamber has given proper study to the recommendations of the white paper."

G. A. Loach, president of the Canadian Export Association, welcomed the proposal to remove tax barriers to international trade.

But Karl Bald, president of the Canadian Importers' Association, said that ending company tax exemptions could make Canadian manufacturers less competitive, harm their export position, and inevitably cut imports as well.

A few businessmen were more outspoken about the capital gains tax.

"It's out and out robbery," said K. H. Rapsey, past president of the Canadian Electrical Manufacturers Association.

T. N. Beaupre, chairman of Domtar Ltd., said that if the tax is to be tacked onto existing taxes with no compensating factors, "it is terrible."

"We should pay real attention to the middle management group which needs incentive," he said.

FINANCE MINISTER BENSON takes look at his white paper on tax reforms he will have to "sell" to the country.

Benson Takes Plan to People

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson starts a cross-country speaking tour next week to sell his new tax change package to the Canadian people.

A lot of observers here are wondering just how hard a selling job he will have to do.

The proposals embodied in the government's white paper, tabled Friday in the Commons, are not as radical or as far-reaching as many expected after advance publicity and elaborate preparations for its release.

The only really new feature is the imposition of a capital gains tax, starting sometime early in 1971. This didn't come as a surprise. The support already indicated by opposition parties for such a step led many to expect it.

The proposals made more than two years ago by the Carter royal commission on taxation were so sweeping and novel that something almost as sweeping and novel was expected of the white paper.

As it turned out, many of the Benson proposals had the appearance of amendments that might be made in the course of a normal budget speech.

Prince Edward Folk Honor McFarland

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
and HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporters

PICTON — It's no secret that Harvey McFarland and Prince Edward County have lived long together in warm, intimate relationship.

Last night the people themselves briefly traded that intimacy for a public eulogising of the relationship.

More than 600 jammed Prince Edward Collegiate here to flavor the occasion as Harvey McFarland's adopted community staged a public testimonial to the man who has become a forceful, local legend in his own lifetime.

The gesture for the first time publicly indexed some of the reasons for the depth of good will existing between the man and his neighbors.

Months in preparation, the goodwill fete drew personal testimony from a broad representation of the county's and country's public and private citizens.

All at some time had reason to know the man whose broad range of contacts has privately and publicly left its mark on Prince Edward.

The breadth of the testimony revealed the scope of his endeavors and interests.

There was the younger set, now married and adults, who recalled the McFarland organized train ride which took hundreds of youngsters to see Queen Elizabeth at that time a princess, at Trenton in early 1950s.

Letters were read from such public notables as former Ontario premier Leslie Frost and former prime minister John Diefenbaker.

And, right up to the moment, there was an on-the-spot telephone call from the Canadian politician most in the news last night — finance Minister Benson, fresh from tabling his white paper on tax reforms in the Commons.

It took three hours for the parade of testimonies and presentations to pass offstage, before its central figure was allowed to speak.

When he did, he was at a loss for public words.

"This night I never expected" he said. "It's hard for me to go and say too much".

It was only afterward, as the crowd filed out he privately recalled the events that first launched the mutual relationship between himself and his community.

It began in hard times.

EMO Plane Crash Will Kill Hundreds

By BARRY GRILLS
(Staff Reporter)

An estimated 200 persons will die, 300 will be injured and 500 left homeless when a plane carrying 100 persons crashes in Trenton on Nov. 26, causing fires and explosions.

However, the disaster will occur behind closed doors at the Trenton Town Hall, and will be seen only in the minds of persons taking part in an emergency exercise.

Because of the location of airfields in the Quinte area the local Emergency Measures Organization will hold a briefing and "talk-through" exercise relating to a potential aircraft crash.

In a detailed outline of "Exercise Crash," Angus Duffy, co-ordinator of the Quinte area EMO, has explained that "the location of airfields in the Quinte area along with other potential causes of disaster, indicates the necessity of planning for a natural emergency."

The outline, coupled with a letter of explanation, has been sent to municipal officials, industries, ambulance and other rescue services in Trenton, Belleville and Picton.

According to the outline, "the Ontario Emergency Measures Act makes it mandatory that municipalities have a plan to deal with natural emergencies."

This act and other legislation passed by municipalities authorizes a system of mutual aid between municipalities in the Quinte area.

The location of a large busy airport between Belleville and Trenton is of particular concern. Although CFB Trenton has a disaster plan for providing assistance in an off-base crash, a downed aircraft in Belleville or Trenton could be a disaster of such magnitude that it would tax the emergency resources of the whole area.

According to Mr. Duffy, "the Quinte area has an (interim) Natural Emergency Plan, but, until such time as key municipal officials are briefed and the plan exercised, we cannot say we have any real capability of dealing with such a disaster."

"Nor have municipalities fulfilled the requirements of the Ontario Emergency Measures Act," the letter continues

God's 'Gift' Became Foundation For H. J. McFarland's Success

By MARGARET HAYLOCK

PICTON — "I had no education but God gave me something with which to build the loyal organization I have today," said Mayor H. J. McFarland, replying to the presentations made to him on appreciation night.

His office staff had just gifted him with the McFarland coat-of-arms to be mounted over a set of gates to the entrance of his estate, Loch Floy.

The gates, also a gift, are replicas of those at Loch Floy, Scotland.

Harvey McFarland referred to lack of formal education and mentioned a substitute, "a something" given to him by God as compensation.

The something could perhaps be defined as an educated heart big enough to see the needs of "his people" the men, women and children who filled the auditorium of Prince Edward Collegiate Institute last night to honor him.

Bust Was One of Many Gifts

Prince Edward Honors H. McFarland

In the Depression year of 1937, Harvey McFarland, a struggling road builder, was granted his first contract in Prince Edward County — at Glenora.

He shipped his equipment across on the Glenora ferry.

"When I landed here I didn't even have hardly enough money for people to unload the equipment," he recalled.

Nearby county residents turned out voluntarily — over his protests that he couldn't put them on the payroll, he said.

"They didn't even think about being paid for it. I just thought: Any people who are as fine as these — this is the kind of people I want to be with."

Harvey McFarland stayed to reciprocate the generosity of that initial contact as he prospered.

McFarland Construction became a major Canadian contractor working out of Picton, its founder growing to the status of tycoon.

He vigorously joined the activities of his adopted community, finally going all the way and running for mayor. Today, he probably holds the modern Canadian record for mayoral longevity. He's now, in his 20th year in office.

But his public record, in politics and business is only one dimension of the story — albeit a justification for the pride his county neighbors take in him as a community figure - head.

Rounding out the McFarland legend revealed last night was evidence of his day-to-day contact with his community, its people and organizations.

There was Bill McWilliams, superintendent of the county's home for aged, recounting how Mayor McFarland brightens the Christmas scene for the county's elderly, with his annual gifts to each resident of the home.

Now resident in Ottawa, William Strachan returned for the evening to tell how a change encounter with the mayor solved a problem for a local children's swimming program. The pool at the McFarland home was volunteered —and used by more than 20,000 youngsters in seven years.

There was Donald Baxter, chairman of the committee charged with finding a site for a new hospital, telling how the mayor had donated a choice piece of property — pledging an alternative $15,000 in cash if it wasn't suitable.

There were delegations from minor sports, Scouts and Guide groups.

From the Salvation Army: Lt.-Col. Morgan Flanagan came from Toronto to recall the McFarland helping hand in establishing a holiday camp at Robbin Lake.

Sentiment and nostalgia were key elements of the evening reaching a high point with a reunion of friends — some now scattered — who carried the McFarland name into international sports annals.

Among participants in the tribute were those who went to Prague in 1959 to watch the eBellevilleW the Belleville McFarlands beat Russia for the world hockey championship — Lorne Cook, then president of the Ontario Hockey Association; McFarland player Pete Conacher, former Intelligencer sports editor George Carver and Radio Station CJBQ's Jack Devine.

Another prime sporting event which received the McFarland touch — the 1961 Harmsworth Trophy world speed boat trials on Picton Beach — also was recalled.

Filled with the evening's entertainers was a birthday from J. Gordon Thompson, whose company sponsored the winning Canadian entry, Miss Supertest.

There were intimate glimpses of the McFarland personality at work.

Robert McLean, president of Lake Ontario Portland Cement, now a major Picton industry, could recall the McFarland reaction when a board meeting heard suggestions a new plant be located in New York State.

The mayor announced with finality: "Until we expand Picton there's no way we will put a plant across the lake in New York State."

Superintendent of Prince Edward County Home for the Aged, Bill McWilliams, recalled his first encounter with "the McFarland temper."

"I was working at the county jail when I first met Harvey," said Mr. McWilliams.

It seems that one of Mr. McFarland's key workmen had become involved in a Picton street fight with two Detroit youths. Entering the scene, the local constabulary seized all combatants and took them off to jail.

"Moments later," recalled Mr. McWilliams, "The bell rang and there stood Harvey in a rage, and not knowing who he was I thought 'here comes another one'

"But when Harvey and I got into my office, he cooled down quite a bit and arranged bail for his man," said Mr. McWilliams. "Going out the door, Harvey suddenly stopped, marched back into the jail and inquired about bail for the two Detroit youths, who were really nice boys. Harvey ended up going their bail too."

Mr. McWilliams regards Mayor McFarland as one of his prime supporters, but he'll never forget that first meeting in the county jail.

It was his own business — including his employees — that, fittingly, had the last words of the evening.

Representatives of the McFarland Construction work force made the last presentation of the evening — the coat of arms from the Scottish McFarland clan, in embellish gates now being made for the mayor's residence.

And it was his own enterprise, the company with which the community relationship was launched, that drew the final words of the evening.

Whatever else he possessed, said Mayor McFarland, he had been granted "something that enabled him to build up an organization, a loyal organization like I have."

He's Their Santa

PICTON — "There is no life in this county that this man has not in some way touched," commented Gordon Lloyd, president of the Prince Edward County Chamber of Commerce.

Said Rotary president Don Walker: "There never has been a man like Harvey in Picton, and there never will be again."

These remarks set the mood for appreciation night and they set the stage for Eva North, a senior citizen representing Prince Edward County Home for the Aged. Walking on stage, the elderly woman told the mayor:

"Every year he gives all of us a Christmas present and we do the choosing too."

Then in a serious voice she said to the mayor, "Thank you, thank you for our Christmas."

She presented Mayor McFarland with a framed series of photos showing the residents of the county home enjoying a Christmas made possible by him.

Woman Heads Chamber

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON

TRENTON — Mrs. Eileen Forchuk doesn't consider herself a crusader or a pioneer, but she is the main principal in a presently-sitting action taken Friday morning by the board of directors of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce.

Following a vote by the directors Mrs. Forchuk was named president of the organization.

She becomes the first woman to assume that role in the history of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce and one of a select few in the province.

Mrs. Forchuk will officially accept the president's gavel in January, but it is not known yet, pending results of elections in member Chambers of Commerce across the province, if she will be the only woman president in 1970.

Thisyear there were three women chamber presidents in Ontario. The women presided over Chambers in Dunnville, Seaforth, and Point Perry.

"I think it's a real challenge and I'm excited and honored," she said. "We have an with the help of all Chamber members I anticipate an active and progressive year.

"Member s h i p participation makes or breaks an organization," Mrs. Forchuk asserted. "Participation is the keynote to success."

The support given by her husband, Steve, a captain in the Canadian Armed Forces, was cited by Mrs. Forchuk as the main reason she is able to carry on her business career and also accept a position of responsibility in the community.

A partner in Barry and Forchuk Real Estate Ltd., Mrs. Forchuk is a past president of the Trenton and District Real Estate Board and currently the Chamber's vice-president.

Joining Mrs. Forchuk on the 1970 Chamber executive will be vice-president Douglas Whitley, and treasurer Clifford Graber.

The trio was among five Chamber director members elected to the board of directors for 1970-71 at Thursday night's annual dinner. Roy G. Beith and W. G. Norman were the other two.

Flew Them Home For Christmas

PICTON — Picton Kiwanians will remember the flight to Battle Creek, Mich., as one of J. Z. McFarland's outstanding humanitarian deeds.

Mr. and Mrs. Bud Tholen were vacationing in Bloomfield in 1961 when Mrs. Tholen fell, breaking her hip. En route to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital with his wife, Mr. Tholen noticed the Kiwanis pin worn by ambulance driver Walter Bond. A Kiwanian himself, Mr. Tholen mentioned the pin.

Informed of the incident by Mr. Bond, members of Picton Kiwanis Club immediately adopted the Tholens as their special project. Mrs. Tholen was flown during her hospital stay in Picton by the wives of Picton Kiwanians. Eventually, Mr. McFarland expressed the wish to take his wife home for Christmas. The trip could not be undertaken by car, due to Mrs. Tholen's still painful injury. A plane was the only answer, so Kiwanians approached Mayor McFarland for the rental of his private aircraft.

The mayor had other ideas. He donated the use of his private plane to the Tholens and accompanied them on the flight to Battle Creek.

All elementary and secondary schools in the county will be closed Tuesday, and federal government employees will also have the day off to attend special observances.

Other schools plan special programs to mark the day on Monday.

A witness says that a man identified as Burton Reid, 78, of Union Street, was walking on Bridge St., when struck by a man, who then dragged him into a nearby vacant lot. The witness shouted and a young man ran to the aid as the attacker ran from the scene.

The witness then telephoned the Provincial Police arrived they discovered Mr. Reid, bruised and shaken. He was taken to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital for treatment.

Although nothing was taken from Mr. Reid's person, police believe the attacker's motive was robbery. They are being provided with the description of the assailant.

Accident

Escaped Convict Wounded

By HARRY MULHALL

BANCROFT — An escaper from an industrial farm yesterday received a superficial wound when a police officer's revolver accidentally discharged as the man was being handcuffed after a chase through bush country south of here.

Police say Ernest Fluke, 19, of Marmora, was injured in the incident near Gilmour, a hamlet near Highway 62, about 30 miles south of here.

Fluke and a second man, Larry Charles Murray, 20, of Bancroft, were charged with escaping custody.

Police said the pair, along with a third man, escaped Tuesday from Burritt's Rapids Industrial farm, and OPP in this area had been alerted to watch for them.

When spotted near Gilmour yesterday, say police, the two men were driving a car reported stolen Thursday north of Bancroft.

A chase ensued along the Gilmour—Guntge road, running through bush country east of the highway.

OPP District Superintendent D. E. Wellesley said Fluke's arm struck the officer's revolver as the man's arm was being drawn behind his back for handcuffing. The pistol discharged and Fluke received a "muscle wound."

He was treated at Bancroft Red Cross Hospital before being taken to OPP cells here.

Police said he had been sentenced Oct. 31 to seven months on a series of charges, including theft, assaulting a police officer and dangerous driving. Murray was serving 12 months definite and six months indefinite for break, enter and theft.

Officers said there was no sign of the third escaper in the area of the chase.

Crash Saved Sleeping Man

Harold Akey recently finished installing a new motor in his automobile.

Today the car is badly damaged — struck in a hit-run mishap — but he believes his car may have saved him from more serious consequences.

The Rossmore man was asleep in his frame home near Highway 37 and the Bay Bridge when the accident happened about 4:30 a.m. today. A vehicle veered off the highway through guard posts and slammed into the parked Akey car, ramming it about 10 feet.

Mr. Akey sleeps in a front room in the house. The room was in the path of the unidentified automobile, he says and if his own car had not blocked the way, the veering vehicle would have smashed into the room.

The impact caved in one side of the Akey car, dropping a broken highway fencepost in the back seat. Police this morning were still seeking the identity of the driver.

Vandals Damage Train

City police and railroad police today are seeking vandals responsible for damage to a locomotive after a plank and small track car were placed across the Canadian Pacific Railway main line in Belleville last night.

Police were first called after an eastbound freight, engineered by Douglas McColl of Carrying Place, collided with the obstacle shortly before 1 a.m. between Foster Avenue and Newberry Street.

Police said the track car had been taken from a nearby railroad section house and placed across the tracks.

Damage to the train was not immediately known.

changes as a bid for greater fairness in Canada's tax system.

Of the 7,700,000 persons now paying taxes in Canada, 750,000 would have gone free if the proposals had been in force this year.

An estimated 3,100,000 would have their taxes reduced and 3,030,000 would pay more. The remaining 820,000 would find their taxes changed by less than $4.

The paper gives no firm date for starting any of the changes, but there is no way of telling how long the proposals will be kept in committee.

It suggests, however, a so-called valuation day to settle a potentially troublesome issue — figuring out what should be the value for assessing capital gains or losses.

Like such, a tax cannot fairly be made retroactive, it would normally apply from the day the tax comes into effect.

The paper says the proposals would have a comparatively small impact on government revenues, at least during its early stages.

If they had been in force this year, federal and provincial revenues would have risen by an estimated $165,000,000 to $11,170,000,000 — or about 1½ per cent.

Assuming the proposals become law in 1971, however, they would be taking a healthy extra bite by 1976.

Cheers!

Cheerleading, like belonging to a majorettes group, is an admirable recreational pursuit for a young lady and it is encouraging to note the success of Moira secondary's Sue Bishop in being chosen Miss Cheerleader against stiff competition in Kingston.

In senior team competition the Moira girls took second place honors in the event — the Eastern Ontario Cheerleading competitions. Belleville Collegiate came third in the junior section.

Now girls, having won a prize or two in this happy endeavor, what about setting an example for all those other students — and they are in the majority — who make the daily scene, looking for all the world as if the heavens had fallen in.

Is life that bad? Or school? Certainly with everyone walking around with a long face that is the impression one gets. Adults are little better and it is no wonder there is a generation gap, or a wall between people in general because there is this look of gloom and doom on so many faces.

A book of the month choice some years ago was The Case of Being a Young Man, and in it author Pete Ople touched on this theme. As we recall, Ople said at one point: "I wish the people of our generation would smile without feeling that in some way it places them under an obligation..."

But the smiles are seen only on the faces of the younger folk and soon even they lose them. Once the "beware of strangers" dictum strikes home the inner spark is gone.

Cheerleading at least affords an opportunity to express that sense of warmth and spontaneity that lies beneath the surface. So keep up the cheers girls, for school today has little enough in the way of fun and organized recreation.

Give the Law Teeth

It has taken a county court judge to underline the fact that life today is too easy for the criminal.

York County Judge W. M. Martin's advice should be taken seriously. At a conference in Kingston he told fellow members of the judiciary that repeat offenders are "laughing at the courts" who let them off with light sentences.

At one point Judge Martin said: "I have no hesitation in ordering the strap or lash in bad cases of indecent assault or rape."

Perhaps it is time we really returned to a disciplined society, including putting teeth into our laws.

Capital punishment for one thing has been abolished. And look what happens — there is a startling increase in the number of murders. It is the same with criminal activity in general.

Punishment to the full limit of the law is not repressive; rather it is common sense. Society must be protected, but this is not possible when those who have no respect for life or property are allowed virtually a free hand.

Vietnam Atrocities

Despite any denials to the contrary, atrocities have long been an appalling facet of war. And allowing even for the frequently anti-American tone of Canadian Broadcasting Corporation news reports, the pictures shown on the late night television news recently were damaging indeed to the United States.

Two enemy soldiers captured by the Americans and handed over to the South Vietnamese army were shown being beaten up by men of the latter force, while American troops looked on. No attempt was made by the Americans to halt the beating — not even when the South Vietnamese decided to execute one.

The film showed a soldier plunging a knife into the stomach of the hapless victim, after which it was reported the body was slit open, with the Americans still watching.

Atrocities on the Communist side have been many too. Men, women and children have been done to death in fearsome circumstances. That the South Vietnamese indulge in similar acts of barbarism makes it no less horrifying, and particularly when a U.S. army spokesman was shown stating enemy troops are afforded the protection of the Geneva Convention.

President Nixon has indicated there will be more troop withdrawals of U.S. troops. We hope this will lead eventually to a complete cessation of hostilities and acts of murder in this war-torn land, and preferably to a settlement acceptable to both sides. Anything else would mean the whole sorry business was in vain.

University Volunteers

Now Communist Cuba to Benefit from Our Tax Dollars

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — If things were not difficult enough for the federal Canadian International Development Agency, one of its — or, more accurately, your — beneficiaries, the Canadian University Service Overseas aims to be the first organization this side of the Iron Curtain to enlist in the service of Fidel Castro and Communist Cuba.

Now, ordinarily, this actually would be nobody's business but the CUSO volunteers who devote themselves to the Cuban cause — except that their organization operates currently on a basic federal government budget of $3,700,000.

And Cuba, charge the Quebec political leaders, runs a training camp for separatists and anarchists sworn to bombing French Canada out of Confederation.

The budget comes from the Canadian International Development Agency which is the new and presumably more acceptable name (to the taxpayers) for External Affairs Department's former External (Foreign) Aid Division.

What makes CUSO and Cuba your business is not merely its use of $3,200,000 you provide for it in your taxes, but the additional $400,000 that comes monthly from all those "Miles for Millions" volunteers.

The CUSO people, with 1,200 volunteers in foreign aid service abroad, subscribe to the proposition that "freedom from political and ideological bias is a good and necessary thing."

And so the agency is going to the aid of Cuba, forgetful perhaps that only a few years ago, Castro invited in the Russians who installed rockets on the launch-pads, capable of removing Miami, Washington, New York, and if the thought occurred, Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal and other Canadian centres from the map.

The peril, as you will recall, before the Americans, in what was then described as an "eyeball to eyeball" confrontation, stared down the Russians, a real enough that the Canadian Atlantic Coast fleet steamed out of Halifax harbor with all hands at action stations.

And now, Canadian university students, scornful of political or ideological commitments, are to be the first foreign aid workers from a free democratic country going to Cuba.

If nothing else, their timing is atrocious.

Prime Minister Trudeau has socked it to the separatists in the CBC that they cannot use tax dollars to try to tear the country apart, and that if they do, he will padlock the network.

And he has hammered the Company of Young Canadians with a similar warning that in no way can federal funds be used in what he termed "political activity" in undermining democratic institutions.

This would seem in pull the rug out from under the CUSO position that it is free to use Canadian taxpayers' money without "political or ideological" commitments to the extent of giving aid and comfort to a Communist state.

And while Communists may have become the darlings of the New Left, the cold fact remains that they never have officially foreswown their proclaimed determination "to bury" the democracies.

Enlisted as "technicians," the Canadian students will be working side by side with their Russian counterparts.

Foreign aid, for all of former Prime Minister Lester Pearson's special pleading, has come upon hard times.

Only the politicians — some of them — are for it. The taxpayers, public opinion polls dead set against it.

The Americans regularly each year have been cutting back on foreign aid.

And here in Parliament, influential voices have been raised against it.

Former Conservative Fisheries Minister J. Angus MacLean, complaining about federal p e n n y-pinching in the Atlantic provinces, has suggested — and not altogether in jest, either, that if it continues, the Maritimes might be better off out of Confederation "so we could qualify for some of that Canadian foreign aid."

Maritime MPs Donald Maclnnis, Robert Coates, Bob Muir, and the Newfoundland members, particularly James McGrath of St. John's East, have been heard to quote Zenon Zepetz, a senior Ottawa civil servant.

Now a federal deputy minister Zenon Zemetz two years ago came from Newfoundland and publicly has protested:

"We have an under-developed country within our own borders, the Atlantic Provinces and Newfoundland, yet here we have federal government people demanding we double our foreign aid and running half-way around the world frantically looking for more countries to give it away to."

The search has not been in vain. They have found another to add to the list — Castro's Cuba.

Hijacking Problem

Experts believe the epidemic of air piracy will end only when all countries extradite the pirates and give wide publicity to their prison sentences.

A start could be made with the six American hijackers who have returned from Cuba, saying they didn't like Castro's ways.

There is talk of imposing boycotts on countries which refuse to extradite pirates. That will take time although the subject is on the United Nations' agenda for discussion.

Schools Open After Class

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

Use of school facilities by non profit organizations after classes close for the day, makes a lot of sense.

Schools are built at public expense and we have long thought that they should be more fully utilized in the community. What better use is possible than the encouragement of cultural, social, intellectual and similar pursuits among adults?

In a schedule set down last week, free use is established for night rental of classrooms, gymnasiums, auditoriums and so on by approved groups or organizations. In addition, it was revealed organizations directly associated with schools would have use of such facilities without charge.

The Tri-County Board of Education is to be commended for instituting this new policy. We have too much invested in our schools just to lock the doors at 4 p.m.

Pressure on Economy

Soviet President Endorses Arms Limitation

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny talked tough to the United States in his Bolshevik anniversary speech, but the impression remains that some influential men in the Kremlin want to ease Soviet-American tension. One big reason could be the Soviet economy.

Moscow's press has provided evidence that a middle-of-the-road element in the leadership is seeking to concentrate more energy and resources on domestic welfare and that this is causing some political difficulty.

The regime is under pressure on the one hand from a hungry military-industrial complex and on the other from the consumer performers and the rising demands of Soviet consumers. If it is going to turn to internal problems effectively, the Kremlin must satisfy the military that there is no major threat to the security of the Soviet Union and the Communist bloc.

Seeming to reflect such pressure, Podgorny said Thursday that the talks on strategic arms limitation opening this month come at a time of urgent need for steps to end the momentum of the arms race.

"Huge resources spent on the arms drive could be transferred to peaceful means for increasing the welfare of the people of the world," he said.

These expenditures also could place the Soviet Union in a better position for eventual concentration on political and economic competition with Americans around the world, rather than on a path of dangerous military competition. As of now, economic problems stand in the way of such a course.

Podgorny gave figures suggesting rising production in some fields, but also showing the gulf between the Soviet and U.S. economies.

Electric power production in 1969, he said, will reach nearly 600,000,000 kilowatt hours, a good deal less than half the U.S. 1968 figure.

Soviet press figures for the first nine months indicate a motor vehicle production for 1969 of about 850,000, compared with a U.S. production of about 10,000,000.

Podgorny gave no specifics for agriculture or consumer production.

Last month the Soviet press said nearly 36,000 industrial enterprises now operate on the "new system" begun in January, 1966, and from these enterprises came 61 per cent of this year's "profits."

The "new system" is a timid reform that emphasizes better managerial discretion, incentive payments and cutting of costs, which means widescale firing of surplus labor. Despite good results, there is evidence of trouble in the obvious clashes with party doctrine.

Almost 2,000,000 Soviet planners at ministry and factory levels have stakes in the bureaucratic system. These inevitably get in the way of reform.

Man-and-Wife Team Serves At United Church in Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP) — Pastoral duties in a big congregation leave ministers little time for social concerns or less-than-desperate personal problems.

But Rev. Roy F. Wilson and his wife Lois have found a way to lick the problem: teamwork.

Rev. Lois M. Wilson was ordained as a United Church minister in 1962 and started to work with her husband at his former charge, First United Church in Fort William, Ont.

Although a team made up of husband and wife was unique in the United Church, the two found they complemented each other ideally. They always have had enough time to get away from pastoral duties for a while to study or do social work for the congregation.

This year they moved to First United Church here, and they plan to continue working as a team.

A. L. Nalsmith, chairman of the pastoral relations committee at the 2,000-member church, said the congregation called Mr. Wilson primarily and is retaining his wife on a part-time basis.

The congregation sees Mrs. Wilson as an asset, he said. Her duties, however, have yet to be worked out.

In their Fort William ministry, the couple divided their work between pastoral duties and social work.

Mr. Wilson attended the meetings of the session; Mrs. Wilson did only if he was away or there was something special she wanted to say.

He went to meetings of some committees; she went to others.

She was active at the Lakehead Social Planning Council and Town Talk, a project described as "hearty invitation to get people in the Lakehead discussing social issues.

In addition, she worked in adult study groups in the congregation helping them study the Bible and its bearing on their lives.

But the two found that just as important as it was to divide up their duties, it was to work together.

Both participated in leading communion services. Mrs. Wilson occasionally preached the Sunday service, usually when she wanted to preach on a particular subject. She also took some weddings and funerals, often because her husband was out of town or otherwise not available. Sometimes, however, people asked specifically for her.

There are many instances when people — and not only women — felt more comfortable discussing their problems with a woman.

All Tax Exemptions For Churches May End

NEW YORK (AP) — American religious forces, already feeling the strain of increasing tax charges, are mounting a broad-scale opposition to a case before the U.S. Supreme Court aimed at abolishing all tax exemptions for churches and synagogues.

Both Christian and Jewish leaders maintain the step would curtail many religion-run humanitarian services and cripple the country's traditional principle of religious freedom.

"It is one of the most important cases concerning relationships between church and state to come before the Supreme Court in this decade," says Rev. Dean Kelley, head of the religious liberties department of the National Council of Churches.

He says the lawsuit "goes to the heart of the matter" by challenging tax exemptions for places of worship themselves.

It would give the government the power "to encumber, terminate or alienate" a house of worship by exacting money from it, or "dispossess the worshippers, if such exactions are not punctually paid in full or cannot be," says a National Council brief filed in the case.

Religious institutions in recent years have come under spreading demands for real estate and other tax payments on various peripheral properties not directly related to religious activities.

Early Canadian Barns Basically Log Rafters

The man with the broad axe is hewing a log into a beam. The beam in the rough, with its broad axe marks is likely to be used to build a barn. Other than mellowing in color the beam is likely to remain sound for some centuries to come.

The earliest Canadian barns seem to have been made of log rafters supported by uprooted stumps, stones or a log wall. The roof was covered with bark, boughs, hollowed logs or sometimes sod. Such a barn was simply a wind break to protect animals. In the Canadian climate larger barns were needed to store fodder and grain through the winters.

Bank barns built into the sides of hills or with a banked approach to the first floor appeared early in the 19th century. They were based on an earlier European model, the Swisser barn, which had a cantilevered fore-bay on the upper threshing floor and was designed so that the stalls on the ground floor faced south.

Bank barns proliferated in Canada and may still be seen in any mixed farming community. They were built in almost standard sizes, 30 to 50 feet wide, 50 to 100 feet long and 30 to 40 feet high. They were framed of band hewn beams, pegged together by trunnels, and lifted into place at a barn-raising bee.

Bank barns were efficient in operation. Wagons could be driven up to the threshing floor for loading and unloading. Grain and hay could be thrown down to the livestock by trap door. The fore-bay doors could be opened to catch a breeze for threshing and the southern prospect provided warmth and protection.

Canadian farmers had larger farms and less help than their European counterparts. They had to be efficient. They also had to build their own barns which they did mainly with the broad axe. They used their own stands of timber which accounts for beams of walnut, chestnut and oak mixed in with pine. It was cheaper for a farmer to use his own trees than it was for him to buy lumber from someone else.

Most barns were finished with pine boards, sometimes two or more feet wide and as long as needed. Pine barn boards now sell for $1 a square foot and are snapped up by decorators. There are a few places in Canada that deal exclusively in barn boards for the trade in large cities. If you go to the demolition site you should get reasonably sound boards for 10 cents a foot.

Beams are not as popular or as easy to handle as boards. A 15 inch square beam, 30 feet long will finish to more than 500 feet of 1-inch planking worth about $500 in the current market.

Hardwood beams are usually smaller than softwood because of the weight. Two hardwood beams for $8 will provide enough hardwood to floor a 18 by 20 foot room. In addition, the quality of the old wood is superior, usually completely straight and knot-free.

The average old barn represents $1,000 to the demolisher and $6,000 on the retail market, for its component parts. A good return on the work of a man with a broad axe more than a century ago.

ROOM OF THE FUTURE — From her bedside console in this home of the future, a housewife can check the children's bedroom on the TV monitor or listen to them through FM intercom, turn off outdoor lights and lock front and back doors electrically. This is only one of the innovations in a "test laboratory" home built in the United States and described recently at a meeting of the Canadian Electrical Manufacturers Association meeting in Toronto. (CP Photo)

Automated House of Tomorrow Part of Houseful of New Ideas

TORONTO (CP) — The inquisitive woman leaned against a window to peek into the new house.

The house reacted: Alarm bells clanged. A black box tucked away in a closet automatically dialled the telephone number of the local police. A taped message gave the address of the house and informed police someone was tampering with a window. Police were at the house in minutes.

This was just one of a houseful of new ideas incorporated in a "test laboratory" home built in the United States and described at a recent gathering of the Canadian Electrical Manufacturers Association. Most of the equipment which could be installed in the automated house of tomorrow already is being manufactured in Canada and the U.S.

Some of the innovations described are simple, but others are electronic luxuries.

In the master bedroom, for instance, a push-button servant is in arm's reach of the pillow. Touch a button on the bedside console and closed-circuit television is activated to bring every room into view, or show who is calling at the front door.

If it is a shopping day, the owner will be able to switch to a local community communications system and make up a shopping list from up-to-the-minute information on the best buys. In addition to the shoppers' guide, the video service will also provide reports on local weather, stock market information and news.

The bedside console will automatically sweep the drapes across the glass doors when the sun rises and close out the glare reflected by the screened-in swimming pool.

If it's night time, a flick of the finger will ring the house with a flood of light or hardly turn on the light in the bathroom.

Clipped to the back of the console will be a separate cord with a handgrip and the key to maximum security—the panic button. Touch this button and the system will call the local police.

The experimental house is intentionally loaded with home security devices. There are heat sensors in every room and ceiling smoke sensors in two central locations.

Windows are bugged for unusual vibrations and relays on doors warn of uninvited visitors.

A control panel at bathside enables the bather to set the temperature of the water, the depth, the pressure flow and the amount of aeration. The unit maintains the temperature and whirling action.

An electrostatic air cleaner keeps the experimental home almost dust-free. But if cookie crumbs show up on the black slate floor, a hose plugged into any of the outlets and the built-in vacuum cleaner system will whisk them away.

The kitchen is an arsenal of conveniences. Time and motion spent in using portable appliances come in for special attention.

The portables are located in a counter top appliance "centre island." It's arranged like a bookcase with a cubbyhole for each appliance from blender to beater. The centre is equipped with retractable cords and controls.

The other side of the appliance centre island makes the housewife a kitchen communications chief. If there is flour on her hands when the telephone rings, she can use an elbow to push a button that puts her in voice communication with the caller.

The intercom in the kitchen connects her with nine locations throughout the house. She can flip the dial on a built-in television monitor to catch a closed-circuit picture of someone arriving at the back door, or turn to her favorite program.

The kitchen has an oven that cleans itself, and there is another oven just for keeping food warm for a latecomer to the dinner table.

Time-saving devices will give the homemaker more opportunity to indulge her fancy for decor. The double-door refrigerator permits a quick change of color or design on the door panels.

But that's only one of the kitchens. There's another for the covered patio outside, where four quartz heat lamps can bring the temperature up by as much as 20 degrees quickly.

The test-lab home has an "advanced heat pump" heating and cooling system and a water heater that uses heat discharged by the cooling cycle as a money-saving supplemental source of energy.

PHILATELY SPEAKING

"From Greenland's Icy Mountains . . ." — Reginald Heber.

"Greenland from the air is one of the most beautiful sights of the whole trip," Mrs. John Sled, 214 John Street told us, speaking of the family's return flight from England this summer over the world's largest island (next to Australia), separated from the northern Canadian islands by Davis Strait and Baffin Bay, and lies for the greater part within the Arctic Circle.

"We are fortunate," she continues, "for good visibility, often rare, was excellent. Though the surface is mountainous, during the ages the valleys have become so filled with ice and snow, the visible surface is almost level. This ice-cape is a dazzling, magnificent sight from the air. I for one would never tire of seeing it over and over again, it is so fascinating.

"It is truly a land of contrasts, with a coast-line made rugged with numerous, deep, startling-blue fiords stretching far into the land. A colony of Denmark, with bitter winter weather, it maintains, however, in summer abundant vegetation along the coastal areas. It is said, over 4,000 flowering, wild, growing plants are found.

There are such trees as birch, alder and willow. Potatoes, lettuce, radishes mature rapidly. Fox, polar bear, muskox and reindeer roam the island and myriads of birds nest along the coast, where there are extensive cod and haddock fisheries.

We speak of Greenland's literature. And like all countries, legends abound in Greenland," noted Mrs. Sled and thus we learn that last September, a design feature of a brown Greenland stamp is based on the legend of "The Girl Who Was Abducted by the Eagle." The story begins with two girls playing on the beach. Jens Rosing, who designed the stamp, tells it in these words:

When a big eagle appeared above them, one of the girls shouted, 'There is the man I want for a husband.'

"At once the eagle dived, grasped the girl and flew away with her. The eagle placed the girl on a narrow rock ledge from which she could not get down and she wept very much.

"Everyday the eagle brought food to her; birds which it had caught. The girl carefully removed the tendons from the wings of the birds and secretly made a string of tendons.

"As the days passed, the girl became more cheerful, which aroused the suspicion of the eagle, but she reassured him by saying that it was because she had gotten to like him so much.

"One day the string of tendons was long enough to permit the little girl to lower herself down the mountain-side while the eagle was out hunting. And she ran home to her village."

We along with our readers are most appreciative for a rare, interesting glimpse of Greenland.

Speaking of stamps, Ottawa will issue a commemorative stamp, November 12, in honor of Stephen Butler Leacock's 100th anniversary of his birth. It is dominated by a smiling portrait of the world famous Canadian humorist. All of which is of special interest to Belleville, home of the late Mrs. William Burrows, Dufferin Street, sister of Mr. Leacock.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Johnny was the cutest baby. Here's a picture of him nude on a bearskin rug when he was 6 months old. Wasn't he adorable?"

Johnny: "Oh, cut it out. Nobody is really interested in those old pictures."

Teen-agers usually want to be considered grown-up and would like to feel their baby days are in the far distant past. Reminders that they were cute babies just a few years ago are Bellraim from reminiscing about a teen-age son's infancy in front of him or to his friends. It's likely to embarrass him and his friends may tease him about it. Discuss it personal topics during these sensitive years.

Maritime Hospitality and Pampering Found Refreshing

By DORIS CLARK

Talk about Maritime hospitality! On my September trip to the East Coast, I was pampered all the way. Let me tell you what I mean.

I stepped off the train at Truro, Nova Scotia, and picked up a suitcase in each hand. Walked down the platform a few yards. There was a gentleman standing there in the uniform of the Canada Post Office, and I asked him where I would find a taxi. He went and took a good look at the spot where the cars were parked, failed to see a single taxi, then came back to me with the words, "Would I do?" — Would he ever!

This smiling Maritimer piled me into his little compact car, luggage and all, and deposited me at my motel. Not only that, but when he realized my stay would be quite short and busy, he offered to see that I got back to my train safely too. As it turned out, I was free an hour before the train left and was treated to a sightseeing tour of the beautiful countryside before entraining for Halifax.

In Halifax, a friend's cat adopted me for an evening. The minute I arrived and sat down he was on my knee and curled up for a warm, comfortable snooze. When I wanted to move, he objected strenuously, emitting a cry something like a baby's "wah!" You have no idea how important it made me feel!

In Moncton I spent a warm September Sunday afternoon at the summer cottage of a fellow journalist. We watched sailboats racing along the river. I took on a little sunburn.

In Fredericton a host of new readers welcomed me to the pages of their favorite newspaper.

Not the least of my pampering friends were the stewardesses on the Air Canada flight to St. John's, Newfoundland, which started me off. At 35,000 feet up, I worked my way through a six-course dinner, complete with such delicacies as dulse salad, lobster thermidor and battered maritime fiddleheads. Another day and a DC 8 flight, first class, and it might have been; hot and cold canapes; breast of capon or roast rib of beef with Yorkshire pudding; bouquetiere de legume (a bouquet of vegetables!); strawberries Romanoff, coffee parfait, Pim brevarages and many other gourmet - type delights.

I visited eight cities in all, popping up and down out of the sky and off the trains like a jolly grasshopper.

There's nothing, but nothing to beat Maritime hospitality.

Dear Doris: Provincial Health Departments have some excellent free pamphlets, recipes even, for anyone who cares to write for them. As a mother of a large family, I have most of your economical recipes already and my source was other mothers!

Wish some of the older ladies who raised families in harder years would give some of their recipes. I find recipes of "ethnic" origin quite economical and easy to prepare. We love beet soup, sauerkraut in all ways, and even buckwheat in place of noodles with homemade broth.

A lot of these recipes take time, but it's a case of save time or money. — Bye Now

Dear Bye Now: True! We have time savers galore now — but can you find any instant Loving Care? Not only does the personal touch save money; it also adds that individual mother's-baking flavor.

We'd be glad of any other family favorites — from New or Old Canadians.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Dark Blonde Florida Fruit Cake Recommended

By MARY MOORE

NOTE: Every year since 1961 when I first gave you this recipe I have received hundreds of requests for the recipe and I think I have repeated it every year since. So here it is — before the flood of mail starts.

(Next week I will give you my 1969 Christmas Fruit Cake from Newfoundland.)

DARK BLONDE FLORIDA FRUIT CAKE

NOTE: These amounts yield 5 lbs.

½ lb. butter (no substitute)
1 cup granulated sugar
5 large eggs
1¾ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
½ tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
¼ lb. sliced glace cherries (mixed green and red)
1 lb. candied pineapple (sliced on ¼" shredder or chop finely)
4 cups coarsely chopped pecans (buy 1 lb.)
1 tbsp. vanilla
1 tbsp. lemon extract or 2 tbsps. lemon juice

Cream butter and sugar together until very light and fluffy. Add eggs and beat in each one as you add it, until smoothly blended. Sift the unsifted flour with the baking powder and salt. Mix ½ cup of this flour mixture through the prepared fruits and nuts which have been mixed together. Sprinkle remaining flour mixture over creamed mixture and stir until blended. Stir in vanilla and lemon extract or lemon juice. Add floured fruits and nuts and stir well. Turn into two loaf pans (8½" x 4½" x 2¾") lined with three thicknesses of wax paper, brushing top one generously with butter. Do not pre-heat oven. Put waterpan below cakes. (Three-quarters fill broiler pan with boiling water after it is in position in oven.) Turn on oven to 250 deg. Fahr. (to "bake" not "preheat" — which means only bottom burner is on). Bake about 4 hrs. or until top feels firm to touch. Cool in pans on cake rack. This cake is moist enough that it slices perfectly within 24 hrs. It freezes well.

Dinner Menu

Kentucky Fried Chicken (see Friday); Mixed Chopped Green Beans and Kernel Corn (Succotash); Harvard Beets; Relish Tray; Cranberry Jelly, Tiny Raw Cauliflowerets; Rice Custard Pudding; Coffee.

Ann Landers

Vietnam Veteran Wants to Relax

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My brother is coming home from Vietnam in a few weeks. The reason I am writing is because his wife brought over Sam's last letter for me to read. It said: "I hope you will come to the airport and bring the children and nobody else. I want to be alone with you and the kids for 24 hours. My nerves are shot and I am not up to seeing the rest of the family for a day or so."

ANN LANDERS

I have never been so hurt in my life. I love my brother very much and I know Mom and Dad will be crushed if they don't get to go to the airport to meet him. I'm sure Lem was in a depressed mood and not thinking straight when he wrote that letter.

I have every intention of going to the airport and bringing Mom and Dad because I think it is the right thing to do. It's as simple as that. Please tell me you think I am right. — BLOOD IS THICKER THAN WATER.

* * *

DEAR THICKER: Sorry, I can't tell you I think you are right, because I think you are wrong. It's as simple as that.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am Mr. Average American — three children, a nice home, small mortgage. Since plenty of wives sound off in your space, I hope you'll give a husband equal time.

I'm fed up on my wife blaffing her way through life by calling herself a housewife. Our house looks O.K. at a glance, but don't open a closet or a drawer, or look under the bed or in the refrigerator, or go to the basement.

My wife doesn't cook, she de-frosts. She's the world's best can-opener and is a very good customer of the carry-out place down the street. She doesn't press much either — almost everything is drip or Perma-press.

How does a man get his wife to pay more attention to the house? Nothing is ever in the same place twice. I have just about blown my mind looking for a stamp to mail this letter. — DISENCHANTED ED.

* * *

DEAR ED: I see you found it. Thanks for your perseverance. I wish I could do something to help, but it's hopeless. Your best bet is to show your lady love this column, tell her you wrote the letter and ask her what she is going to do about it?

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: For the first time in my life I experienced the death of a member of my immediate family. The relative was my mother and I am her sole heir.

My mother managed her own affairs. I had no idea where she did her banking, what she owed, who owed her, what she did with her good jewelry, if she had any cash tucked away, who carried her insurance, where her policies were, her social security number, her status with Medicare. I had none of the information I needed. Worse yet, her lawyer had died three months ago and his records were in terrible shape.

I had always felt uncomfortable about discussing financial matters with my mother for fear I might appear eager for inheritance. I was foolish and unrealistic.

Your column has helped me from time to time and I hope this letter will help you to help others. — IGNORANCE INC.

DEAR INC.: Your letter serves a dual purpose. It reminds those who have an estate to inform the next of kin of the vital details. It also points up the need for the next of kin to inquire if the information is not volunteered.

Turbulent at Times

Drug Probe Committee Applauded After Coffeehouse Hearing

-- MONTREAL (CP)—The federal commission on the non-medical use of drugs won spontaneous applause as it emerged from three turbulent hours of testimony in a packed basement coffeehouse Friday night.

Anger, frustration and humor spilled from 150 persons as the five commissioners listened to a gamut of drug-users.

A tense start came when a young man announced two police narcotics detectives were present.

"What will happen to those who testify?" he asked.

Inquiry chairman Gerald Le Dain said the RCMP in Ottawa have promised no arrests will spring from evidence given to the inquiry.

"If any charge is laid as a result of testimony before us, I will take the matter to the highest level," Mr. Le Dain said. "The commission would take a most serious view of this."

To a further question, commissioner Ian Campbell said three of the five commissioners have taken certain drugs.

"Answer anonymously," a young girl cautioned, and laughter dispelled the atmosphere of suspicion.

Person after person rose to defend the use of marijuana or to warn about the use of "hard" drugs.

"Pot is a therapeutic thing," said one youth. "I mean, it's a cure for a disease. The disease is society."

"I wouldn't take 'speed' again even at gunpoint," said a young man.

A 37-year-old man said he has smoked marijuana for 24 years but is not addicted to it. Another older man said he began smoking pot with his whole crew in the merchant marine.

"The commission is a farce," said a youth. "It's too late. Communication is not possible with us now."

But when adjournment was finally announced, a student who had served time in jail for drug use told the inquiry: "You're all we have. We're for you."

Suddenly, everyone was applauding.

Earlier, a succession of young drug-users at Sir George Williams University told the inquiry that drugs of dangerous quality are being sold on an underground market that is tempting crime syndicates.

The commission heard students describe how they or friends were physically damaged by fake stimulants or hallucinogenic chemicals, sold by pushers who took advantage of a lack of legal standards.

"If drugs are legalized, the situation will only get worse," a young man said. "By setting up some sort of government channel for selling the drugs, buyers would be sure of the quality. Now, too many people are victims of amateur chemists."

A Toronto psychiatrist, Dr. Lionel Solursh, "urgently recommended" immediate legislation allowing legal access of marijuana.

Dr. Solursh, chairman of a Canadian Medical Association committee on drug abuse, told the inquiry the government should control the growing and distribution of marijuana, which would be available only to those over 21.

A brief on a survey taken among 200 Dawson College students showed that they unanimously thought "that the soft drugs (marijuana and hashish) should be legalized and put under government control."

McGill pharmacologist Dr. Mark Nickerson said lumping marijuana with heroin in the Criminal Code is completely unjustifiable.

"From present medical evidence, we know marijuana clearly has less physical effect than alcohol."

Stocks Inched Lower Awaiting Taxation Paper

By NICK FERRIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian stock markets inched lower this week in cautious anticipation of Finance Minister Benson's white paper, tabled in the House of Commons Friday.

Markets moved lower Monday and Tuesday, then rose fractionally Wednesday before continuing to slide Thursday and Friday.

The white paper proposed a capital-gains tax as expected, but only half of stock market dealings would be taxed. And half of losses would be deductible.

Observers said investors' reaction could depress markets at first. But once the initial reaction wears away, the tax probably would be treated as just another part of playing the game.

The white paper also proposed replacement of the present three-year tax holiday for new mines by a requirement that they pay taxes as soon as their original investment is recovered.

Current depletion allowances for all wells would be continued for five years, but any new well would have to earn a depletion allowance at the rate of 21 for every $3 spent on exploration or development.

Observers said markets may have discounted the effects of the white paper in advance. But it still stands as a test of the market's strength.

There have not been many tests of the market's strength lately.

About the most severe test in the last two months was President Nixon's speech last Monday on the United States' involvement in Vietnam.

The last time Nixon made a major speech on Vietnam without any definite peace attachments market, which up to then had been ignoring tightening money, were slapped back in reality and plunged for two months—June and July.

And although Nixon's speech Monday contained no definite peace overtures and although markets have been showing signs of again ignoring the continuing credit crunch, observers said markets held up well, although their initial reaction Tuesday morning was disappointment.

On the Montreal and Canadian exchanges, the composite index was off .29 to 174.06. Combined volume was 5,286,000 shares compared with 5,633,000 last week.

'Law Haunts Poor...'

OTTAWA (CP) — The law falls hard on the slum tenant because he is poor and a city promotes the interest of the landlord, Justice Minister John Turner said Friday night.

He spoke to a conference of Salvation Army Social Workers here.

"The law haunts the poor," Mr. Turner said.

He had armed the tenant with little to insure decent housing. But it forbade him to withhold rent.

"The right to move is an empty one for the people in the slums."

Even public housing worked against the tenant by law—and in some cases by regulation—can be inspected at will by management. Rent, the law emphasized the lenders' rights at the expense of those of the borrower. This fell especially heavily on the poor.

"They lack the information, training, experience and economic resources to bargain on equal terms with sellers and lenders."

$85,000 Left To Universities

TORONTO (CP) — The will of Robert Watters, former Liberal federal cabinet minister who died Oct. 10, gives $85,000 to universities.

Probated Oct. 28, the will says $42,000 is to be given to York University, Toronto, $25,000 to Mount Allison University at Sackville, N.B., and $10,000 to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Other beneficiaries named in the will are Mr. Watter's widow, Eleanor, his son, Henry, and daughter, Marjorie.

The will, probated in York County surrogate court, also says $10,000 is to be invested by trustees. The income is to be divided annually and equally among living, retired ministers of the Central United Church at Lunenburg, N.S.

Mr. Watters was a native of Lunenburg.

Born the son of a fisherman, he became a cabinet minister in two governments and narrowly missed the prime minister's post when he lost the 1948 Liberal leadership race to Pierre Trudeau.

"Poor Madge! All she can think about is getting married!"

Molotov Cocktails Hurled at Montreal Courthouse

MONTREAL (CP)—A protest demonstration by about 2,500 young people degenerated into violence Friday night when four Molotov cocktails were hurled at the Montreal criminal courthouse and police guarding it.

Riot-equipped policemen surrounding the building were subjected to a barrage of sticks, but no direct clash between police and demonstrators.

At least two other Molotov cocktails were thrown—one at police headquarters and the other at the Montreal Star building.

Demonstrators rampaged through Old Montreal, the city's financial district, after the march moved away from the courthouse on Notre Dame Street East. They smashed windows as police pursued them on motorcycles.

There were 18 arrests reported, but no injuries.

The period of violence lasted more than half an hour.

The demonstration was called to demand the release of separatists Pierre Vallieres and Charles Gagnon, accused of murder, and the resignation of Justice Minister Remi Paul of Quebec.

The march also was supposed to be a protest against what organizers called a climate of increasing political repression in Quebec.

The demonstrators carried placards calling Justice Minister Paul a fascist, and calling Vallieres and Gagnon patriots and political prisoners.

In good humor when they began their march at Lafontaine Park, they sang songs of separatist and socialist slogans, including the threat "Que bec va sautez"—Quebec is going to explode—during the procession to the courthouse.

At the courthouse, the demonstrators heard speeches by the lawyer McGill University lecturer, Stanley Gray, Jacques Larue-Langlois, leader of a Montreal group for defence of Vallieres and Gagnon, and by an unidentified member of the Socialist Action League. The speech-making was cut short, however, when the fourth Molotov cocktail burst in the middle of policemen at the courthouse.

Vallieres and Gagnon face murder charges in connection with terrorist bombings three years ago, and have been without bail since they were arrested shortly after the bombings.

They also face sedition and conspiracy charges arising from the publication of a book.

Well . . . They're A Versatile Lot

OTTAWA (CP) — Two demonstrations, one on Parliament Hill and another at the Soviet Embassy, kept 15 members of Toronto's Edmund Burke Society busy Friday.

Led by Paul Fromm, 21, a fourth-year honors English student at the University of Toronto, the group spent Friday afternoon on Parliament Hill protesting proposed legislation to control racist propaganda.

Then, while some members of the demonstrators switched placards and moved to the Russian Embassy where they quietly protested against "any Canadians who would join the communists" in their annual celebration of the 1917 Communist revolution in the Soviet Union.

One placard held up at the evening demonstration asked: "Canadian diplomats what do you say? How many Reds did you toast today?"

External Affairs Minister Sharp and former prime minister John Diefenbaker had attended an embassy reception earlier.

Teacher Pension Setup Discriminatory, Say MPPs

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister William Davis drew fire from members of all three parties in the Ontario legislature Friday for government attitudes toward teacher pensions.

The attack, launched by Lorne Martel (NDP—Sudbury East) and supported by Liberal education critic Tim Reid (Scarborough East) as well as two Progressive Conservative backbenchers, urged the government with discriminatory attitudes toward teacher pensions.

The charges arose as the education committee considered 1969-70 spending estimates of the department of education.

After Mr. Martel opened the discussion by noting that some former teachers receive as little as $1,200 a year, Mr. Reid said pensions for retired teachers are calculated on different formulas, with the most favorable formulas effective Jan. 1, 1966.

Until then the government had calculated pensions on the last 10 earning years, but it began to use the best seven earnings years as the base.

The result, said Mr. Reid, was that about 2,500 teachers now receive pensions of less than $1,500 a year with a minimum of $1,200 a year.

Mr. Reid supported teachers' contentions that 1,500,000 be allocated to bring the previously-retired pensioners up to $3,000 a year.

Arthur Meen (PC—York East) and Bernt Gilbertson (PC —Algoma) joined in the attack. Mr. Gibson urged Mr. Davis to forget about dollars and to think instead of teachers' contributions to education.

Mr. Davis said many points raised by committee members are being discussed in the government's studies of teacher pensions.

The committee voted $14,- 889,000 to the Teachers' superannuation fund.

Jin other legislature business Friday:

Trade Minister Stanley Randall said integration of federal and provincial incentive programs in Atlantic Canada will help the area. He said preliminary discussions indicate there will be difficulty merging the programs.

Eric Winkler (PC—Grey South) said Ontario's entry into the federal medical care insurance program has hurt some provincial welfare programs. Mr. Winkler said Ontario had to join the scheme Oct. 1 to get back money paid in the social development tax, but was forced to defer some new welfare programs.

Expropriation Revamp Closer

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal expropriation procedures, largely unchanged since 1886, came a stage closer to major revision Friday, as the Commons gave second reading to a bill described by NDP legal affairs critic Andrew Brewin (Toronto Greenwood) as "a good act, 50 years overdue."

The new bill specifically provides for compensation for home-owners larger enough to enable them to buy an equivalent dwelling elsewhere—the "home-for-a-home" principle.

It also requires an expropriating federal department or agency to notify property owners in advance of any action, guarantees public hearings and imposes a time limit by which the agency if it is judged to have undervalued the property it seeks to take.

The bill occupied the House until mid-afternoon when it rose to await tabling later in the afternoon of a government white paper on tax reform.

Justice Minister John Turner said his bill "strikes a blow for individual rights."

He was given good marks for it by both Mr. Brewin and Elton Wilson (PC—Calgary North) but both criticized one feature which directs appeals against expropriation offers to the Exchequer Court.

Mr. Woolliams wanted provincial superior courts to have power in expropriation disputes because they would be cheaper for property owners and judges would be better informed about local issues.

Mr. Brewin said the Exchequer Court was, for most Canadians, a distant source of justice at best.

The act provides that if a federal department or agency is found by the court to have undervalued property it must pay a penalty to the owner of 10 per cent of the final price.

Earlier in the day, Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson told the House the government will provide cash assistance to west ern farmers whose crops remain unharvested as a result of early winter weather.

Silver is used as surgical wire and as plates to replace bones.

Indians Want Million Dollars For Committee

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Indian Brotherhood ended a three-day meeting by asking the federal government for $1,- 728,000 to establish its own Indian rights and treaties which would "provide the Indian people of Canada to establish their own destinies and priorities."

Jean Chretien, minister of Indian affairs wouldn't give the brotherhood any financial commitments, but said he would give the proposal his consideration and analysis.

The demand for funds took the form of a provisional budget and according toAndrew Delisle, director of the rights committee, would be used for research and analysis of Indian problems by Indians. He said he felt Government research might be "one-sided."

Mr. Delisle said the government is previously committed to giving the brotherhood some funds for research, but whether they get what they asked is uncertain. However, the brotherhood would continue with the rights committee regardless of government support.

Employment News

By J. R. STAVELEY
Manpower Counsellor

When a community's economy becomes more active, employment trends can be recognized through the work load done at the Canada Manpower Centre here.

As can be expected, more employment opportunities are being made available, some of these new jobs have requirements never called for before from the local labor force. This increasing diversity of required labor skills is advantageous for the labor force.

It is also noticed that good news travels quickly and this fact is borne out by the increase in the number of interviews given clients by Manpower counsellors. For example, from April 1, 1969, to September 30, 1969, there was an increase of 25 per cent in interviews over the previous six month period in 1968. Comparing the same periods, there was also a rise of 27 per cent in placements: i.e., jobs obtained through the Canada Manpower Centre in 1969 compared with 1968 figures.

It is also noticed that more local residents are re - entering the labor force, as well as a steady influx of landed immigrants from other countries. These additions to the local labor force are being supplemented by persons living elsewhere in Canada, who, for various reasons, wish to establish themselves in the Bay Quinte area.

In view of this increased activity, it is an opportune time to draw to the attention of employers, the advantages of hiring the older worker, especially now that the term "older worker" applies to anyone who is having difficulty in obtaining work because of age.

The advantages of hiring an older worker are many and varied. An older worker has all the know - how and stability that comes with maturity and experience. He has a definite desire to work and is rarely a job - hopper.

Older workers have a sense of responsibility and are loyal to their jobs and their employer. They are also less prone to accidents and less likely to be absent.

Older workers usually require less supervision, are less distracted by outside influences and consequently, are capable of greater concentration on the job.

In today's working world, an employer, age 40, is considered by many to be an older worker. Some employers feel that for certain jobs anyone over thirty . . . sometimes younger . . . is an older worker.

Look around your establishment. How many of your employees are older workers? How's their performance?

Invest in the older worker - he's a good bet.

Put That in Your Pipe!

A smiling Finance Minister Edgar Benson fills up his pipe on leaving the Commons chamber in Ottawa Friday night after tabling a white paper that proposes a sweeping revision in federal tax laws. He is surrounded by Liberal members of Parliament. (CP Wirephoto)

Rate Would Vary

New Capital Gains Tax Would Come Gradually

OTTAWA (CP) — The government plans to impose a long talked about capital gains tax in Canada.

It would allow compensating tax write-offs in cases of capital losses.

The government's white paper on tax reform made public Friday says the step — bound to incur strong opposition from many businessmen — must be taken if Canada's tax system is to be fair and effective.

Because the proposed tax would be felt only gradually, the government estimates it would take seven to 10 years to reach its full revenue potential.

But then, the paper says, it would account for about five per cent of total revenues. Based on present revenue forecasts, this would mean about $200,000,000.

The paper says the general rule would be that capital gains — money earned through the sale of such assets as company shares or land — be treated as income and so be subject to a progressive tax.

Depending on the type of asset sold, either all or only part of the gain would be taxed. Similarly, if a loss was suffered in the transaction, all or part of the loss could be written off against taxable income.

The paper says, however, that generally capital gains realized from the sale of a house or other personal property would not be taxed, thanks to special rules proposed to cover such deals.

The proposal would come into effect after a so-called "valuation day."

If it were to start on the day the proposed system was to begin, there would be great pressure, on stock markets as people sold stocks to take advantage of capital gains before having to pay tax on them.

So assets would be valued as of a day picked at random but close to the start of the system.

The government would preclude it in the evening, after markets had closed.

The paper argues that a capital gains tax would make it possible to reduce the existing maximum personal income tax rate of 81 per cent to about 50 per cent.

Most of those in the high-income brackets would continue to find themselves paying large tax bills because of the capital gains tax, despite a lower income tax rate.

A capital gains tax was one of the major proposals in the report of the Carter royal commission on taxation published in 1967. That report started the government on the road to Friday's white paper.

The paper does not go as far as the Carter report, saying the government rejects the commission's proposition that "every increase in economic power, no matter what its source, should be treated the same for tax purposes."

Home Still Castle

OTTAWA (CP) — Even if the government's proposed capital gains tax becomes law, a Canadian's home will still be his castle—at least, most of it will be.

But the government will take a big bite out of it.

Generally, capital gains would be taxed as ordinary income. Extra deductions would be allowed a home owner, however, to reduce his bill.

First, he would be granted a $1,000 a year exemption from the selling value of his house for every year he lived there.

Second, he would be allowed to deduct home improvement costs. If he did not keep records of such improvements, he would be allowed a flat deduction of $100 a year.

Assume a man buys a house in 1972—after the government expects its proposed capital gains tax to be in force—for $15,000 and sells it 20 years later for $20,000.

He would have made a profit—or capital gain, of $15,000.

However, his annual improvement allowance of $150 or $3,000 in all would permit him to reduce this to $12,000.

Then, his annual exemption of $1,000 would come in. That would total $20,000, or more than his capital gain and so no tax would be assessed.

Another special concession would be allowed a man forced to sell his house to move to another part of Canada.

Even if he made a taxable capital gain on the sale, he would be able to postpone it.

Income Taxes Today and Proposed

OTTAWA (CP) — Following tables illustrate impact on salaried or wage-earning taxpayers of proposals in the government's white paper on taxation.

Amounts of tax, proposed and present, include federal tax plus 28-per-cent provincial tax. Provinces using the 28-per-cent figure to define their tax are Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, Ontario and British Columbia.

Taxpayers Must Get Ready For Great Valuation Day

OTTAWA (CP) — A great Valuation Day is coming, if government tax change proposals become law.

It might prove to be an expensive headache for millions of Canadian taxpayers, but it would be a bonanza for real estate appraisers, surveyors and other professional assessors.

References to valuation day crop up repeatedly throughout the tax white paper published Friday, until it takes on the tone of at least a national holiday, perhaps an Armageddon.

The day would be sometime in 1971 at the earliest.

Purpose would be to establish on that day the market worth of assets — from homes and corporate shares to cows and antique jewellry.

It would be necessary in connection with the government's projected capital gains tax, which would require Canadians to pay income tax on gains from the sale of assets, whether it be property, stock market shares or almost any other worldly goods.

The idea of establishing a valuation day is to avoid any retroactive capital gain taxation by imposing tax on the portion of a profit that had accumulated before the new tax became law.

For example, say a home had been purchased this year for $20,000, capital gains tax became law in 1971 and the home were sold in 1973 for $30,000.

Without fixing a value about the time the tax became law, the $10,000 profit on the home might otherwise become taxable — after deductions which would allow for tax free accrued value at a rate of $1,000 a year, plus home improvement expenses at a minimum rate of $150 a year and some other concessions.

However, if the national revenue department could be persuaded on the seller's 1973 tax return that the home had been worth $25,000 when the law came in during 1971, tax would only be applied to the $5,000 difference between selling price and its worth on valuation day, less the various deductions.

Officials say valuation day would be close to the day a capital gains tax became law. The date would be kept secret and announced at night, after markets had closed so stock markets would not be affected too severely.

Small Businesses Would Pay More

OTTAWA (CP) — Government proposals for revising taxation of corporations and dividend income would sharply raise taxes for small companies but give individuals a better break on dividend income.

The system projected in the government's white paper on taxation, released Friday, would wipe out existing tax advantages held by individuals or groups who incorporate themselves as a company.

The federal tax rate of 50 per cent on income of corporations would remain.

But the present rate of 21 per cent on the first $35,000 of corporate income would be increased in steps over a maximum period of five years to the full rate of 50 per cent.

Any double taxation on income of so called closely held corporations would be eliminated. An individual who gets dividends from such corporations would get full credit in calculating his personal income tax for the corporation tax already paid.

Double taxation on the income of widely held, or public, corporations would be reduced in favor of the individual shareholder receiving dividends.

The shareholder would receive credit for half the corporation tax already levied against the money he receives as a dividend.

Government officials say major results of the various revisions would be to plug the loophole whereby an individual can gain a substantial tax advantage by incorporating himself and to encourage Canadians to buy shares in corporations.

The revised system of individual tax credits for dividend income would tend to favor the taxpayer with moderate income from all sources over the person with a big income and higher rates of personal tax.

Take Stays About Same

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government proposes a significant—its own word—increase in personal income tax rates be-ginning Jan. 1, 1971.

But in a white paper made public Friday it also proposes some new and higher exemptions so that the total take from personal income taxes would be little changed.

The recommended changes would increase the personal exemption—unchanged since 1949 — to $1,400 from $1,000 for a single person and to $2,800 from $2,000 for a married couple.

They would permit a maximum deduction of $150 for employees to cover job expenses such as getting to and from work.

Families in which both parents work would be allowed a deduction of $300 per child under age 16 or a maximum of $2,000 per family for child care.

Under the recommended changes, lower-income taxpayers would pay less tax, the middle brackets more and the tax limit on the rich would be slashed to 31.2 per cent of taxable income from the current 82.4 per cent.

Tax payments, after deductions, would be less than current payments for single persons earning up to $3,400 annually and for married persons earning up to $9,100 a year.

For those with incomes above these levels, the tax payments would be higher starting in 1971 than now.

The changes would wipe out all personal income taxes for 750,000 of Canada's 7,700,000 taxpayers, reduce taxes for 3,100,000, increase them for 3,430,000 and leave them unchanged for 829,000.

Mines and Oil Firms Will Have Special Concessions Changed

OTTAWA (CP) — Two of the most jealously guarded tax concessions given Canada's mining and petroleum companies would be changed under government proposals for tax reform.

In a white paper on taxation, published Friday, says the mineral industry still needs special rules—but they should be substantially revised to profitable projects bear a fair share of the tax burden.

One proposed change in the white paper would eliminate the existing three-year tax-free period granted new mines.

In its place, the government would allow mining companies to write off the costs of bringing properties into production as quickly as they have enough income from the new mines to absorb the charges.

The proposal would offer two advantages, the paper says.

It would be a powerful incentive for companies to take up the risk involved in opening a new mine, and it would facilitate financing because all profits could go to repaying loans.

The second change would affect depletion allowances, now set at 33 1-3 per cent of operating income.

The paper says such allowances are an inefficient way of financing exploration and development, which is supposed to be their aim.

So instead of a blanket allowance, mining and petroleum companies should have to earn depletion rights.

It says this could be done by granting the companies $1 worth of depletion allowances for every $3 spent on exploration or development.

Depletion allowances of 10, 15 or 20 per cent now allowed shareholders on dividends received from a mining or petroleum company would be ended.

A 25-per-cent depletion allowance now given to non-operators who make money from mineral properties also would be ended.

Prospectors, who for years have not had to pay taxes on the profit from the sale of a mining property, would have their special concession lifted.

The paper says this exemption was granted prospectors because the government had considered it a type of capital gain, which up to now has been tax-free.

The recommendations appear to be a compromise between the proposals of the Carter royal commission on taxation and the strong lobbying of the mineral industry.

The Carter report, which urged the government started on the whole paper, called for an immediate end to depletion allowances and the three-year tax-free period for new mines.

Several major mining companies said they would be forced to cancel planned developments if they lost their tax rights.

As a result, Mitchell Sharp, then finance minister, assured the industry in May, 1967, that the three-year tax-free period would be continued at least until Dec. 31, 1973.

Expense Account Living to Be Hard Hit

OTTAWA (CP) — There's bad news in the white paper on taxation for those living high off the hog on expense accounts.

The paper proposes "more rigorous limits to check expense account living" and it goes on to mention such attractive employment side-benefits as yachts, hunting lodges, aircraft and cars.

But whether the crack-down will be as stiff as recommended by the royal commission on taxation remains to be seen. The commission had decided that "the problem of taxpayer morale is serious and the strongest measures are called for" on the question of expense-account living. It proposed measures which would clearly end it.

The white paper, tabled in the Commons Friday, does not go into detail on how expense accounts should be handled.

But it says that under its proposals the costs of attending conventions and belonging to clubs would no longer be allowed as a charge against business income.

"The costs of yachts, hunting and fishing lodges or camps, including rental for tickets for games and performances, and costs of entertainment would also be excluded."

The paper says owners or employees of a business having an aircraft or car for their personal use would either pay a minimum "stand by charge" or have a corresponding amount added to their taxable income.

In its report, the royal commission said generalizations are useless when it comes to restricting expense account living. And it suggested arbitrary rules which, it cheerfully agreed, were stringent.

On bona fide business trips, the commission said actual transportation costs should be allowed, plus a specified amount for meals and lodging. It suggested $25 a day.

For business entertainment bills the commission suggested an upper limit of $5 $10 if paid for each person entertained. The employer would be required to keep detailed records of who was entertained, where, at what cost, and why.

Mr. Stanfield, digesting the paper on a Halifax visit, provided the most detailed statement which bore down on five questions he said will require "very careful scrutiny."

These were the effects of the proposed tax changes on incentive, on the Canadian homeowner facing tax for sale of his property, for provinces and cities in a "tax-poor position," the "confused and uncertain position of small businesses" and a lack of government disclosure of its whole tax package.

Mr. Stanfield said he welcomes increases in personal income tax exemptions "but I doubt if there is sufficient consideration for children."

He said that perhaps the greatest single weakness of the tax blueprint is that "there has been no indication how these income tax proposals relate to estate taxes, sales taxes and the whole system of transfer payments."

Stanfield Has Some Praise But Lewis Disappointed

OTTAWA (CP) — Political reaction to the government's blueprint for income tax revision mixed criticism with some praise—and caution about interpreting speedily all the fine print in the white paper tabled Friday.

"Some worthwhile improvements but . . . some serious shortcomings," Opposition Leader Stanfield said in a statement.

"We are greatly disappointed," said Deputy Leader David Lewis of the NDP. "It is by no means a radical rebuilding."

"Nothing is changed in the bad economic and fiscal Canadian system," declared Gerard Laprise, Creditiste spokesman from Abitibi.

"It could have been a hell of a lot worse," Conservative Wallace Nesbitt, Oxford, commented.

Len Hopkins (L—Renfrew North) said his over-all reaction is favorable, especially the proposed increases for basic income tax deductions.

Mines Minister A. R. Patrick of Alberta, the only provincial politician to make immediate comment, said after leaving a special briefing for the provinces that a proposed capital gains tax will create difficulties for high-risk industries such as mining, adding this general view:

"It will take a lot of study to say just what the white paper means."

Argos Favoured to Meet Ottawa in East

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Joe Restic, Tommy Joe Coffey and Frank Clair all agree the return of Joe Zuger to the Hamilton quarterback helm makes the Tiger-Cats a considerable threat when they take the field against Toronto Argonauts Sunday afternoon in the sudden-death Eastern Football Conference semi-final game.

The game at Toronto's Canadian National Exhibition Stadium starts at 2 p.m. EST and will be televised nationally on the CBC network though the Toronto-Hamilton area will be blacked out. A sellout crowd is assured and Argonauts, who finished second three points ahead of the Tiger-Cats, Friday were 6½ point favorites.

Zuger will play quarterback for the first time in five weeks. He damaged the little finger of his right hand and, during his absence, the Tiger-Cats slumped. After a 34-28 win earlier in the season over their semi-final opponents, Hamilton lost twice, 17-7 and 31-8, to Toronto.

The Hamilton signal caller's injured finger will be protected by a special cover, made from floor tiling.

"I don't expect him (Zuger) to be too flight," said Hamilton coach Restic. "He should give us some consistency and that's all we ask. The other things will fall in."

Rookie quarterback John Eckman was used during Zuger's absence and his inexperience led to critical interceptions. Zuger handled punting chores in several games though unable to play quarterback.

Clair, whose Grey Cup champion Ottawa Rough Riders will play the survivor of Sunday's game, agrees that Zuger will stabilize the Tiger-Cats.

"I have no idea what the time out might have done to Zuger's timing," Clair said. "It should give the team a lift just to have him in there. Hamilton has come on defensively. Our coaches here (in Ottawa) don't know what to think. I look for a real close game."

Coffey, who set a one-season CFL record of 148 points this year, said Zuger's return will restore versatility to the offence.

Restic remains silent on plans for changes in his complex offence, but one suggestion is that rookie running back Dick Wesolowski will replace the injured flanker Gord Christian, out with a shoulder separation, and speedy defensive back Garney Henley may see action on offence.

The rest of the Hamilton offence is intact with running backs Willie Bethea, Dave Fleming and Ed Buchanan balancing the Zuger-to-Coffey pass threat.

The Argonauts meanwhile remain mum. Head coach Leo Cahill only smiles when asked if defensive star Dick Thornton will be employed on the attack, if Dave Mann will be summoned of the retired list to handle the punting or which quarterback—Tom Wilkinson or Frank Cosentino—will draw the starting job.

They are similarly quiet about their injury list. Running back Bill Symons only says his injured toe is improved. Ron Arends, Jimmy Dye and Jim Thorpe are confident their assorted ailments won't bother them.

Ottawa May Lose Washington

OTTAWA (CP) — General manager Red O'Quinn of the Rough Riders said Friday a published report that halfback Vic Washington has left the team are "premature to say the least."

A report in the Ottawa Citizen Friday quoted Washington, out of the Eastern Football Conference club's lineup since he suffered a knee injury in Winnipeg Oct. 15, as saying: "I've played my last game in this country."

"There's no chance I'll change my mind because money is not involved. The Ottawa club has treated me well but I'm staying out of football next year if necessary."

O'Quinn said he believes "Washington will be playing with Ottawa next year."

He added that Riders, who finished the season in first place, have a contract with Washington that includes an option on his services next year.

The story said Washington's problems centre around his wife's unhappiness away from the couple's home town of Plainfield, N.J., and the illness of his mother who lives there.

Lions', Faith in Parker Could Mean Semi-Final Win

CALGARY (CP) — Faith in Jackie Parker could result in British Columbia Lions becoming the first third-place team to win a Western Football Conference sudden-death semi-final in 18 years.

"They think he is the greatest guy in the world; they'll do anything for him," said Herm Harrison, tight end for Calgary Stampeders.

The two clubs clash at 2 p.m. MST today for the right to meet Saskatchewan Roughriders in the best-of-three final and Harrison said the fact that the Stampeders beat the Lions four times this season "doesn't mean anything now."

The last time a third-place team won a sudden-death semi final was in 1950, when Edmonton Eskimos clobbered Saskatchewan 24-1. The WFC switched to a two-game, total-point semi-final in 1952 but returned to the sudden-death setup in 1965.

Six weeks ago, the Lions were floundering in last place with a single victory in 10 games. Then Jim Champion was fired as head coach and the club turned to Parker, a figure of heroic proportions in Canadian League circles during a fabled career with Edmonton.

With Parker at the helm, the Lions were victorious in four of the last six games and snatched the third and last playoff position away from he Eskimos.

B.C., said Harrison, is one of the "most improved teams in the league," and "one of the most under-rated."

"It is a better football team now, a whole lot better," said Jim Duncan, in his first year as head coach at Calgary.

Razzle-dazzle was Parker's forte in 13 great seasons with Edmonton, Toronto Argonauts and the Lions in which he scored 758 points to become the CFL's all-time high scorer.

But Duncan isn't concerned about the fancy stuff.

The game will be televised on the CBC national network.

Clay Files To Regain Licence

NEW YORK (AP) — Former heavyweight champion Cassius Clay filed suit in federal court Friday to regain his New York State boxing licence.

The 27-year-old boxer, who changed his name to Muhammad Ali, was suspended by New York in April, 1967, after he refused induction into the armed services.

Important Game In Minnesota

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cleveland and Minnesota, two hot teams that could wind up playing for the National Football League title Jan. 4, meet Sunday in the key game on a busy NFL schedule.

The Browns ride into Minnesota after upsetting Dallas Cowboys last Sunday and find the Vikings with a six-game winning streak.

Los Angeles Rams, the only unbeaten club in the league, will be at home to San Francisco 49ers while Green Bay Packers and Baltimore Colts, the runners-up in the two divisions of the Western Conference, face a must game in Baltimore with each team needing a victory to stay in the race.

New York Giants and St. Louis Cardinals, both steadily losing ground in their chase of Cleveland in the Century Division, meet in St. Louis in the first of a home-and-home series.

Key Game for Houston

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Greg Cook, Cincinnati's quick-delivery rookie quarterback who came from injuries last Sunday and found a new accomplice in pass catcher Chip Meyers, leads the Bengals against Houston Oilers in a key American Football League game Sunday.

Houston, two games behind New York Jets and slowly sinking in the East, will have to flush out the Cincinnati rookie who unleashed two touchdown passes to Meyers last Sunday in the 31-17 stunning victory over powerful Oakland.

New York, led by their ace quarterback Joe Namath, has a seemingly easy touch, playing Buffalo Bills at home.

Elsewhere Sunday, Kansas City Chiefs, the Western Division leaders, are hosts to San Diego Chargers, Oakland Raiders, who are a half game behind the Chiefs, play at home against Denver Broncos, and Miami Dolphins visit Boston Patriots.

Cook's return last weekend helped the Bengals crack a four-game losing string and gave the team more victories—four—than it had all last season.

New York goes after a club record six straight victories against the Bills and workhorse O. J. Simpson.

San Diego quarterback John Hadl, who completed only eight of 20 passes for 51 yards when San Diego suffered its first shutout since 1961 last Sunday, will have to be on his toes against Kansas City's onrushing linemen.

Oakland will try to bounce back from its loss to Cincinnati with quarterback Daryle Lamonica leading the Raiders. Bob Griese will spearhead Miami against Boston.

Turcotte's Kid Brother Leading Winner at Aqueduct

NEW YORK (CP) — Rodolphe Leonide Turcotte, a wide-eyed apprentice jockey from Grand Falls, N.B., is leading all riders at Aqueduct race track.

The 19-year-old kid brother of highly-regarded Ron Turcotte is bidding to be the 1969 leader when the season ends Dec. 15.

Rudy rode one winner at Aqueduct Friday, carrying his total for the current meet there to 22. Ron has 13.

Capable apprentices with only a five-pound allowances are eagerly sought by United States trainers because the reduced weight pull normally means the boy has ridden at least 25 winners and knows his way around.

It's a measure of Rudy's ability that he had lots of mounts before he had that much experience. Under Canadian rules, his allowance has been only five pounds since he won his fifth race. Under U.S. rules he would have been entitled to a seven-pound allowance between his fifth and 35th victories.

The youngest of the three riding Turcotte—Noel is riding elsewhere—prefers route races, especially on grass, but is also quick at the gate with a speed horse.

"Rudy is strong," Ron says. "Of course, he has a lot to learn but he keeps cool and hides his time over a distance of ground. You don't find many green boys who will do that."

The two brothers view movies every morning at Aqueduct, studying the previous day's races.

"Ron does his own commentary for my benefit," Rudy says. "I learn a lot that way."

When the Turcotte brothers ride against each other, intriguing things happen.

At Belmont Park Oct. 11, Ron booted Supreme Rock home first by a nose over Ovenello's Colonial, ridden by Rudy. There was some bumping in the stretch, and the crowd buzzed when it was announced Rudy was claiming foul against Ron. The claim was disallowed, but the boys proved fraternal ties mean nothing when the starting gate flies open.

There also was a bizarre twist to their appearance in the $75,000 Canadian International at Toronto's Woodbine Oct. 26. Rudy was up on Vent Du Nord and Ron on Ta Vega, a 20-to-1 shot.

Avelino Gomez finishes first on Tradesman, a nose ahead of Rudy's Vent Du Nord. Ron, whose mount finishes sixth, lodged a foul claim against Gomez, saying he was interfered with in the stretch. The claim was allowed, and Ron's kid brother thus won his first stakes race.

Rudy, one of nine Turcotte brothers—they have three sisters—has had his heart set on emulating Ron, 28, and Noel, 26, since he was a 14-year-old in Grade 8 at Grand Falls.

The year Ron brought him to New York for a visit and he fell in love with the color and excitement. Rudy worked a summer at Woodbine two years later and when he graduated from high school went to work full time for Pat Remillard.

"I worked around the stable and galloped horses for two years before I got to ride in a race," Rudy recalls.

Remillard, himself a famous jockey before he retired, put Rudy aboard Dress Tartan at Woodbine on Sept. 5, 1968. The youngster finished third. He went on to ride three winners in 65 tries before the end of the season.

Last April 3 at Toronto's Greenwood, Rudy rode his fifth winner, and had his weight allowance halved to five pounds. He'll keep that allowance until April 3, 1970, one year after his fifth victory, barring extensions for injuries or other causes.

By mid-July Rudy had ridden 32 winners in Canada—besides his three U.S. victories—and moved to New York with Ron's approval. Remillard leased his contract with Jerry Kramer Al Scotti, who still holds it.

Young Turcotte won his first race at Aqueduct July 15 aboard Flying Gaucho. He rode six more winners at the Big Ain July, six at Saratoga, eight at Belmont despite two 10-day suspensions, and is going strong at Aqueduct again.

Rudy lives in Valley Stream, Long Island, with the Ron Turcottes—who include wife Suzanne and three daughters, Lynne, 3, Anne, 2, and Tina, 1.

Fergy's Pair Help Hawks With Win

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

It's been three seasons since Belleville or Kingston senior hockey teams won a game on each other's ice, and last night it was Kingston's turn to oblige.

The Aces came out flying, but dropped a 5-3 decision to Belleville's Mo - Hawks, the local's second straight win.

Sunday night, the Mo - Hawks can either keep the pattern going or tie Kingston at eight points in the OHA Senior A standings when the perennial rivals clash back in the Limestone City in an 8 p.m. game.

Al Ferguson continued to get the most of his super - curve stick, rapping in a pair of goals to maintain his goal-a-game pace after the Mo - Hawks first nine games.

Darrel Jones, Ralph Plane, and Billy Armour accounted for the other Belleville scorers, while Charlie Convery, Bob Collins and Tom Carty replied for the Aces.

SHOTS ON GOAL BY
Kingston 17 13 7 — 36
Belleville 10 7 11 — 28
Attendance (paid) — 1981.

Last winter, the two clubs split 10 regular season games, each one a home exhibition before the current 40 - game schedule got under way.

The largest crowd of the season was on hand for the game — about 1,800, including season's ticket holders.

Last Sunday's 8-2 Mo - Hawk win over Barrie Flyers and the traditional Belleville - Kingston rivalry assured that.

But if the patrons saw some pretty goal - scoring, they weren't treated to the usual rough - housing usually a feature of Kingston - Belleville confrontations.

A couple of mass glances were exchanged between Messrs. Bob Olajos and Al Ferguson, John Ford and Dave Jones, Bob Brown and Greg Marchen, but nothing harder than a couple of cuss-words was landed.

Dave Jones, Lorne O'Donnell and Ralph Plane each required attention for minor damages caused by stray Kingston sticks. The home - towners were particularly incensed when the Aces Ed Long drew nothing more than an interference minor for dumping Jones, who left the ice with blood streaming from a forehead cut.

Again, some conscientious checking by Mo - Hawks forwards eased the burden on goalie Steve Rose and his defence corps. Despite the fact the Aces outshot the Mo-Hawks 36-28, Rose seldom tested after the first period, when he made a couple of key stops.

Tom Mercer was nothing short of sensational in the Kingston net, robbing half a dozen Mo-Hawks of goal - labelled shots with a deft catching glove.

Mo - Hawk captain Ralph Plane got the most - deserved goal of the night, battling the puck away from a pair of Kingston defenders behind their net early in the second period and slipping it in off Mercer's pad to put the Mo - Hawks ahead 2-1.

Ferguson's two goals put the locals ahead to stay later in the period after Bob Collins had tied it 2-2 when he rapped in Don Clayton's neat passout from a Belleville corner.

The insurance goal by Bill Armour was a 20 - foot blast from the right side that beat Mercer cleanly. Wayne McConnell earned an assist on the play, and skated well in his first appearance in three Mo - Hawk games.

Lee Kasowski continued to play a steady blueline game, moving the puck like a 160 - pound center instead of a 200 - pound defenceman.

Making the Turn

No Referee In Game

TRENTON — They say you can't play an effective hockey game without a referee.

It appears that the OHA referee organization had no idea that there was a Junior game being played in Trenton last night as the game went on as scheduled with just two linesmen officiating. The respective team managers agreed to this rare circumstance.

"Peterborough was putting the rubber on our net with every shot," said Trenton coach Red Gravelle. "Our boys were constantly shooting wide."

Trailing 2-0 going into the second period it took Trenton just nine minutes and 36 seconds of the middle period to tie the score at two apiece. Their efforts were in vain as Peterborough answered Trenton's two goal splurge with two of their own before the period ended. The period ended with Trenton trailing 4-2.

The third period was all Peterborough with five goals compared to Trenton's one.

Peterborough scorers were Gary Brewer and Phil Fendley with two goals each, while John Rutherford, Gord Watts, John Patterson, Ray Inglis and Phil Grady all added singles.

Trenton goal getters were Mike Hall, John Bennett and Wayne Kemp.

Trenton with a record now of 2 wins and 4 losses come to the Memorial Arena in Belleville next Friday for a 9 p.m. game with the Belleville Ellis Juniors.

Manager Mathews Annoyed

Ellis Juniors Must Record Win

Organization and team work are going to have to be displayed by the Belleville Ellis Juniors tomorrow night when they play host to the Oshawa Crushmen if they expect to make a debut in the winning column.

"If the boys continue to play the way they did in Peterborough last week, we should be able to beat this Oshawa club," said Belleville coach, Floyd Crawford. "If possession of the puck is kept and the boys keep passing the thing around, well wins are bound to start coming."

The Ellis Juniors who are looking for their first win of the season will hopefully retain to full strength as the blue line in Sunday night's 7.30 game.

Greg Burkitt and Dale Lambert, two rugged defencemen, were both absent from the lineup in Peterborough. Crawford noted: "When you start moving your forwards back on defence, you are weakening your offensive strategy and a defensive squad is of little value without an offensive attack in front of them."

"If we can get all our boys out and keep them out, this losing bit is going to change," was manager Jim "Snipe" Matthews' comment. "The 12 or 13 guys that show improvement and the willingness to win during a game are the same guys that show up at practice."

Sunday night is also "Maxis Night" at the Arena. All teenage girls wearing Maxi coats and all red-haired boys will be admitted free of charge.

Quinte, Moira, Nicholson

High School Teams Ready

Three city high school football teams are doing their best shame to put Belleville on the Ontario Sports map.

The Quinte senior Saints earned their spot in COSSA "AA" play with a perfect 7-0 season, then defeating Oshawa Eastdale 9-8 in Oshawa yesterday.

Including semi final play the senior Saints have accumulated a total of 267 points in offence while their defensive squad has only given up 45 points.

Over their seven - game schedule, the Tyrians who were the highest scoring team in either senior of junior categories by any district team with 360 points while allowing opposition a mere 24 points, Moira hopes to bring the Junior part of COSSA to Belleville for the second consecutive year. The Centennial Chargers captured the title last year.

Nicholson Catholic College Junior football squad who defeated Bowmanville in Thursday semi - final action 14-13 will encounter Peterborough Tuesday in Belleville where the team from St. Peter's will battle for the COSSA "A" title.

The three high school teams attended game films at their respective schools yesterday and are taking the weekend to rest with practices scheduled for Monday.

Bowerman Drops To Fifth

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP Special) — Gary Bowerman, a graduate from the Bay of Quinte Club, still has a excellent opportunity to earn a touring card on the United States Professional Golfers' circuit.

Bowerman who shot a five over par 77 in yesterday's third round of the Professional Golfers' Association approved tournament players' school, to drop to a four-way fifth place tie at 220.

"I had trouble with my putting today", said Bowerman during a telephone conversation with his father, a resident of Belleville.

With the final round being played today, Bowerman, one of a field of 147 young golfers looks like a probable recipient of one of the 12 tickets entitling him for the rich PGA tour next year.

Terriers Score Three in Third

If the trend of the last three years continues, Kingston Aces should beat Belleville Mohawks in their Ontario Hockey Association Senior game at Kingston Sunday.

The Mohawks beat the Aces 5-3 at Belleville Friday night to maintain the three-season streak in which neither team has lost against the other on home ice.

In other games Friday, Orillia Terriers downed Barrie Flyers 6-3, Galt Hornets whipped Woodstock Athletics 8-4 and Owen Sound Crescents beat Oakville Oaks 8-4.

Al Ferguson scored twice to lead the Mohawks victory before 1,800 Belleville fans. Ralph Plane, Bill Armour and Darrel Plane, Bill Armour and playing coach Dave Jones fired the other Mohawk goals.

The Aces outshot Belleville 36-28 but only Charlie Convery, Bob Collins and Tom Carty got the puck in the Belleville net.

Barrie took a 3-0 lead in the first period at Oakville on goals by Ray Cyr, John MacMillan and Jon Weeks, but Orillia scored four goals in the third period to wrap up the comeback.

Moe Galand led the comeback with two goals, one on a disputed third-period penalty shot. MacMillan got a misconduct penalty for disputing the penalty shot.

George Vail, Clare Alexander, George Westphall and Gary Miller scored the other Terriers goals.

League-leading Galt picked up its seventh victory and handed Woodstock its sixth defeat.

Bill Hway paced the Hornets attack with two goals and Vance Miller, Fern Belanger and Bruce Reier rounded out the scoring.

Mac Westgate scored Woodstock's lone goal.

Owen Sound won its first home game and second of the season with Bill Abbott leading the Crescents attack on three goals. Gary Vaughan, Dale Watson and Mayo Paquette also scored for the winners.

Rangers Meet Los Angeles Tired But Happy

By CHUCK SVOBODA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York Rangers may be tired when they meet the Kings in Los Angeles this afternoon, but they should be happy.

The Rangers vaulted into first place in the National Hockey League East Division with an 8-1 victory over Oakland Seals in Friday night's only scheduled game.

They go into today's rescheduled match with a one-point lead over Detroit Red Wings, Boston Bruins and Montreal Canadiens who are bunched with 15 points each.

The Rangers Friday decided to accept the earlier starting time for the Los Angeles game "providing there are no unusual delays on our flight from San Francisco to Los Angeles."

The 2 p.m. p.s.t. was originally scheduled for 8 p.m. PST, but was moved to 3 p.m. when Kings owner Jack Kent Cooke booked a rock concert into his Forum for the evening.

Emile Francis, Rangers general manager and coach, issued a statement through his New York office Friday, which said:

"We greatly regret the circumstances regarding Saturday's game. The Rangers are forced to choose between a two-point forfeiture or playing at an hour that will put us at a delicate disadvantage.

"However, the tradition of the NHL is that games are won on the ice and not otherwise. We will be at the Forum at the new 2 p.m. starting time, providing there are no unusual delays on our flight from San Francisco to Los Angeles."

The Rangers struck quickly in the first period at Oakland on a goal by centre Juha Widing at 2:32. Arnie Brown, Bill Fairbairn, Rod Gilbert, Dave Balon and Jean Ratelle also scored for New York before the period ended.

Coach Fred Glover of the Seals replaced goalie Gary Smith with Charlie Hodge at the start of the second period but centre Walt Tkaczuk scored two minutes and 11 seconds later. Brown beat Hodge for his second goal of the night midway through the final session.

A crowd o 8,007 watched the Seals take their sixth loss in 11 starts.

Balon and Oakland defenceman Carol Vadnais were involved in a scrap during the third period and both went off with five-minute fighting penalties and misconducts.

The suspension and accompanying fines were announced Friday in Montreal by NHL president Clarence Campbell.

The fines include the automatic $75 for the game misconduct Walton got for pushing referee Tom Smith and the Leafs also must submit to the NHL "as a fine the pro-rata amount of Walton's salary represented by the suspension imposed."

Walton sat out the game Wednesday against Los Angeles and will be out for tonight's game at Montreal and Sunday at Chicago.

Campbell said it is hoped and expected that Walton's suspension will "serve to deter similar conduct in the future."

"If not, the penalty can and will be increased."

Other games tonight see Boston at Detroit, Chicago Black Hawks at Pittsburgh Penguins and St. Louis Blues at Minnesota North Stars. Oakland is at Philadelphia Flyers in the only other game Sunday.

Sport Briefs

LONDON (Reuters) — Montreal boxer Eddie Talhami will fight Joe Bugner, Britain's heavyweight star, next Tuesday, it was announced Friday.

* * *

EDMONTON (CP) — Defensive tackle John La-Grone, nominated for Lineman of the Year in the Canadian Football League, signed a three-year contract Friday with Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Football Conference. LaGrone, 23, a graduate of Southern Methodist University, was named outstanding WFC lineman in 1967, his rookie year.

* * *

HAMILTON (CP) — The Ontario Municipal Board Friday reserved its decision on the city's application to spend $1,500,000 for an addition to Civic Stadium without a taxpayers' vote. City Solicitor Ken Rouff argued thats the city has the financial capacity to renovate the stadium and to put the issue to a plebiscite would be to usurp the duties of the council.

* * *

LONDON (AP) — Henry Cooper, recovering from a knee cartilage operation, trained with the Arsenal soccer team Friday and said he still hopes to fight Jimmy Ellis, the World Boxing Association's heavyweight champion.

Canucks Get Financial Backing

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Canucks appear headed for the National Hockey League with a financial assist from Minneapolis.

Medical Investment Corp. of Minneapolis Friday made a firm financial offer to the Western League club. If accepted, the Canucks would move into hockey's major league in the 1970-71 season.

Joint announcement of the proposed purchase was made by Cyrus H. McLean, president of Vancouver Hockey Club Ltd., and Thomas K. Scallen, president of the Medicor company.

The announcement said the offer is subject to the successful negotiation of a satisfactory lease with the Pacific National exhibition, owners of a Pacific Coliseum, the Canucks' home arena, and the approval of the board of directors and shareholders of the Vancouver Hockey Club.

Neither Scallen nor Medicor's vice-president, Lyman D. Walters, would elaborate on the proposed terms of purchase.

Although they did not say whether purchase terms mean outright ownership or a partnership, they did say the Vancouver team would have an almost entire Canadian board of directors.

"We will not be absentee owners," said Scallen. "I intend to get a house or apartment here and spend a great deal of time up here."

Asked what kind of offer Medicor made for the Canucks, Scallen said:

"We made a very good offer."

"We made an excellent offer," added Walters.

"I'm still bleeding," said Scallen.

Canucks officials were not available for comment.

Asked why an American-based company such as theirs did not seek the NHL franchise in Baltimore and Cleveland, which claimed the $6,000,000 asking price was too high and backed out, Scallen said: "Vancouver was our absolute first choice."

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

If Heart Is Weak, Blood Backs Up

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My father has what the doctor calls "congestive heart failure." Is it serious? Is it possible for him to recover? He is only 62. — Mrs. O.

Comment: I think you will understand that how serious it is, and his chance for recovery, will depend upon many factors. I'm sure his doctor will be glad to explain.

Heart failure simply means that the heart isn't doing its usual satisfactory job. Something has happened to weaken the heart muscles. It can't pump blood efficiently; as a result, tissues and organs of the body suffer for it.

Your blood backs up, the lungs become congested; also the liver, kidneys and other organs. The result: symptoms. Treatment depends upon the cause.

Here is one man in his 60s who has had a coronary attack. His heart muscle g e t s weak, and he does his pumping circulation. He has rales (caused by fluid) at the bases of his lungs. He receives digitalis, diuretics (fluid removers) and other medication and within days his congestive heart failure has cleared up.

Here is a woman in her 60s who had rheumatic fever and heart - valve disease when she was in her 20s. She begins to cough, her ankles swell, she is short of breath, and her liver is congested, too. In addition she has an irregular heart beat, auricular fibrillation. Her congestive failure clears up within a week or two with digitalis quinidine, low sodium diet, diuretics. Sometimes penicillin, too.

It's important in managing congestive failure to learn its cause. Then we can treat it more directly and efficiently. For example, when it is due to high blood pressure or infection or any other cause. What I want to stress most, Mrs. O., is that the outlook for your dad will depend upon how his heart reacts to each of the various types of treatment we have for combatting congestive heart failure.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Will you please say a word in your column to teenagers who think it's smart to turn off the light and scare their small brothers and sisters? — Mrs. R.

Comment: Bullies! (But I'll need more than one word, Mrs. R.) Big kids, do you want to be put in the same class as little kids who tie cans to cats' tails and pull the wings from flies? You're too grown-up to be scaring your little brothers and sisters.

• • •

For Mrs. A.: Trichomonas infection is caused by trichomonas vaginalis. It is a common infection and quite stubborn at times. If difficult to overcome, a gynecologist should be consulted. It is important to make sure that reinfection isn't being caused by the husband. Often the husband needs to take medication, too.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Will you give me the scientific name for "fish skin"?

Comment: Such dry, scaly skin is called ichtyosis.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I can vouch for what you said in a recent column about habitual ice-eaters probably being anemic — and helped by taking iron. My family doctor would like a copy of your column on "Pica — and abnormal appetite." After craving ice for two years like an addict, and then starting on iron, I no longer even like ice water.

• • •

For Mr.P.O.: What helps dizziness will depend upon its cause. Niacin is sometimes helpful in the elderly who have trouble with cerebral circulation.

TWEED — Mrs. Harold Chisholm of Marlbank, is a patient in the Napanee hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Tookey of Plevna, and family, spent Saturday last in Kingston, attending the wedding of their niece, Miss Barbara Lemke.

Barn Fire Destroys Hay, Steer

A large barn, containing 4,000 bales of hay, a steer and three pieces of farm equipment were destroyed Wednesday evening in a flash fire on the farm of Markland Miles, on the Newburgh Road about half a mile beyond the town limits.

Fire Chief F. W. Pattan stated Thursday that, while investigation of the cause is continuing, he is almost certain that it was spontaneous combustion in the hay. Onlookers said that they saw a glow, and that almost immediately there was an explosion and the entire barn was afire in an instant.

The alarm reached the fire hall at 9:15 p.m., and before the equipment had left the hall, within a minute a second call came to tell the men that there was little use in their coming, as the whole thing was ablaze. When they arrived they could do nothing except watch for flying embers in the high wind. In a short time everything was within the basement walls, which confined the embers.

Chief Patton could give no estimate of the damage, but said that the barn must have been costly in its day, one of the better barns of the locality.

There was said to be some insurance.

Property Ownership Disputed

TRENTON (Staff) — A preliminary report on the investigation of the ownership of 80 acres of shoreline property was the subject of a special council meeting Thursday afternoon.

B. W. Powers and Sons Ltd. has claimed ownership of the land, which includes most of the shoreline property of Centennial Park, but has offered to sell it to the town of Trenton for $140,000.

Research done by a Toronto law firm hired by the town to examine the company's claim revealed that the town may be in a much better position than originally thought.

The Toronto firm's report stated that the town would be "ill-advised" to purchase the property until further investigations are carried out.

Moreover, the report stressed that B. W. Powers and Sons Ltd. is not in a position to convey a clear title to the land and may not have a ny foundation on which to base a title claim to the property in question.

The preliminary report may be the subject of further discussion at Monday night's regular council meeting, but council agreed to take no further action until the solicitors' report is completed.

B. W. Powers and Sons Ltd. formerly operated a fuel company and still retains holdings in the community.

St. George's Cathedral Gets Two New Canons

The Right Rev. K. C. Evans, Bishop of the Anglican Diocese of Ontario announced the appointment of two new Canons, the Rev. Canon H. C. Secker, St. Luke's, Kingston and the Rev. Canon Stanley Kerrison, St. James', Kemptville.

Canon Secker was born in London, England, in 1904. He received his theological training at Diocesan College, Montreal with some further work at Trinity College, Toronto. Made a Deacon by Archbishop Seager in St. George's Cathedral on May 3, 1931, he was appointed assistant to the rector of Belleville (St. Thomas') with special responsibility for the Belleville Mission (now St. Margaret's Church).

On leave of absence from October 1939 to July 1934 Mr. Secker served as assistant in St. George's Church, Toronto but returned to the Diocese for his ordination to the priesthood by Archbishop Lyons, May 1932.

From 1934 Canon Secker served successively in the parishes of New Boyne and Lombardy, Amherst Island, Westport and Adolphustown. On March 1, 1951 he was appointed rector of the parish of Stirling, Frankford and Glen Miller and while there he was appointed Rural Dean of Hastings. Canon Secker came to St. Luke's Church, Kingston from Stirling November 1, 1957. In 1958 he was appointed Rural Dean of Frontenac.

The Rev. Stanley Kerrison was also appointed as Canon of St. George's Cathedral. He was born in Kingston in 1907 and studied theology at Trinity College, Toronto. May 3, 1940 Archbishop Lyons made him a Deacon at St. Mary Magdalene's Church, Picton. Canon Kerrison was raised to the priesthood at his home church of St. Paul, Kingston June 8, 1941.

"I don't think there's much doubt about him being the best ball carrier in the conference."

Thousands Will Honor War Dead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Solemn tributes, church and military services and parades are scheduled Tuesday as Canadians observe Remembrance Day and mourn the dead of two world wars.

Ottawa, Gov-Gen. Michener will place a wreath at the National War Memorial after 500 regular and reserve members of the services join veterans in a parade.

Wilhemina Gray of Vancouver, who lost two sons in the Second World War, will assist the governor-general in the ceremony, one of hundreds to be held across the nation.

Robert Kobaly of Estevan, Sask., national president of the Royal Canadian Legion, said that in the last few years, the legion has been surprised with an increase in turn-outs at the ceremonies. He said the change may be dur to threats of major wars in many parts of the world.

"I can only guess it's a public reaction to near-misses around the world," he said.

Remembrance Day is a holiday for the civil service and school children in Manitoba and Alberta.

In Vancouver, a ship's company from the visiting frigate HMS Argonaut will join Canadian forces in a march with Rear-Admiral H. A. Porter, Pacific maritime commander, taking the salute.

In Edmonton, Alberta Works Minister Albert Ludwig has announced that books of remembrance containing names of Canada's war dead will be available for public viewing in the legislature rotunda Nov. 11.

This is the first time the books have been brought out and they will be opened by guides to names requested.

In Manitoba, Remembrance Day is designated as a "non-working" day rather than a statutory holiday with only those services classified as essential allowed to operate.

In Toronto, the Ontario government ceremony will feature the placing of a wreath at the cenotaph at old city hall. The wreath will be placed by representativer of the Order of Canadian Widows and Mothers of the Great War and Silver Cross Women of the British Empire.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For November 9

Your birthday today: The story of the upcoming year is one of hasty moves in unplanned directions. The best path is to concern yourself mainly with your own welfare. Doing more for others than you can afford, especially where it has not been asked, helps only temporarily while your own possibilities are being wasted. This is your year of pioneering. Today's natives are noted for their personal energy.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): You will be noticed whatever you do this Sunday morning, so make full use of the circumstance. Confer briefly with people important to you. Figures, accounts, correspondence, detailed long-range ideas are all highly favored.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Let others do the planning; make the most of the holiday by going along for the ride. It is easier now to make amends where you have upset friends or relatives.

GEMINI (May 21—June 20): This Sunday promises to be quite normal in all respects. You get back about the same sort of experience-dividend as you offer the world.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Children, hobbies, perhaps a new friend take up much of your time today. Be open for learning and intuitive guidance. Pursue your activities as long as your interest requires — it's all right to prolong the evening.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): This Sunday is a day at home prosperity day. Everything comes to you if you will only abide at your own base in serenity. News, details of information carry much interest for your future activities.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Make the rounds to catch up with people nearby whom you've been neglecting lately. Better information on the problems of relatives can be had with some discreet questions; hopefully, the problems become more amenable to solution.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): It should be a pleasure to express your most gracious self in order to build relationships that count for all concerned. Sharing of material concerns, forming better business liaisons become more important and feasible now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): You may have to turn the page on an old story. Relax your grip on dwindling ties: clear the way for new and meaningful experience.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Your hobbies, sports, recreation should be taken lightly, casually, rather than pushed to tensions and fatigue. You can do a great deal to cheer up people who need encouragement.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): This Sunday turns out to be so naturally well-patterned that you needn't organize anything. Go along with your family, your community and enjoy what comes to pass.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): This may be the only day in which certain people essential to your plans can be reached. If you have no improvement program going which would benefit by a little outside help, give thought as to why you don't.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): You may find this day a very unemotional phase of purely mental expression.

For November 10

Your birthday today: It is time now to develop your spiritual nature more than your materialistic skills. Your year ahead will give you much opportunity to learn, whatever your level of development. Anything fresh in your life is likely to be subtle, subjective, perhaps visible only to you. The path is not smooth but, well worth the travel. Today's natives enjoy working with light and color.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): You and your associates all have quick reactions today. Words are more harshly spoken than need be. Don't express resentment until well after it is provoked.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Your steadiness on the job will be greatly appreciated, no matter how little is said of it now. This evening or tomorrow will be time enough to unravel today's errors.

GEMINI (May 21—June 20): Your discretion today may save you and several of your associates from the turmoil of a general argument over misunderstood intentions.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Your friends are apt to be expensive to themselves and anybody who gets involved in their projects. Where you hold or spend group money, keep an accurate record; bring spending to a minimum.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 23): Personal and family concerns tend to conflict with career today. Accept disruption of schedules as normal; avoid recriminations or complaints.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): You may be surprised to find how self-centred many people can be. Older people pose difficult questions. Reflect before responding.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 23): If you can stay out of the middle and honestly say by the end of the day that you have not unthinkingly set others at odds among themselves, then you are evolving exceptionally well.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Today's incidents reshape and, in some instances, terminate relations — according to what you say and how you react. Something new is added.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Your work is all uphill today. Tools and vehicles require exceptional alertness and care. Set yourself firmly to contain pressures without passing them on to your loved ones.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Routine goes well enough; important changes should be delayed further before you make them. Find reserve compassion for those you care about.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Your schemes are almost certain to run into resistance today, no matter how you express them. Shoving words and people around will not help.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Your emotional sensitivity returns in full force, and you feel communication differs from the sense of the words people say. Meditation will guide you.

Rail Union Fears Thousands Jobless

OTTAWA (CP) — Thousands of railway workers will lose their jobs if Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways are permitted to cancel much of their passenger rail service, a leading union official claimed Friday.

The warning is contained in a telegram to J. W. Pickersgill, chairman of the Canadian transport commission, from Mike Rygus, general vice-president of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers.

Earlier in the week, the two rail companies listed 31 passenger routes which lost more than $40,000,000 last year and asked the commission either to permit cancellation of the services or to qualify them for federal subsidies on up to 80 per cent of the losses.

Mr. Rygus demanded that public hearings be held by the commission before any decision is made on the applications.

A final decision should be made by Parliament, he added. He said the jobs of hundreds of members of his own union and thousands of other workers are endangered by the applications.

The commission has the power to require the railways to continue the service if it considers them to be in the public interest. It also is empowered to call for public hearings in the areas involved by the service.

Astronauts Will Have A-Power

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The first nuclear generator ever carried on a United States manned space flight will journey to the moon's surface with the Apollo 12 astronauts.

To be powered by the 1,400-degree heat of decaying plutonium 238, the unit was designed to generate electricity for up to two years to operate five experiments astronauts Charles Conrad Jr. and Alan L. Bean plan to deploy on the moon.

"As far as a radioactive problem, I don't thing there is much," Bean said in a recent news conference. "The thing that we worry about is the temperature."

The plutonium 238 fuel element needed to power the unit will be stored in a graphite container attached to the outside of Apollo 12's lunar landing craft.

During the astronauts' first moon walk, scheduled Nov. 19, Bean is to use a long-handled tool to uncap the container, pull out the plutonium and insert it into the generator, prior to the experiments.

Officials said the generator was designed to produce a minimum of 46 watts of electricity.

Belleville Hydro Rates Won't Rise

HEPC Costs Rise

TORONTO (CP) — The price of wholesale electricity supplied by Ontario Hydro to municipalities will go up an average of six per cent Jan. 1, hydro chairman George Gathercole announced Sunday night.

He was not prepared to say what the increased costs would mean to the general public but suggested "some municipalities will be in a position to absorb this increase, others will not."

In a statement for release today, Mr. Gathercole says the increase results from "rising interest rates, material and equipment costs and higher labor costs."

"We have been holding the line (on prices) for many years," he said, and while incomes have risen rapidly over the last 10 years "our rates for power have remained comparatively stable."

"But we are now entering a period where we can anticipate increases in costs and rates."

He also forecast further increases in wholesale costs during the next three years.

Several reasons he gave for the increase included:

—Salaries and wages have been rising rapidly.

—High interest rates Hydro is obliged to pay for borrowed money (up to 8¼ per cent from 5½ per cent five years ago).

—Increased costs for land for new installations.

—Ever increasing expenditures to combat pollution from Hydro plants.

—Added costs involved in installing more sophisticated equipment and the building of thermal plant, using fossil fuels such as gas and coal to operate generators.

Bernard Roy, chairman of the Windsor public utilities commission, said the increase would be passed along to the consumer in an economy measure that would not pose a hardship on people with fixed incomes.

A. L. Furanna, general manager of the London utilities, said he had been expecting the increases. The commission, he continued, would be unable to absorb the costs for any length of time and it would eventually be passed along to the consumer.

Linda Goldart

Candlepower....

Although municipalities will pay more for the power they buy, the new Ontario Hydro rates won't affect the Belleville consumer. Just in case, Heather Woods gets a candle ready.

August Boost To Cover Cost

By Roy Peacock, Staff Reporter

The six per cent increase in the cost of wholesale power, announced over the weekend by Ontario Hydro Chairman George Gathercole, will not mean an increase in consumer rates in Belleville.

That was the word today from Belleville Public Utilities Commission manager E. L. Burnham who said he hoped a consumer rate increase would not be necessary here.

"Our consumer rates were increased in August of this year and I'd be disappointed if another increase was necessary this year," he said.

"We feel we can get through without an increase in 1970."

At the same time, Mr. Burnham said he was not surprised at the announcement from Mr. Gathercole. "We expected the increase," he said.

Mr. Burnham expects to receive the official notice from Ontario Hydro this week, but doubts the increase will be an even six per cent.

He explained that the wholesale power rate charged by Ontario hydro varies with the municipality.

Since the last wholesale power rate increase by Ontario Hydro, the Belleville Public Utilities now pays more than $100,000 per month for hydro.

Inco, Union In Accord

TORONTO (CP) — Company and union negotiators are expected to sign an agreement today which could end the four-month steelworkers' strike against International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. The strike has caused a world shortage of nickel.

Homer Seguin, president of the 16,000-member Local 6.00 of the United Steelworkers of America at Sudbury, Ont., said Sunday the agreement, if ratified by the membership, would be "the highest industrial settlement ever negotiated in North American history."

Stocks Strong On Tax News

OTTAWA (CP) — Stock markets opened strong today in the first few minutes of trading after the government's announcement Friday of its tax reform proposals.

Buyers' bids for bank stocks rose, with Bank of Montreal shares bid up to $15.87 a share from Friday's closing price of $15.37. Sellers wanted at least $16 a share. The stock traded as high as $17 and as low as $13.50 earlier this year.

Trading in Bell Canada shares —widely held by the most conservative of investors— was delayed at the opening of the Toronto market because of a flood of orders, but in Montreal opening bids were $42.25 a share, up from Friday's close of $42. Bell traded on the Toronto market as high as $50.50 and as low as $41.34 earlier this year.

Bell opened trading on the Toronto exchange about 20 minutes later with the first bids at $41, two dollars higher than Friday's close. Sellers were asking at least $44.62.

In general, brokers watching the hourly trading tapes saw the market as strong with a fair volume of orders to buy.

The opening of stock markets today was being watched closely for the initial reaction of investors to the tax reform proposals which—if parliamentary machinery works smoothly—would take effect in 1971.

Capital gains are to be taxed as normal income under the plan, but only half the profits on trading in widely held Canadian corporations, such as, in shares listed on the major stock markets in Canada, would be taxed. Half of any losses could be claimed as a deduction from gross income.

SAIGON (Reuters) — A secret Viet Cong document captured by Australian troops says the Viet Cong are under orders to launch intensive attacks Nov. 14-15 to support a planned three day series of anti war protests in the United States, official U.S. sources said today.

of its blistering two-page assault on Prince Philip, admits a statement from Prime Minister Wilson is necessary to end public confusion over royal finances.

The picture of an economy-minded monarchy with the ermine trimmed off came out during a 25-minute program in which Prince Philip talked to American journalists. It was recorded last Wednesday and broadcast Sunday.

Commenting on the fact that the Royal Family has not had any increase in allowances for almost 18 years, the prince said:

"We go into the red. I think, next year—which is not bad housekeeping if you come to think about it.

"I mean we have in fact kept the thing going on a budget which is based on costs 18 years ago."

In 1932, when Elizabeth was crowned, she was granted an allowance of £475,000 annually, and the prince was allotted £40,000 a year.

Philip's allocation is heavily taxed; the Queen's income is tax free.

A spokesman at Buckingham Palace said the prince "must have been joking." But his remarks came after a week of rumors that the Queen was having to dip into her own pocket to pay all the bills.

Out of her £475,000 a year from the government, the Queen has to pay her 200 full - time staff, from the lord chamberlain to the housemaids, and a new government employment tax as well.

Although she has a further £200,000 income from her own estates, it has been estimated that she now is spending to the extent of £100,000 a year from her personal savings.

The Queen is believed to be worth more than £60,000,000. She owns the world's finest art collection, jewelry, a stamp collection worth more than £1,000,000 and racing stables.

Moon Voyageurs Take Their Final Practices

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Apollo 12 astronauts today practise emergency procedures required if they have to abort the attempt to land on the moon.

Charles Conrad and Alan Bean planned to rehearse in the lunar landing trainer vehicle. Richard Gordon was to work in the command ship simulator.

At the launch pad, the countdown moved smoothly toward the scheduled blastoff of a Saturn V rocket at 11:22 a.m. EST Friday.

Conrad and Bean are to fly the landing craft they call Intrepid to a touchdown in the moon's Ocean of Storms Nov. 19. They can abort the attempt at any time after they separate from Gordon and the command ship until the moment of touchdown. They also can make a quick takeoff in case something goes wrong after the landing.

The two ships are to undock at an altitude of 65 miles. Intrepid is to land two hours and 27 minutes later. The most critical period is the last 12 minutes when the astronauts fire their descent engine to drop the final 49,200 feet.

The most likely abort procedure is to separate the cabin section from the descent engine stage and fire up the ascent engine to start a series of manoeuvres to steer Intrepid back to the command ship, Yankee Clipper.

Apollo 11, man's first lunar landing, came within 11 seconds of being aborted last July as astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin hovered 150 feet above the surface, their fuel running dangerously low as they sought a smooth parking spot.

Gordon will be ready to fly a rescue mission if Conrad and Bean have to abort and cannot perform a successful rendezvous.

U.S. Facing Week Of Demonstrations

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Supporters and opponents of President Nixon's Vietnam policy hold new demonstrations this week in the continuing controversy over U.S. involvement in the war.

A week of activities by groups backing the president will be highlighted by Veterans Day ceremonies Tuesday in Washington. The focus returns to the capital Saturday when critics plan a mass anti-war march and rally.

As signs of support through the week for Nixon's Vietnam policies, administration backers called for participation in parades, burning of car headlights, waving flags and the wearing of buttons that say "I Love America."

Activities by supporters and critics began early. A Veteran Day parade was held Saturday in Midland Park, N.J., a town of 8,000 that has lost eight sons in Vietnam. Police estimated there were 8,000 marchers and 25,000 spectators.

Sponsors of the parade said they wanted to dramatize their support of the president's policies and opposition to anti-war demonstrators.

In Houston, Tex., a "march for peace" covered 16 blocks Sunday. Police estimated there were 900 marchers and put the total attendance at a rally afterward at 1,500.

About 75 of the demonstrators identified themselves as soldiers from Fort Hood, Tex.

Prayers were offered in many churches Sunday for the estimated 1,300 American servicemen missing or held captive in Southeast Asia. President Nixon had declared the day a National Day of Prayer and Concern.

Today negotiations continue for the route to be followed by the anti-war demonstrators in Washington amid government warnings of violence and assurances from protesters that they plan only peaceful dissent.

Bryce Harlow, counsellor to the president, repeated Sunday the government's contention "that there is an active possibility of violence."

"The department of justice and the Washington authorities must be extremely careful in how they handle this," Harlow said, "particularly in the vicinity of the major public buildings such as the White House."

British Papers Defend Royal Family After Philip's Interview

LONDON (CP) — British newspapers generally sprang to the defence of the Royal Family today after Prince Philip, pleading financial difficulties, said he and the Queen may have to move from Buckingham Palace to smaller quarters unless Parliament gives the Queen a pay boost.

His remarks, recorded in Washington in a television interview at the end of the prince's 18-day tour of Canada and the United States, were broadcast Sunday.

He told viewers that "if nothing happens . . . I don't know, we may have to move to smaller premises. Who knows?".

"We have had to sell our private yacht and I shall probably have to give up polo fairly soon," he added.

The mass-circulation Daily Mirror says:

"Maybe the prince was having a little joke. If so, it's a bad joke."

The tabloid questions the value of the prince as the Queen's "public relations officer" and says:

"Over the years he has talked some considerable sense. The Mirror applauds most of his plain speaking and basic English. But does he really have to go abroad to make bad jokes about being down on his uppers?

"Two years ago he was telling British businessmen that he was sick and tired of making excuses for Britain every time he went abroad. What is he doing now? Pulling his fingers out?"

But other papers sprang to his defence.

"Prince Philip does not tell a story of poverty in his television interview," says The Daily Express. "He merely makes a proper claim for the rate for the job on behalf of the Crown."

Woman Killed, Hunter Drowned In City-Area Weekend Mishaps

By HARRY MULHALL
(Staff Reporter)

Funeral services will be held tomorrow for two Bellevillians — victims of separate weekend fatal accidents in the Quinte district.

They are:

Mrs. Elida Perry, 36-year-old mother of two, of 39 Sunset Drive, was instantly killed Saturday when her automobile rolled in a ditch on Highway 37, three miles south of Tweed. She was driving to Plinton with her children to pick up her husband who had been deer-hunting.

John Mouck, 55, of 132 South John Street, who drowned in the Bay of Quinte near Massassaga, while duck-hunting early Sunday morning. His body was found beside his upturned boat.

Mrs. Perry had her two children in the car as she drove north to meet her husband, Laurie, a Belleville public utilities foreman, who had been hunting near Flinton during the week.

Police say she was thrown from the 1969 automobile as it veered out of control off the highway.

Taken to Belleville General Hospital were six-year-old Dale, suffering shock and a broken arm, and Laurie Ann, eight, who sustained cuts and bruises.

Mrs. Perry, a Bell Canada clerk, was a native of Flinton. Church service will be held in her home community.

He left Belleville Saturday with a long - time hunting - fishing companion, Wes Gerow, 71½ South Church Street, and both men stayed overnight on the island.

Police say Mr. Mouck went out alone on the bay Sunday morning. When he did not return, Mr. Gerow went searching him.

Born in Belleville, Mr. Mouck was a shipper at Deacon Bros., where he had worked 37 years. He was a Second World War veteran and a member of Bridge Street United Church.

Mr. Mouck leaves his wife, Elaine, a daughter, Patricia; a brother Ernest, of Toronto, and a sister, Mrs. Dorothy Irvin of St. Catharines.

Weekend Crimes Concern Chief

A rash of injuries, accidents, break-ins and crime kept Belleville City Police well occupied all weekend a nd prompted Chief Douglas Cruise to describe it as "the busiest weekend of the year."

He said this morning he is asking more caution from Belleville citizens concerning accidents.

All in all, there were 14 accidents in the city over the weekend. He blamed the high number of mishaps on the weather and on the fact that it is getting close to Christmas.

A Wellington woman and a Belleville man were taken to Belleville General Hospital after the cars they were driving collided Saturday morning at 9:40 a.m.

According to police, a vehicle driven by Cora M a y Pierson, 72, was northbound on Everett Street and a second car driven by Glen Edgar Thompson, 71, was eastbound on Catherine Street when the cars came into collision.

Mrs. Pierson sustained a lacerated mouth a nd Mr. Thompson scalp cuts.

A Corbyville man, Thomas George Fuller, 68, has been charged with theft under the theft is getting close to Christmas.

A second man, Howard Fertil of Belleville was charged with possession of stolen goods police said.

He was charged with possession of a number of shirts valued at $27 believed to h a v e been taken from Eaton's and Tip Top Tailors in Belleville.

Police are also investigating a break-in at BCIVS which occurred some time after 11:45 a.m. Saturday morning.

Entry to the school was gained by climbing through a window on the north side of the building. The cafeteria w a s then entered. Police do not know as yet what was taken.

A second weekend break-in at a West Moira Street residence resulted in the theft of $4.41 in American coinage.

The home, owned by Goldie Livingston, 115 West M o i r a Street, was entered some time between 6 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Friday night through a cellar window.

Police are also investigating a BB gun shooting which occurred over the weekend in a small patch of woods between Rollins and Lambert Drives.

Craig Flett, 8, was playing in the woods when he was struck in the eye by a BB pellet. The person who fired the shot has not been located as yet.

The pellet was removed by a local doctor and fortunately, according to police, the boy will suffer no loss of sight.

A Canadian Pacific Express truck was barely damaged when someone threw burning paper into it and jammed paper between the wall of the truck and the gasoline tank. The attempt failed to ignite the truck.

Gun Pointed at Policeman, Brothers Charged

CAMPBELLFORD (Staff) — Two brothers were to appear in provincial court here this morning to face charges of careless hunting and discharging of firearms within the town limits.

Charged with the two offences are Giovanni Montanari, and Gerulamo Montanari, 34, both of Toronto. Charges were laid in connection with an incident reported to Campbellford police at 10.30 a.m. Saturday.

The careless hunting charges against the Montanari brothers were laid after original charges of criminal negligence were dropped because no injuries were incurred in the incident.

Constable J. Dean of the Campbellford police said that two men pointed a shotgun at him and Ontario Provincial Police Constable Robert Diamond. He added that although it was not a deliberate threatening act, it was, in his words, "complete and absolute carelessness."

Campbellford police, the Campbellford detachment of the OPP and members of the Fish and Wild Life Branch of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests, Lindsay district, investigated the incident upon receiving numerous complaints from residents in the vicinity.

In all, the department of lands and forests seized 16 shotguns and ammunition and, assorted birds and rabbits killed by a group of Italians who were hunting in Ferris Provincial Park on the outskirts of Campbellford.

In addition, Campbellford police seized a 17th shotgun and ammunition.

A spokesman for the department of lands and forests said this morning that the case is still under investigation. However, hunting in a provincial park is illegal and the spokesman said that charges are pending against the 15 other Italian hunters from the Toronto Scarborough area.

One of the group of 17 may also be charged with hunting without a licence, he said.

Scholarly Discussion

George Hees, Prince Edward-Hastings MPP talks with Trenton High School's top graduate, Kathleen Milligan whose 93.5 per cent average made her top in the school. The two had a chance to chat at the Trenton High School graduation held Saturday night.

Don't Close Your Minds Valedictorian Tells Grads

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
(Staff Reporter)

TRENTON — "When you close your books don't close your minds!"

This was the plea of valedictorian Kathleen Milligan in her address at Trenton High School's graduation exercises Saturday evening.

"Society is turning out too many unthinking persons who are educated simply because they have a degree," she asserted.

Kathleen's eye was obviously on the future when she said "High school has been a great influence on us — granted not all for the best for the system is far from perfect," and then stressed that although opposing the Establishment would be hard it was necessary.

Directing her address to the 85 Grade 13 graduates, Kathleen noted that the next three years would be among the most important in their lives.

She concluded her brief address, by expressing the hope that "together we (the graduates) can show the world that our generation really does care."

Kathleen elaborated on her feelings at the reception which followed the graduation exercises.

"Although the educational system is improving there's still too much stress on exams and marks and not nearly enough emphasis on preparing students to face the realities of life," said the 18-year-old student whose 93.5 per cent average on nine Grade 13 subjects was best at Trenton High School and second highest in Hastings County.

She recommended that students have a bigger voice in deciding curriculum and course content and favored a change to seminar-type courses which she felt would be "a lot more meaningful" in addition to varying the routine of school work.

She also suggested that some subjects, such as psychology, philosophy and sociology (the subject in which she will major at Queen's University), be introduced before the University level.

"Most high school students don't understand these subjects and yet may choose to pursue them in college or university without knowing what they're getting into," she concluded.

The graduates also received advice from George Hees, MPP for Prince Edward - Hastings Riding.

Noting that the graduates might dismiss his ideas by saying "they might have been all right in your day but not today!", Mr. Hees stressed that the graduates faced basically the same problems as he did (in the late '20s) only in a slightly different environment.

"Never was the world so inviting or so full of promise; go forward with confidence in yourself and your education and with great determination, Mr. Hees continued.

"Never stop learning, keep reading, observing and keep your mind open at all times for the world requires a great deal of study."

Placing particular emphasis on this statement, Mr. Hees told of a speech delivered by the president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The MIT president said that the half-life of a scientist was 10 years; explaining that half of what the scientist knew now would be obsolete in 10 years time and half of what he would need to know in 10 years time had not yet been discovered.

Additional advice came from Mr. Hees: "Always keep your sense of humor; take life seriously but don't ever take yourself seriously."

Mr. Hees agreed with the valedictorian when he said "Have your own ideas and stick to them. Don't be batted down, protest, protest and protest some more."

"We older generation aged your ideas but sometimes we resist change," he candidly revealed.

However Mr. Hees emphasized that "You must protect with your brains and your powers of expression; but not in the manner which has become so popular today in parts of this country."

"Achievement is two per cent inspiration and 98 per cent perspiration; adopt a plan of action, work at it steadily and before you know it you'll have achieved your goal."

On an equally serious note Mr. Hees thoroughly endorsed the institution of marriage and said that, in his considered opinion, it was here to stay.

Then on a serious-comic note he remarked: "Behind every successful man there is some good woman in the background — the trouble is to keep her there!"

On a scholastic basis valedictorian Kathleen Milligan's 93-plus average earned her five awards, including two University Entrance Scholarships, one of which, the Provincial Scholarship for Ontario, is valued at $1,350.

Other standout students included Ray Lobban and Teresa Rutherford, whose 91 per cent average earned her second place at 7315 and a tie for third in Hastings County. This tie and Alison Bays, Constance Smith, David Smith and David Turton combined to give Trenton High School seven Ontario scholars for the year 1962.

Gerry Burford was the recipient of The Intelligencer Award for the highest percentage in Grade 13 English, while a general proficiency award went to Kathleen Milligan, an English and history award to Beverly Parks and a mathematics award to Ray Lobban.

Three of Trenton's service clubs — the Rotary, Kiwanis and Lion's Clubs — awarded annual bursaries at Saturday's commencement.

The winners of these bursaries were: Peter O'Neill (Rotary Club); Sandra Walsh, Henry Kinsella, Randy Wall (Lions' Club) and David Turton and David Smith (Kiwanis Club.)

Maureen Smith and Carole Beaupy were the first winners of Hastings County Board of Education Scholarships for proficiency in commercial subjects.

John Garrett, the son of principal J. C. Garrett, returned from the junior "A" hockey wars in Peterborough for the occasion and was presented with the Gerald Anderson Memorial Trophy — given annually to the school's outstanding male athlete.

Karla Kuklis was named the outstanding female athlete while Jim Stewart won the Goldard Trophy as the person contributing most to music and the school band.

In all 85 students received Honor Graduation Diplomas (Grade 13) and 156 more earned Graduation Diplomas (Grade 12).

Motel Hearing Begins

The Ontario Municipal Board hearing into a rezoning application to allow construction of a two-and-a-half million dollar motel complex on the city's waterfront, was to get underway at city hall this afternoon.

Rezoning of the waterfront property is necessary to allow construction of the complex by Four Seasons Hotel interests. The re-zoning is being opposed by Sam Goodman, operator of the Sun Valley Motor Inn in the city's north end.

It is expected that the OMB hearing will take the better part of two days.

Tax Sale

The treasurer's land tax sale was held this morning at city hall with only seven separate properties on the auction block.

Twenty - six properties were originally listed for sale but the majority of owners paid up tax arrears prior to the date of the sale.

By way of comparison, last year 25 properties were sold for tax arrears, but the seemingly greater number, resulted from the fact that there was no land tax sale in 1957.

Staff Cut

Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson is at odds with the government over whose fiscal activities he is empowered to watch closely. It is Mr. Henderson's office which informs government departments they are over-stepping the mark in the area of spending.

That is and his staff are busy men goes without saying. Time and again the auditor-general has drawn attention to expenditures which have gone far beyond original estimates, expenditures moreover which show a complete disregard both for the national interest and the taxpayers. Many Canada Council grants, for example, have been granted to artistic ventures which have little or no merit.

Now Mr. Henderson is upset because the government has "arbitrarily" reduced the size of his staff as an austerity measure, particularly as he had been seeking additional staff to enable him to cope with "such formidable auditing requirements."

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield has raised the matter in Parliament. As he said, it is quite apparent that "what this parliamentary watchdog requires are sharper teeth rather than a filing down of those teeth."

Tax Reform

The full impact of the White Paper on Tax Reform will not be known for some time, certainly not before any or all of its provisions are given effect under government legislation.

Nevertheless it is clear that this is a remarkable and historic document, one which holds out the prospect of a more equitable system of taxation and a better deal for the taxpaying public.

Finance Minister Benson now takes his fiscal show on the road to explain its provision to Canadians from coast to coast. Whatever its final legislative form, it should help to bring us closer to that "just society" Prime Minister Trudeau has spoken of.

Quebec–B. C. Exchange

It is a far cry from Quebec to British Columbia and Premier Bennett's western province has been as vocal as any in its criticism of the political palaver French Canadians have been making in recent years.

Be that as it may, British Columbia is "separatist" enough in its own way. It trades briskly with Japan for instance, and in general its prosperous population lead a sort of pleasure-seeking lotus-eating existence while cocking a snoot at the rest of Canada.

Perhaps it was these common, maverick tendencies which brought Quebec and B.C. together recently by means of a student exchange. It was during Prince Philip's visit out west that 25 young people from Quebec attended a dinner in Vancouver, along with the prince and local students as their hosts. And judging by news pictures of the get-together, both at the dinner and during their leisure moments, the Quebec and B.C. students hit it off in great style.

If the B.C. students had expected the visitors to have two heads they did not show it. All of which goes to show that politics aside people are all the same.

Beatle Legend

In these days of instant communications, news good or bad travels with speed. Even a monumental hoax such as the legend that Beatle Paul McCartney has been dead three years, somehow achieves some semblance of reality after being tossed around by superstitious fans on both sides of the Atlantic.

Signs purporting to indicate he was dead included his back being turned on a record cover (in other words someone was standing in for him) and in another picture a hand over Paul's head was taken as a Welsh symbol of death. And so the folklore built up, people even reading into the lyrics of Beatles songs interpretations of death.

Paul meanwhile is reported alive and well. With his American wife and her two children by a former marriage he arrived in Glasgow recently, on their way to a two-week vacation at the Kintyre farm near Campbeltown. Incidentally Paul recently talked of retiring there if the Beatles Apple Corporation business venture on behalf of promising new stars should go under.

As for Campbeltown, well it is an away-from-it-all spot on the Mull of Kintyre, a sort of Scottish Baja California; and on a clear day, on the other side of the peninsula from Campbeltown, you can see forever — as far as Ireland anyway.

NATO Takes Up Challenge of Non-Military Problems

By JOHN LeBLANC

It's not evident on the surface, but NATO's new move toward the field of the non-military problems of industrial civilization is of peculiar historical interest to Canada.
